Atlanta, Georgia

Dear Dr. Dunbar:

I am enclosing herewith a copy of the Washington convention program for the Committee on Intergroup Relations, SSSP. The panel on the Far Right should be outstanding. Morton Sobel will describe and then illustrate the ADL documentaries, pamphlets and films suitable for "regular" and TV instruction, adult education, community organization, etc.

SSSP has arranged good programs in the past, only to have limited attendance (probably because its meetings precede ASA). We are particularly interested in getting attendance at the business meeting listed on the attached sheet. We hope to seek better articulation with ASA programs and to discuss the future of the Research Bulletin. If at all possible, I hope you or some representative of your department interested in race or intergroup relations will attend this meeting. Several suggestions for service and research have been suggested. They depend on broader participation than we have had in recent meetings.

Would you help by attending, if at all possible? Also, would you call this program to the attention of other interested persons in your department?

Yours cordially,

Paul

Dear Mr. Coker:

Please accept our most sincere appreciation for the contribution of the Sonoco Products Company to the Southern Regional Council.

As Mr. Dabbs has discussed with you, support from within the region for the work of the Southern Regional Council is extremely valuable. It becomes increasingly necessary to indicate to sources of national support that persons and firms within the region are willing to support programs for regional development.

We are deeply grateful.

Sincerely,

I am attaching the Company's check in the amount of $500.00 as a contribution to the Southern Regional Council and regret that I cannot increase it beyond this amount. We have so many calls for contributions, all of them worthwhile. For the next three or four years, we are heavily committed to the new Byerly Hospital at Hartsville.

I am asking Mrs. Watt to send the materials back to you that you left with me.

Dear Mrs. Aronstein:

You will perhaps be interested in the distribution given here to the pamphlet RACE: WHAT DOES THE BIBLE SAY? Our own office has sent it out to the attached list. Twenty-five copies were purchased by the Division of Christian Relations of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S. (which is the Southern branch of the Presbyterian Church). I don't know exactly what distribution these copies were given, but presume they have been mailed out to Presbyterian leaders over the South.

Another twenty-five were purchased by the Southeastern Office of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States, and the director there, Mr. Ernest Arnold, tells me that he has sent them out widely in the Southern States.

As we have exhausted our supply, perhaps you would be good enough to post on to us so many additional ones as our remaining balance of 9/7 will pay for and pay carriage for.

Many of those who have received the pamphlet here have already written and expressed real appreciation for it.

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell

The men between the State and the Africans

Our monthly letter

Dear Member,

On my way to attend the annual conference of Administrators of Non-European Affairs, I attended the installation of Chief Gatsha Buthelezi at Mahlabatini in Zululand. At the ceremony, Chief Buthelezi, a graduate of Fort Hare, spoke feelingly of his decision to accept the chieftainship. He was, he said, like a length of rope in a tug-of-war — the Government pulled at one end and his people at the other end and he had to bear the strain. He could have devoted himself to more lucrative occupations but he felt that he had this duty to his people whom it was his desire to serve. His speech struck a note of deep sincerity and was symptomatic of the strain under which the policy of the country has put a sincere, Christian and sensitive man.

At Margate, where the administrators met, there was another bit of rope — strong and with many strands of varying texture. For these administrators, too, stand between the Government and the African people. It is true that the majority did not feel themselves in the position so heart-rendingly described by Chief Buthelezi, but nevertheless there was evidence that on this rope, too, great strain is being placed.

A Change of Attitude?

At last year's conference in Bloemfontein one gained the impression that the majority of administrators approved and backed the severity of government-control measures. Perhaps this was owing to the presence there of the dynamic Minister of Native Affairs. This year they did not seem to have the same attitude and approach to urban African administration. This may have been due to a number of factors. The Native Affairs Department was represented by the Chief Native Commissioner for Natal, and the person who moved the vote of thanks commented adversely on the absence of Under-Ministers and Under-Secretaries from a conference of men who are responsible for the implementation of Government policy. The paper by Dr. Eiselen, which did not contain the word "apartheid", was a paper which indicated certain anxieties. He asked for understanding, tact and flexibility in the administration of the law. Perhaps the nature of the subjects discussed was such that it did not lend itself to emotive thinking. Whatever the cause, the Conference adopted a more scientific and objective approach which was very welcome.

The lead was possibly given by the paper from Kitwe — a paper which revealed a humanity and flexibility in urban administration and which demonstrated the usefulness of research and academic assistance in the administration of urban African peoples.

New Leadership

Prof. Coetzee of Potchefstroom did not make judgments in his paper. He set forth the considerations of the new developing situation in urban South Africa as he saw them. Perhaps the most significant contribution was the stress he laid upon the new leadership which was emerging and which was superceding the old tribal authority. This "acquired" leadership, as he called it, was not Zulu, Xhosa, Tswana — it was Bantu and representative of the urban African group! He suggested that Administrators must learn to consult and co-operate with it. Similarly, the paper on juvenile delinquency, which was intensely interesting and constructive, pointed up the necessity for administrators to think of the human problems involved and not only of administration.

This body of men who are so responsible for the happiness of Africans is a strong body. Its members are developing a professional pride and are increasingly aware of the difficult nature of the work they do and of the need for a more scientific and a more human approach. One lack in the deliberations was the isolation of the urban from the rural situation, and one felt that a strong call by this body of administrators for the development of the rural areas would have influenced the Government. Urban and rural problems must be tackled simultaneously, for it would appear that the problems and poverty of the reserves are being piled upon the cities.

Why not an African?

I suggest to you, whether you are in a dorp or a city, that you will find amongst the administrators a co-operative attitude and a willingness to discuss differences that may arise locally. Like Chief Buthelezi, the administrators do not make the law. They are licensed by the Government and they have to carry out the law whether they like it or not. Many of them seek most sincerely to mitigate the harshnesses that rigid application of it involves.

One might add a question in postscript—"Why not have an African of ability to address the Conference next time?"

Director.

The grim mid-September riots in Johannesburg

BLOODY FIGHTING in the week-end of September 15-16 between "Russians", who represent a small section of the Reef Basuto, and the "Zicazas", who again represent a small "floating" section of Johannesburg's Zulu population, has led to further tension between the Johannesburg City Council and the Ministry of Native Affairs.

The "Zicazas" (lit: 'opening in ear lobe') are the Zulu "flat boys" whose removal from the city was ordered under Dr. Verwoerd's "locations-in-the sky" ban. Some 5,000 of them — unattached rural men who come mainly from the Native territories of Natal and are distinguished by their tribal wooden ear-plugs -- were quartered in the Dube Hostel, among the hundreds of settled, urbanised, multi-tribal families of Orlando, among whom tribal tensions have long since ceased.

The Zicaza "bachelors" became the prey of township tsotsies, themselves recruited mainly from the legions of young men who, under present influx control regulations, are not allowed to enter Johannesburg to seek work. Rather than seek it elsewhere, and under Dr. Verwoerd's legislation lose domiciliary right in the place in which many of them were born, these youngsters have turned "tsotsi", to subsist on robbery and violence.

Call for Judicial Inquiry

The Dube "Zicazas" retaliated by attacking as "tsotsi" all who were not of their own faction. Mysteriously the "Russians" entered the scene as tsotsi allies, and in the bloody week-end of mid-September more than 40 were killed and more than 100 wounded — mainly "Zicaza" Zulus, and mainly as a result of police bullets fired in suppressing the riots.

The Johannesburg City Council, backed by other organizations, called on the Minister of Justice for a judicial inquiry into the rioting. Not only was this refused, but Dr. Verwoerd and the Nationalist group of the Johannesburg City Council, in intemperate language, accused the Johannesburg City Council of deliberately, and from political motives, failing to maintain law and order.

Among meetings called to discuss the riots was one representing 61,300 African, Coloured, Indian and European members. The delegates pledged themselves to organise anti-pass committees in every area, to organise Africans "to defend themselves and their legitimate rights" and "to set a definite date to rid ourselves of the vicious pass laws before the general election of 1958."

Other Resolutions

Other resolutions were:

". . . We shall unite all against the vicious group areas and ethnic grouping system; we shall organise the workers in agriculture and industry in every corner of the Transvaal . . . form workers' committees . . . support anti-Nationalist unity and the National Multi-Racial Conference."

Mr. Hymie Miller, Chairman of the Non-European Affairs Committee of the Johannesburg City Council, announced that his committee would request the City Council to appoint its own commission of inquiry under the chairmanship of a retired judge of the Supreme Court.

A statement given to the Press by our Director on behalf of the Institute received wide publicity. He described the riots as "an appaling price for the Africans — and we ourselves — to have to pay for the theoretical niceties of apartheid." He urged a swift meeting of representative authority, and immediate steps to disarm the rival groups.

A Warning

The riots were described by Mr. Jordan K. Ngubane, well-known African journalist, as "a warning to democrats on all sides of the colour line. The rioters' hatred directed towards their own people is fundamentally hatred for the apartheid tyrant. The iron has entered the African soul so deeply that violence is regarded as a feasible way out. At the moment it is directed against weaker objectives. I am not alarmist. But I get the feeling that the day is not far when it will be directed against the mad overlord who stimulates it wickedly to advance his own selfish interests. Unhappily, when the chickens come home to roost, all of us will be involved, whether or not they support apartheid."

Definition at Last

A committee of senior civil servants has been set up by Dr. Dönges, Minister of the Interior, to define and standardise race classifications with the object of bringing about a uniformity of definitions in the Nationalist government's race legislation.

Multi-racial Conference: 1

A multi-racial conference, "to discuss and explore the steps which can bring about friendly and effective co-operation among the different racial groups," is to be held in Johannesburg from December 3 to 5.

The organisers are sending out invitations to people of all political opinions, including Nationalists, though they do not intend it to be a political congress. Chairman of the planning committee is Mr. J. S. D. Dey, and there are more than 60 sponsors of all races, including Bishops, M.P.'s, Senators and leaders of Non-European thought.

"We are doing our best to get representation from all sections," Mr.

Dey said. "The people we are inviting are asked to attend in their individual capacities and not as representatives of organisations, otherwise they would be tied to the policies of those organisations."

Multi-racial Conference: 2

SABRA, declaring that it was necessary to create a good relationship between the European and African population, announced last month (September) that it had decided to hold a conference "with representatives of the Bantu community to discuss matters of current interest".

Conference: 3

In order to consolidate the growing interest in civil rights and to awaken further public awareness of the situation regarding the systematic invasion of civil rights in South Africa, the Committee of the Civil Rights League of South Africa is planning a national conference on civil rights to be held some time after the general election next year.

The conference will be planned to cover the whole field of civil liberties before and since Union, and to show clearly not only where they have been encroached upon but where they fall short of the standard laid down by the Declaration of Human Rights made by the United Assembly in 1948.

The League hopes that from the conference a permanent national organisation will arise for the defence and extension of civil rights.

As "Die Vaderland" Sees It

"Human relations," said Die Vaderland's leading article on September 6, "is a current expression which means precisely the opposite of what one would suppose it to mean. It has nothing to do with the fine concept of 'humanity'; for what annointed speakers from a thousand platforms mean to brand is inhumanity. Nor do they mean human beings, but races — and specially coloured races. And in South Africa specially you are expected to hang your head in shame for your 'oppression' of the Non-Europeans."

The writer of the article regards what he calls the current connotation of "human relations as conceived and born in sin" but declares that painful experience in South Africa has taught that it cannot be disregarded. "However undeservedly, our good name is involved. We know that even our best endeavours are immediately injected with the germ of rot (verrotheid). And the saddest of all is that even the Native who would like to favour us (ons begunstig) is told against the evidence of his own eyes that the glories (heerlikhede) of Meadowlands are a delusion and that the filth of Sophiatown is really his heaven on earth."

Government "Busy Night and Day"

The article goes on to say that it goes without saying that the European must defend himself against this sort of thing. "The Government is busy with it night and day. The (church) Mission never sleeps. But it is also essential that the ordinary citizen must give conscious aid."

For this reason the article welcomes the news that SABRA "has gone out of its way to try to create machinery for inter-racial conferences with the leaders of the Bantu community, with the object of promoting mutual good relations by learning to understand and reconcile feelings and viewpoints on both sides."

The leader-writer declares that "one can only deplore that the need for such a thing should have arisen (for) there was a time when a Boer could go on commando and, without the least anxiety, leave his wife and children and his entire farm in the care of a faithful creature ('n getroue skepsel)."

For the deterioration in race relations, which it admits as being only too regrettable, Die Vaderland blames "bunglers and agitators".

Non-Europeans "Will Laugh"

If SABRA gets to work with an action committee and every European follows the advice of Dr. William Nicol, Administrator of the Transvaal, to befriend even one Non-European, Die Vaderland believes that the "human relations group of the world will honestly find that the Non-Europeans about whom they are so concerned will laugh them out of countenance for their clumsy and uninvited interference."

Another "Ban" Promotes Integration

In response to a circular from the Government Department of Native Affairs, calling on local authorities to properly enforce the law that Africans should be employed to serve their own people, the Johannesburg City Council is to review its already strict (8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on week days only) regulations for white persons wishing to enter the Native townships on business. The Star (Johannesburg), in a leading article (Sept. 11) said that, in so far as it allows some Natives to improve their status and their standard of living the decision to ban European commercial travellers and insurance agents is commendable. In so far as it puts some hundreds of Europeans out of work, or drastically reduces their earnings, it must be condemned.

"It is likely that, without intervention from a government with a passion for ordering the community's life from above, the good could have been achieved without the bad." Firms would have found increasingly that it paid them to employ Native travellers in Native areas.

Decision Serves Integration

"The present decision will no doubt be defended in the name of apartheid, because it allows Natives to serve their own people in their own areas. Yet it can equally be argued that it serves integration, because it means the growing employment of Natives in more senior positions in European firms. Here is another illustration of how futile and how muddled are the attempts to apply a policy which in theory aims at apartheid but which in practice promotes integration".

Statement by Travellers' Union

The ban is being opposed by the National Union of Commercial Travellers. In a statement issued to the press it claims that about 800 European commercial travellers will be deprived of their livelihood by the ban, which is to be enforced at the end of December. The Union declares itself to be not opposed to the employment of Non-Europeans as commercial travellers as long as they have equal rights and wages with the Europeans. It feared the enforcement of the ban would lead to the employment of African commercial travellers at lower wages than the rates for Europeans.

Nurses Do Not Accept Apartheid

November 2 and 3 were provisionally set down for a national conference of nurses to discuss the changed conditions brought about by the promulgation of the Nursing Act, 1957, which a large — and perhaps majority — body of nurses rejects as alien in its racial discrimination, to the ethics and traditions of the profession of nursing. An initial circular sent out by the organising committee says: "The implementation of apartheid in the profession must lower the status of the South African nurses, both locally and internationally, and not only adversely affect the standard of nursing in this country but destroy the harmony and co-operation between nurses of different racial groups which has existed in the past."

More Apartheid Orders

The local Transportation Board has presented the Johannesburg City Council with a demand for full apartheid on the whole of the city's transport services from January 1 next.

The Durban City Council, on which a similar order was served, has decided to appeal against it to the National Transport Commission.

Enforcing More Apartheid

The Minister of Labour, Mr. de Klerk, has announced that the industrial tribunal's proposal for reserving certain occupations in the clothing industry for certain races are about to be published and enforced. This will be the newest and most revolutionary aspect of the revised Industrial Conciliation Act, which came into force at the beginning of this year.

Industrialist Attacks Job Reservation

The policy of reserving skilled jobs for Europeans had created a tremendous man-power vacuum in South Africa, an industrialist, Mr. J. H. Wessels, told the recent man-power conference sponsored by the National Development Foundation. He said that a large expansion scheme for a major industrial enterprise had been cancelled because of the lack of the men to run it.

Because of the official colour policy, leaders in South African commerce and industry were subjected to stresses and strains unknown to their contemporaries in other parts of the world. Elsewhere, men for the top posts could be drawn from all classes. In the Union the selection stopped at the broad bottom barrier which comprised the Non-European and a tiny class of Whites who were fitted only for sheltered employment.

The position in industry was becoming increasingly critical with the racial changes in the labour force.

15,000 Can Lose Jobs in the Cape

The reservations which have been proposed for the clothing industry by the industrial tribunal will reserve practically the entire industry for Europeans only, and in the Cape alone, apart from the large numbers of factories on the Rand and in other areas, more than 15,000 Non-Europeans are threatened with the loss of their means of livelihood.

No Apartheid

Some years ago the International Medical Association refused to hold a conference in South Africa because its apartheid policy would be offensive to Non-White members of other countries. Whether or not this was responsible for the total lack of segregation at the Association's recent conference in Durban, the fact is that apartheid was so far excluded that Non-White doctors and their wives were encouraged to take part fully not only in the academic proceedings but in the social activities as well. The Non-White doctors were included in all functions. They attended the civic reception, the dinner in the Durban City Hall and the ball.

What Price Apartheid?

Apartheid from a purely objective standpoint has as yet produced little in the way of material results, writes Lord Hailey in the revised edition of his monumental work, "An African Survey," recently published by the Oxford University Press.

In analysing the progress of apartheid from 1948 to 1956 he says: "The Native reserves stand much as they did in 1948. The great growth of secondary industries has made the factories more than ever dependent on African labour.

"Apartheid has not reversed the trend of the movement of Africans from the rural to the urban centres. White labour has not been attracted to the Union to take the place of the many Bantu who in theory should be sent back to the reserves. There is no indication that the Bantu in general are giving a welcome to a procedure of education or to the formation of types of local government institutions which will reflect Bantu traditions rather than those of Europe.

Crucial Question

The doctrine of separatism, Lord Hailey contends, has still to face the crucial question whether the economy of a modern industrialised state will permit the maintenance of a crude form of differentiation against a major part of the manpower on which it is dependent.

In no country south of the Sahara — the area covered by the survey — is there any such stark insistence on the principle of differentiation as in the Union.

Almost everywhere else there are signs of the closing of the gap which once seemed to separate African institutions and usages from those prevailing in the Western world.

Nationalist's Call for Black-White Alliance

A plea for an alliance between Black and White nationalisms was made by Prof. L. J. du Plessis of Potchefstroom University, at the recent National Development Foundation conference on man-power in Johannesburg.

South Africa could include both in solving its industrial problem, he said.

Native wages should be raised as a step towards this development. The level could be lifted by increasing the pay for unskilled work and also by opening more fields for semi-skilled work to Non-Europeans. This would make a White labour policy in the European areas an economic proposition. By that time Non-European industry and commerce might be able to absorb the available supply of Black labour both skilled or unskilled, not required in European areas.

Professor du Plessis attacked the address given by Mr. Harry Oppenheimer, M.P., at the Duke of Edinburgh's conference on industry. Mr. Oppenheimer's plan for integration could only lead to the Bantufication of South Africa's labour force as a whole, he said.

"Black nationalism if advanced by legislation might, however, save White nationalism and lead to a full development of South Africa's resources by Black-White co-operation in separate national homes."

Government Moves—Slightly

Government revision of basic wage rates for certain categories of Africans in Port Elizabeth have been received in the Press as sound in principle and a hopeful sign of Government recognition of the need for an improvement of the economic lot of the Africans — but most newspapers condemned the increase as inadequate, still below the breadline and below the minima which many employers are in any case already paying their African labour.

Nationalist Urges Bantu Championship

"We cannot allow England to create independent Bantu states within our borders, which will certainly happen if we do not forestall it; or the United Nations to take South-West Africa under trusteeship, which will also certainly happen if we do not grant full political rights to the Natives there; or the United States and Russia, in rivalry with each other, to incite successfully our own Non-Europeans to a general revolt against White supremacy, which is also certainly on the way if we do not provide the prospect of real self-government to the rising Bantu nations." In these words, in an article in Dagbreek en Sondagnuus (8/9/57) which was widely quoted by the English press, Prof. L. J. du Plessis, of Potchefstroom University, declared that there was little hope of progress with the present policy of incorporating the British Protectorates in the Union on the basis of its slowly developing Native policy.

He urged that "our only hope of progress is for us to act as champions of the Bantu peoples concerned, even if necessary against the United Nations and the United Kingdom, namely to liberate them from all foreign domination, with the proviso that for their own safety . . . they remain in the Western defence system together with the Union against Eastern imperialism, and mainly that of Communism."

He said that the Union should declare as its policy the establishment of independent Bantu states in Basutoland, Bechuanland, Swaziland and Ovamboland. If this proved successful further Bantu states could be developed in Zululand, Xhosaland, etc.

University Apartheid Inquiry

The commission of inquiry, consisting of 13 M.P.s of all parties originally appointed as a select committee, which is to discuss details of the University Apartheid Bill, will meet in Pretoria on November 1. It will then begin considering the written evidence which has been submitted.

The select committee appointed by Parliament was converted into a commission at the end of the session so that it could continue its inquiries.

It is headed by Mr. M. D. C. de Wet Nel (Nat.). The other members are: Mrs. V. M. L. Ballinger (Native Rep.), Mr. R. Butcher (U.P.), Dr. C. de Wet (Nat.), Mr. A. Hepple (Lab.), Dr. A. Jonker (Nat.), Dr. H. G. Luttig (Nat.), Mr. W. A. Maree (Nat.), Mr. P. A. Moore (U.P.), Mr. D. J. J. Mostert (Nat.), Mr. H. A. Rust (Nat.), Dr. L. Steenkamp (U.P.), and Dr. J. Steyn (Nat.).

D.R.C. Stands by Church Clause

A Dutch Reformed deputation to the Government convinced itself that the basic principle of religious freedom and freedom of bona fide Christian worship was in no way impaired or interfered with by the church clause, says a statement recently sent overseas by the D.R.C.

The Bill was only aimed at the curbing of possible nuisances which could arise if and when large numbers of Bantu gathered in essentially White residential areas with the real or ostentatious purpose of attending religious worship, the statement added.

The message was contained in a communication replying to a query from the general secretary of the World Council of Churches (Dr. W. A. Visser T'Hooft). The Rev. W. A. Landman, on behalf of the Dutch Reformed Churches of South Africa, wrote the letter setting out the attitude of the Dutch Reformed Churches towards the Native Laws Amendment Act and race relations generally.

Stellenbosch Makes Contact

An audience of about 100 students and several lecturers of Stellenbosch University are reported to have received with enthusiasm (and an enthusiastic resulting discussion) the address in which Dr. E. van der Ross, Coloured principal of the Battswood Training College, claimed at a meeting of the Stellenbosch University Contact Study Group (Sept. 12) that the supremacy of a racial group in a multi-racial society could only be maintained by legislation, administrative brutality and discriminatory education.

Dr. van der Ross said that there were three possibilities in the South Africa of tomorrow: a multi-racial community with one race clearly dominating the others a mixed race with no cultural or racial differences; and a community where colour and culture would differ but with no political, economic or educational discrimination.

Education would have to be determined according to the South African community desired.

Brutality is Inevitable

He mentioned the conditions under which the first alternative would operate:

Maintenance of a position of power by legislation is so generally accepted in South Africa today that most Europeans and Non-Europeans regard it as natural, inevitable and even morally right.

"Brutality is the inevitable result of discriminating legislation. Unjust pass laws and other segregation laws must end in revolt and resistance with baton charges and sten guns.

"An educational system is the result of a purposeful effort of the State to produce a certain type of people and way of thinking," he said.

Dr. van der Ross dismissed the idea of general integration with no racial or cultural differences. "Even in the highest degree of integration the Bantu and the Coloured will keep their identity; and I make this plea for political and economic equality in the knowledge that the protagonists of apartheid have nothing to fear from us, as anyone who knows our people well can state.

"If we do not work together now and plan our education in this direction we are heading for a catastrophe for which our self-conceit and short sighted prejudice will be responsible," he said.

Nationalist Doubt Department

"Dear Sir — I have read and re-read all the Government's declarations of policy. Yet questions remain which keep me awake. Help me with the following few:

"Dr. Malan once rightly warned that nationalism could be as little stemmed as the east wind by a sieve. He spoke of white nationalism in South Africa. But isn't it just as true of the Bantu and other Non-Whites? Nationalism has already taken hold among them. Isn't there the real danger that, with the power which their position in the economic life of the country gives them, they will enforce it?

"I do not for one moment believe that the Native, and particularly the developed Native who neither belongs nor wants to belong to any tribe, will go without force to the inadequate reserves. And what a witches' brew will cook in those territories!

"I believe that it is now quite clear that we will not get the Protectorates, for the simple reason that no British Government which handed them over could hope for political survival. However strongly and genuinely we might feel about apartheid, our name has been blackened with it over the entire world. Do we perhaps owe this to too noisy propaganda?

"And the Coloureds. How do we see their future, without even a little reserve of their own? Wasn't General Hertzog right when he preferred not to drive the Coloureds away by putting them on a separate voters' roll, offsetting instead their political domination by raising the franchise qualifications?

"My last question: Our Minister of Defence is doing his best to get the defence of South Africa in good shape. But this will have to be done in co-operation with other African territories, which all employ black troops. Yet according to tradition we do not arm Non-White troops? What's to be done about that?

Basutoland's Five Demands

The Basutoland African Congress has written to the Paramount Chieftainess of the Basuto asking her to make five demands, including a Legislative Council for Basutoland, when she meets the Secretary of State for Commonwealth Relations in London.

A copy of the letter to the Paramount Chieftainess, Mantsebo Seeiso, who is on a visit to Britain, was sent to the Secretary of State.

The other four demands were for an impartial commission of inquiry into the evil of alleged "medicine murders", the removal of the present Resident Commissioner, Mr. A. G. T. Chaplin, a declaration by Britain that the territory should never be incorporated within the Union of South Africa unless two-thirds of the Basuto approved, and that colour discrimination should be outlawed in Basutoland.

Elected Council

The Congress demanded that the Legislative Council should be established immediately, and that the majority of the members should be elected.

This body should have the sole right to deal with all domestic matters, and there should be no unwarranted interference from the British Government.

"It is the feeling of the majority of the Basuto that a Legislative Council is long overdue, and that the glaring mistakes, administrative and political, which are so detrimental to the welfare of this country can only be properly handled by a legislature of this kind.

Rams for the Pondos

Mr. R. M. Kingwill, a Merino farmer of Jordanville, near Graaf Reinet, has presented a pedigree stud Merino ram to Chief Tuto Nhanase, heir to the paramount chieftainship of the Pondos. Mr. Kingwill will give seven breed rams in all to Pondo chiefs to improve the flocks of the African farmers in the Transkei. Mr. Kingwill and his wife decided to do this when they visited the Transkei and saw the poor flocks and ravages of soil erosion. Mr. Kingwill told a gathering at Umtata: "I want to do something in return for the loyalty and service the Pondos have given me".

African Welfare Officials

The Anglo-American Corporation is to train its own African welfare officers for work among its thousands of employees in the mine compounds of the Union and Rhodesia. Thirty-two Africans, chosen from the Transvaal, Free State and Northern Cape, are at present attending an intensive six weeks' course at the President Brand Mine. According to Mr. Dan Botha, group training officer, the men were all picked for potential leadership.

The Little Rock on which so much could split

THE WORLD IS WATCHING the outcome of an extraordinary collision over the integration principal between Federal and State authority in the city of Little Rock, in the State of Arkansas.

Two months ago integration was ordered for the first time at the Little Rock High School by a Federal judge. The reaction of the State Governor, Orval Faubus, was to order 200 armed National Guardsmen to forcibly prevent a teenage Negro girl from entering the school, under the pretext of maintaining law and order. His action loosed another outburst of riots, dynamite blasts and rabble-rousing in the American Deep South.

With world attention focussed on Little Rock, and the issue there becoming a national one, President Eisenhower, after a period of deadlock, took the dramatic course of placing the State guardsmen under Federal orders and posting an airborne division of the Federal Army, many of them seasoned combat troops, to enforce the order of the Federal court. Demonstrations by small White groups were quickly put down.

Eisenhower Meets Governors

Nine Negro children are now attending the school under reduced military guard, but a situation of extraordinary paradoxes persists. A meeting has taken place between President Eisenhower and the governors of some of the Southern States who rallied to the support of Governor Faubus; and unlike South Africa, which withdrew from the United Nations, President Eisenhower hastened to forestall Russian attempts to capitalise on the Little Rock situation by putting the American case before the United Nations.

While the Ku Klux Klan fiery crosses burn periodically and all the old prejudices boil over in spasmodic outbreaks of violence in the South and the nine Negro children of Little Rock quietly attend school, Governor Faubus, who has incurred far more opprobrium than praise for his attitude, behaves like a man in a trap. He declares plaintively that he is "willing to meet with anyone who seeks a solution" and that he would be "satisfied with an armistice or a truce." He continues, however, to evade the firm suppression of Negro intimidation on which the President insists.

At the same time integration is steadily taking place in other parts of the Deep South, "White" hotels, which never did so before, are admitting Negro delegates to church conventions, and Wilfred M. Calnan, director of the Harris County Welfare Department, Texas, has resigned rather than carry out an order to separate patients in a convalescent home on a basis of colour rather than of ailment.

The general picture is of Jim Crow die-hards fighting a slowly losing battle in the face of changing public opinion and Presidential determination to uphold the integration ruling of the Supreme Court of the United States. »

Satchmo "Consigns" his Government

Negro trumpet player Louis Armstrong — "Satchmo" to his admirers the world over, and a man who is reported to be regarded by the State Department as one of America's most effective unofficial goodwill ambassadors — cancelled a U.S. Government-sponsored visit to Russia and said his "government can go to hell" in protest against the Little Rock school deadlock in Arkansas. He accused President Eisenhower of having "no guts" and described Governor Orval Faubus, of Arkansas, who used State troops to exclude Negro school-children from the Arkansas school, as "an uneducated ploughboy".

President Eisenhower's firm action in sending Federal troops to enforce the Supreme Court's integration order, and placing State troops under Federal command, caused Satchmo to revise his decision. He is now ready to "fracture them cats" in the Soviet Union and has the answer "if people over there ask me what's wrong with my country".

U.S. Bureau of African Affairs

The United States Government is to establish a Bureau of African Affairs under an Assistant Secretary of State.

Mr. Loy W. Henderson, Deputy Under Secretary of State, has informed the House of Representatives Foreign Affairs Sub-committee in Washington that the Bureau was warranted by the "increasing world significance of political, economic, and social developments in Africa, the importance of Africa to the United States and the growing need to counter-influences which are showing increasing interest in Africa."

Under the plans, 226 new African students would be studying in the United States. At present 1,424 African students are there under various types of sponsorship.

The new Bureau of African Affairs would include all of the African continent except Algeria, Egypt and the Sudan.

38,000 Federal Non-Whites to be given the vote

TWENTY-SIX THOUSAND AFRICANS and 12,000 Indians and Coloureds in the three territories of the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland will be given the vote under the Federal Government's franchise scheme published this month in a White Paper.

The constitution provides for a legislature consisting of a single chamber of 35 members. The race of nine of these members and the method of their selection is set out. The race of the other 26 members is not specified.

It also provides that a quarter of the Federal Assembly's members should consist of Africans and Europeans charged with the duty of representing African interests. It provides no special safeguards for European interests.

Higher Pay for Chiefs

African Paramount and other Chiefs are to get substantially higher pay to correspond with their responsible offices, the Northern Rhodesian Government decided recently. Salaries of not less than £2,000 are to be paid to Paramount Chiefs, together with a car and driver provided and paid for by the Government.

"Exemplary" on 105,000 Pints!

Africans in Salisbury's and Bulawayo's townships consumed £11,500 worth of European beers and light wines in the first week of legalised drinking. In Salisbury's Harari Township the consumption was 100,000 pint bottles of beer, 2,500 quart bottles of beer and 2,500 bottles of wine. Every day men and women "clocked in" at opening time — 10.30 a.m. — for their "pint". The bars close at 6 p.m.

Despite what appears to have been a considerable first week's consumption, municipal authorities in both cities described the behaviour of the Africans as "exemplary".

African Women Police

Tanganyika is to have its own women's branch of the police force. Recently Miss Irene Pye, a former sergeant in the Liverpool City Police, arrived in Tanganyika to form the new section. She was given the rank of Assistant Superintendent. At the moment it is not proposed to accept Europeans. Non-White applicants with the necessary qualifications, will undergo a training period of at least six months, probably at the Police Training School at Moshi, in the Northern Province.

Industrial Farm School for Africans

The Southern Rhodesia Native Education Department is to establish an industrial farm school for Africans in the Midlands. 2,000 areas have been set aside for it in the northern section of the Que Que Native Reserve. The first pupils numbering about 80 would be admitted at the beginning of 1959. The school will eventually accommodate about 340 pupils. Students will take four-year courses in agriculture, building, carpentry and later, sheet metal working. Experiments would be carried out in farming on the 2,000 acres and courses would be fitted to the needs of farmers in the midlands area.

30-million Acres for Africans

By the end of 1960, the Southern Rhodesia Government plans to have 30-million acres, or about three-tenths of Southern Rhodesia, settled by rural Natives under approved standards of agriculture.

The nerve centre of the project, which involves the implementation of the Native Land Husbandry Act, will cost more than £6,000,000.

All the initial survey work has been completed and photographic maps reveal the change that has already taken place from the over-populated and eroded system of communal settlement to the planned agricultural system of today.

About 3,500,000 acres of the Native areas have been allocated to rural Natives for re-settlement, and much of this land is already under the plough. About the same acreage has been allocated for stock grazing.

Among Ourselves . . .

THE INSTITUTE LOST one of its most devoted members and supporters when Dr. Francis Thomas Auden — after whom, and in commemoration of whose generosity our head-office was named Auden House — died at his home at Umtentweni, on the Natal South Coast, on September 21, at the age of 88 years.

Dr. Auden was a rugged liberal and individualist, and an uncompromising champion of justice. He was a man who scorned "tribal" thinking and "herrenvolkism" in all their forms; and his life was a shining example of fearless adherence to the principles of civilised men.

Born of a family of churchmen at Wellingborough, England, on July 5, 1869, he came to South Africa as a young doctor of 21 years in 1890. He first practised in the Eastern Province, where he married Nurse Hutton, a granddaughter of Sir Andries Stockenstroom. Of this marriage there was a son, who died unmarried, and a daughter who followed her father's profession.

Beloved and Legendary Figure

After his marriage he practised in Rustenburg, where he became a beloved and legendary figure. A personal friend of President Paul Kruger, he rode impartially between the Boer and British lines in the South African War, giving help where it was needed.

Too old for active service in the First World War, he offered himself to the British Colonial Office and was sent to such places as Barbados, Cat Island, Turks and Cacos Islands, Grenada, Honduras, Jamaica, Java and Malaya, the Seychelles and parts of Africa, where he acted in such an extraordinary variety of roles as governor, medico, magistrate, pastor, postmaster and veterinary surgeon.

Not only South Africa but mankind generally lost a splendid personality with the passing of Dr. Francis Thomas Auden, and the sympathy of Institute members will go out to his daughter and to his widow, who is living at Umtentweni.

A Second Great Loss

A second serious loss to the Institute in the ranks of its active members occurred when Mr. William Garner Hoal, Q.C., former Secretary for Justice and Director of Prisons, and member of the Institute's national executive committee, died at his home, the Outspan, at Fish Hoek, on October 6. Mr. Hoal, who was 71 years old, died after a heart attack which confined him to his bed on September 18.

Before his illness he had been preparing for publication one of the two latest volumes of Gardiner and Lansdown, the standard legal work in South Africa, which he had been bringing up to date since 1955.

On September 24 Mr. Hoal and his wife celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary.

Penal Reform

In addition to work on the committees of several charitable organizations, mainly those helping children, Mr. Hoal was active in the penal reform movement and was also the director of the Institute of Citizenship.

He was born at Fort Beaufort, the son of the last Postmaster-General of the Cape Colony and first Postmaster-General of the Union. He began his legal career as a clerk in the magistrate's office at Woodstock in 1906. He rose to professional assistant to the Attorney-General in Pretoria in 1920, was Government Attorney from 1924 to 1928; Attorney-General, Bloemfontein, 1929 to 1934; Government law adviser 1935 to 1937 and Attorney-General, Cape Town, in 1937. He become King's Counsel in 1929.

Could have been Judge

In 1939 he became Secretary for Justice and in 1945 he was appointed Director of Prisons. After 40 years of public service, Mr. Hoal retired as Secretary of Justice in 1946. In 1948 he retired as Director of Prisons. He served on several Government commissions including the interdepartmental committee on crime on the Witwatersrand (1943), of which he was chairman, the archives commission (1944) and the Lansdown commission on penal reform.

On his retirement as Director of Prisons Mr. Hoal was offered a judgeship in South-West Africa, but as a member of the Lansdown commission, he declined.

Third Member Dies

A third member of the Institute to die since the last issue of Race Relations News was the Rev. Josiah Mdelwa Hlongwane, who died at his home in the Pimville Native Location on October 24.

Born on December 14, 1887, he qualified for the Methodist ministry in 1907 and was appointed to Johannesburg in 1912. Thereafter his pastoral duties took him to many towns, including Ermelo and Middelburg.

As a result of some friction with a European Superintendent of the Church, who remonstrated with him for acquiring a motor car to carry him on his pastoral rounds instead of keeping to the usual locomotion of his feet or a bicycle, he broke away from the mother church and established his own Bantu Methodist Church in 1932.

Mr. Hlongwane served on many committees and public bodies concerned with African welfare. He was a member of the Pimville Advisory Board and the Pimville School Board and former president of the Federation of Bantu Churches. He was local chairman of the Road Safety Association, Pimville, and a former Executive member of TIAMA.

A memorial service was held at the Bantu Methodist Church, Pimville, on October 20 and the funeral took place at Groutville, Natal, on October 22.

Could any letter have made us happier?

". . . It has given me great pleasure to become a Donor Life Member of the S.A. Institute of Race Relations. You do a wonderful work, and I am so glad to be able to help a little.

"You will be amused to know that the cheque enclosed (for £105) was a birthday present to myself on my 84th birthday!

(This letter was received at the Institute's head-office from an old lady living in the Eastern Transvaal.)

Penal Reform Conference

All members of the Institute of Race Relations and other interested persons, are invited to the conference of the Penal Reform League (an early offshoot of the Institute) which will be held on November 4 and 5 in the Sadu Hall, 166 Visagie Street, Pretoria. Discussion on the first day will be on the Criminal Law Amendment Bill, and on the second on "Chaplains, Prisons and Government Institutions". Intending visitors should previously notify the Secretary of the League at P.O. Box 1385, Pretoria.

Fellowship for Mr. Ngcobo

Mr. Selby B. Ngcobo, senior lecturer in economics at Fort Hare and for many years a member of our Institute, has been awarded a fellowship of the Institute of Commonwealth Studies, tenable for one year at the University of London. Mr. Ngcobo holds the degrees of B.A. (S.A.), M.A. (Yale), and B. Econ. (Natal). He was born in Maritzburg.

£1,600 Raised at Durban Fête

The Natal Coastal Regional Committee wishes its sincere thanks expressed to all persons, members and non-members of the Institute, who contributed to the very successful fête held in the Durban City Hall on August 19 and 20. A preliminary statement shows a nett profit of approximately £1,600.

But for the 'flu . . .

An epidemic of Asian 'flu caused a drop in what was hoped would be the financial result of the jumble sale (Aug. 31) and street collection (Sept. 7) organised by the Cape Eastern Regional Committee in Port Elizabeth. The jumble sale yielded £13 1s. 6d. and the street collection £90. This was slightly lower than last year.

Current Quotes . . .

"We who grew up on the farms know. We had law and order . . . our workers trusted us . . . they came to sing at our graves." — Mr A. L. Raubenheimer (Nationalist) opposing at a meeting of the Johannesburg City Council the United Party request for a judicial commission of inquiry into the recent "Russian"-"Zicaza" clashes in the south-western townships.

What apartheid stands for . . .

"If any municipality feels that it is a Christian duty to pay pensions to these kaffirs, let it do so. We stand for apartheid. Let us reject this (proposal) at once." — Mr. G. J. du Plessis, delegate from Zeerust to the recent conference of the Transvaal Municipal Association, on the proposal (carried) to admit Non-Europeans to the Joint Municipal Pension Fund.

. . . and the pass laws

"It is the Government, through the operation of the pass laws, that is responsible for the crime, misery and lawlessness that is the lot of many Africans today." — Leading article in the (formerly Bantu) "World".

The guilty secret

"There is no disputing the admission subconsciously made by all thinking people that we are horribly underpaying the Non-White worker. —Mr. J. H. Liebenberg, President of the Artisan Staff Association of the South African Railways and Harbours, in an address to the recent national management conference held in Johannesburg. He added that if the Union's Non-White labour reservoir was to be of any value in the future, the time had arrived for the White man to "change his spectacles and face realities, of which the very first is a revision of the Native wage structure."

A senseless act . . .

"The application of white job reservation in the clothing industry by the Minister of Labour is a senseless act, unsupported by facts and unworkable in practice. But it is likely to do severe harm to the industry by the uncertainty which it creates. The 2,000 White employees (in the Cape clothing industry) largely depend for their employment on the existence of a large Coloured labour force. The Minister will be forced to grant wholesale exemptions for the employment of Coloured workers, or he will himself be the cause of white workers being out of jobs."— Mr. Dan Rabie, chairman of the Cape Clothing Manufacturers' Association.

The Non-White View . .

ILANGA LASE NATAL, the Zulu weekly, dealt editorially (14/9/57) with a letter in which a writer, calling himself an "English-speaking South African", wrote to the Natal Mercury wondering if giving the African a stake in the country would be wise in view of the fact that "if the Native were given a firm foothold among European and other races would he stop his assaults on white women on lonely farms, and violent robberies of the aged and helpless"?

Ilanga agreed with the letter writer that Africans who want a stake in the country should prove that they are responsible and can behave like human beings, but points out that responsible Africans today are in the forefront of those who criticise the irresponsible acts of their fellowmen.

"But responsible Africans feel that if they, who appreciate the civilised way of life and behaviour, were to be given more responsibility and freedom to move freely among their people, and to take an active part in educating and advising their less educated fellowmen, there would be some noticeable changes in the behaviour of the majority of these people".

The journal expressed the view that there is no incentive even for the law-abiding and self-respecting African to prove his worth. "He suffers the same indignities, if not more, from those on the other side of the colour line who pander to the belief that fraternising with Africans, no matter at what stage their development, is undermining the white man's influence in this country."

"These Africans, who should have a stake in the country, who should feel safe and secure in their homes and work, who should be encouraged by being treated with courtesy and consideration in their dealings with their White fellowmen, are not given this recognition except by a few whites who, in turn, are accused by the other whites of giving the Africans a wrong impression of their superiority," the article declared.

The writer affirmed his sincere belief that if these Africans were given all facilities and encouragement to do things for themselves among their own people, to lead their people with words and not deeds, there would soon be less ill-feeling and frustration. "We resent being judged by the ill deeds of others. Even among white people with all their civilisation many still behave exactly as some of our worst types, but they do not suffer in the same way."

"Mna" and "Mi" are meaningless *

"This new invention, Mna' and 'Mi', will cause great confusion. School Board secretaries, teachers, Sub-Inspectors and supervisors of Bantu schools will have to use these two ignominious and meaningless words in official communications with one another," said a letter-writer in Langa Lase Natal (Sept. 21).

"It is perhaps not wrong to assume that teachers will be directed to teach these words in schools. But will they dare to mention that the purpose is to relegate Africans as a whole to a certain position?"

"In business and friendly correspondence, however, they will be referred to in the old European way. The invention is cumbersome and may cause school boards and teachers to view with suspicion the new 'Bantu Education'."

* Rand Zulus, too, reject the "Mna." and "Mi.", decreed by the Native Affairs Ministry, as "meaningless" and "offensive," with no apparent root in the Zulu language. Zulus other than N.A.D. officials in official correspondence will continue to use the European forms of written addresses or the established Zulu "Mnu." (short for Mnumzane) in letters addressed to men, "Nkz." (for Nkosikazi) for Mrs. and "Nks." (Nkosazana) for Miss.—Editor.

What sense does "economic basis" make to those who live below the bread line?

WHITE LEGISLATORS AND EMPLOYERS are increasingly appreciating that adequate housing and transport services are essentials for Africans in urban areas, as roads, bridges, dams and dipping tanks are in the reserves, and schools in all parts of the country. But, so far, they have not faced the economic consequences squarely. Hence the attempt to place all these services on an 'economic basis' so far as possible.

Africans in the reserves are being called upon to bear a 'reasonable share' of the costs of developmental works and to contribute free labour. Large numbers of chiefs have agreed to the imposition of tribal levies (67 new ones were imposed during the past year), and tribal, regional and territorial Bantu authorities are all to be empowered to levy rates: this in addition to the other forms of taxation paid by Africans.

In urban areas, all new housing has been placed on an 'economic basis', and, furthermore, Africans are being called upon to pay up to 2s. a month to cover the costs of lower primary schools. Throughout the Union they must contribute £ for £ to the costs of erecting higher and post primary schools.

"Organic Contact"

The Minister of Native Affairs has justified this policy by saying that it gives the people organic contact' with the various projects, engendering pride based on achievement. This is, no doubt, true. But he is overlooking the facts that, according to various reliable surveys, between 69 and 87 per cent. of the Africans in urban areas were living below the poverty datum line even before these new taxes were imposed, and that, as the Tomlinson Commission once again showed, most of those in the reserves are desperately poor, the real per capita income in these areas having even fallen during recent years owing to increasing population.

The authorities have for some time realized that, in the larger cities where African townships are situated a long way out, railway passenger services must be subsidized. A few bus services have been subsidized, too, from the Native Services Levy Fund. But the recent bus boycott on the Reef and in Pretoria proved conclusively that the fares were still beyond the ability of Africans to pay. For a time the authorities condemned the boycotters as 'political agitators'; but eventually they introduced the Native Transport Services Act, providing for increased contributions by employers in the larger towns.

Pretoria's "Luxury" Scheme

A situation has recently arisen in Pretoria which re-emphasizes the fact that it is pointless to try to place services on an economic basis when the people served are living below the breadline. In most of the larger towns there are still sub-economic housing schemes, built under the old ¾ per cent. or 3½ per cent. loan schemes, in which the rentals payable by African families earning below £15 a month are 'sub-economic', that is, they do not cover interest and redemption of the loans obtained for the houses concerned. A sliding scale is used to determine the rentals of families with over £15 a month. Losses on these schemes are shared by the State and the local authority.

Pretoria had one sub-economic housing scheme only, at Atteridgeville, to the west of ISCOR. This is a so-called 'luxury' scheme with well-built houses and individual sewerage, light and water. Losses were consequently high, totalling £44,770 a year. It was thus decided recently to convert the scheme to an economic selling or letting basis. Families living there were given the choice of buying their homes, or paying a fully economic rent for them, or of moving to cheaper housing schemes at Saulsville, beyond Atteridgeville, or at Vlakfontein, the new township which has developed with astonishing speed some thirteen miles out on the other side of the city, to the east. But the rentals charged at Saulsville and Vlakfontein, comparatively low as they are (£2 16s. 1d. a month, including sevices, for a four-roomed house) are still higher than the sub-economic rentals previously charged at Atteridgeville and the houses are not as good; consequently only 93 of the 1,532 families moved. Very many of those who stayed are now in arrears with their rents.

Rent Arrear in Vlakfontein

At the same time, families have been moved into Vlakfontein from a number of squatter camps to the east of Pretoria. Many of these families are extremely poor. In order to assist them, the municipality built some two-roomed houses which can be extended when the families are able to afford this, but as foundations for four rooms were provided initially, the cost of the dwellings was not much reduced. The rent charged for these smaller houses is £2 6s. 5d. a month — only 10s. less than for the four-roomed dwellings. Consequently, most of the families plumped for the larger ones. Very many of the Vlakfontein residents, too, are in arrears with their rent. A contributory reason is that transport costs are exceptionally high in Pretoria: the average Vlakfontein worker pays £1 14s. 8d. a month, although the fares are subsidized.

Altogether, between £50,000 and £60,000 is now outstanding in rentals, this sum being spread over some 10,000 families. Some owe as much as £30. It appears certain that a very large proportion of this amount will have to be written off.

The impossibility of attempting to place all housing on an 'economic basis' has, thus, been proved in Pretoria. Wage-levels in that city are low: even before the rents were raised at Atteridgeville (which is the township where the middle-class Africans live), only 22½ per cent. of the families there were 'economic' according to the Government's own formula of £15 a month. In fact, a family needs much more than this — probably between £20 and £25 a month — to cover minimum requirements for health and decency.

Thorough Inquiry Needed

It is obvious that a thorough inquiry is needed, by an impartial commission, into the economic position of urban Africans, and the minimum earnings required per family before transport services, housing and education can be placed on an economic basis. Wage-levels will gradually have to be raised to these minimum amounts, and training schemes instituted by commerce and industry to enable African labour to become more productive. In the meanwhile, however, it is undoubted that sub-economic housing schemes and subsidized rentals are still required for a large proportion of the urban Africans. If the authorities are going to be forced to write off large sums outstanding in rentals, they might more usefully subsidize the rents in the first place, thus avoiding the necessity for wholesale prosecutions.—M.H.

NOTE.—Since this article was written the Pretoria City Council has agreed to grant tenants remission of that part of their rent which exceeds one-fifth of the family income. This suggestion was put to the municipal authorities by the Pretoria Joint Council of Europeans and Non-Europeans. —Editor.

Dear Mr. Gunther:

The enclosed check for ten dollars is just a token of our interest in the defense of South Africans who suffer legal and other harassment.

We feel that our first concern must be with our own daily problems here in the South - through our own organization and other channels. But we do want to join personally with you and others to make some expression of interest in the South African situation.

INSTITUTE'S DIRECTOR AT INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE

A Letter to Members

THE Institute's Director, Mr. Quintin Whyte, was honoured last month with a special invitation to an international conference on Means of Combating Prejudice and Discrimination. This conference, which Mr. Whyte attended in his personal capacity, in Geneva from June 22-26, was attended by representatives of well over 100 non-governmental organisations throughout the world, and concerned itself with all types of discrimination: sexual, religious, and racial. Summing up his impressions for Institute members, Mr. Whyte writes:

THE conference was emphatic that discrimination, of one kind or another, and its consequences is the biggest "killer" in the modern world. Delegates were, in the best sense of the word, passionate in their determination that discrimination must be fought, and fought hard right now. I was particularly impressed by the combination of this passion with the delegates' objectivity — there was no "holier-than-thou attitude" and no singling out of South Africa or any other country or group for attack or condemnation. Perhaps this objectivity was helped by the fact that this was a conference of non-governmental organisations. There was no national maneouvering, and no one had to speak to a brief. Instead, this was a conference of people, meeting across national and other boundaries to discuss the most effective methods of getting an equal opportunity of living a full life for all human beings.

Not that the effectiveness of governmental action was neglected. Here the stress was, however, on what could be achieved by inter- and supra-national action and agreement. It was felt that much too little had been done in this field during the past ten years, and that the need for action was urgent, especially by the United Nations.

I only wish that South Africa would contribute substantially to the four humanitarian agencies of the United Nations — many much smaller and poorer countries have set examples which shame us.

The consequences of this Conference will not make newspaper headlines, though its report will be presented to the United Nations and to governments represented at it. But I feel sure that members of the Institute will feel heartened, as I have been, by the primary importance which the conference attached to the work of voluntary, unofficial groups in combating discrimination.

My visit to Geneva has confirmed me in my belief that in the work of voluntary groups like our Institute lies the best hope of combating discrimination, which in South Africa means improving race relations.

Yours sincerely,

QUINTIN WHYTE.

The Economic Development of the Reserves

Executive Committee's Statement

THE Executive Committee of the S.A. Institute of Race Relations, during its meeting in Johannesburg this month, had before it a press statement made recently by Mr. C. W. Prinsloo, Chief Information Officer of the Department of Bantu Administration and Development. In this statement, Mr. Prinsloo attacked the depth and accuracy of a new Institute Fact Paper, "The Economic Development of the 'Reserves' — the extent to which the Tomlinson Commission's recommendations are being implemented".

The Executive Committee of the Institute now states that its Fact Paper included all the facts about the Government's development of the reserves which have been made public. Contrary to Mr. Prinsloo's assertions, which were made before he had read the Fact Paper, forestry development in the reserves has been acknowledged.

If the Government or its information officers have additional information which they have not made public, they cannot expect it to be included in studies by the Institute or other bodies. Unless such information exists and is released, the conclusions of the Institute's Fact Paper cannot be challenged. The extent of both industrial and commercial development in the reserves might be termed well-nigh infinitesimal in comparison with that recommended by the Tomlinson Commission.

The S.A. Institute of Race Relations is interested in facts, because without accurate information race relations cannot be improved.

The government of the day is making many glowing promises for the economic future of the "Bantustans". At the same time, it has refused to accept the most fundamental of the Tomlinson Commission's recommendations, and is voting money for the development of the reserves at a very much lower rate than the Commission considered minimal. On this basis, the hopes which have been raised in many Africans by the "Bantustan" plans must soon be dashed. Disillusionment and increased bitterness will then result, and race relations suffer.

Available from Institute Offices, P.O. Box 97, Johannesburg, and good booksellers at 1s. 6d. (plus 3d. postage), by Miss Muriel Horrell, the Institute's Research Officer. See last month's Race Relations News.*

CHURCHES HELPING AFRICAN AUTHORS

Vernacular or European Languages ?

THREE events this month underlined the increasing interest which churches are taking in providing literature for Africans, both in vernacular and in European languages.

Firstly, a Bantu Author's Conference was held in Atteridgeville, Pretoria, from July 7-9, called by the Continuation Committee and Literature Commission of South African Churches. Secondly, a Literacy and Writing Centre opened in Kitwe, Northern Rhodesia, with a two months "workshop" for African writers, sponsored by the Committee on World Literacy and Christian Literature. And thirdly, the International Committee on Christian Literature for Africans was wound up, its work being taken over by the larger Christian Literature Council.

The Bantu Author's Conference in Atteridgeville was planned to give technical guidance to authors, and was attended by 89 authors from the Union, the Protectorates and from the Federation, with 245 published works between them. This conference was a result of one held in 1956 on Christian Literature for the Bantu of Southern Africa, in which almost all non-Roman Catholic churches and missions participated. This month representatives of churches, missions, education departments, universities, literacy bureaux and publishing houses also attended, and papers were read on the author's problems and responsibilties, types of literature, the function of the publisher, hints on writing and the need for classification.

A Correspondent at the Conference writes: Though English was the language used throughout, the stress was on writing in the vernacular. Several official addresses and papers stressed the belief that this was the best, if not the only, medium in which authors could express themselves, though the conference was not intended to promote vernacular writing at the expense of English or Afrikaans.

Thus Dr. H. J. van Zyl, Professional Advisor to the Union's Department of Bantu Education, stated: "If . . . a talented person with an aptitude for writing, chooses to write in a foreign language, it is a loss to his own language which rightfully has a claim on his talents." He went on to say that only his mother tongue "enables a person to give form to his innermost experiences and firmest convictions spontaneously and without effort."

This attitude was strongly challenged by a small number of authors in discussion. Reference was made to the large number of African dialects, and to the fact that in order to reach a wider public one must use a language which is more widely known. It was also pointed out that in a country like South Africa, it was wise to master the languages of all those who owed allegiance to the country, and to use any of these languages to speak to the people. "We do not want to lay stress on the things that divide", said one speaker. Authors who had achieved eminence in English literature, but who themselves were not English, were referred to. More than one speaker warned against the tendency towards an excessive and irrational veneration of one's own language which inevitably leads to exclusiveness. The needless and stultifying introduction into African languages of word forms that serve no useful purpose other than the convenience of the authorities was also attacked, examples being the official substitution of "Mna" and "Mni" for "Mr." and "Mrs."

The important point was made that the South African Bantu author has a very limited market for his work, consisting almost entirely of schools. Dr. C. J. Oosthuizen warned against undue optimism about the expansion of this market, pointing out that even with the spread of literacy the number of Africans who would buy books would remain small. The majority could hardly afford the necessities of life — clothes, food and rent — and they could not be expected to spend money on books.

1 Pupil in 40 Reaches Secondary School

Dr. Oosthuizen quoted figures to show that of the one and a quarter million African pupils now at school, 65 per cent. are expected to leave between Sub. B and Standard II (the second and fourth of the seven primary school classes). Only 40,000 of the present pupils are expected to reach secondary schools. These comprised the present potential market and, when distributed amongst the Union's seven main Bantu languages, would mean the printing of small editions at high cost.

Authors felt that the small, officially controlled school market "cramped" their style. For fear that books would not be prescribed for schools, they did not feel free to correct the African stereotypes created by English and Afrikaans authors, to portray an African triumphing over a White man, or generally to express the struggles and aspirations of their people.

At the end of its three-day meeting, the conference unanimously expressed its desire for a "vigorous and healthy Bantu literature". It requested the Continuation Committee and Literature Commission of South African Churches to establish a Bureau of Literacy and Literature "to assist in combating illiteracy among the adult non-White people of the Union", and to have a complete catalogue of publications in the Bantu languages of Southern Africa completed, published and kept up to date. The conference also appointed a committee to investigate the feasibility of establishing a Bantu Academy, to concern itself with Bantu orthography and vocabulary.

MEANWHILE, in Kitwe, Northern Rhodesia, a Literacy and Writing Centre was opened at Mindolo, sponsored by the Committee on World Literacy and Christian Literature, representing about forty American and Canadian mission boards and church groups, and by the Committee on Christian Literature for Women and Children in the U.S.A.

The centre opened with a two-months writers' "workshop". English is being used at present, but later courses may be conducted in French. The trainees are being given a general writing course and assistance in solving problems arising from the adaptation of an English text to the vernacular languages. They are being lodged in the newly-constructed dormitories of the Copperbelt Christian Service Council, and the centre is under the direction of Dr. and Mrs. Wesley Sadler, formerly of Liberia.

OUTSTANDING assistance is also being given in Southern Rhodesia to African vernacular authors by that country's African Literary Bureau, which encourages and helps them to have published books suitable for Africans who have had only a few years of primary education. With the help of leading British publishing houses, editions of about 5,000 are brought out, selling at about 3s. per copy.

FROM London, at the same time, has come the announcement that ICCLA (International Committee on Christian Literature for Africa) has been absorbed by the Christian Literature Council, which will continue the quarterly Books for Africa established by ICCLA in 1931. The Rev. Claude de Mestral, who is returning to Canada after 7 years as ICCLA's secretary, has been succeeded as Editor of Books for Africa by Miss Freda Dearing. This publication, available from Edinburgh House, "Eaton Gate", London, S.W.1., is recommended to readers of Race Relations News.

POVERTY AND THE DURBAN RIOTS

THERE has been much discussion about the causes of the riots which swept Durban's Cato Manor district last month, but few of the contributions to this discussion have been more important than that made by Mr. S. Bourquin, Durban's Director of Bantu Administration.

In a letter to the Town Clerk a few days after the riots, Mr. Bourquin referred firstly to grievances connected with "kaffir beer and illicit liquor, transport and housing, shack removals and influx control, the keeping of livestock and the keeping of husbands, gambling dens and shebeens. People have talked about these subjects as if they mattered for their own sake. Only here and there did the real, naked reason break to the surface: money, or rather the lack of it.

"Whatever is said about the cause of this upheaval, whatever the nature of its contributory and superficial factors might be, the basic and ultimate reason is an economic one: the poverty of the urban Bantu; the discrepancy between his earning capacity and his cost of living; his inability to meet the demands of modern times in a city modelled on the western way of life; his inability even to meet the barest necessity of life, to feed, clothe, educate and house himself and his family."

In making an impassioned appeal for immediate increases in African wages, Mr. Bourquin explained that he felt compelled to speak out because "the lives of 200,000 Bantu in Durban are inextricably interwoven with the network represented by my Department and that these Bantu look to me for help and guidance. Many are those who regard the office I hold with hate for the control and authority it imposes on their lives; there are a few who are grateful and appreciative of the efforts it makes to impart sympathy and succour, but all seek from it fatherly help and upliftment."

"Pay more for the labour of the Bantu people," urged Mr. Bourquin, "give them a living wage, a wage on which they can not only just live, but one on which they can live as a decent, lawabiding and progressive people . . . the slums of Cato Manor will remain as long as the average earnings of the Bantu workers of Durban place decent living and permanent housing beyond their reach."

TRANSKEI AIMS AT INDEPENDENCE

Limited Powers being used to build African nationalism?

WE give below a new and significant interpretation of the first meeting of the Transkeian Territorial Authority, which took place in Umtata at the end of May. A Correspondent, who was present at this meeting and who held extensive private discussions with the Authority's members, writes:

The most interesting question seems to me what motivated the members of the Authority to accept election. How wide their support is amongst the more than 1¼ million Transkei Africans is difficult to assess, but the tribal affiliations of the majority of these people are anything but weak, so that the claims of the Chiefs that they have the people with them cannot be lightly dismissed.

At the height of the controversy about the Promotion of Bantu Self-Government Bill, the Territorial Authority was described as a collection of ignorant "yes-men", a group of Chiefs in the pay of the Government who have sold out on their people, etc. It would be interesting, if one could find the time, to check whether these charges are borne out by the facts.

That the Chiefs rule only at the discretion of the Government is, of course, true, but this was no gathering of ignorant fools. I was struck by the number of well-educated men amongst them, and by the very high standard of well-documented debate, which was far from ignorant or sentimental tongue-wagging. It may be that, in enlisting educated men, the government has here stolen a march on its opponents in the Transkei.

The reasons which seem to have led many of these men to try to work the machinery of Bantu Authorities may be summarised as follows:

This is the first time in South Africa's history that the white man has taken the bold step of making a public promise of self-government to the black man. They state that the results of the last three elections have proved that the white man in South Africa is not prepared to surrender his position of advantage in the country; and that this view is strengthened by the utterances of the Official Opposition, who seem to be more concerned with preserving white supremacy and securing their bank balances than with arriving at an equitable solution to the problem; that the only alternative to bloodshed is partition of South Africa, and that separate development is some step towards that partition. They believe the peace of the country may well depend on the fulfilment of the promise of ultimate autonomy for the scattered black territories inside the Union's boundaries. They propose to hold the Government to its undertaking, and they regard this as a test of whether the white man's word is to be trusted or not.

They seem aware of the limitations of their present powers, but intend to follow the advice of the late Dr. Aggrey: "Keep on asking for what you need; take what is offered to you, use it, and continue asking." In the Transkei, at any rate, they are convinced that the white man cannot survive in competition with the black, and some see the future Transkei as a heartland of a new nationalism which will, once it is consolidated, be able to enforce greater demands than any white government presently intends granting.

This seems to be the feeling of the majority of the Authority's members, though there was no lack of those who denounced the whole machinery as a fraud.

The situation appears to be fraught with all kinds of possibilities for race relations, and deserves study. Already, the Press is beginning to echo the fears of the white settler in the Transkei. It may well be that here will come the biggest test of racial goodwill and racial adjustment in South Africa.

The question may be asked whether these Africans have bartered their souls and taken a U-turn back to paganism. The indications are that they have not. They state that their minds are set on progress and ultimate self-government, and nothing less will satisfy them. It seems that, whether or not their African compatriots agree with their manner of achieving their goal, they must at least concede the fact of their good faith.

On the other hand, much will depend on whether or not the Government realises the seriousness with which its promise of self-government has been received. Much will also depend on whether the average European — who in any case has never shown any readiness to accept the African even as a junior partner, much less as an equal — will be prepared to surrender some of his "war gains" both inside the Reserves and in their immediate vicinity. Again, a deciding factor may be the degree of adaptability of the "tribal democracy" which is supposed to form the basis of the new system. Already, some of the Chiefs have begun to surround themselves with younger, more educated men, as Councillors and Advisors, irrespective of birth. These young men have made their appearance in the Territorial Authority, and it is significant that one of the motions on its recent agenda asked that the chairmanship of the various Bantu Authorities should be open to commoners.

Perhaps, the ideas of democracy in twentieth century Africa, be it forest or concrete jungle, are more deep-seated than most people realise.

Poverty in Reserves Boosts Mine Labour

SO many Africans are being driven by poverty in the Reserves to seek employment in mining that, for the first time for many years, the gold mines have not had to "ration" out available labour during the past year. This trend emerges from Mr. P. H. Anderson's recently delivered 1958-59 Presidential Address to the Transvaal and O.F.S. Chamber of Mines. Mr. Anderson said:

"There has been a dramatic improvement in the past year in the numbers of Natives offering themselves for employment . . . in March the numbers in service exceeded the industry's previous peak recorded on 28th February, 1942, when war-time conditions caused an unprecedented influx. Numbers continued to improve week by week until a new record total of 386,197 was achieved on 20th May, 1959."

"The increased flow of Natives to the mines stems, in part at least, from economic conditions in the Native areas. It has been influenced by the fall in world prices for wool and other primary products and is a facet of the phase of economic readjustment which we are experiencing."

RACIALISM AND THE TRADE UNIONS—I

DESPITE the weakening of organised labour as a cohesive force, which internal racial dissension has brought about, the majority of South Africa's trade unionists are still opposed to the present government's trade union and employment policies, as laid down in the Industrial Conciliation Acts of 1956 and later years. This is one of the most important facts established by the S.A. Institute of Race Relations in its newly published study, "Racialism and the Trade Unions". (50pp. - 4s. 6d.)

In this pioneer survey of the effects of internal racialism and external racial legislation, Miss Muriel Horrell, the Institute's Research Officer, found that:

There are at present 32 unions, with 144,354 members, which are sympathetic to the government's trade union and employment policies. 79 unions, with 212,777 members, are opposed to the controversial clauses of the Industrial Conciliation Act. 48 unions, with 75,907 members, as well as some unions which did not submit information and which may no longer be in existence, have in most cases not stated publicly what their attitude is.

These totals include, of course, trade unionists of all races. The present co-ordinating bodies are:

The S.A. Congress of Trade Unions (S.A.C.T.U.), which has no colour bar and has mixed, Coloured and African unions, with hardly any white members. S.A.C.T.U. opposes the Industrial Conciliation Act.

The S.A. Trade Union Council (T.U.C.), which accepts affiliation from registered White, mixed and Coloured unions, but not from African unions. The T.U.C. has for some time maintained liaison with six African unions, and is now proposing to organise Africans but to keep them outside of its own structure. It opposes the controversial clauses of the Industrial Conciliation Act.

The S.A. Confederation of Labour, which, except for three anomalous affiliations, consits of White workers, and is sympathetic towards the present government's trade union and employment policies.

One of the most important aspects of the Institute's new study is of the participation by non-whites in trade unionism.

Although African trade unions are today not officially recognised or encouraged, they are perfectly legal. Their leaders state, however, that officials tend to give both employers and workers the contrary impression. The difficulties under which African trade unions labour are great. Having no official status, they are excluded from the machinery of industrial negotiation, and they cannot attain corporate status. Members can therefore be sued for a union's debts, but the union can bring no action against, say, an absconding treasurer. Africans are, of course, today forbidden to strike. Many leaders of African trade unions have, under the Suppression of Communism Act of 1950, been prohibited from holding public office on the ground that they were furthering the objects of Communism—which were extremely widely defined in this Act. The police have frequently raided the offices of many of the unions, confiscating records and other documents. It is usually difficult in the extreme to obtain the use of halls for meetings.

In the past, African trade unions were frequently consulted by some of the registered unions, employers or arbitrators, and were on occasion permitted to appear before industrial councils or the Wage Board. But because these unions are now officially frowned upon, such consultations are now less frequent. A leader who voices complaints is likely to find himself dubbed an "agitator", dismissed from his job, and, possibly, "endorsed out" of the area concerned and denied a permit to work in any other town.

Under the Industrial Conciliation Amendment Bill which Parliament passed this year, employers are now forbidden to collect subscriptions to African trade unions, or to any other organisation, by means of stop-orders on wages, and Africans are now specifically prohibited from representing registered unions on industrial councils or conciliation boards.

But, in spite of all these difficulties, there are at present 22 African trade unions. Six of these, with a membership of 9,200, maintain liaison with the T.U.C., and 16, with a membership of 10,875, are affiliated to S.A.C.T.U. The membership of these unions increases with seasonal work and, if the T.U.C. begins in earnest to organise African workers, the number of those in trade unions should increase rapidly.

Dr. Verwoerd and the Indian Unemployed

SPEAKING in a Parliamentary debate on June 29, the Prime Minister, Dr. H. F. Verwoerd, said that it should be remembered that unemployed Indians (in South Africa) were the responsibility not of the Union Government but of those people who wanted to take the responsibility on their shoulders.

Significant Opinions from June's Non-White Press

"It's Not Cricket"

"The only ones in favour of the visit (Frank Worrell's apartheid cricket tour) are the Government and the handful of officials who have negotiated the tour," said The Leader on June 12. "All those individuals and organisations who have politely requested Mr. Worrell to call off the visit must organise as wide a boycott as possible."

"Despair In This Theory"

Commenting on "the grim theory of despair voiced by Mr. Duma Nokwe, Secretary-General of the A.N.C., when he says that Africans must seriously consider whether they should go on bearing children", The World said on June 13: "In South Africa as we know it today, there is more chance of an African child taking the easy slide towards crime than the hard and often impossible climb towards good citizenship.

"Is there no hope? Yes, there is. We say that because evidence is growing of a change of heart in many White South Africans."

"Take them by the Throat"

"There are growing signs," said New Age on June 18, "that the Nationalists are indeed tensing themselves for the final desperate plunge into Fascism . . . Who can possibly doubt that any such action would of necessity be followed by a similar attempt to 'take by the throat' anyone who expressed any form of opposition to apartheid."

"In the face of this very real threat it is all the more urgent that the call which has come from the Congress movement for the strongest and broadest United Front against apartheid should be heard throughout the land."

Between Ourselves . . .

Institute Executive's Successful Meeting.

THE half-yearly meetings of the Institute's Executive Committee took place at head-office in Johannesburg on July 1, 2 and 3. Amongst the subjects discussed were: Political and economic aspects of the concept of separate territorial development; Recent events in the Federation (see report in our next issue of Mr. Webb's impressions); Unemployment amongst non-Whites, of which the Institute is making a special study; and The Future position of the Coloured People in South Africa.

A great deal of work connected with the Institute's internal organisation, finance and policies was also completed, and a programme outlined for the next Institute Council meetings. These will take place in Durban in January of next year, and will centre around an examination of race relations during and after 50 years of Union, with special emphasis on the Indian community, which will then be marking its centenary in South Africa.

1959 Day of United Prayer for Prisoners: August 2.

SUNDAY, August 2 has been fixed as this year's Day of United Prayer for Prisoners. This observance is sponsored by the Social Services Association of South Africa, whose Prisoners' Friends help some 40,000 petty and statutory offenders at the Courts each year.

Intensive Case Work by Institute's Cape Town Office.

AN ever-increasing volume of case work is being handled by the small staff of the Institute's Cape Town office. A great deal of this work arises from the difficulties which Africans meet in trying to comply with various regulations, from race classification and from the recent, but fortunately temporary, closing of the local Legal Aid Bureau. 4,782 cases were interviewed between September of last year and June of this. 3,608 cases were fully investigated and dealt with, and of this number 2,941 were carried through to a successful conclusion. Thus 83 per cent. of cases taken up were helped; a remarkable achievement reflecting great credit on the Regional Secretary, Mrs. K. Matthews, and her staff.

INSTITUTE'S NEW PROPOSALS FOR RELIEVING AFRICAN POVERTY

Durban Shows Need for Wage Board Decentralisation

THE Wage Board, which determines the minimum income of African labourers, should be decentralised. There is at present only one Board, and it has to make determinations for each of the country's industrial and commercial centres. When it gets around to a particular centre such as Durban, which it is investigating at present, it is found that its most widely effective previous determination has left a weekly wage of £2 2s. 6d. static for 14 years. Yet during that time the cost of even mere subsistence has risen steeply and continually, hospitalisation and school fees have become compulsory, taxation has been raised by over 75 per cent., and economic housing rentals are being introduced.

A large and increasing number of employers and employers' organisations favour increased wages for African employees, as do even "white" trade union bodies. Several industries and large concerns have granted some wage increases. But, understandably, individual employers are reluctant to pay substantially more unless their competitors also do so.

With infrequent Wage Board determinations, the gap in an area such as Durban between existing wages and even the present-day cost-of-subsistence has grown so large that it could not be bridged by one sharp increase in wages without threatening dislocation.

But the plain fact of African poverty in, for instance, Durban is that only 1 African worker in 5 earned more than £15 a month in the four local areas surveyed in 1955 and 1956. A municipal survey of 500 African families in Cato Manor, the scene of riots two months ago and a centre of continuing tension, showed that in 1956 only 1 African worker in 20 earned more than £15 a month — 34 per cent. of the workers earned from £15 to £10, and 61 per cent. earned less than £10 per month. Yet, in 1954, the Institute established that the minimum income required for subsistence by an African family of 5 in an urban area was £23 10s. 4d., which makes no provision whatever for recreation, holidays, newspapers, entertainment, church and club dues, etc. Informed estimates place the present cost-of-subsistence in the region of £27 a month* for a similar family.

In making representations to the Wage Board last month, the Natal Region of the Institute, lacking information on the ability of employers to pay any particular suggested wage, set out the facts of local African poverty and limited its recommendations to principles:

- The imperative need for substantial increases in African labourers' wages.
- The desirability of providing some formula for gradually raising unskilled wages over a period of years. This might take two forms:
  - (a) a provision similar to the recommendation of the Wage Board for unskilled wages in East London, Witwatersrand and Pretoria, in which annual increases are provided over 3-4 years. These increases should, however, be considerably more substantial than those at present recommended by the Board.
  - (b) a provision of more flexible C.O.L. Allowances, so that these, in future, do not remain static as in the past.
- The adoption of a general policy, whereby all determinations are regularly reviewed and should not be permitted to remain operative for longer than 5 years without re-consideration.
- The wage determination for unskilled labour should become the universal minimum applicable to all enterprises in the area.
- The decentralisation of the Wage Board.

Some of the above recommendations would involve very considerably increased activities of the Board, making demands beyond its present resources: decentralisation of the Wage Board might be adopted, on lines similar to the constitution of Regional offices by the Group Areas Board.

In this way there could be constant revision of determinations, the disparities in wage rates between determinations and agreements could be narrowed, the determinations would increasingly relate to current and not past conditions and there would be an opportunity of constantly reviewing wages in relation to minimum family needs, productivity of labour and the ability of industry to pay.

A revised cost-of-subsistence study for African families on the Witwatersrand is currently being completed for the Institute by Mrs. Joy de Gruchy, and should be published this year.*

Apartheid's Impact on S.A.'s Coloured People—I

A SPECIAL Correspondent writes from Cape Town: There are clear indications that South Africa's Coloured people are becoming more and more disturbed by the progressive deterioration of their status since the establishment of Union, and more particularly since they have begun to experience the negative aspects of apartheid. Many prominent White people share this concern, being particularly disturbed by the lack of any clear government policy in regard to the Coloured people. There are many intellectual apologists for apartheid who think that it cannot be applied to the Coloured people in the same manner as it is being applied to the Africans, and even the Prime Minister has admitted that here his ideas are, in certain respects, vague. In Parliament this year he drew a distinction between Africans and Coloured people and went on to say (1959 Hansard columns 5360 and 5361):

"I was honest enough to say that in regard to the Coloureds we accepted the principle and the ideal of apartheid, but how precisely it would operate was not quite so clear, in view of the fact that there were various possibilities. To some extent we ourselves will have to evolve such methods, and for the rest successive generations will have to do so. We definitely do not accept, however, that there will be intergration or intermingling of the political structure for the Coloured and the White man, neither in the municipal sphere nor in any higher sphere."

In the political sphere the value of the Coloured Parliamentary Vote has been steadily watered down since the establishment of Union as a result of the following legislation:—

(1) The enfranchisement of White women (Act 18 of 1930).

(2) The enfranchisement of all White persons of the age of 21 or over throughout the Union (Act 41 of 1931). This Act abolished the qualifications required for the franchise by the laws of the Cape in so far as Whites were concerned.

(3) The placing of Coloured voters on a separate roll (Acts 46 of 1951 and 9 of 1956).

(4) The enfranchisement of all Whites of 18 years or over (Act 30 of 1958).

We have had nearly fifty years of Union but, during that period, Parliament has done nothing to bring about uniformity in respect of the Coloured franchise. Coloured people in the Provinces of the Transvaal, Orange Free State and Natal still do not have the vote at least on the same terms as they have it in the Cape Province.

In addition to all this, the Coloured people are now threatened with the loss of the municipal franchise in the Cape Province — a franchise which they have enjoyed ever since municipalities were established in that Province. It is claimed that this will be the logical result of the Group Areas Act in terms of which it is proposed to establish Coloured local authorities. The feasibility of this proposal is open to grave doubt. It is difficult to understand how such local authorities can be viable in view of the fact that the Coloured people are almost entirely dependent on what they earn as employees of the Whites.

The dismemberment of the Cape Peninsula under the Group Areas Act has not yet been completed, but it is clear that it will not be possible to herd all Coloured people into one compact area. The Malay Quarter in Cape Town has already been proclaimed as a Malay Group Area. This area is a comparatively small island completely surrounded by a White area and it would be quite absurd to establish for that area a local authority separate from the area which comprises the Municipality of Cape Town. The City Council, on which Whites and Coloured have served amicably for many years, has condemned the proposal to fragmentise the Municipal area and to disfranchise Coloured municipal voters. The proposal was also condemned by a large mass meeting of ratepayers of all races which was held in the City Hall this year.

A large number of Cape Coloured people view with disapproval the establishment of the Coloured Affairs Department. They point out that the only civilisation that they know is Western civilisation, that most of them are Christians, that they speak the languages of the White man and that they share their homeland with the White man. They also point out that they have always championed the cause of White civilisation: they fought alongside the White man in many of the early Border wars and in particular they won laurels in the campaign in Palestine during the first World War. They did excellent service as non-combatants in the second World War. They were anxious to serve as combatants in that war but were not allowed to do so by the authorities. They object to being treated differently from the Whites and they are afraid that the Coloured Affairs Department may develop in much the same way as the Bantu Affairs Department.

Recent Events in the Federation

ALTHOUGH notable advances have been made since the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland was established in 1953, the constitutional principles of "partnership and co-operation" have not been sufficiently realised to create full acceptance of, and loyalty to, the new nation.

This is one of the main conclusions which Mr. Maurice Webb, who has made several recent visits of enquiry to the Federation, reached in an address to the Institute's executive committee last month.

Mr. Webb, who is a past-president of the Institute, pointed out that, as the federated territories had been thrown together instead of having grown together, there are today conflicts of interest between the Protectorates pressing for independence and Southern Rhodesia pressing for Dominion status.

There is today suspicion, resentment and fear on both sides of the colour line in the Federation. Some of the changes which have been made officially have been resented by white people, and their reactions have given rise to uncertainty amongst Africans. Thus, one African complains of being roughly ordered off a seat on a railway platform which, previously reserved for Whites, is now officially available for all races. Another African finds himself embarrassed by Whites voicing their resentment of his presence in a railway dining car. Other advances have been uneven. There are non-racial hotels in Salisbury and Lusaka, but no hotel in Bulawayo where a non-White person is accepted. The Bulawayo Public Library has, by the vote of its members, opened its reading room to all races, but its lending section remains for Whites only.

Such situations are, as experience in America has shown, unavoidable when attempts to abolish racial discrimination in social services are made. But Mr. Webb found that, faced with such uncertainty, Africans in the Federation still sometimes say, as they did years ago, that they "prefer the Union, because there you know where you are."

Not having visited Nyasaland recently, Mr. Webb did not discuss the "emergency" there or the alleged plot on whose non-existence the Devlin Commission has since reported. But in Southern Rhodesia he found that an oft-repeated question was: did events in Nyasaland justify the declaration of the State of Emergency and the wholesale arrests in Southern Rhodesia on February 26? White opinion generally is that the Southern Rhodesia Government must have had information to justify the course taken, but as no disclosure of that information has been made uneasiness grows and increases as reports of mistaken arrest and of ill treatment of detainees are made and not officially explained or denied.

The emergency legislation, particularly the Preventive Detention Bill, provoked strong protest from Churches, Law Societies and other bodies, which led to its being withdrawn and amended. Although it has been modified, the major objections to it remain.

495 African men and women were arrested in Southern Rhodesia on February 26 and sent to Khami jail, together with 130 arrested in Nyasaland. 100 "foreign" Africans among the 495 were at once deported to Northern Rhodesia, Nyasaland and Bechuanaland. Releases made at intervals have reduced the number of detainees in Khami to 99 men and 1 woman.

Most of those released in the first month returned to their jobs and appear not to be greatly affected by their experience.

But the majority, detained for two months or more, often found they had been replaced as employers, though often sympathetic, could not keep their posts open indefinitely in the face of the complete uncertainty as to when their workers might be free to return. Those who are now unemployed are, in many cases, much embittered.

The 99 men and 1 woman who are still in Khami jail have now been imprisoned without trial for over three months under the Preventive Detention (Temporary Provisions) Act of 1959. This Act established a Review Tribunal to enquire into the reasons for the detention of each person and to make recommendations to the Governor regarding continued detention or release. The Tribunal's proceedings are completely secret and it is not bound by normal court rules of evidence. Advocates may, however, appear before it on behalf of detainees.

Relatives and friends of the 100 remaining detainees have launched a Southern Rhodesian Detainees Legal Aid and Welfare Fund (P.O. Box 2097, Salisbury) to provide the permitted legal help and to look after the detainees' dependants, who at present receive a maximum of 2s. 3d. a day from the government.

The Tribunal has begun its hearings, and it is believed that 35* of the 100 detainees have so far been examined. Detention under the emergency legislation can last for the five years of its present validity. Some confusion concerning the Legal Aid and Welfare Fund has followed a recent statement by Sir Edgar Whitehead that his government would provide legal defence for the detainees if the Fund ran out. A clarification of the government's intention in this respect has been sought.

The detainees in Khami jail are treated as political prisoners. Their cells are locked only at night. They do no hard labour, have a diet better than normal prison fare, can receive unlimited reading matter, have outdoor games and indoor recreation. 70 of the 100 are illiterate. 26 are taking courses of instruction organised by a graduate among the detainees.

After serving as an election platform in the General Elections of the Federation and Northern Rhodesia, the demand of Dominion Status, to be made at the talks between the U.K. Government and the 4 Governments of the Federation due in October 1960, is, Mr. Webb found, now largely forgotten. There seem now to be few who expect Dominion status or any material advance towards it in 1960.

In Southern Rhodesia White and African opinion generally favours a continuance of Federation but no advance in status until the agreement of the Africans in the North has been won. Much African opinion in the North is hostile to Federation, urging secession of Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland and their advance to early if not immediate independence.

A pamphlet recently issued by the Federal Information Offices lists 13 advances towards "partnership", among them the increased voting facilities in Southern and Northern Rhodesia, the appointment of an African Minister by the Federal Government, the desegregation of Post Offices in Southern Rhodesia, the Industrial Conciliation Act and the Apprenticeship Act and increased social mixing.

When Mr. Webb put these items to many representative Africans, he found an attitude of deep suspicion. Changes welcomed, such as the desegregation of post offices and the non-racial University College of Rhodesia and Nyasaland, were dismissed as "window dressing", while others, such as the opening of the Civil Service and the Apprenticeship Act were regarded with extreme caution and suspicion, pending their implementation. Notwithstanding evidence to the contrary there was a prevailing conviction that all such changes had come about as a result of the Emergency, were the fruits of violence and that violence pays. Faced with this attitude white opinion, which has made real if sometimes timid advances, is disillusioned.

African demands are clearly expressed: in Southern Rhodesia the repeal of the Land Apportionment Act; in both Southern and Northern Rhodesia the setting aside of the special rolls and wider access to one common roll and the abolition of racially differentiated scales of pay. These demands white opinion is far from being ready to meet. The gap between African demands and white readiness to make concessions is one of the Federation's serious dangers.

Mr. Webb concludes that if the 1960 talks are to be fruitful there appears to be an urgent need for a new Nyasaland Constitution to be negotiated with Nyasaland Africans, a declaration that the pledges in the Federal Constitution will be honoured, the early release of detainees against whom no charge can be put before the courts, an acceleration of the movement towards "partnership" notwithstanding present African suspicion and hostility, and the entrenchment of civil rights in the Federal and Territorial Constitutions.

Racialism and the Trade Unions—II

BITTERNESS, insecurity, inter-racial hostility and division have grown amongst South Africa's workers as a result of recent and current government policies: labour groups have been rendered competitive instead of complementary: a sectional, racial approach to employment and conditions of work has been fostered, and the real interests of workers have been sacrificed in the process. These are the important final conclusions reached in a newly-published Institute study, "Racialism and the Trade Unions" (50 pp.—4s. 6d.—see July, 1959 Race Relations News).

In this pioneer survey, the Institute's Research officer, Miss Muriel Horrell, reports that leaders of African workers maintain that Africans have no faith in the machinery of the Native Labour (Settlement of Disputes) Act, which came into force in 1953. The more politically minded members of African trade unions no doubt distrusted the new system from its inception because of its discriminatory nature, but this distrust has permeated to the rank and file as a result of the "strong-arm" methods employed by officials.

One of the major objects of the Native Labour Boards and Committees which, set up in terms of the Act, give Africans representation at only the lowest levels, is to settle labour disputes. According to the Report of the Department of Labour for the calendar year 1957, during that year 130 African labour disputes, involving 15,997 employees, were settled without the workers resorting to strike action.

Strikes do take place, however, in spite of the fact that they have been made illegal. The Minister of Justice has said that 113 strikes involving 6,158 African workers were reported during 1957. In 13 cases the strikes had been settled by granting increased wages or improved working conditions; while in 20 cases the workers had been prosecuted for striking illegally. (The Minister did not explain how the remaining strikes had been settled.) Altogether, he said, 539 Africans had been charged and 274 convicted during 1957 for participating in illegal strikes. He added, later, that 588 were charged and 453 convicted during 1958.

The Minister of Labour added that during 1958 two labour disputes had been settled by the Central Native Labour Board, 34 by Regional Committees, and 92 by Native Labour Officers; while four disputes had been referred to the Wage Board.

Africans maintain that the Labour Board officials generally have more sympathy for the views of the employers than for those of the workers. Various strikes have been prevented, they say, by making promises that are not fulfilled, or by intimidating the workers into accepting whatever conditions the employers may offer. When serious labour disputes threaten, detectives of the Special Branch often accompany the Labour Board officials who arrive to undertake investigations. The leaders of the dispute then fear that unless they capitulate, they may be required to leave the town concerned and be denied permits to work in any urban area. Much hostility is, naturally, engendered when the workers are intimidated in these ways.

When strikes do occur, the strikers are often prosecuted, and several working days may be lost while the court proceedings are in progress. Discrimination on a racial basis in such prosecutions, as when Africans are prosecuted for striking together with Coloured workers, who may legally do so, may give rise to further ill-feeling.

Details are given in "Racialism and the Trade Unions" of some major strikes by Africans which have taken place during the past two years, in many of which drastic action was taken first to break the strikes and then to act against their leaders. African dock-workers, in particular, have had these experiences. In some cases, whole labour forces have been dismissed. In one case the stevedoring employers had agreed to an increase of 3s. a day, but were obliged to reduce this to 1s. a day as a result of pressure by the Government, whose Railway Administration might have been compelled to match the higher figure. There can be little doubt that such situations lead to inter-racial bitterness.

Extreme frustration and bitterness are also felt to-day by many Coloured workers. They feel that they receive little sympathy from a large section of the White workers; yet, like most of the Whites, those who have attained skilled rates of pay fear that they may be undercut by Africans.

Coloured workers stand to lose both from the setting up of industries on the borders of the Reserves and from job reservation. The latter has become a very real and increasing threat to them, and has aroused strong feelings of resentment (see the report on the position of the Coloured people elsewhere in this issue). These are the main reasons for the recent suggestion that a new splinter trade union group, the (Coloured) S.A. Federation of Non-European Workers, be formed.

Inter-racial tension has been heightened between all groups by present and recent labour policies. Each of the job reservation determinations made so far has reduced the employment opportunities, or undermined the security, of Non-White workers — mainly Coloured people or Indians, but in some cases also urbanized Africans. On the other hand, the policy of fostering the industrial development of areas bordering the African Reserves has caused White unemployment. Each group has felt increasingly insecure: in such an atmosphere inter-group suspicion and hostility are fostered.

The disunity between South Africa's workers has been reflected at conferences of the International Labour Organization, which are attended by two Government representatives of each member-State and one representative each of management and labour, generally accompanied by officially-appointed advisers. In terms of the I.L.O. constitution, the non-Government delegates and advisers are to be selected with the agreement of the industrial organizations most representative of employers or workers.

The government has, since 1949, attempted to select the workers' delegate from the S.A. Railways and Harbours Staff Association, and did so this year despite the protests of both the T.U.C. and S.A.C.T.U. The latter body has, since 1955, challenged the credentials of the workers' delegate, pointing out that it was the only co-ordinating body in South Africa which was non-discriminatory, and which thus conformed to the standards of the I.L.O. This protest has been repeated annually, but has not succeeded.

In attempting to realise an ideological pattern which is divorced from economic reality, the present government has created a position in which racially exclusive trade unions may try to compete with one another in negotiations with employers; where some employers may try to play off one group against the other; and in which the whole system of collective bargaining, on which the industrial conciliation machinery is based, is very seriously threatened. Significant Opinions from July's Non-White Press

"Cry Out For Shame"

Commenting on Dr. Verwoerd's parliamentary disclaimer of governmental responsibility for unemployed Indians, The World (which has a predominantly African readership) said on July 11: "The Indians are here to stay, as we are all here to stay."

"When Boycotts Are Immoral"

"How else (than by boycott) can our great voteless masses express non-violent protests?" asked Golden City Post on July 12, adding "But there is a world of difference between reasonable boycotts and those based on blind racial prejudice . . . (such as) the call made in the 'Jeugbonder' to Afrikaners to boycott all Indian businesses 'so that thousands of Indians will be obliged to give way because they will not be able to make a living.' "

"Industry and the Boycott"

"In spite of all the talk about the need for higher wages, the real wages of the African workers are not improving but getting worse. The big guns in the Chambers of Commerce and Industry may as well drop their hypocritical concern about the harm the boycott will do the Non-Europeans", said New Age on July 16. "Commerce and industry are worried about only one thing. The harm that the boycott will do them . . . industry has been given the answer by the Congresses: Your way out is the same way out as our own — the defeat of this Nationalist Government."

Council Nominations Required this Month.

MEMBERS of the Institute have been sent nomination forms in the Institute's four-yearly Council elections, and are urgently asked to return the completed forms to the Director, P.O. Box 97, Johannesburg, by August 25.

Institute to present Anna Russell Tour.

ANNA RUSSELL, the internationally celebrated concert comedienne, is to tour Southern Africa during the next two months, sponsored by the S.A. Institute of Race Relations. Those who heard and saw her during Johannesburg's Festival three years ago, and the many others who have heard her records, will need no introduction to Miss Russell's unique kind of entertainment. Those members who haven't had such an introduction have an experience in store for them which will banish even the deepest depression about life or race relations.

Anna Russell's magical spoofs on opera, popular music, instrumentalists, and serious musicians in general have not only brought audiences throughout the world to their feet with thunderous applause but, literally, had them in the aisles rolling with laughter.

Coming to South Africa directly from her second season at the Edinburgh Festival, Anna Russell will start her Southern Africa tour with a gala opening in Johannesburg's City Hall on September 21. Institute members can obtain preferential booking vouchers for this opening from the Financial Organiser, Room 25, Auden House, 68 de Korte Street (telephone 835-1781) at the following prices: 42s., 21s. and 10s. 6d. Preferential booking for voucher holders only will be on August 31 and September 1 at Show Service, 100 Eloff Street and at Plastic Centre, Admiral's Court, Rosebank.

Miss Russell will give a second Johannesburg performance on September 23, and will then appear in Bulawayo on the 26th and 27th, in Salisbury on the 29th and 30th, in Cape Town on October 6, 7, and 10, in Port Elizabeth on October 12, in Durban on the 13th, 14th and 16th and in Pretoria on October 17.

Detailed information about Miss Russell's performances at Cape Town, Port Elizabeth and Durban can be obtained by telephoning the respective Regional Offices: Cape Town — 32318; Port Elizabeth — 29210; Durban — 25606.

1959 Hoernlé Memorial Lecture.

DR. SIMON BIESHEUVEL will deliver the Hoernlé Memorial Lecture for 1959 at Auden House, the Institute's headquarters, on October 14. His subject will be "Race, Culture and Personality".

New Institute Librarian.

MISS BARBARA GORDON has been appointed as the Institute's Librarian following the resignation of Mrs. Barry Hall, who rendered outstanding service in starting the reorganization, catalogue-ing and indexing of the library at Auden House. Miss Gordon, who is an arts graduate of Rhodes University, holds a teacher's diploma.

Donor Representatives on Institute Council.

THE following have been elected to represent Donor and Donor Life members of the Institute on its Council for the next four years: Mrs. M. L. Grant, Mrs. M. G. Roberts, Prof. W. Rollo, Mr. P. D. Santilhano and Dr. S. van der Horst.

Honour for Institute Representative.

MRS. E. E. M. RUSSELL, a leading member of the Institute and its Representative in Pietermaritzburg, has been awarded the Freedom of that City.

Changes of Name.

THE Natal Coastal Region of the Institute has been renamed the Natal Region, and the Institute's Technical Officer is now known as its Research Officer.

Johannesburg Street Collection.

TUESDAY, September 29, will be this year's date for the Institute's annual street collection in Johannesburg. Collectors are urgently needed, and Johannesburg and Reef members who can spare an hour of their time on September 29 are requested to telephone the convenor, Mrs. E. L. Hayman, at 835-1781, or to call on her at Auden House, 68 de Korte Street, Braamfontein.

Legal Aid in Danger

ALL government support for legal aid for poor people in criminal cases would be withdrawn if the arguments put forward by the Secretary for Justice in his report for 1958 were to be accepted by the Minister and the Cabinet. In the section of his report dealing with legal aid in criminal matters, the Secretary argues that such aid is unnecessary as the judicial officers and prosecutors will ensure that no miscarriage of justice occurs, and as the accused can look after his own interests in criminal appeals.

Now it is clear that neither the prosecutor nor the magistrate in a case can have the private consultations with an accused which are essential to his defence. And it is notorious that very few laymen can give a good account of themselves from the dock, particularly so when they are the poor, and therefore mostly ill-educated, whom legal aid services are designed to help.

The complexity of South African law is increasing daily, and so, as the Secretary for Justice has pointed out in another context, is the cost of litigation. The work of existing Legal Aid Bureaux is already hampered by insufficient funds, which led to a temporary closing of the Bureau in Cape Town. The Continuation Committee which is working to re-establish legal aid in that city has pointed out that "If the argument of the Secretary for Justice is taken to its logical conclusion, it means simply that, except for capital crime, it is a waste of time to engage the services of an advocate or attorney for the defence".

The need for defence in criminal as well as civil cases not only continues to exist, as it always has, but has increased. The law has become more complex and, whereas the State, in bringing a prosecution, commands practically unlimited resources, the poor become steadily less able to afford the increasing cost of defence.

So much for the general picture. There is, however, an aspect of legal aid for criminal cases which is peculiarly relevant to race relations in South Africa. Our statute books contain a lengthy catalogue of offences which are criminal for members of some racial groups but not for others. Africans suffer most under this discrimination, the obvious examples being technical registration irregularities, non-payment of tax and, in some areas like Johannesburg, non-payment of municipal rent. Africans, perhaps more than other groups, have enough difficulties in trying to keep within a multitude of criminal laws which they have neither shared in framing nor been educated to understand. By and large, their poverty does not permit them to hire legal defence.

These were amongst the reasons which led the Institute to establish the Legal Aid Bureaux many years ago, and they are more valid than ever today. More, and not less, subsidy is surely needed for criminal and civil legal aid from the central government, which, after all, derives its income from the direct and, even more, indirect taxation of the poor as well as the rich.

Professor D. D. T. Jabavu†

WHEN PROFESSOR D. D. T. JABAVU died in East London on August 3, the South African scene lost one of its best-known African leaders.

Educationalist

Don Davidson Tengo Jabavu was, in his person and deeds, a pioneer of African education. He received his own education at Lovedale, at Morija in Basutoland, and then, because of local restrictions, in the United Kingdom. On returning to South Africa he began his life-long efforts to further and better education for Africans. In 1916 he joined the staff of the S.A. Native College, with which he remained for 30 years, first as lecturer and later as Professor of Bantu Languages. Jabavu threw himself wholeheartedly into all aspects of the College's life. An accomplished musician and conductor, he did much to make Fort Hare known in the twenties with his Fort Hare Choir.

Public Figure

Jabavu also entered fully into the public life of the country, and served the African people in many directions. He preached the gospel of better farming methods in the Reserves and founded African Farmers' Associations long before our modern rehabilitation schemes were heard of. He founded the Cape African Teachers' Association and became the Federation of African Teachers' Associations' first President. In public affairs, Jabavu appeared before many Government Commissions to give evidence on behalf of the African people. He was a staunch believer in inter-tribal and inter-racial co-operation. Together with Dr. Abdurahman he convened in the late twenties the Non-European Conference which endeavoured to bring together Coloureds and Africans for a joint struggle against the Hertzog Bills and the policy they adumbrated in 1925. In the thirties, together with Dr. P. ka I. Seme, then President-General of the African National Congress, he convened the All-African Convention, of which he later became President, for an all-out defence of the franchise rights of Africans in the Union.

Anti-Racialist

He identified himself from their inception with bodies which worked for harmonious co-operation between black and white, such as the Joint Council Movement and the South African Institute of Race Relations, of which he was a foundation and life member and a Vice-President until his death.

As a journalist, he contributed numerous articles on public affairs to the "Imvo Zabatsundu" and to the leading newspapers of South Africa. Through his books, such as the "Black Problem" and "The Segregation Fallacy", he endeavoured to warn the country against the evils of racial discrimination. He was a loyal and prominent member of the Methodist Church, and a crusading teetotaller.

Jabavu was essentially a man of peace. He impressed all who came into contact with him with his essential humanity, his cheerful disposition, his genial personality and his readiness to appreciate the other man's point of view. There was no rancour in his advocacy of the rights of his people, and he always took up a common-sense point of view on public affairs. Although for a generation he was probably the most outstanding African leader, he never lost the common touch. With no inferiority complex in any company, he was yet the humblest of men.

In short, of him it could be said that he always endeavoured to sweeten rather than to embitter any human relationships into which he entered. The result was that his enemies thought he was never forthright enough in anything he said and that he was essentially a compromiser, but, being essentially a man of peace, Jabavu always strove to achieve his ends in the manner that would do the least damage to the cause of harmonious co-operation between groups and individuals. He will be sadly missed by the Institute of Race Relations which he helped to found and to which he gave so much.

South Africa in the Perspective of 50 Years

Theme for Institute's 1960 Council Meetings in Durban

"SOUTH AFRICA in the Perspective of Fifty Years" will be the theme of the Institute's 1960 Council Meetings, which will be held in Durban from the evening of Monday, January 11, to the evening of Thursday, January 14, 1960 will see the 50th anniversary of the establishment of the Union, and the Institute's Council will evaluate the impact on race relations of developments during that time.

The Institute's President, Mr. Donald B. Molteno, Q.C., will open the meetings on the evening of January 11 with an address on "Fifty Years of Union", laying special emphasis on inter-racial group relationships. On succeeding days, South African authorities will speak on economic, political and social developments, and the centenary of the arrival of Indian people in South Africa will be marked by a special session, with an address on "The Indian Community of South Africa—Past, Present and Future". The position of the Union in an emerging Africa will also be discussed.

An Indian play will be staged to co-incide with the Council Meetings, and a programme of excursions and entertainment is being arranged. All members of the Institute are entitled to attend the Council Meetings, and are warmly urged to do so.

The Institute's Executive Committee will meet in Durban on Monday, January 11, and Friday, January 15.

Bantu Education—Two Policy Statements

1: Restriction of Higher Primary and Post-Primary Education for Africans in Towns

THE following statement, made by the Minister of Bantu Education in the Senate at the end of the Parliamentary Session, appears to have escaped the notice of the public:

"It is the intention to make lower primary schools available wherever this is possible, in order to supply the needs, the general needs in this connection, wherever there may be Bantu children of school-going age. As far as the higher primary and post-primary schools are concerned, it is the intention to give preference to the Bantu areas because this is in the first place where the Bantu development must be promoted generally. You may perhaps tell me that there is a great desire in the urban areas for post-primary schools in order to keep the children off the streets; that they should rather be brought into the schools than be allowed to remain on the streets where they become tsotsis and so forth.

"I want to put it very clearly that the keeping of the children off the streets of our cities, the keeping of the children away from the tsotsi-gangs, is not a function of education; it is a social function. An educational function is a function which must be instituted for the development of the community, and for this reason you must give that higher education in the areas at the places where the process of development has to be stimulated, and this is in the Bantu areas.

"For this reason it is our policy to restrict higher primary, but particularly post-primary, education in the urban locations, but not in the Native areas; preference is given to the Native areas in regard to the establishment of that type of school."

(Senate, 15 May, 1959, Hansard Col. 2340-41)

Note: Lower primary schooling extends from Grade I (Sub.A) to Standard II; higher primary from Standard III to Standard VI, and post-primary from Standard VII —Ed.

2: Official Use of African Farm School Pupils for Private Farm Labour

DISCUSSING farm schools for African pupils in the Senate, the Minister of Bantu Education said on June 2 of this year (Hansard Col. 3463):

"As regards the farm schools, we have made it compulsory that where the farmer wants these facilities, part of the school instruction of those children on the farm of the European farmer must be training in the normal activities on the farm, in order to encourage a feeling of industriousness on the part of those children and particularly, to sharpen in their minds the fact that education does not mean that you must not work with your hands, but to point out to them specifically that manual labour and also manual labour on a farm is just as good a formulative and development level as any other subject is.

"In order to do this, we create the opportunity so that if there is any farmer who has a farm school on his farm and who wishes to make use of the school children under the supervision of the teacher to assist with certain farm activities, this can be arranged in a proper manner to fit in with the curriculum and the plan of development which is envisaged or provided for that farm school."

Administrators' Conference

A REPORT will appear in our next issue on the annual conference of the Institute of Administrators of Non-European Affairs, which was held in Kroonstad this month. The Institute was represented at the conference by its Acting Director, Mr. F. J. van Wyk.

Institute's Suggested Farm Labour Reforms

THE full text of the reforms of African farm labour recruitment and conditions which the Institute suggested to the government-appointed Committee of Inquiry into Farm Labour, whose report is now awaited, has been published in the current issue of Race Relations Journal (July-Sept. 1959, Vol. XXVI, No. 3).

Apartheid's Impact on S.A.'s Coloured People—II

A SPECIAL Correspondent writes from Cape Town (continued from August issue):

The Registration of Population Act (No. 30 of 1950) now prevents Coloured persons from passing over to the White group. Such passing over was not infrequent in the past and it afforded some of the Coloured people a means of escape from the disabilities from which they suffered. It is common knowledge that many persons who now pass as Whites have some Coloured blood and are apparently none the worse for it.

Separate and Unequal

We have heard a lot about "separate but equal treatment" of the different groups of the population. This is a conscience-soothing slogan: in practice it is often impossible to apply. Because of two Appeal Court decisions the Government of the day put through Parliament the Reservation of Separate Amenities Act (No. 49 of 1953), which provides that regulations in regard to separate facilities on public premises shall not be declared void "merely on the ground that the facilities are not similar in character, standard or quality." Thus by an Act of the legislature it is no longer possible to challenge regulations on the ground that a particular group of the population has had unequal treatment meted out to it. It is not, of course, the White group that suffers from inferior amenities.

The Coloured people are pretty concerned about the manner in which the Group Areas Act is being implemented. Their concern is justified. There have been so many cases in which the sacrifices to be made by non-Whites are much greater than the sacrifices to be made by Whites that it is not necessary to elaborate this point.

Another Act which hits the Coloured people is the Extension of University Education Act of 1959, which will prevent Coloured people from attending any university of their own choice.

Job Reservation Bitterly Resented

Lastly, there is the legislation which discriminates against the Coloured people in the sphere of employment. That legislation causes, perhaps, more ill-feeling amongst the Coloured than any other legislation on the Statute Book, and it has already been carried into effect in some spheres of employment.

The Minister of Labour has already decreed that the City of Cape Town is not to engage the services of any Coloured person as a traffic policeman; Coloured traffic constables already in the service of the municipality can remain but when any of them retire their places cannot be filled by other Coloured persons. And this was done in spite of the fact that Coloured traffic constables had performed their duties efficiently and with great courtesy. The City Council intended to recruit Coloured persons for the Fire Brigade Service: the Minister has prohibited the Council from doing this. The Coloured people of Cape Town, who pay rates on the same basis as Whites, resent this interference with their livelihood and there are also many White ratepayers who regard this interference as being grossly unfair and un-Christian and who also resent interference by the Government in the running of local affairs. The whole principle of job reservation is very naturally deeply resented by the Coloured community and they fear that it will be carried to great extremes.

The Plight of the Taxi-Driver

Another Department has been interfering with the means of livelihood of the Coloured people. That Department is the Department of Transport under whose aegis first and second class certificates are issued to taxi-drivers. The ultimate intention is that first class certificates for the carriage of Whites only should be issued to Whites only. At present it is impossible to implement that policy in the Cape Peninsula as the great majority of taxi-drivers are non-White, but first and second class certificates are being issued. There is a Coloured taxi-driver who plies for hire at Kenilworth Station where his clientele, as may be expected, is almost entirely White. He applied for a first class certificate and was granted a second class certificate which was, of course, of no use to him. Taxi apartheid has come as a cruel blow to the Coloured community. Before the advent of motor cars practically all the cab drivers in the Cape Peninsula were Coloured, and when motor cars came into use they naturally became taxi-drivers. In fact the plying for hire by Coloureds had become (to use a much abused word) "traditional" in the Western Province. There are, of course, many Whites who employ non-White chauffeurs: that is at present permitted but apparently it is humiliating for a White to get into a taxi driven by a non-White!

Apartheid Breeding Anti-White-ism

During the past few years there has been a very noticeable deterioration in the relations between the Whites and the Coloured community. This deterioration has gone to such lengths that there are numerically strong associations among the Coloured people which will have nothing whatever to do with the Whites. The Coloured people are or should be the natural allies of the Whites but now a considerable body of the Coloured people regard the Whites as their enemies. (Concluded)

"Appalling" Shortage of Houses for Africans

THERE is an immediate shortage of 167,300 houses for Africans, and a further 185,000 dwellings will be needed to provide for the estimated requirements of the next 10 years. These figures were given to the Institute of Administrators of Non-European Affairs in Kroonstad this month by the Minister of Bantu Administration and Development, Mr. De Wet Nel, who described the shortage as "appalling".

Important Sports Conference

THE South African Sports Association — a co-ordinating non-racial sports body supported by 8 national sporting bodies and some 70,000 sportsmen of all racial groups — has convened a conference to which all National Sporting Bodies in South Africa are being invited.

The theme of the conference, which will be held in Port Elizabeth on October 3, will be "Problems in the Development and Organisation of South African Sport, and it is expected that special attention will be paid to the improvements of standards, Olympic representation and the elimination of racial discrimination. Further details are available from the Hon Secretary, P.O. Box 2129, Port Elizabeth, who has issued a call for messages of greeting to be sent to the conference by those who support the work of the Association.

Significant Opinions from August's Non-White Press

"The Riots in Natal"

"POST" this week (August 23) reports eight causes of the latest disturbances (in rural Natal amongst African women: 1. Each woman had to carry 20 buckets of water. 2. They had to take off their doeks for Reference Book photographs. 3. Men not allowed to seek work. 4. 'We can't eat trees.' 5. 'We're crowded in on each other.' 6. Increased taxes. 7. Fed up with the chiefs. 8. 'Police provocation.')

"To these must be added the growing resentment of Natal women to beer raids on their homes and of their men being encouraged to spend part of their pitifully low wages in the hated beer halls.

"The increased militancy of our women as a direct result of the extension of the 'Pass' system to them must be taken into account."

"What is to be Done?"

Predicting that the increasing unrest amongst Africans, such as is current in Natal, would multiply as a result of apartheid policies, New Age said on August 20, "Who can save our country from this continual conflict and bloodshed? Not the government, which provokes it. Not the United Party Opposition." Calling for a "united crusade of the sane", to halt "the present apartheid madness" and to build "a new South Africa based on justice and freedom for all", the paper said "Let us not haggle over the details. The basic principles of such a new South Africa were agreed upon by a wide assortment of people of all colours and races at the Multi-Racial Conference held in Johannesburg in December, 1957.

"A Welcome Move"

"The United Party has had its day," said The Leader on August 28. "The future belongs to those who look forward and aim high and who work for a South Africa free from race fear and race hatred. It is in that spirit that we heartily welcome the stand taken by the (United Party) Progressives."

Institute's Director and Wife Overseas

MR. QUINTIN WHYTE, Director of the S.A. Institute of Race Relations, and Mrs. Maida Whyte, Director of the Bureau of Literacy and Literature, have left Johannesburg by air for America at the invitation of the African-American Institute, New York. Mr. and Mrs. Whyte will spend two months in America, where they will meet leaders and organisations in the fields of race relations, African studies and adult literacy. En route they will meet prominent personalities and study developments in Kenya, Tanganyika, Nigeria, Ghana, French West Africa and the Belgian Congo. In Europe, they will have similar discussions at UNESCO in Paris, in Rome, in Amsterdam and London. They will return to Johannesburg in November. Mr. F. J. van Wyk is acting as Director of the S.A. Institute of Race Relations in Mr. Whyte's absence.

Natal Regional Chairman Returns

MISS HANSI POLLAK, chairman of the Institute's Natal Region, has returned to the Union from Europe, where she suffered the sad loss of her mother, Mrs. Melanie Pollak. Dr. J. F. Holleman acted as Natal chairman during Miss Pollak's absence.

Important New Church Post for Leading Institute Member

DR. D. G. S. M'TIMKULU, a past Vice-President and present Executive member of the Institute, has been appointed as the first permanent secretary of the All-Africa Church Conference, which first met in Ibadan, Nigeria, in 1958. The representatives of non-Roman churches and groups from most countries in Africa felt that the contacts then made should be developed, and appointed a continuation committee of seven, on which South Africa is represented by Mr. Alan Paton. With Mr. and Mrs. G. C. (Jack) Grant, formerly of Adams College, as its temporary secretaries, the committee decided last year that a permanent secretariat should be established, and this month, meeting in Salisbury, appointed Dr. M'Timkulu as its head.

To take up his new duties, Dr. M'Timkulu will resign as senior lecturer in education in the University College of Fort Hare, a post he has held since 1956. His new work will be of the greatest importance to race relations, especially in Africa South of the Sahara.

Natal Regional Conference

FOLLOWING the highly successful first Regional Conference held by the Institute's Natal Region last year, a second one-day conference will be held in Pietermaritzburg on Saturday, October 24. The conference theme will be "The Challenge to Urban Family Life Today", which will be discussed by a panel comprising His Grace Archbishop Denis E. Hurley; Dr. Ansuyah Singh; Mrs. M. Malie; Mr. B. A. Naidoo; Dr. E. Krige; and Mr. M. B. Mbatha. Discussion will be introduced by Dr. J. F. Holleman, and Dr. Hilda Kuper will sum up afterwards. Fuller details, including venue, may be obtained from the Institute's Durban Office at 11 Colonisation Chambers, 355 West Street (telephone 2-9210).

1959 Christmas Cards

AN illustrated leaflet and order form for this year's selection of Institute Christmas cards has been sent to all members, who are reminded that it is advisable to order early. This is especially so if members want to have their names and addresses printed on the cards, which have become an important part of the revenue from which the Institute's fact-finding, publication, library, field and regional work is financed.

Invitation to Hoernlé Memorial Lecture on October 14

ALL members of the Institute are cordially invited to attend the fifteenth Hoernlé Memorial Lecture, which will be delivered at 8.15 p.m. on October 14 by Dr. Simon Biesheuvel, Director of the National Institute for Personnel Research of the S.A. Council for Scientific and Industrial Research. Dr. Biesheuvel will speak on "Race, Culture and Personality" in the Rheinallt Jones Memorial Hall in the Institute's head office, Auden House, 68 de Korte Street, Braamfontein, Johannesburg. Since accommodation is limited, members wishing to attend should secure seat reservation by telephoning Mrs. M. Scott at 835-1781 immediately, or by writing to her at P.O. Box 97, Johannesburg.

Race Relations Reading

African Farm Labour—New Institute Pamphlet

A PAMPHLET entitled African Farm Labour — A Survey will be published by the Institute at the end of this month. It will deal not only with the temporarily suspended "volunteer scheme", but also with the wider problem of the permanent African labourer and his family on white-owned farms and with the continuing use of convicted prisoners as farm labourers.

The pamphlet will contain a description of the "volunteer scheme"; the Institute's suggested reforms of recruitment and conditions for all types of farm labour which the Institute submitted to the currently sitting government Committee of Inquiry into Farm Labour; some conclusions and reflections by Miss Margaret Roberts from her recent study, Labour in the Farm Economy; the law relating to farm labour, and an article, giving up to date official statistics on African farm labour, by S. J. du Toit, a senior civil servant. The contents of African Farm Labour — A Survey are being reproduced from the current and previous issue of Race Relations Journal and will make the Institute's information and views on this important subject available in a handy format at 2s. 6d.

Report of the Nyasaland Commission of Inquiry (Her Majesty's Stationery Office, London. (Cmnd. 814), 7s. 6d.

The Devlin Commission's classic and extremely well written report is required reading for all students of African and colonial affairs, as well as for students of race relations in general. It should be read together with Nyasaland Despatch by the Governor (H.M.S.O. Cmnd. 815), 1s.

Poverty Wages by ALEX. HEPPLE (Wages Committee, P.O. Box 2864, Johannesburg.)

Subtitled "The shame of low wages in South Africa", this is a telling plea for the urgent improvement of the position of the vast majority of African workers. The author expresses disappointment with those businessmen who "now seem(s) to be satisfied with the parsimonious policy of the Wage Board", which in turn "seems to be tormented by the peculiar fear that a living wage for all workers would ruin the country".

Central African Policy (Venture, September 1959 — 11 Dartmouth Street, London S.W.1.), 1s.

This special issue of the Fabian Commonwealth excellent journal contains policy statements by British Labour leaders Hugh Gaitskell, James Callaghan and John Hatch, and a resumé of the papers and discussions of the Conference on Central Africa which the Bureau held in July.

African Interlude by J. F. HOLLEMAN (Nasionale Boekhandel Bpk., Cape Town), 21s.

This well-written story of six years in the deep Bushveld with primitive Shona people almost untouched by western so-called civilisation is told by an anthropologist who cares even more for penetrating to the spirit of his contacts than for recording customs.

It gives an illuminating and intimate picture of tribal African mores and behaviour, and leaves little doubt that lack of knowledge of these mores must often lead to faulty judgment and action by the white community in general, and even by the most well-meaning white administrator, social worker or educator.

Apartheid — The Road to Poverty by BRIAN BUNTING (New Age Pamphlets), 6d.

This reprint of three articles from the Congress-line weekly, New Age, is sub-titled "An Analysis of the Economics of Segregation". Backed with valuable statistical information, the author asserts that racially motivated policies are depressing South Africa's economy.

The Last Division by ANTHONY DELIUS (Human and Rousseau, Cape Town), 15s.

A welcome and long-needed satire of South African policies and politics, this long poem presents, in a hellish vision, the reductio ad absurdum of apartheid.

Where the Lash is Law by CHARLES H. MILLARD (Free Labour World, August 1959 — 24 rue de Lombard, Brussels.)

The attitudes and actions of international trade union organisations towards South Africa are of the greatest importance. In this issue of the official journal of the International Confederation of Free Trade Unions, its Director of Organisation, who recently visited here, contributes what the journal calls "a telling exposure of the systematic cruelty and injustice which pass for government in South Africa today". Mr. Millard strongly urges international support for the organisation of Africans in trade unions.

Race, Culture and Personality

Dr. Biesheuvel delivers the Fifteenth Hoernlé Memorial Lecture

ON October 14 Dr. Simon Biesheuvel delivered the 1959 Hoernlé Memorial Lecture, Race, Culture and Personality, to a distinguished audience in the Rheinallt Jones Memorial Hall in Auden House, the Institute's head office. Interest in the lecture was so great that all 220 seats in the hall had been reserved in advance, and an overflow audience of some 100 people had to be accommodated in the foyer, where a public address system was installed.

Dr. Ellen Hellmann took the chair in the unavoidable absence of the Institute's President, Mr. Donald B. Molteno. In introducing Dr. Biesheuvel, who is the Director of the National Institute for Personnel Research of the Council for Scientific and Industrial Research, Dr. Hellmann outlined the nature and purpose of the Hoernlé Memorial Lectures, of which that evening's was the fifteenth.

The Nature of the Hoernlé Lectures

These annual lectures commemorate the life and work of the late Professor R. F. Alfred Hoernlé, who was President of the S.A. Institute of Race Relations from 1934 to 1943 and who played a leading part in its development. The lecturers are invited from persons having special knowledge and experience of racial problems in Africa and elsewhere, and have included the late J. H. Hofmeyr, Dr. E. G. Malherbe, Dr. E. H. Brookes, Professor I. D. MacCrone, Mrs. A. W. Hoernlé, Dr. H. J. van Eck, Professor S. H. Frankel, Dr. Emory Ross, Professor B. B. Keet and Dr. David Thomson.

Mrs. A. W. Hoernlé, who has been ill in recent months, was spontaneously applauded by the audience when she was welcomed to the platform at this month's lecture.

While the Hoernlé Memorial lecturers are entirely free to express their own views, they have always shared the Institute's objective approach to and human understanding of race relations.

The Consequences of Cultural Clash

Dr. Biesheuvel proved no exception to this rule. In discussing the interaction of Race, Culture and Personality, he dealt with some of the most important questions facing both the Union and all those other parts of Africa in which the influence of Western technological society has made itself felt.

The key feature of the personalities which technological society has created is that work becomes much more than an economic imperative to the individual: it becomes a habit or inner need, deeply implanted in the personality structure of the average man. This implanted need is the driving force of Western technological society, and where the white man has established such a society in Africa, he has tried to make the African work in the same way as himself. In South Africa this process has gone further than anywhere else. Industries, cities and the undermining or destruction of traditional African culture have been the result. How does the African react to all this? Has it affected his basic character? Or his attitude to work? Is a new African Personality emerging, as the leaders of the Pan-Africanist movement assert? And if it is, what are its implications for the future of Africa?

These vital questions have been little discussed and less explored. In Race, Culture and Personality, Dr. Biesheuvel made a pioneer contribution to the finding of scientifically tenable answers. He stressed the importance of personality study for the relations between races, and began by analysing the nature of personality and its relationship to culture. Dr. Biesheuvel subscribes to the view that personality is mainly a cultural phenomenon, and sees undisturbed African tribal society as a static one in which, as in Europe in the middle ages, traditional roles were all-important.

In the subsistence economy of tribal Africans, there was no effort or work for its own sake. Now all the indications are that the more deeply Africans are drawn into that essentially Western culture, the world of work, the more thoroughly do they acquire the personalities functional for that culture.

This generalisation is, of course, subject to a number of qualifications. The migrant worker, like the civilian turned soldier in time of war, returns to his home and its ways fundamentally unchanged by his experiences. This will remain so for as long as tribal life retains its integrity, which it is, of course, already losing, and this,

Dr. Biesheuvel pointed out, poses a dilemma. If tribalism is to be fostered in the Reserves, then seasonal mine labour will be all that African rural communities will contribute to the productivity of the country. If, on the other hand, the rural African is turned into a worker, this will destroy the tribal system.

The possibility of retaining some features of tribal life despite the inculcation of Western work aspirations Dr. Biesheuvel considers to be "an idle dream." And once, he added, the African has embarked permanently on a life of work, "he will not stop until he has reached his own destination, which may be a good deal further than many now wish him to go."

Will that destination embrace the moral and social values of the Western world? Has today's urbanised African done so?

African Elizabethans?

Dr. Biesheuvel thinks that, except for the small number in the middle class, the majority of African township dwellers are in a cultural no man's land. Traditional social rôles are falling into disuse. At the same time, the family, church, school and other institutions through which Western society imposes inner moral standards are either lacking or attenuated. The "tradition-directed" personality has disappeared, the "inner-directed" personality, powered by instilled guilt feelings has failed to appear, and township society is not cohesive enough to live by social copying and conformity, by "other-directedness." Thus many township dwellers, substantially devoid of culture, are directed only by impulse and respect for force.

But Dr. Biesheuvel is not too pessimistic. He compares urban African life with the early Renaissance. Taking up Mr. Tom Hopkinson's comparison of township dwellers with the Elizabethans, he sees a temporarily thwarted but positive upsurge of vitality still looking for direction and form.

The personalities of the African middle classes Dr. Biesheuvel finds to be very similar to their counterpart in, say, America, but with more stress on self-improvement and social service. They grasp and largely accept Western morals and ethics, but are proceeding straight from "tradition-" to "other-direction," and at present take their cue from whites.

"Apartheid" No Solution

So much for present trends in the Union. Whilst stressing that "of all the conflicts between groups, that between races is probably the most stubborn," Dr. Biesheuvel does not see apartheid doing away with white South Africans' heavily reinforced unfavourable stereotypes and attitudes, which prevent a reduction of our race conflict to straightforward economic and political terms.

"Recognising the existence of a conflict of interest between the two races, apartheid sets out to reduce the sources of friction and frustration by providing opportunities for separate development. Because of prevailing race attitudes, visitors from the Bantu Areas and expatriates permanently resident in the Union would presumably still be treated socially in a manner unacceptable to citizens of semi-sovereign friendly states, and quite differently from foreigners from European countries. And this would also apply to nationals of wholly sovereign and not-so-friendly black states to the North of us. It is clear that antagonism from without and resentment from within would steadily increase, in which case apartheid would have failed to bring about an improvement in the relations between the races in South Africa."

"Negritude"—The African Personality

In examining the past, Dr. Biesheuvel advances the hypothesis that Africans may, by natural selection in a hot climate, have evolved a somewhat lower level of constitutional activity than Europeans. He does not feel this contradicts his other hypothesis of the birth of a new vitality in today's African city-dwellers, which he sees as a joie de vivre rather than the capacity for sustained industrial effort.

The negritude or African Personality, which is becoming the rallying point especially of West Africans, may, Dr. Biesheuvel suggested, be based on these two factors. A society based on such an African Personality would be different from today's dominant Western ones, though he believes it need not be happier. He suggested further that the answer might lie in a blending of African and Western cultural streams.

These are only some of the points dealt with by Dr. Biesheuvel who, as Professor MacCrone said in thanking him for his address, made a major contribution to that understanding without which no effective solution to the problems of black and white in Africa is possible.

The full text of Race, Culture and Personality is now available from Institute offices and from good booksellers as a 40 pp. pamphlet at 3s. 6d.

Freedom and Independence in Africa

"FREEDOM" AND "INDEPENDENCE" are the key words in today's Africa, and hardly any eyebrows are raised when they head the list of demands made by the indigenous leaders of yet another African territory. Except for the Portuguese, there is today no outside power which denies that self-determination is the ultimate right of all African territories or regional groups.

The point at issue is the pace at which advances should or must be granted, and it is here that many non-Africans have had to revise their ideas. The extent to which that pace has been speeded up in the past decade, and the certainty of its even greater acceleration in the near future, can be seen from even the barest chronology. In the one given below, "Independence" is applied to States, e.g. the Union of South Africa is an independent State. "Freedom" in the African context is usually taken to mean freedom from foreign or minority domination and freedom to take an effective part in Government. Not all persons living in "Independent" States are free in this sense.

The Chronology of Change

Prior to 1951 only The Union of South Africa, Egypt, Ethiopia, Liberia were independent states.
In addition, Southern Rhodesia had a large measure of independence as a British Colony with "responsible government".

1951 : Libya became independent.

1956 : Morocco (including Tangier)
Tunisia
Sudan became independent

1957 : Ghana became independent.
Kenya held its first elections to the Legislative Council (Legco) under the Lyttleton Constitution 1958 : French Guinea became independent.

11 Autonomous Republics within the French Community were created from former French West Africa and French Equitorial Africa.
Kenya held elections under the Lennox Boyd constitution, resulting in a Legco of 46 Europeans, 26 Africans and 20 Asians.
Uganda held its first elections, resulting in 35 Africans sitting in a Legco of 60.
Tanganyika held the first half of its first elections, supporters of the Tanganyika Union secured all 15 seats.
Basutoland had a new constitution announced, providing a considerable measure of self-government.

1959 : Belgian Congo gained a new constitution and held its first elections.
Tanganyika's elections were completed, TANU supporters again securing all seats. Constitutional changes providing for increased unofficial membership of Legco were announced.
Northern Rhodesia held its first elections under new constitution. A Legco of 30 with 9 Africans, 1 Asian and 20 Europeans was chosen.
Bechuanaland
Nyasaland
Gambia are to have new constitutions negotiated.

1960 : French Camerons
Nigeria (with British Camerons = 5 national units)
Somalia
French Togoland
Sierra Leone
British Somaliland will gain independence.
Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland Conference
Kenya will hold a general election, and possibly get a new constitution.

1961 : Uganda to have a new constitution and to hold a general election.

The Position To-day

Today, the position of the 48 countries on the mainland of Africa is as follows:

Policy and Function

Administrators of Non-European Affairs in Conference

A SPECIAL Correspondent writes: The 8th Annual Conference of the Institute of Administrators of Non-European Affairs of Southern Africa was held in Kroonstad from September 1 to the 4, 1959. This extremely well organised conference was attended by some 200 delegates, mostly chairmen and managers of Municipal Non-European Affairs Departments, but also including representatives of practically all the South African universities and of several other organizations.

The Minister of Bantu Administration and Development, in opening the Conference, reiterated that it was the Government's policy "that the Bantu should be regarded as a temporary resident of the urban areas . . . the number of the Bantu in the urban areas must be frozen at one stage or another and gradually diminished." Indicating "that the Territorial Authorities were now being asked to nominate Bantu persons as their representatives in urban areas," the Minister stressed that the task of the urban local authority and of the administrators of Non-European Affairs was "to carry out the policy laid down by the State."

Unwilling "Tight Rope Dancers"

During the succeeding discussions no direct reference was made to the Minister's remarks by members, who discussed the various aspects of the life of urban Africans as if they were in these areas permanently. It soon became obvious, however, that the thinking of South African administrators had been profoundly affected by the summing up of their conference and functions given last year by Dr. J. F. Holleman, the Director of the Institute for Social Research in the University of Natal.

It will be recalled (see Race Relations News, November 1958) that Dr. Holleman, in a talk entitled "The Tightrope Dancers," had characterized the keynote of last year's conference as "one of caution—the caution of the man who dares not speak his mind for fear of jeopardizing his position or that of his employer." He had stressed that the urban administrators stood in a position of pressure and counter-pressure, and that the success of influx control rested on the exercise of their discretionary powers. Several speakers at this year's conference appeared anxious to rebut any allegation that they were willing tight-rope dancers.

Independent "Empires"?

Papers were read on the need for higher wages for and increased productivity by urban African employees; on "The Task of the Location Superintendent," in which the need for better contact and communication between the urban administrator and urban African was stressed, and on "The Bantu Marriage," a consideration of the causes of the breakdown of African marriages in urban areas and a plea for a full investigation of this problem. Speaking on "A Non-European Affairs Department within the Framework of a Local Authority," Professor Hoek urged that Non-European Affairs Departments should avoid the duplication of the functions of other departments, e.g. engineering, transport, electricity, etc. This viewpoint was resisted by several of the senior managers present. These managers maintained that they could provide more extensive services in African townships with the available funds by training Africans to do skilled work at wages which, whilst below those commanded by the White artisans whom the Local Authorities must employ, represent real advancement to the Africans involved.

Other papers read dealt with the influence of the Press on the Union's African, an analysis of the rate of literacy reached by the African, the literature which he read, and a plea for the provision of healthy literature by means of extended libraries, etc. in urban townships. In addition, a further paper was tabled on the problem of juvenile delinquency in urban townships and how this could be combated.

Outspoken Observers Tacitly Supported

Discussion was generally on a high level. A considerable impression was created by the outspoken contributions made to the discussion by three observers, Miss Violaine Junod of the University of Natal, Dr. H. J. Simons of the University of Cape Town, and Professor N. J. Olivier of the University of Stellenbosch. Miss Junod stressed that the migratory labour system was the root cause of the instability of African life and Dr. Simons attacked the assumption that Africans could be regarded as being only temporary residents in urban areas. Professor N. J. Olivier emphasised the progressive worsening of race relations in urban areas, ascribing this to lack of suitable communication and consultation between the racial groups involved. Members reacted sympathetically to these three contributions, indicating their tacit agreement with their analyses by warm applause.

The general discussion revealed a sympathetic approach by administrators to the problems of the urban African, and a growing realization that the work of the urban administrator was of tremendous importance, not only in improving the living conditions but also in creating better race relations. There was a general admission that race relations in urban areas left much to be desired and that active steps would have to be devised, within the limits of government policy, if these relations were to be improved.

A Parting of the Ways?

There were, however, indications that the limits imposed by the definite policy of the South African Government might lead to a parting of the ways between administrators of Non-European Affairs in South Africa and those in the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland.

The Continuing Racial Crisis in S.A. Sport

NO White national sporting body accepted the invitation to discuss problems of sport in South Africa with its non-White and non-racial sporting bodies at the conference held in Port Elizabeth on October 3. The White bodies are, except for table tennis, the ones which enjoy international recognition, and it will be recalled that the President of the South African Olympic and Empire Games Association recently assured the Olympic Council in Munich that non-Whites would be able to qualify on merit for inclusion in next year's Games.

Renewed Recognition Challenge

The Port Elizabeth conference this month was called by the non-racial S.A. Sports Association to discuss how this assurance was to be implemented. In the event, only members and officials of eight non-racial sporting bodies attended, together with observers. The conference declared that the failure of the exclusively White bodies to attend proved that their protestations of fair play and readiness to co-operate were false, and that the non-racial bodies were left with no alternative but to press for international representation in place of the all-White bodies.

The Pressing Needs

The conference also declared that the standard of sport would improve if more competition were provided from the earliest grades amongst all South Africans and called for:

Attention to be directed at the local and municipal regulations which prevented inter-racial sport, which is not prohibited in law.

The provision of major sports venues, available for the use of all, in major centres.

Competent coaching for all South African sportsmen.

Significant Opinions from September's Non-White Press

"Threat to a Freedom"

"It is now illegal to publish photographs or sketches of prisons or prisoners without the written consent of the Commissioner of Prisons," wrote Golden City Post on September 6. "And newspapers may not publish the experiences of a prisoner or information on the management of a prison unless they are true . . . obviously, under the Act, the truth or otherwise will be determined not by the Editor of the newspaper but by the Government Department concerned. We see in the new Prisons Act a threat to the Freedom of the Press. It is not only bad policy but bad tactics."

"Verwoerd's Concentration Camps for Blacks"

"According to Press reports," wrote New Age on September 10, "the Government has instructed Municipal Non-European Affairs Department managers that no White person should be allowed to enter African areas, including locations, except on 'legitimate business'; further, that even people who have been given permission to enter on 'legitimate business' grounds should have their applications refused at the least suspicion that propaganda of a racial or subversive nature may be spread.

"This order is a drastic interference with the freedom of the African people. In the first place they are compelled by law to live in locations. Now, already more or less behind barbed wire, they are being told who may and who may not visit them, and what they may discuss with their 'licensed' visitors."

"Morals and the Volk"

"Failing (a thorough investigation into the root causes) immediately, there is a simple way open to (loyal) Afrikaner (Nationalists) to avoid the unwelcome publicity of immorality convictions. It is to stop hunting down non-White women," said The World on September 19.

Golden City Post: Weekly, White finance and control, White Editor with multi-racial staff, very large national circulation.

New Age: Weekly, White Directors, White Editors with multi-racial staff; medium national circulation; reflects Congress movement views and policy.

Higher Education in West Africa

Prof. J. Grayson of the University College of Ibadan will address members of the Institute's Southern Transvaal Region on "Higher Education in West Africa" on November 11 at Auden House.

Acting Chairman of Port Elizabeth Committee

MRS. P. BENNUM has been elected acting chairman of the Cape Eastern Region's Ladies' Fund Raising Committee during the absence overseas of Mrs. E. M. Lang.

Institute's Kokstad Branch

THE Kokstad branch of the Institute organised a highly successful school choir singing afternoon on September 22. Four hundred and fifty children, grouped in 11 schools from local schools representing the African, Coloured and European communities took part. The performance was conducted on a non-competitive basis and the choirs varied in size and age. Some of the singing was outstanding, and items were rendered in Afrikaans, English and Xhosa. There have been requests from several quarters that this should become an annual event, staged on a larger scale and possibly out of doors.

Johannesburg Street Collection Result

THE annual Johannesburg street collection in aid of the Institute, which was held on September 29, raised £529 10s. 7d. This low total is directly attributable to a shortage of collectors.

New Survey of Race Relations

THE 1958-59 issue of the Institute's annual Survey of Race Relations in South Africa will be published in January at 10s. Members ordering before the end of this year will be given a special pre-publication reduction of 25 per cent., thus obtaining this invaluable work for 7s. 6d. (plus 4d. postage). Orders, which will be met immediately upon publication, should be addressed to the Publications Officer, P.O. Box 97, Johannesburg, and country cheques should include exchange.

1958 Incomes of Johannesburg's African Families

A MUNICIPAL survey has shown that in June 1958, 80 per cent. of African families in Johannesburg's townships, where the sliding rental scale is in operation, had incomes of below £20 per month. Eight per cent. had between £20 and £25 a month, and only 12 per cent. had incomes of more than £25 a month. These figures exclude the earnings of wives, but include, to a certain extent, those of children.

According to the current determination operative for unskilled labourers in Johannesburg, local authorities must pay £11 4s. 3d. a month, rising to £12 12s. 5d. after two years. Johannesburg's municipality was voluntarily paying £11 8s. 7d. before this determination was made.

The Institute found in 1954 that an average African family of two adults and three children needed £23 10s. 4d. a month for bare subsistence.

N.C.W.'s African Affairs Adviser

MRS. JESSIE HERTSLET, who has, with one short break, been African Affairs Adviser to the National Council of Women since 1944, was recently succeeded in this position by Miss Hansi Pollak. Mrs. Hertslet, who will be celebrating her eightieth birthday next year, has long been a member of the Institute.

U.N.'s Hammarskjold to visit Africa.

MR. DAG HAMMARSKJOLD, Secretary-General of the United Nations, is to visit North, Central and East Africa from December 23, 1959, to January 25, 1960. At the conclusion of this tour he will have visited a total of 20 African territories.

John Reeves Memorial Scholarship

WHEN John Reeves, son of the Bishop of Johannesburg, died tragically earlier this year, the Church of the Province and all those others working for racial harmony in South Africa lost a most gifted and promising recruit. The work which he had hoped to do in the service of the Church in Africa is now to be fulfilled through a memorial to John in the form of a scholarship to Sidney Sussex College in the University of Cambridge, which will be open to gifted South Africans of any race. Those wishing to join this memorial should send their contribution to the John Reeves Memorial Trustees, c/o The Diocesan Office, P.O. Box 1131, Johannesburg.

The Institute's New Council

Distinguished and Representative Membership

THE four-yearly election of the representatives of ordinary members on the Institute's Council has been completed in all but two regions. The Council is the Institute's highest body, responsible for its policies and government, and meets once every year.

The Council in turn elects the Institute's President, Vice-Presidents and other office bearers at its annual meeting, and an Executive Committee every alternate year. Institute members not serving on the Council may, if nominated by a Council member, be elected to the Executive Committee, which meets twice a year to act for the Council.

On the Council sit representatives of: ordinary members (1 for every 25 members=97 seats); donor and life members (5 seats), and affiliated bodies (65 bodies=130 seats). In addition, all of the Institute's 10 honorary life members and its 8 office bearers sit on the Council, which may also co-opt 6 further members.

No voting took place in the recent elections in the Cape Western, and Northern and Southern Rhodesian regions, as the number of nominees equalled the number of seats. The following will now represent the ordinary members of their regions on the Council for the next four years:

Southern Transvaal:

Mr. R. B. Ballinger, Mrs. V. M. L. Ballinger, Mr. Martin Bayer, Mrs. M. I. Britten, Mr. M. Broomberg, Mr. J. P. Cope, M.P., Mrs. N. Fainsinger, Mrs. M. E. Fisher, Mrs. B. Friedman, Dr. B. Northern and Southern Rhodesia:

Dr. Hugh Ashton, The Rev. J. L. Baumgartner, Mr. T. P. Bevan, Mr. R. T. Currey and Dr. H. Jac. Rousseau.

As previously reported, Donor and Donor Life members have elected Mrs. M. L. Grant, Mrs. M. G. Roberts, Prof. W. Rollo, Mr. P. Santilhano and Dr. S. van der Horst to represent them.

The nine Honorary Life Members of the Institute are Prof. E. H. Brookes, Maj. Lewis Byron, Dr. E. Hellmann, Mrs. A. W. Hoernlé, Mr. P. R. B. Lewis, Mr. L. Marquard, Dr. J. Reyneke, Mrs. N. B. Spilhaus and Mr. Maurice Webb.

Eleven persons to represent ordinary members overseas and 3 to represent those in Other African Territories have still to be elected, and the nomination by affiliated bodies of their representatives completed. The full Council will then elect a new Executive Committee.

Overseas Representatives

The following 11 persons have been elected to represent the Ordinary members of the Overseas Region:

The Rev. T. A. Beetham, Mr. E. Russell Brayshaw, Prof. W. O. Brown, Dr. Gwendolen Carter, Dr. Max Gluckman, Prof. A. M. Keppel-Jones, Prof. A. V. Murray, Dr. R. E. Phillips, Mr. N. E. Pollock, Dr. Emory Ross and Prof. A. R. Vilakazi.

Ecumenical Conference and Race Relations

Potential Significance of this Month's Johannesburg Meetings

THE Eucemenical Conference which met in Johannesburg from the 7th to the 10th of this month to consider Christian responsibility in South Africa was important for two reasons: the fact that it was held, and the theme which it agreed to consider.

After the Dutch Reformed Churches withdrew from the Christian Council of South Africa in 1936, contact and co-operation between the various Protestant churches in South Africa became for some time problematical. It was only with the 1953 Pretoria conference of Church leaders on "Christian Principles in Multi-Racial South Africa' that inter-Church discussion was really resumed, after which it was continued by the Inter-Racial Conference of Church Leaders held in Johannesburg in 1954.

It was this 1954 conference which appointed the Continuation Committee of South African Churches, which has, ever since, been the only link between the various Protestant denominations.

The Continuation Committee called this month's conference as part of a world-wide study of Christian responsibility in areas of rapid social change being sponsored by the World Council of Churches, and created a precedent by deciding to admit laymen together with the clergy. This, together with the completely multi-racial nature of both the official and the informal social arrangements, increased the ecumenical nature of the conference, whose 200 delegates and visitors included nine from overseas.

After Dr. W. Nicol had opened the conference with an address on "Our Changing World", the following papers were read:

Man in Rapid Social Change by the Rev. D. Kitagawa of the Staff of the World Council of Churches, Geneva, and the Rev. Dr. Eugene C. Blake, Stated Clerk, the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.

The Effects of Industrialisation and Economic Development on Rapidly Changing Areas by Professor Monica Wilson, Department of African Studies, University of Cape Town; and Dr. S. Biesheuvel, Director, National Institute of Personnel Research, S.A. Council for Scientific and Industrial Research.

The Community in Areas of Rapid Social Change by the Rt. Rev. H. H. Munro, Moderator, General Assembly, Presbyterian Church of South Africa.

The Task of the Christian Church by Professor H. D. A. du Toit, Department of Theology, University of Pretoria; and the Rev. G. Setiloane, Youth Department, Methodist Church of South Africa.

Responsible Citizenship by Dr. R. E. van der Ross, Principal, Battswood Teacher Training College, Wynberg, Cape; and Mr. A. M. Broeksma, Q.C.

A number of these papers were outspoken, laying great emphasis on the practical aspects of the society which has been created in the name of Christianity in South Africa. A great deal was heard of land distribution, poverty, migratory labour, disease, and legal social and political disabilities, and these aspects are reflected in the conference resolutions. At the same time, full stress was laid on the historical and other reasons for South Africa's present-day organisation, and on the responsibility of churches with the spiritual content of social life.

If there was perhaps not as much discussion of differing viewpoints as some delegates might have wished, these viewpoints were at least frankly stated. And, within the framework of further meetings and contact which the conference authorised, this fuller discussion will certainly be possible. If it takes place, it could prove of great importance in the field of race relations.

The Conference Resolutions

Drawing attention to the need for the churches in areas of rapid social change to link their social service with a programme of vital evangelistic effort, the conference, inter alia:

- Stressed the responsibility of the Church to be a living community in which all believers share both the privileges and the duties of their common fellowship, liberated from the restraints of unworthy social systems, dehumanising industrial regimentation and persistent personal sins:
- Urged an earnest reconsideration of the policy of migratory labour with a view to the re-establishment of normal family life, adequately housed, and provided for by wage earners enjoying sound human relationship at their work.
- Appointed the existing Continuation Committee to prepare, in consultation with the Christian Council of South Africa and the Federal Council of the Dutch Reformed Churches, for the creation of a council to which all the various churches in South Africa shall belong.
- Called upon the Church and its individual members to accept and practise respect for human personality, regardless of racial and cultural differences;
- Supported the efforts being made to raise the wages of unskilled non-White workers;
- Urged all churches in areas of rapid social change to consider:

  (i) the development of youth work for Africans;

  (ii) the establishment of homecraft schools and the organising of courses in housewifery and child care to prepare African girls for the Christian home;

  (iii) the appointment of Christian social workers;

  (iv) the erection of community and social centres;

  (v) the provision of an adequate training for African and European ministers and social workers who have to serve in these areas;

  (vi) the provision of suitable literature on moral purity and the Christian home.

  An additional resolution, referred to the Continuation Committee for reconsideration:
- Urged that channels of consultation between White and non-White leaders be opened up, either by the government creating a type of non-White Council of State with advisory powers, or unofficially by the churches thmeselves.

African Traders in the Townships

Minister Confirms Policy — Institute Conducts Study

Mr. de Wet Nel, the Minister of Bantu Administration and Development, has confirmed to the S.A. Institute of Race Relations his policy regarding African traders in urban townships.

On October 26 a report of a speech by Mr. de Wet Nel appeared in the "Rand Daily Mail", of which the following are the relevant extracts:

"Concerning Bantu businesses in the large locations near the White towns, I made these three points:

"White traders will not be allowed in locations. The Bantu there will have to be served by their own Bantu traders.

"I cannot countenance any suggestion that Bantu traders should be shut out of locations by White traders on the borders of the locations and who would then provide the necessities for the Bantu in the locations. This, to me, is unethical.

"I added that it was against established policy to build up large and established Bantu businesses in locations. These should be built up in the Bantu's own areas.

"When a Bantu traders in a location has sufficient capital to establish a large business, he must move his business to his Bantu area, where the necessary facilities exist, among them the establishment of Bantu towns. Another Bantu trader must then replace him.

"In this way these Bantu traders will make a contribution to a diverse economy in their own areas. White trade in White areas will be most effectively protected and Bantu trade in Bantu areas will be best encouraged and developed.

"This is the only just and fair principle for the traders of both sections of the populations."

In reply to an inquiry by the then Acting Director of the Institute, Mr. F. J. van Wyk, the Minister wrote on November 3: "The report in the 'Rand Daily Mail' (of October 26) is corect. The matter is further clarified by answers to some questions which 'The Star' put to me."

The Institute, which is currently conducting a detailed survey of the difficulties encountered by African traders in the south-western townships of Johannesburg, has submitted a memorandum to the Minister on the implications of his new policy, and is at present awaiting his reply.

Enforced Awakening in the Western Cape

The Background to the Paarl Riots

A Special Correspondent writes: The rioting which took place in Paarl last month was the sort of event which future historians will find useful as a key or dividing line, and this for good reasons.

Firstly, this was the first time in its long history that Paarl has witnessed racial or political riots.

Secondly, this is the first time, certainly since the twenties, that Coloured people have led and massively participated in such rioting.

And thirdly, even when allowance has been made for the inevitable participation of criminal elements, this was the first time in our recent history that Coloured people have demonstrated publicly and violently in support of an African.

The fact that Mrs. Mafekeng, the African concerned, was the leader of the Food and Canning Workers' Union is, of course, important. Most of Paarl's Coloured and African workers are employed in the canning industry, which is at present facing stiff competition, especially in the British market on which it has come to depend. Under Mrs. Mafekeng's chairmanship, the Food and Canning Workers' Union has, at the same time, been increasing the pace of its hard fight for higher wages and better conditions.

In explaining his arbitrary banishment of Mrs. Mafekeng to a farm in the semi-arid Eastern Cape, the Minister of Bantu Administration and Development would say only that he had acted on local information.

It may, of course, be a mistake to read too much into one riot. On November 11 the Cape Times wrote editorially that "Clashes between the unfortunate police, who have to meet the consequences of Government policy, and the non-White masses, who are infuriated by it, are becoming monotonously regular. There have been 105 major clashes of this order since 1948, and the rate seems to be increasing, for 33 of them have occurred in the past two years. We are going deeper and deeper into a blood-tinged bog of racial troubles—and the Government shows only a crass determination to go in deeper still". But there is a background of growing Coloured frustration in the Cape which should not be ignored. (See R.R. News, August and September, 1959).

Observers have in recent months noted a marked lack of co-operation with White groups working in the inter-racial and socio-economic fields. This is, of course, not surprising.

If those in authority had set out to deliberately disabuse the Coloured people of their long-cherished conviction that they were cultural and social "appendages of the Whites", it could hardly have been more effectively done than by the cumulative effect of race classification, the removal of Coloured voters from the common roll, job reservation, exclusion from the open universities, and, now, Group Areas.

Politically, Coloured feeling has expressed itself in a practically total boycott of the creation of a Government Coloured Council. As no other nominations were received, a small number of candidates, practically unknown in the community and representing only themselves, was declared elected without a poll. Mr. P. W. Botha, the Deputy-Minister of the Interior, has stated that "homelands" for the Coloured people would be found, and the Government division of Coloured Affairs was raised in status to be the Coloured Affairs Department.

But in Namaqualand and adjacent Coloured Reserves, often mentioned as a potential Coloured "homeland", the Calvin Protestant and Anglican churches earlier this year found it practically impossible to obtain the permits required for any but the officially recognised Dutch Reformed Church to conduct religious services. Following representations and publicity, permits are now being issued to both the other churces, but the resultant services are often attended by members of the Special (political) Branch of the S.A. Police.

The first Coloured University College is to open in a converted primary school building at Athlone in January, 1960. The media of instruction are to be English and Afrikaans.

The report of the Commission on Separate Amenities, suggesting beach and other peninsular zoning on racial lines, has been widely criticised.

As for the Africans, it can hardly be supposed that they have remained quite unmoved by the progressive implementation of the Eiselen Plan, under which all African families are to be removed from the Western Cape, by the issuing of reference books to African women in the Peninsula, or by the concomitant tightening of the restrictive provisions of the Urban Areas and other relevant Acts.

A large number of reference books have been issued to women, but not without demonstrations, organised by the A.N.C. Women's League, of which Mrs. Mafekeng is a vice-president, and other African groups. Among those arrested and convicted as a result of the Paarl riots were 22 African women.

The removal of Rhodesian, Nyasa, Portuguese and South-West African Africans, many married to Coloured women, and with large families, or to Union Africans, proceeds with increasing rapidity. The hardship experienced by these people has to be seen to be believed, but neither the Federation nor the Union authorities will take any responsibility either for their travel during expulsion or their welfare afterwards.

During the last few months reconciliation within the A.N.C. in the Cape between groups of divergent opinions seems to have come about. The Cape Town Branch has now returned to the A.N.C. en bloc, under the leadership of Mr. Thomas Ngwenya, who has emerged from the "wilderness", considerably strengthened. In other parts of the Cape Province, there have, however, been definite defections to the Africanists.

An encouraging development has taken place in the Franschhoek area of the Western Cape, where inter-racial co-operation is being sponsored by a White D.R.C. parson, the Farmers' Association, and a group of five Coloured men led by the local school principal. The improvement of practical facilities is being undertaken, and interest in the venture has been shown in neighbouring farming areas.

Significant Opinions from November's Non-White Press

"Total War on Quislings"

"The twelve Quislings who, on Wednesday, November 3, 1959, presented themselves at the different electoral offices (for the Coloured Affairs Council) . . . must be driven out of every activity in the political, social, cultural, educational and economic life of the non-White people" wrote The Torch on November 10.

"Judge Not . . ."

"It will not be long before many hundreds of (unrecognised African churches) are thrown out of the buildings they rent in the townships and locations (by the Department of Bantu Administration)" said The World on November 14. "One reason for rejection has been that some church leaders fall short of the official standard of education and religious training. The low membership of some seots is another . . . Christ was uneducated by academic standards. As for the number of His followers, it was twelve."

"The Government Has Learnt Nothing From Paarl"

"If that is Mrs. Mafekeng's crime — that she was so happy in the socialist countries that she forgot she was Black — then socialists can thank Mr. Prinsloo for a free world-wide advertisement of the advantages of socialism" said New Age on November 19. "(But) what the Government really wanted — her trade union and political work for her people have been brought to a stop."

The Torch: Weekly, Coloured Editors, very small circulation mainly in Cape; organ of the Non-European Unity Movement.

The World: Twice weekly. White finance and control (Bantu Press (Pty.) Ltd.); White Managing Editors with African Editors; large circulation and national distribution.

New Age: Weekly, White Directors, White Editors with multi-racial staff; medium national circultaion; reflects Congress movement views and policy.

African Teachers Confined to Union?

ACCORDING to press reports, the Government of Ghana has been given to understand by the Union of South Africa that, "owing to the Union's accelerated programme of development in the Bantu areas of South Africa, there has been an increased demand for technical African personnel; and it will, therefore, not be possible, for the present at least, to release any more such persons from their inadequate reservoir."

Between Ourselves . . .

Season's Greetings

THE President, Director and Editor extend their best wishes for Christmas and the New Year to members of the Institute and other readers of "Race Relations News".

Durban Council Meetings

THE Archbishop of Durban, the Most Reverend Denis E. Hurley, O.M.I., will open the Institute's 30th Council Meetings in the City Buildings of the University of Natal, Warwick Avenue, Durban, at 8.15 p.m. on January 11, 1960. The programme for the meetings will be as announced in last month's "Race Relations News". Institute members who are not on its Council will be warmly welcome at all but the business sessions.

A social programme has been planned for Council members, commencing with private invitations to dinner in Indian homes on the evening of Tuesday, January 12.

On Wednesday evening, January 13, the Indian play Mukta-Dhara, by Rabindranath Tagore, will be presented at a public function. The production will be by Mrs. P. Morel, and delegates to Council will not be charged for admission.

Two alternative tours have, in addition, been planned for delegates on the afternoon of Thursday, January 14:

(a) Some of the areas affected by the Group Areas Act (this will include a brief look at Indian educational institutions, etc). It will be conducted by Mr. Pather.

(b) Lamontville Township (this will include a brief look at the slum area of Cato Manor, the Medical School of the University, the model factory area at Mobeni, etc.). The tour will be conducted by the Municipal Bantu Administration Department.

Council members have been sent details of these events, and are urged to let the Durban office know which they will be attending.

Careers for African Women

THE Institute is currently conducting a survey of career opportunities for African women, with a view to increasing the limited opportunities presently available for the increasing numbers of educated African girls. In undertaking this project, which has been welcomed by African bodies and newspapers, the Institute is following a long-standing interest, for it was instrumental in opening nursing careers to African girls.

"Glimpses of India"

SCULPTURE, painting, photographs and other aspects of Indian art and culture will be on show to the Johannesburg public from the 30th of this month until January 8, 1960. An exhibition is being staged during this time by the Hindi Vidyamandir (Vernacular School) to mark its tenth anniversary. The venue will be the Gandhi Hall, 50 Fox Street, and the exhibition hours will be from 10.15 a.m. to 10.30 p.m. daily.

Bantu College Resignations

MR. McCONKEY, a former Director of Education for Natal, has resigned from the Government-appointed Council of the proposed Bantu University College of Ngoya for Zulu students. Dr. McConkey gave as the main reason for his resignation the recent arbitrary dismissal of seven White members of the Fort Hare staff, and the statement made at a Nationalist Party meeting at Glencoe on October 2 by Mr. Maree, the Minister of Bantu Education:

"I dispensed with their services because I will not permit a penny of any funds of which I have control to be paid to any persons in these institutions [the new non-White colleges] who are known to be destroying the Government's policy of apartheid, which is what was going on in this instance."

Seven of the eleven African staff members of Fort Hare have now resigned, including Prof. Z. K. Matthews. Students have been demonstrating against the Government's taking over the college.

Koran in Zulu and Afrikaans

A TRANSLATION of the Koran into Zulu has been comleted, and another into Afrikaans is in hand. Molvi Razzaq, the Iman of the Pretoria Mosque, who is also director of the translation bureau of the same city's Universal Truth Monument, has announced that both translations will be published next year.

Race Relations Reading

A Selective Survey of New and Recent Literature

Revised Edition of "The Assault on Our Liberties"

A NEW and revised edition of Mr. Donald B. Molteno's concise examination of the position of civil liberty in South Africa is being published this month. When this 26-page Institute pamphlet first appeared last year, public interest was such that the complete edition was rapidly sold out. Mr. Donald B. Molteno, Q.C., has now revised his invaluable work to include relevant developments during the past year. Available from all Institute offices and from good booksellers. Price 2s. 6d. (plus 2d. postage).

THESE books may be consulted at the Institute's Library in Auden House—ask your public library to obtain them:

The Road to Self-Rule by W. M. MACMILLAN (Faber).

An historical survey drawing on the author's long and close observation. Professor Macmillan warns critics of colonialism that Africans have their own weaknesses to contend with.

The End of Empire by JOHN STRACHEY (Gollancz).

A British socialist argues that Britain would be better off without colonies. A lucid analysis.

W. E. B. du Bois by F. L. BRODERICK (Oxford University Press).

A sympathetic but not uncritical biography of the famous American Negro leader, now nearly 92 years old.

Land in Southern Rhodesia by KEN BROWN (London: Africa Bureau, 32 pp.).

An excellent pamhlet by a former agricultural officer who takes a gloomy view of the present system of land apportionment between the races. Useful facts and figures.

Main Principles and Policies (The Progressive Party of South Africa, P.O. Box 8825, Johannesburg), 6d.

The principles and policies adopted at the Progressive Party's inaugural congress, held in Johannesburg on November 13 and 14, 1959.

Job Reservation and the Trade Unions by RAY ALEXANDER and H. J. SIMONS (Cape Town: Enterprise Pub. Co., Ltd., P.O. Box 40, Woodstock, Cape), 40 pp.

Two specialists report on their valuable study of the reaction of White unions to recent trends in labour legislation.

Dawn in Nyasaland by GUY CLUTTON BROCK (Hodder and Stoughton).

An important account (in a cheap edition) of the background to the emergency in the Federation.

Human Problems in British Central Africa (Manchester University Press), 5s.

A reprint of the 24th issue of The Rhodes-Livingstone Journal, laying heavy stress on tribal matters.

Special Study on Social Conditions in Non-Self-Governing Territories (United Nations), 18s.

The latest in the series summarising information on and special studies of non-self-governing territories, this 239-page report is particularly interesting for its section on the development and problems of the urban family in Africa south of the Sahara, in which South-West Africa is conspicuous by its absence.

Tsopano (P.O. Box 2719, Salisbury, S. Rhodesia), 6d.

A new monthly on Nyasaland affairs edited in Blantyre and printed in Salisbury.

Final Advance Offer for New "Survey"

DECEMBER 31 is the last date on which Institute members will be granted the special 25 per cent. pre-publication reduction on the 1958-59 edition of our annual Survey of Race Relations. When published in January, 1960, the Survey will cost 10s. per copy. Members ordering before the end of this month need pay only 7s. 6d. (plus 4d. postage). Orders, which will be met immediately upon publication, should be addressed to the Publications Officer, P.O. Box 97, Johannesburg. Country cheques should include exchange.

February 1960

CONFIDENTIAL

REPORT TO THE AFRICAN-AMERICAN INSTITUTE

1. THANKS

To say that I am grateful to the African-American Institute for having made it possible for me to revisit the United States with my wife would not be an adequate expression of my thanks. It meant to us a very complete release from the overwhelming pressure of the situation in South Africa, where one talks, eats, and sleeps race relations, for there is no escape: it meant an excursion into a wider and freer world abroad, to wider perspectives; it was an opportunity to meet with minds of larger vision and happier imagination. Perhaps what we treasure most of all was the meeting again with old friends in the U.S.A. and the maintenance and expansion of the mutual understanding which, for me personally, over the years has been one of the mainstays of the work which we are attempting to do in South Africa. For all this, for all the new friends we met, and for the friendliness and kindness and understanding which we jointly experienced, for the opportunity to relax sufficiently and to absorb a little of what is America and Americans, for the spontaneous generosity of the offer, we can only say, in real and deep sincerity - "Thank you".

2. THE OBJECTS OF THE TRIP

1958 was a year of the deepest depression, of self appraisal as Director of the Institute, of examination and analysis of its work, of frustration of creative ideas which it seemed could not be put into operation. It was in the earlier part of 1959, with the success of the Institute's fund-raising campaign, that the break through occurred, and I felt positive and creative again. It was not only that the Institute would remain solvent; it was also the new interest in the Institute and a sense of greater responsibility for creating happier race relations which was discovered amongst people on the periphery or beyond the bounds of the Institute. This new awareness, however motivated, was a new factor and how best to exploit it for the general good became the new problem.

It was at this time that the invitation to the United States was extended.

What would we do? Fly straight to New York, go via Africa and Europe?

We wanted to meet new people, get new ideas, new attitudes, bring back to South Africa new perspectives. We were not so concerned with seeing so much as with hearing. On our travels some of our hosts may have been disappointed in this, but we decided that this would be the defining approach to our trip.

We both felt that too few South Africans knew anything about other parts of Africa. Feelings in the Federation were running high, but neither of us felt we had the energy to walk into another conflict situation. So we decided on Tanganyika where prospects for reasonable racial and religious accommodation seemed hopeful. Logically, Kenya would be the next stop, with an excursion from Nairobi to Mwadui to see the Williamson Diamond Mine, about whose community and other development we had written a memorandum.

South Africa lies far from Europe and opportunities to visit it are few - so we decided to make personal arrangements in order to go to Rome, to walk in the Forum for a day and recapture something of the teaching of our school and university days, to Venice to see it and understand a little of what the history books write of its Renaissance significance when a New World was born, to Paris to renew brief acquaintance with UNESCO, to London to see how old school and university friends had weathered, to investigate an extension of the Institute and its interests there, and to Scotland to see a dying and very dear sister.

These visits made together meant much to us. South Africa is a new country, and its appreciations are so often limited; it has a frontier tradition; many of its people are uncivilised in Western terms. To revisit, as it were, the sources of one's own inspiration, to seek to find a continuity of thought and belief, to renew and to rebuild those resources which are drawn on so heavily and of which one is drained so constantly - these have made it more possible to maintain constancy and integrity and belief in the possibility of a reasonably stable future for our country. To add the New World to the Old, and to feel and experience the vigour and thrust and knowledge of the New, with its deep roots in the Old yet with the fresh new approaches of the New - this has made possible a new strength of purpose and re-awakened significance for our work.

3. AFRICA

Political events have moved so fast in Africa that observations and comments of five months ago are already out of date and almost irrelevant to this fast and unpredictable development. Tanganyika has full independence in sight and Kenya will have an African majority in the Legislative Council there. It now seems ludicrous to remember that an official in Nairobi said that it would be 50 years before Africans ruled Kenya. My own estimate was about five years and, but for the restraints imposed by the courtesy and charm of our reception, my jaw would have dropped and my eyes goggled.

4. TANGANYIKA

Having been apprised of our arrival, the government officials in both Tanganyika and Kenya were more than kind and co-operative. An old fellow student at St. Andrew's University, Walter Coutts, is Chief Secretary in Kenya, and Sir Charles Mortimer is an old acquaintance.

In Dar-es-Salaam, we had conversations with:

Mr. Fletcher Cooke, Chief Secretary; Mr. Julius Nyerere, Leader of the official Opposition; Mr. Jamal, Minister of Urban Local Government and Works; Chief Fundikira, Minister of Lands and Surveys; Mr. Kahama, Minister of Community Development; Mr. Wren, Acting Director of Public Relations; Mr. Rockey, Publications Officer; Mr. Jana, Assistant Publications Officer.

Of these, the most striking personalities were Mr. Fletcher Cooke and Mr. Nyerere.

Mr. Fletcher Cooke

Mr. Fletcher Cooke is the finest type of colonial administrator. His analysis of the Tanganyika situation was clear and able, and he whole-heartedly endorsed the policy of preparing Tanganyika and Tanganyikans for eventual independence. He believed entirely in Mr. Nyerere's sincerity and had a very great respect for the latter's political acumen. He wondered, as I myself did, whether Mr. Nyerere would be sufficiently strong to handle his people under the new constitutional changes. At that time, the Tanganyikan African National Union was threatened with the splitting away of an African Nationalist movement which wished to see all "belongers" driven out of the country. Where Mr. Cooke saw the danger to Mr. Nyerere's leadership was in the rural areas where his multi-racial policy had not really penetrated. T.A.N.U. was also threatened by the All Muslim Union of Tanganyika. There are said to be 2½ million African Muslims and about 2 million African Christians. To stave off the threat, Mr. Nyerere will have to appoint Muslims in any government he forms.

Mr. Cooke indicated full support for Mr. Nyerere and is busy trying to train more and more Africans for further participation in Government at all levels; but he is constrained by the economic position. Much secondary industry, which Mr. Cooke would like to see settling in Tanganyika, is going to Nairobi and both he and Mr. Nyerere are anxious for the greatest capital investment: at present, the Tanganyika economy is very subject to world prices, e.g. for sisal. Mr. Cooke illustrated his point about Tanganyikan poverty by saying that it would take £46 million in capital expenditure and £46 million in annual expenditure to put all children into school and have 15% of the middle school go on to High School. The total budget of the country is £20 million. Mr. Cooke emphasized the great creative upsurge in Tanganyika which would have to be harnessed if Tanganyika were to be soundly built up and attract from the World Bank or elsewhere the capital and technical personnel which will be required.

There would appear to be two loyalties with no intermediate loyalties. The first is at the local district level and the second is at the national Tanganyika level. Attempts at intermediate local government had failed and it looked as if the administration would have to revert to some extent to the chieftainship, which is, however, an impossible administrative unit.

Mr. Nyerere

The present headquarters of T.A.N.U. is a congeries of little offices in a low cottage type building which is entered through a pleasantly carved door. Though the offices are tiny and rather dilapidated, one felt that they were well organized.

Mr. Nyerere, a Roman Catholic, formerly a teacher, and with the advantage of some Scottish education, has no "chip on his shoulder". Quietly spoken, confident, charming, he feels that the slogan "Uhuru" (freedom) is empty and means nothing unless Tanganyika can be built up economically. His approach is that Tanganyika must be a democratic multi-racial country and that to achieve this, Asian and European confidence and security must be maintained. Recent events had given Africans confidence for the future and he felt that this would help to ensure that they would treat other groups with the minimum of prejudice and discrimination. He placed his faith in the promotion of a sense of common Tanganyikan citizenship and anticipated that the 100,000 Asians would fully adopt Tanganyika. Of the 20,000 White residents, 3,000 were permanent and were not a major problem. Asked why

T.A.N.U. was not inter-racial, he confessed to the illogicality of this, but declared that it was essential for the time being but that it must become a "mixed" organization in the future.

Asked whether there was a sufficiently democratic basis for a national democratic government or whether some authoritarian form of government must inevitably result, he said that he had confidence in the co-operative movement, the trade unions, and the local Councils operating with the new concept of chieftainship, as providing those local and voluntary associations as the basis for a democratic system. He recognised the power of the chiefs and the necessity to take them along with him, and he considered that the African co-operative marketing organizations, and a certain tradition of African traders, would be strong enough to prevent any jealousy of Asiatic traders. He is anxious to reassure the outside world of the racial stability and economic potential of Tanganyika, and so attract both capital and technical personnel. His slogan for Tanganyikans could be, "Let us build".

His confidence was a measured one. Africans had been assured about the future position of Tanganyika and his object was to reach independence without friction and with the greatest possible confidence by others in the new régime. He saw no safety for minorities in "entrenched clauses".

Mr. Nyerere's policy is not a strategy, it is part of his own philosophy and outlook. He does not want any expression of racial hatred or discrimination in the future. He is fairly alone, for there appears, at present, to be no other Africans of his knowledge and stature. His major problems in the future may be securing a proper succession to his leadership, a possible Muslim-Christian conflict, and the permeation of the rural areas with his own idealism. I would suggest that, on balance, he will be able to maintain himself against other divisive forces. He has the full support of other elected members, Asian, African, and European, who accept his leadership.

Mr. Jamal

The most lasting impression of Mr. Jamal was his sincere, almost passionate, belief in and hope for the idea of a united Tanganyika. He is Asian and a follower of Mr. Nyerere, with a great faith in the latter. He admitted that the Asian community tended to keep to itself and to maintain intact its own cultural, religious and other customs, but stated that this was breaking down. He is a Tanganyikan first; to him a universal franchise was the best protection for minority rights because it would involve for Asians their complete identification with Tanganyika.

6/.....

Like Nyerere, he regards the present form of franchise as transitional.

Chief Fundikira

Chief Fundikira represented the soil of Tanganyika. T.A.N.U. had not opposed him in the elections. Pleasant and charming, he was not so caught up in the Nyerere influence as others. To him land was the final security for the African, and of land, he said, there was no lack. He represented rural Tanganyika and did not appear to have the overall approach to Tanganyika that others had.

In addition, we had discussions with Mr. Wren, Mr. Rockey, Mr. Kahama, and we met a Yugoslav journalist who was frankly unbelieving that African unskilled wage rates in the Union were so much higher than in his own country. He had rather a delightful sense of humour and enjoyed "liberal" leg pulling.

People in both Tanganyika and Kenya are completely absorbed in their own problems. They know nothing of African or European leaders or movements in the Union, and, except for Mr. Mboya, are not greatly moved by West African developments. They all condemn apartheid completely and damn South African Whites without any attempt to read up the position for themselves. For strategic reasons, Britain will want to maintain Tanganyika as a sphere of influence and I anticipate that the friendliest relations will be maintained. We were interested to note how eagerly the United States Information Service library was being used by younger Tanganyikans of all groups. It is very pleasantly organized and laid out.

Mwadui

A visit to Mwadui in Northern Tanganyika was organized by Anglo-American Corporation and we were flown in from Nairobi. Our arrival coincided with a strike of African workers and the whole atmosphere was highly tense while we were there. The trade union had not declared the strike - indeed, the trade union leaders went to work and declared official ignorance of any strike. We were impressed at the cool, imperturbable handling of a difficult situation, and the courtesy and thoughtfulness of the manager towards two guests whose arrival could not have been more unfortunately timed. A visit to the African market in Shinyanga was arranged; and we were tremendously impressed by the devotion of the staff of the mission, hospital and school at Kol Ndoda near Mwadui. It was inspiring to find friendly and close co-operation between doctors of the Mine and the Mission hospital. One wondered if a self-governing Tanganyika would not wish to take over completely this valuable mineral asset, Mwadui.

5. KENYA

On arrival at Nairobi airport, the only item lacking to make our reception complete was a red carpet. I rather spoiled matters by emerging last from the plane helping a Coloured mother and child.

Our last visit to Nairobi was in 1950 and what a change there has been. It feels alive and moving; buildings in good, modern, perpendicular style are shooting up everywhere. Hotels are unsegregated, even the staid Norfolk! Secondary industry is developing and altogether there appears to be a real upsurge felt by both Black and White: yet at the back of the minds of most Europeans spoken to was the Mau Mau rebellion. Directly and indirectly, it cropped up repeatedly: "I didn't know what they were saying in the kitchen because I learned only Swahili"; "I can't leave my child alone at home because it is simply not done since the Mau Mau outbreak"; "We all learned Swahili but in the Emergency, only one White police officer could speak Kikuyu". Our African taxi-driver was an ardent follower of Mboya and of Kenyatta, and he exhibited the most cheerful and assertive confidence. The horror of the Mau Mau rebellion still permeates White thought and conditions White reaction. Another "Emergency" is not anticipated, but if it did come, it is appreciated that the existence of the Labour Party in London would not permit of its ruthless handling.

We talked with the following:

Mr. E.N. Griffith-Jones, Acting Chief Secretary; Mr. C.M. Johnston, Minister for African Affairs; Mr. Amalemka, Minister of Housing; Mr. Jamad, Minister of the Legislative Council; Sir Charles Mortimer, now retired; Mr. C.G. Richards, Director of the East African Bureau of Literature; Mr. N.F. Harris, European Minister Without Portfolio; Mr. Tom Mboya.

Mr. Mboya

Almost all conversation came round in the end to Mr. Mboya, whom we visited at Aliv House, which seemed to be filled with Africans all seeking interviews with Mr. Mboya, who appeared to be enormously busy and who was being interviewed and photographed by "Life" magazine. I smiled to think what Mr. Eric Louw will say when he sees Tom Mboya and myself in earnest discussion.

Mr. Mboya was charming and courteous and, seated in his tiny office with its big steel desk and four-tiered bookcase filled with fresh-looking and glossy-covered volumes on labour and socialism, and some large tomes which appeared to emanate from America, gave a sense of power but was not easy to assess. His dark face, its very darkness probably a big asset, his slanted "Eastern" eyes, his small, even teeth, conveyed little and he gave little opportunity for questions. Being so constantly interviewed must be wearying, and it is probably easier for him to give a straight talk rather than subject himself to questions, whether informed or ignorant.

He claims to represent the majority of Africans in Kenya and he rejects any entrenched or constitutional safeguards for minorities. Such safeguards, he considers, make minorities targets for criticism and antipathy, and, in his opinion, it is the rights of the individual which must be entrenched and thus safeguard minority rights. His demand was for local responsible government in two years on the basis of an adult franchise and with Britain looking after Defence, Finance, etc. He does not believe that capital investment from outside Kenya is essential: the necessity for this he thinks has been "played up". In any case, should it be necessary, he anticipated that, as was the case with Ghana, it would be found. He expressed great faith in the ability of Africans to build the country economically once they had full opportunity to compete fairly. He gave, as an illustration, the African coffee growers who had only recently been allowed to grow coffee. He spoke, too, of the need for a more equitable division of the wealth which lay in the hands of European and Asian.

Asked what the implications were of the entrenchment of equal rights for all individuals, he tended to evade the question: would it not involve the rights of Whites and Asians to buy land, not only in the Highlands, but also on the plains. He suggested that protection would be necessary and that tribal ways and customs would have to be guarded because they had real value. He was opposed to African freehold tenure of land as being opposed to tribal concepts and thought that some form of leasehold tenure was preferable. Nor would he discuss African attitudes to other groups once Africans were in the saddle. He rested on the safeguards of the universal adult franchise.

Quietly spoken, with an even flow of words, his arguments appeared to follow logically, but when he will have the power to translate his theory into practice, there will, I am sure, be large departures from his theory. Where Mr. Nyerere and Mr. Amalemka conveyed a feeling of sincerity and integrity of purpose and spoke of an ideal, Mr. Mboya gave the impression that, though he was an able politician, he had no philosophy or idealism.

The opinion of others whom we met was pretty unanimous though, of course, it was a selected group whom we did meet. The general opinion was that Mr. Mboya had had his head turned during his American visit, that he was a career politician, whose personal ambition was to outrival Mr. Nkrumah and become the first African Prime Minister of Kenya. They saw a contradiction between his advocacy of democracy - a word which he admitted Britain had given him, and which he meant to exploit to the full against Britain - and his own authoritarian actions. Nor did they think he would manage to maintain his leadership for it was considered that his influence was limited to Nairobi, that he had no real rural contacts, and that when the Kikuyu were permitted to become active politically, he would have to cede political power. Mr. Mboya is of Luo extraction and it is unlikely that he could gain the allegiance of the Kikuyu who, despite the "Emergency", are regarded as the most intelligent, progressive, and hard working African group in Kenya.

Despite all this, my own opinion is that Mr. Mboya will remain a major power in Kenya. He is 29 years old, he has international experience in Africa and outside Africa: he may be a poor administrator, but he is a powerful orator and, although I had no evidence of this, I would suggest that he will remain the vehicle of African nationalism. I do not think that under him Kenya will be a democracy, nor do I think that race relations will be harmonious.

On the protection of minority rights, the opinion of those we met was unanimous that entrenchment of minority rights as such was useless and that it was the individuals' rights that mattered and would protect the group. It was admitted, however, that the African would find, not only the White man as an impediment to his advance, but that the Asian on the railways, in trade, as artisans, would be the Africans' more immediate stumbling block. It was hoped that rapid economic expansion would open up many avenues which would tend to soften rivalry. It was felt, too, that African fear of Asian land purchase, and the Asians' own tendency to look inwards as a group, would bring on them African prejudice and discrimination.

To me, Nairobi today represents one of the fastest social changes I have seen. In 1954 everybody was walking around armed. Today, an African man can bring a White girl on to the verandah of the Norfolk Hotel for afternoon tea, or have her to dinner. Today there is the acceptance that Africans will eventually rule, but what amazed me was that this was slated for 50, 25, even 10

Mr. Mboya wants Africans to take over control: there are three fully qualified African doctors in Kenya and four African lawyers, one of whom has been struck off the roll. Can a stable government be built up in Kenya, especially as tribal jealousies and turbulence are a factor which is not easy to control?

We had other points of discussion - land, housing, community development, technical education, literacy and literature, American assistance, trade unions, integration of schools, and British strategic interest in Kenya, but information on these is easily available and I am only anxious to report on impressions.

When one surveys the rapidity with which changes are taking place in Africa, one wonders afresh whether the Union will see equally rapid change. Who would have thought five or six years ago that Ghana would be independent, Nigeria, the Belgian Congo, French Guinea, Madagascar, etc. If South Africa is caught up in this, then one would anticipate that in five years time, Africans will be represented by Africans in our Parliament, Provincial Councils, and local governments. Must it take bloody revolution, a Mau Mau rebellion, bloodshed? Or will it be possible by peaceful means to achieve the change which must come about?

6. LONDON

And so to London, to a quiet and old-fashioned hotel off Piccadilly, and to the well-being and sense of contentment which seems to pervade Great Britain. To me, it is a mystery that Britain can maintain its place as the third nuclear power in the world, its export drive, its literary output, its international power and significance. There seems to be no sense of urgency, no feeling of upsurging drive. Contentment and self-satisfaction abound. Do the generality of Britishers take much interest in happenings across the world? Are they still interested in the Empire and Commonwealth? Did they ever really have this knowledge or these interests? The Labour Party, like the A.F. of L. and C.I.O., may call for a boycott of South African goods, but will the British public react at all to something so remote as South Africa? And why does a potential government officially call for a boycott of a member commonwealth state? Is it an outraged sense of justice, a party political strategy, an attempt to show the Non-White world that the Labour Party has its heart in the right place? The Labour Party may be fundamentally right about South Africa - as I believe it is - but why pinpoint South Africa where there are so many areas and situations equally "deserving". All White South Africa feels condemned except perhaps those of communist or left sympathies.

7. U.S.A.

This part of my report can be focussed round the following points:-

1. Relaxation.
2. The Foundations and other service organizations.
3. Washington.
4. The United Nations.
5. Talks and contacts.
6. Impressions of United States.
7. Ideas.

Relaxation:

Lake Champlain, Princeton and the Peacock Inn, Eagle Lake and the Adirondacks, Vermont and the Green Mountains, New Canaan, Philadelphia - what a different slant these gave to the America of full packed itineraries. No interviewing of people, no talking to or at, no official business, no pressures. It was a new America, and new aspects of old friends. To visit friends in their homes, to rest a while, rounded out one's appreciations. It was not one urban centre after another. It was the beauty of Lake Champlain and the red, windfall apples in the grass, the unutterable beauty of the Fall, the wild furnace of colour across the lake, misted with grey, the gathering of autumn leaves with children, and the quiet simplicity of the centuries old Meeting House; not least it was the "peep peep" of the delightfully "un American" commuters' train from the Junction to Princeton. These were the United States and the deep-seated attachments and sentiments of people.

From these we brought back the happiest memories and greater insights.

Foundations:

The Carnegie Corporation, the Phelps-Stokes Fund and the Rhodes Trust originally helped to start the Institute, and it was the Ford Foundation which stepped in at a crucial period to maintain it. So much of our original contact has always been with foundations and their personnel until recently, when the expanding interest in Africa of universities, commerce and industry, and organizations, has brought an ever increasing number of visitors from America which, in its turn, has received a larger influx of South Africans.

The foundations enjoy a peculiar position in the world. They are the product of "rugged" individualism and of free, competitive enterprise, yet they are a symbol of that essential democracy and goodwill which is America. They plough back into society (and into the world) the fruits of many people's labour for the good of the people. They are a leaven and soften the harsh edges of economic struggle and go some way towards being a response to the demands of socialism. To some in the outside world, they are money bags to be drawn on; to others they are an expression of wise philanthropy, of human decency, and of responsible idealism; and the manner of their conduct and the degree to which they can take in human needs and problems outside America, is the measure of the regard with which they are held by the world.

We have always been struck with the high sense of responsibility and the wide ranging understanding which officials of the foundations show. It cannot be easy to be constantly badgered with demands and bombarded with "projects", to make analyses, decide, and reject, and still do so with the objectivity which this requires and with understanding of the humanity which inspires the appeals. The agents of foundations abroad make some of America's best ambassadors and not because of their position as potential grant-makers.

We, of course, as South Africans, wished to maintain and encourage foundation interest in South Africa where there is so much that is harmful to happiness and progress. At the same time, we wished to be helpful to the foundations in their consideration of matters in which they might be interested in South Africa, and to put to them other than Institute projects which would be of benefit to the country, and, we hoped, to friendly and constructive relations between our countries.

The interest which has developed in Africa since 1950, and more particularly since 1954, was remarkable, and with this went interest in South Africa. Apart from world wide demands and responsibilities and the existence of established policies within which, for the time being, they have to work, the major difficulties of the foundations in relation to South Africa appeared to be a reluctance to seem to interfere in its internal policies, and a definite unwillingness to help anything which might be interpreted in the United States as supporting apartheid or segregation. Neither the foundations nor the State or Commerce Departments have written off South Africa, as had previously been reported; indeed, with a developing Africa programme, it is likely that interest will become greater. I was very glad that four foundations, which have not yet formally visited the Union, indicated that they were prepared to come for a brief reconnaissance. A representative of a fifth foundation has just left after his first visit to South Africa. (February, 1960).

I did not visit the foundations with set proposals or projects but rather to explore interests. Their major Africa interests would appear to be research - at various levels, the development of African leadership through youth organizations, the promotion of African women movements and leadership, higher education and technical training, encouragement of the work of the Christian Churches, the exchange of personnel of various disciplines, travel grants, conferences, inter-group contact, African music and theatre, African authorship and writing, the promotion of African literature. The foundations will normally require a personal survey by their own people before in any way indicating a definite interest.

The general work of the Institute in South Africa was welcomed and appreciated. In the discussions, however, I suggested that, while obviously anxious to find support for my own organization, support for organizations or work which indirectly helped to improve the status of our Non-White people would be widely welcomed, not only as good in itself, but as likely to be beneficial to race relations. They all agreed that any approach to South Africa's problems had to be sophisticated in the best sense of the word. All were sympathetic and all were interested and I hope that any suggestions or ideas I had were found useful.

Washington:

It was pleasant to be received cordially by our South African Ambassador, who offered to help us in any way he could. (In 1950 we were informed that, as we had brought no note of accreditation from Pretoria, they could not help us.) Our Ambassador was not worried by the South African boycott and was of the opinion that West Africa would not join in. He felt that Britain would retain Kenya and Tanganyika as spheres of influence, and that in Africa new forms of government would evolve. His greatest worry was the imminent explosion of the populations of the East, particularly India and China, and the effect of this on Africa. He could see solutions to most of Africa's problems, but no solution for the position of Indians in Africa.

The other discussions we had in Washington were reassuring. One of the concerns in South Africa has been the slowing up of the tempo of economic development and the possibility that overseas investors were ceasing to be interested. It has been feared that estimates of the racial situation were so gloomy that capital investment would be thought too risky. It was, however, pointed out that 50% of United States investments in Africa were in South Africa, and that these were long term. It was admitted that two to three years ago, South African policies had disturbed U.S. financiers, who were still a little disturbed, but the fact that Chase Manhattan, First City National, Charles Engelhard, David Rockefeller, and others had come into South Africa, was evidence of confidence. The Report of the U.S. Trade Commission was very favourable to South Africa.

I felt that there was some change in the attitude towards African nationalism and a greater concern about the future stability of the new African states. Great hopes are placed on the future of Nigeria, with its 46 million people and the expectation was that it will produce a stable government and society. It was not anticipated that U.S. Africa policy would necessitate an anti-South African policy.

To enter the white marble halls of the Supreme Court was a sheer delight, and to talk with Mr. Justice Felix Frankfurter, an experience. He knows Mrs. Hoernlé personally and spoke appreciatively of ex-Chief Justice Centlivres, and ex-Justice Feetham of South Africa. Our talk on equal but segregated facilities, and on constitution making, was brief but happily interlarded with question and anecdote.

And it was good to see the African-American Institute, Washington office and meet with Mr. Hagbert and his staff and to be so pleasantly received at a time when they were busy. This work of personally receiving overseas visitors, particularly Africans, and looking after them, will yield many fruits in the future. When I looked at the Africans from South Africa who have had the benefit of travel to the States, I am impressed by the sense of adequacy it gives them and the reasoned views that they express.

A visit more directly affecting the Institute and the possibility of setting up a U.S. subsidiary was paid in the company of Mr. Beimfohr of Sullivan and Cromwell, to the Bureau of Inland Revenue, where our reception was friendly.

I discussed the idea of an Institute subsidiary with a number of people in and out of foundations and, allowing for the newness of the idea, found it well, if cautiously received. Everyone believed that it would have a useful function, not only for South Africa, but probably also for the United States in its interests in South Africa, and it was felt that it should, in some way, be brought under the umbrella of the African-American Institute.

The United Nations:

For years one has followed the debates in United Nations on South Africa's policies and on South West Africa, and has been conscious of the mounting of impatience of even those nations who seek to retain South Africa within the United Nations and its work: while there will be support for South Africa's attitude on domestic jurisdiction, there would appear to be increasing irritation with South Africa's intransigeance over South West Africa. I was not clear about the implications of Mr. Louw's election to a Vice-Presidency, but I was surprised at the positive response to Mr. Louw's acceptance of an invitation to Ghana, and the decision to give a token amount to the United Nations Technical Assistance Fund.

After discussions with staff of the United Nations, I put forward certain suggestions for a conference under United Nations auspices in South Africa to our Ambassador, who forwarded them to Mr. Eric Louw. The response of the Ambassador was not negative.

The contacts made at official level at United Nations, I hope, will be useful in the future.

Talks and Contacts:

I was very grateful that no great demand was made for lectures or talks. Those that I did give were fairly informal: to the African-American Institute, the School of Advanced International Studies of Johns Hopkins University, the Council for Foreign Affairs, a seminar at M.I.T., and brief lunch talks to officials of the American Climax Company, the Ford Foundation, the Carnegie Corporation. Apart from these, I had discussions with individuals alone or in groups, and met a number of old friends.

The following is a listing of organizations visited and persons met but does not include a number of individuals to whom we were introduced:

Organizations

North Western University, Boston University, Columbia University, Princeton University, University of Vermont, M.I.T., Phelps-Stokes Fund, Rockefeller Foundation, Rockefeller Brothers Fund, The Johnson Foundation, the Social Research Council, Carnegie Endowment for Peace, American Climax Company, American Broadcasting Company, Department of State, Department of Commerce, Bureau of Inland Revenue, Department of Education, Supreme Court, South African Embassy, United Nations, International Committee for Christian Literature, African Women's Committee.

Persons

Professor M. Herskowitz, Dean and Mrs. Liston Pope, Mr. Butler, Dr. H.A. Kissinger, Mr. George Overton, Mr. R. Kuch, Mr. Dana Creel, Mr. Robert July, Mr. Kimball, Mr. A. Calaver, Mr. Joe Johnson, Dr. F.D. Patterson, Dr. and Mrs. F. Loescher, Dr. Pendleton Herring, Mr. and Mrs. W. Shepardson, Mr. and Mrs. E. Schuller, Mr. Harold Fleming, Sir Andrew and Lady Cohen, Sir John and Lady Carmichael, Miss Ann Winslow, Miss Win Armstrong, Mr. Blankenheimer, Mr. Cuming, the South African Ambassador, the South African Consul-General, Professor John H. Lockhead, Mr. Jack Naidoo, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Stackpole, Mr. and Mrs. Alan Pifer, Mr. Melvin Fox, Mr. Frank Sutten, Mr. John Howard, Mr. and Mrs. C. Engelhard , Justice Felix Frankfurter, Dr. Floyd Shacklock, Dr. Rex, Dr. Sayre, Mr. and Mrs. H. Hochschild, Mr. Waldo Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Andy Kamarck, Professor H. Watkins, Mr. and Mrs. Brookes Emeny, Lady Montagu Norman, Dr. and Mrs. J. Woods, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Paffrath, Mr. E. Beimfohr, Mr. Taylor Ostrander, Mr. C. Hogan, Mr. J.P. Humphrey, Mr. E. Lawson, Mr. R. Bayledon, Mr. Theron, Mr. Swayzee, the Hon. Amos K. Sempa, Mr. J. Savanhu, Mr. M. Conant, Mr. Harold Isaacs, Mr. Lewenikwa, Mr. Sidney Bailey, Madame Sonia Grinberg-Vinaver, Miss S. Smith, Miss K. Ford.

There are many obvious omissions due to absences, mis-timing, and so on. To these friends whom we did not see, we apologise but hope they will come to South Africa. The hospitality we received was abounding and, although it is invidious to pick out names, we were specially grateful to the Hochschilds, the Loeschers, the Stackpoles, the Schullers, the Ostranders, Miss Ford, Mr. Hogan, the Lockheads, and Mr. Steere.

Impressions of U.S.A.:

Any observations I make are not those of a skilled and trained observer who came to the United States to observe and analyse. I was, of course, anxious to understand and appreciate, but what I have to say is the result of the general impact of a whole sense of events, big and little, and of contacts of many descriptions.

The greatest and most significant event was, of course, the visit of Mr. Kruschev. This has been discussed and analysed and its import assessed by many. For my own satisfaction rather than for any contribution it will make, I put down my own immediate reactions.

Mr. Kruschev arrived with the Soviet's moon rocket and left accepting the "decision" of the President's grandchildren that Spring 1960, not October-November 1959, would be a pleasanter time to go to the U.S.S.R. No P.R.O. man could have done better. He came with a scientific and intellectual shock; he left as an apparently grandfatherly person who loved children. Mrs. Kruschev appeared as rather an unobtrusive, dowdy, housewife who could arouse no female jealousy but might gain acceptance for her interests and attitudes by many plain housewives in the States.

Mr. Kruschev exuded confidence and optimism; he was not on the defensive. He had taken the initiative and had come. Given his premises, he appeared reasonable, consistent, logical. His phrase about "burying capitalism" he explained in his own terms as an historical process. His assertion that the conflict between "capitalism" and "communism" was a war of ideas and would be conducted without resort to arms, gave an apparent indication of his own confidence in communism. Taking this at its face value, his expressed desire for peace was logical. He maintained the same approach later in China.

While his reception to begin with was cool, if not cold, it is certain that, particularly after the Los Angeles visit, the United States warmed up to him, and before he left I believe that the cold war tensions were greatly eased. He did not speak in terms of military but of intellectual conquests. He was prepared to let the two systems live side by side and leave it to the attrition of ideas to work out a solution. This seemed reasonable.

Mr. Kruschev seemed to personify the U.S.S.R. but not communism generally. He appeared as a national figure. He seemed to reflect a highly disciplined system of which he was in supreme and accepted command. He spoke for the U.S.S.R. with no dissentient voices to confuse issues. He was monolithic.

American reaction seemed to be uncertain and a little bewildered. Sophisticates said he was the supreme politician - able, astute, calculating; this was not the impression he gave me. He was subjected to television cameras, to press interviews; every moment of his time was made public. Under such a barrage, he did not slip up once. Even his anger in Los Angeles eventually went to the credit side of his visit.

The press coverage and publicity were fabulous. The United States gave him every opportunity to say his say and reported it. The U.S. was, eventually, hospitable, even friendly, and there seemed to be an uneasy belief that he might really mean what he said. I believe that, for many Americans, a number of questions were raised. Could America meet the scientific challenge if Army, Navy, Air, and civil authorities failed to co-operate fully? Was American democracy and Christianity offering the world anything as dynamic and inspiring as the U.S.S.R.? I was struck by the report of a student who had been to the Soviet Union and had camped with Russian students.

His greatest impression of the latter was their idealism and their passionate desire to make the world a better place for all to live in. A former Ukrainian said that it was a war of ideas and that U.S.S.R. did not intend war. He pleaded for a Christian, democratic dynamic to counter Communism.

And my opinion is that, while Americans are rightly and deeply imbued with belief in the goodness of their own institutions and concepts, they are looking for an inspiring leadership which will direct and canalize the tremendous idealism which I saw in the United States. This is why I believe that the next Presidential election is so very important to America and the world. I personally hope it is a landslide election for the right man with the right backing in Congress and Senate. I hope further that the next President will act with power and from a strength derived from the fundamental philosophy and idealism of the young, and the not so young, which is seeking so anxiously for a lead.

But will the American people allow the President to act thus? Must the President be subjected to weekly press conferences? I am too ignorant of the institutional side of the Presidency, but it appeared to me to be almost impossible for the President to do the thinking and planning and have time for the contemplation which is essential to his office. In relation to the President, I felt that the press exercised a licence and not a freedom. Could a President of a big corporation function under conditions in which the President of the United States is asked to live?

These are just questions which may be naive, but the whole Western world looks to America, and its President.

Wherever I went I was very conscious of the dynamic, throbbing life of the United States universities, business, and industries, which seemed to be thrusting pistons in a huge pounding engine. There seemed to be resources for everything. And although I am not always impressed by demands for co-ordination, I wondered if there was enough, particularly in some fields at university level. It was good to meet students who were learning Russian and Chinese, who were studying Africa, and looking to an "international" future. It was equally good to talk with the taxi driver about rents in Manhattan and the need to move to the suburbs. And it was delightful to sit in a bar and watch the television broadcast of the Los Angeles Dodgers-White Sox game. (I think Chicago went into mourning!) There was striving, and thrust, and energy. There was thinking, worry and concern. There was inquiry and interrogation. But nowhere, in no instance, was there rudeness, or unfriendliness on any level.

I sensed amongst people a great and permeating sense of responsibility, for America, and for America's rôle in the world. This I met, not only in service organizations or with individuals of high status; it was met on a lower executive and business level. More Americans than ever seemed to be accepting a community or national or international responsibility for America. It might be for Negro integration, for international relations, but it was there. Everything was not left to the President or Mr. Herter. Thousands of Americans were shouldering some of the burden.

On the individual level, there was irritation with Englishmen; and in England there was resentment of Americans. Both attitudes are understandable, but I felt it regrettable when the completest academic and intellectual co-operation should not be obtained. This was merely an impression. Americans seemed irritated by the smugness, the lack of drive and comprehension, and by inflexibility in English thinking: Englishmen were resentful of the power, resources and dynamics of American thought and action.

Since my last visit, American attitudes had changed slightly in relation to the emergence to national independence of African peoples. Previously I felt that the United States, in its desire to line up with African peoples, and remembering its own historical evolution, tended to be more anti-colonial than was justified and to see greater virtues in swift national independence than there were. Now there seemed to be a greater realisation that the new states might be highly unstable and that possibly independence was coming too quickly to be salutary.

On the other hand, there seemed to be beginning a new attitude towards Africa. American help to African states was not just part of the "cold war"; help is being given in a much more positive spirit and not so much with a defensive approach to the possible encroachments of the Soviet in Africa. There seemed to be a greater feeling of oneness with African people, a desire to help them for themselves, and not as part of an international strategy directed against the East. This I felt to be very desirable, for it is obvious that if the United States acted merely to combat the Soviet, the new states would be in a wonderful position to play the West versus the East.

In this relationship I was greatly struck by the flow of Africans to the States and by the patience and care and thought with which they were received. To my knowledge, the U.S.A. has not staged any World Youth Rally comparable to those of the Soviet bloc, which have caught the imagination of many. Instead, it has pursued a steady policy of maintaining a flow of Africans to schools, universities, etc.

This, in my opinion, is vitally important for future relations with the leaders of African states; a common background of university experience and working together will make contact and understanding easier and greater in the future. I believe that Rhodes Scholarships have performed this function for the British Commonwealth and the U.S.A.

Interest in Africa has grown enormously ever since 1954. There is no need to stress this. And this has brought about a continuous flow of Americans to Africa. What I found significant was not that academic persons and "do gooders" come, but that business men take time out to travel and find out for themselves. They apparently do not just accept, say, State Department judgements and reports: there has to be almost a personal assessment to lay alongside State Department or other reports. Yet there seemed to be considerable co-ordination and exchange of knowledge and information and much co-operation between individuals and organizations and universities working or interested in the field of Africa. The foundations seem to play a significant rôle in this.

It had been reported some years ago that America was "writing off" South Africa, and that American interest - business, State, and foundations - would concentrate North of the Limpopo. As I have mentioned before, this is not the case. While everyone that I met was at one in condemning South Africa's present apartheid policies, there was, nevertheless, greater appreciation that our problems here were not so simple and that, what I termed, a "sophisticated" approach was necessary. Perhaps experience of reactions in the Southern states, a completer knowledge of Africa, gave rise to this fuller appreciation. This was not to say that Americans were not impatient and urgent. They were, and I felt that perhaps a stronger line might be taken by the United States and Britain at the United Nations. Neither country can afford internationally to have South Africa putting a spanner in the relations of the West and Eastern countries or with the many new states in Africa. I would expect greater impatience with South Africa's attitude, e.g. in the matter of South West Africa. At the same time, I do anticipate that the U.S.A. will do all it can, not only in South Africa, but in the Federation and Kenya, to try to ensure that some reasonable modus vivendi be built up in these multi-racial states. It was obvious that there would be no support forthcoming for anything smacking of apartheid. In view of both its internal and its international situation, the U.S.A. cannot afford to give even the appearance of supporting a policy so completely condemned. It was said that foundations even hesitate to support needy Negro colleges lest it be said they supported segregation.

I did not attempt to make serious inquiries into the question of Negro integration. Our South African press reports items of interest and we in the Institute can follow the progress made and the difficulties met from the many bulletins and analyses that are received, and, of course, through American visitors who come to South Africa. I had an interesting talk with Harold Fleming of the Southern Regional Council, whose organizational problems are very similar to my own. His overall conclusion was that steady progress would be made. I was, however, interested to hear of some Negro resistance to integration; for I believe that, even if in South Africa full integration were possible, there would be certain areas where Africans would resist this and the longer our policy of segregation endures, the more surely will this attitude develop.

Ideas:

I have already indicated what the visit meant to my wife and myself, to the enrichment of ourselves and for the strengthening of those bonds of acquaintance and friendship which have always meant so much to us. What have we brought back that will be useful to our work in race relations, or to South Africa more generally? What I set out below may seem unoriginal and meagre, but I give these thoughts for what they are worth and do so somewhat baldly.

1. General

I was interested in the insistence by White, Asian and African, that the only protection for minority rights lay in the entrenchment and protection of individual rights. At the present moment, a commission, set up by the South African Progressive Party, is examining how best minority rights can be secured in a rigid constitution. This it is doing presumably with an eye to the future when Africans will dominate South Africa, and an eye to the present when White fears must be calmed.

2. In Tanganyika, Mr. Nyerere seemed to combine in himself the twofold approach to change, the political and, what I would call, the "social constructive". This twofold approach can be seen in South Africa and in organizations in the U.S.A. interested in Africa, e.g. the American Committee on Africa, and the African-American Institute. Liberal conservatives tend to rely on the latter: radicals on the former. Mr. Mboya is "political". Where this combination cannot be found in one organization or person, it is important for each group to recognise the positive functions of the other.

3. Will Africa produce some new concept of democracy or of government? I was interested in both Mr. Mboya's and Mr. Nyerere's references to chieftainship and the tribal organization. To what extent can chieftainship and tribal concepts be regarded as democratic or possible democratic institutions?

4. With development, will African states see a "class struggle" or will African attitudes and approaches and intense feeling enable these states to work out a society in which the individual and the common good work in harmony?

5. There will be an enormous field in Africa in the near future for the technical expertise of young men of the West, if they are prepared either to accept jobs as jobs or jobs as a mission. Africans will probably prefer the former. Leadership in the West can make this the "New Adventure". Some American youth seem to be thinking in these terms.

6. Three or four years of university life in Britain or in the U.S.A. by well selected potential leaders from Africa (cf. Rhodes scholars) will pay dividends in future dealings with African states, and in future stable relations.

7. The personalized, individual handling of Africans coming to the U.S.A., however tiring to Americans, is a really significant service, c.f. African-American Institute and USSABEP. It is worth taking time out to do this.

8. Where travel grants are given to Africans, and wives can participate socially and intelligently, such grants should, if possible, be sufficient to enable both to travel.

9. While travel leadership grants may be given for specific educational or technical purposes, adequate time should be given for the quiet absorption of the general American scene, and for subconscious assimilation of the total experience.

8. MORE PARTICULAR

(1) I was impressed by the interest that business men take in Africa, and by the time they are prepared to spend learning more, either by travel in Africa or by meeting and discussions at home. My feeling is that business men in South Africa should spend more time in travel in Africa. It appears as if they take the plane at Jan Smuts Airport and land in Athens, the Riviera,or London, having vertically by-passed Africa. The plan of two friends with their wives making a trip, which is practised by Americans, could be adopted by South Africans. Such a method would not give the appearance of being a delegation or a mission; it would enable informal contacts to be made, and would help responsible citizens to form their own opinions and make their own estimates. I do not think that Africans in other states would resent this, be suspicious, or unco-operative.

(2) I also believe it would be useful if foundations in the United States of America would suggest to South African grantees that they would welcome their spending some time in East, West or Central Africa before coming to the U.S.A. Travel from South Africa is expensive and it seems wasteful to me that grantees do not take advantage of the stops and the 10 - 15% deviation from fixed routes which airlines permit, to visit Africa. The experience and knowledge would not only be of advantage to themselves and South Africa, but would be helpful in the U.S.A. Although they live in Africa, South Africans are very ignorant of the African Continent and experiences in Africa would have some impact and be useful on return home. The total effectiveness of the travel grant would be greater and foundations could reasonably anticipate that grantees would defray expenses for such deviations in Africa from their own pockets.

(3) The USSALEP might consider a more highly organized servicing of Americans who come to South Africa. The idea is contained in elaborate form in the American Field Service, and in South Africa there is an Afrikaans women's organization which takes pains to see that visitors are introduced to homes. Could USSALEP develop this?

(4) South African business must, I imagine, entertain many overseas business men. The quick, informal, lunch-time meeting attended by business men when a visitor speaks briefly and answers questions might be practised in South Africa, not only for business visitors but for academic and other visitors from the U.S.A. The latter would be expected to speak of their own, or of America's interest in Africa, or e.g. of their impressions of the rest of Africa, for South Africa is often the end of a trip.

(5) The work of the USSALEP and of travel fellowships is showing results, and although there is difficulty at the South African end over Non-Whites, pressure to enable Non-Whites to travel should not be eased nor should there be any hesitation to continue the present policy despite the criticisms of liberals in South Africa. The policy is a long term policy. I suggest that, so far as Non-Whites are concerned, the difficulty over passports is best overcome by selecting on a clear academic or technical basis even although such persons may appear to be "good boys". I suggest that each successful applicant blazes the way for more and builds up confidence in the integrity of the organization.

(6) Where foundations may be afraid of appearing to interfere in South Africa's domestic affairs by giving assistance to Non-White organizations, even those well divorced from politics, it is always possible for foundations to give to international bodies with affiliates in South Africa on the understanding that South Africa should have particular attention. This may appear to be devious, but where the work of organizations is generally or universally accepted as good and not political and is in terms of a foundation's policy, I do not think foundations need hesitate. I think of such things as the Y.W.C.A., the Girl Scout movement, African associations, youth leadership organizations, church and mission work, African folk music, and research.

(7) Changes in Africa, which are bewildering in their rapidity, will have increasing effect in South Africa. South Africans should have a much greater knowledge of at least sub-Saharan Africa. I have suggested that new forms of government, new attitudes to the Christian churches, new approaches to urbanised, industrial living may come out of Africa. It is possible that South Africa has much to contribute to Africa. Would foundations consider giving grants to suitable South Africans to make visits to other African territories. "Suitable" South Africans would be of two kinds - those already in leadership position, and those of post-graduate or similar standing but of potential leadership status.

(8) My impression is that South African universities have devoted much time to anthropology and to native administration and law, but little or no time to the consideration of Africa as an "area study". It seems to me to be of particular importance that South African university students, its diplomatic corps, and its potential representatives abroad should be given the opportunity of specialist courses on Africa.

(9) If the image which the rest of the world has of South Africa is to be changed, it can only be done from changes in South Africa. The South African business world is greatly perturbed about events in Africa, and about unfavourable overseas opinion. The South African Foundation has been established but it will be useful only if it can really induce changes at home. My position with regard to present policies is clear, but I believe that if the government could be induced, e.g. to embark now on a huge ten-year plan for the development of our under-developed areas, i.e. the native reserves, this would have a manifold effect: (a) even although apparently part of a policy of segregation, the world would react favourably; (b) it would involve the fast training of Non-White technical and administrative personnel and help escapes from negative frustration and attitudes to positive constructive rôles; (c) it would give rise to a skilled, leadership class with status; (d) it would be an injection which would benefit the whole economy; (e) it would release existing racial tensions; (f) it would strengthen Africans generally and so help to induce those compromises which are essential; (g) it might enable the Whites to face the future with courage and not with fear.

Such a scheme would have to be on a grand scale, catch the imagination, be carried out with determination and receive international loan funds.

(10) Where it is possible, African women and African women's organizations should be assisted. African women are a dynamic force in the situation and can be positive and constructive.

(11) Some form of non-governmental organization playing a rôle similar to that of the Institute of Race Relations should be set up in the Federation should it endure, or in Southern Rhodesia, should the Federation not endure. It is possible that a conference with this in view will be convened. The experience of the South African Institute of Race Relations could be useful. The initiative would, of course, have to come from the Rhodesias.

(12) Personal contact with individuals, organizations, political parties, administrators, etc. etc. is essential for developing work in the field of race relations. This is insufficiently realised in South Africa. Race Relations cannot be bettered, nor new approaches developed, from behind an office desk. It is vitally important that staff fully participate in this.

13) Officials of foundations have a major responsibility in fostering good relations between e.g. South Africa and the U.S.A. While it is anticipated that they must look to American interests, they nevertheless are representatives of foundations set up for purposes which are not confined by national boundaries, but extend far beyond to a greater good. They thus have the responsibility for a wider vision and a clearer purpose than national self-interest. In my experience, foundation officials carry this latter function of theirs with great understanding and humanity. My purpose, in writing this, is to put it on record and to emphasize a function which may not be revealed by the successful or unsuccessful completion of an overseas project. Belief in the integrity of the supernational and altruistic function of foundations will induce a corresponding integrity towards them.

14) The idea of an Institute subsidiary was received with a general but cautious acceptance. Was it to be only an instrument for channelling American money to the Institute of Race Relations? Would there be any real function for it in the U.S.A. if it were established? I suggested that it would have a number of functions:

i. It would channel money to the Institute.

ii. It would channel money to other organizations in the Union, provided they were not political.

iii. Set up under the umbrella of the African-American Institute, which has wider Africa interests, it would be the South Africa specialist, voluntary group in New York.

iv. It would be the depot of information on South Africa.

v. It could serve a co-ordinating purpose for American interest in South Africa, academic, charitable, welfare or other.

15) Having organized many conferences, and having had experience largely from that angle, I had grown to question their value. Perhaps this is due to conditions in South Africa, where conferences consist so often of like-minded people. Perhaps I always expected action to emerge more dynamically than has been the case so often. Perhaps it was because conferences seemed to talk and not do. Reflection and discussions in New York gave a different slant on their value. I accept that they have greater value than I had latterly begun to think!

16) If the South African government would convene a conference sponsored by the United Nations, in particular the Division of Human Rights, I believe that the impact would be salutary, internally and externally. I have suggested such a conference to the South African Ambassador in Washington, who transmitted the suggestion to the South African Minister of External Affairs. It is hardly to be expected that the South African government would care to have a conference on race relations, so I suggested a technical conference on criminal procedure, and tacked on to it, the possible subject of African concepts of criminal justice. If it is held, the important points will be that South Africa convenes it, the United Nations sponsors it, and delegates from sub-Saharan African states attend it.

17) It would greatly profit South Africa internationally if this government were to use self-confessed liberals in their technical or academic capacities on international missions or delegations, or internally.

18) To what extent is there active co-operation between America and British foundations and service organizations in relation to work in Africa?

19) In view of the setting up of the new university colleges for Non-Whites, which ideologically should eventually be staffed by Non-Whites, the government is unlikely to allow Non-White graduates to take jobs out of South Africa. If post-graduate scholarships were offered for specialised study or advanced courses, without any protest or political connotation to the gift, it is possible that the South African government would give passports. Africans will attend these new colleges; their standards will have to be reasonably good.

20) Anything that can support a greater appreciation of Non-White humanity and ability in South Africa is to be welcomed. I think of certain Negro achievements in America. For South Africa it could be athletic success, a night-club singer in Greenwich village, an outstanding writer, a jazz composer - in other words, something which touches common humanity. Thinking on race relations in South Africa is often too political or intellectualised.

21) The Institute of Race Relations must be maintained as independent and strong. It has its non-party political function. It cannot mount any emotional platform; it cannot receive the plaudits of a mass demonstration. In the situation in South Africa, it has a reputation for objectivity and integrity. It must maintain this. Some day I hope that, when the pace of change in Africa has caught South Africa in its course, and the children born of the Institute have come of age, the Institute, gasping and exhausted, left stranded by the tide of reform, will sit in contemplation and with an assured, benevolent eye, if rheumy, see what it was born to create, come to fruition. But the time is not yet.

9. CONCLUSION

For my wife and myself I have said thanks to many persons. I would conclude by saying real and sincere thanks to the staff of the African-American Institute, to Loyd Steere for his friendly organization and understanding, to Mr. Hagbert for the exciting contacts in Washington, to Mr. Pat Murphy for a delightful but too brief visit in Accra, to Miss Shirley Smith to whom my wife is more than grateful, to Miss Allain for her unruffled handling and good humour, to the junior staff members of all organizations for friendly and charming assistance. May I add one last "idea" drawn from American experience - the impact of courteous and friendly reception by not only senior, but by senior-junior, or junior staff.

A LETTER I HAVE NOT SENT TO THE "NEW YORK TIMES"

Sir,

It is with the utmost distress that I have read reports of the now massive American criticism and condemnation of "South Africa", which, it appears, 32 organizations wish to translate into action, for I fear such action will isolate South Africa culturally and spiritually. I know that the many Americans whom I have known and met are highly critical of South African policies and condemn them, but I cannot believe that they would wish to support the suggested campaign.

Although my own opposition to, and condemnation of, the policy of "apartheid" in the less easy context of my own country is sufficiently known, I must admit to some hurt at this blanket condemnation of all white South Africans which this contemplated action implies. Is there a moral basis or real value in what would be a form of undiscriminating communal punishment?

If carried through, what will it do?

1) Surely Americans with vision and understanding, not only of the present but of the potential of South Africa as a future, stable, multi-racial state, will not wish to see this campaign succeed. I am certain they will agree that it will destroy the carefully built up bridges and contacts between South Africa and the United States of America. These are bridges by which it is hoped that the morale of those who find no truth in "apartheid", both/.....

both black and white, will be sustained, and the vision of those of narrower belief be widened and liberalised.

2) Americans and American organizations in the past have played a significant rôle in helping the emergence of African leaders, deeply imbued with Christian and Western concepts and ideals of living - Luthuli, Xuma, Matthews, Mtimkulu, Ngcobo, Moroka, Mokitimi, Mahabane, and many others. These men have made their own judgment on Nkrumah, Mboya, Kenyatta. Surely America will wish to strengthen these men who are the guarantee of evolutionary and not revolutionary processes. A campaign, if successful, will deprive Americans of this opportunity. Vulgarly put, it will take the "guts" out of black and white Christian liberals, and deprive them of what has been a moral strength and backing for the belief that South Africa will find an evolutionary pattern. Will the campaign perhaps encourage the more radical left and entrench the more reactionary right?

3) Surely all Americans do not really believe that by such a process more fundamentally enlightened policies will be pursued in South Africa. One of the problems of South Africa has been the isolation of a large section of the white population who were cut off from the liberal and progressive movements of 19th century Europe. Will not a campaign of this nature throw South Africa back into the cultural and spiritual isolation from which it has been slowly emerging?

4) One of the guarantees of a more stable racial pattern in South Africa is an expanding economy. America has found South Africa a field, if small, for investment. One half of American capital investment in Africa is to be found in South Africa. Its depreciation in South Africa would not, of course, hurt the U.S.A., but it would seriously hamper the existing progressive integration of non-whites into industry at higher levels of skills and wages. It would, of course, cut short the present willingness of industry and commerce to raise African wages and productivity. I do not really think that Americans would want this to happen. If successful in deterring economic interest in South Africa, a campaign will lead at least to a slowed-down economic tempo. It might even create economic depression in South Africa, and that, as we know, will not improve race relations.

5) Christian Churches must, of their very nature, pass judgment on human injustices and political evils but, while offering the bread of human and political justice, they surely would not forget that Christian compassion must also be extended to "evil-doers". I am sure that American Churchmen will not lose sight of this, for the use of political means is not likely to subserve adequately the ultimate Christian end. While it is true that a campaign might provoke thinking on the fundamental nature of the Christian teaching, would the campaign itself represent the Golden Rule and the Beatitudes or ....? Christian leaders will have to give thought to the impact of this on African Christian thinking.

6) My American friends will know that personally I do not raise such cynical questions as - Is it a diversionary tactic? Is it an expedient extension of American foreign policy? What speaks? American sense of right and justice or American self-interest? - Yet more hardened politicians may, and they will not appreciate the heartwarming and generous honesty and concern which imbues so many American hearts and directs their actions. Altruism should, however, be informed by sophisticated wisdom and accurate knowledge.

7) Nor do I believe that any of my friends would advocate the achievement of conversion by hitting a man on the head rather than getting alongside him and discussing the error of his ways. They would reject, I think, the caveman tactic of self-righteous indignation and use, to put it at its worst, the strategy of the "hidden persuader". I do not believe that the image the world has of America is portrayed in "The Ugly American". I myself most sincerely reject it.

While accepting the right of the outside world to make moral judgments on a matter in which I believe the world is fundamentally right, I have asked that Americans proceed to the reform and rehabilitation of the "criminal". In other words, sir, I am suggesting that instead of reducing American-South African contact, this should be doubled and trebled. American foreign policy must, of need, give priority to African interests on this continent, but in applying this to South Africa, it will surely pay heed to the balance of forces in this country which are not to be met with in any other country south of the Sahara. In no other such country have Africans so fully adopted Western patterns of religious and political thinking, and in no other country do they wish so ardently to participate fully in its benefits. Would not more solid and sounder dividends be won by positive and constructive efforts to bring South Africans, black and white, more fully within the ambit and influence of the Western world than by thrusting "South Africa", black and white, into the outer darkness?

Yours truly,

Quintin Whyte

Dear Mr. Whyte:

I greatly enjoyed reading your report to the African-American Institute. My sincere thanks to you for your thoughtfulness in sending it.

I particularly enjoyed the concluding paragraph on page 27 -- and am strongly tempted to plagiarize it.

In these days of grievous trouble for South Africa, it is good to know that the Institute of Race Relations is at work.

With every good wish to you and your colleagues, I am AIRCRAFT FACTORY SEEKS STAFF IN EUROPE.

South Africa is trying to attract British aircraft workers made redundant by recent decisions to cancel orders for the British Government. South African Immigration Department officials have inserted advertisements in British newspapers over the last fortnight offering jobs in the Atlas Aircraft Company for British aircraft technicians.

A spokesman at the South African Embassy in London said yesterday that hundreds of replies had been received and they were still being sorted out.

The Johannesburg Sunday Express stated that the Atlas Aircraft Corporation, which is to build jet trainer aircraft for the South African Air Force, will need more than a thousand skilled technicians when it is in full production.

A spokesman for Atlas Aircraft said that South African technicians would be employed where possible, "but we will not rob other South African industries of their skilled men. The large majority of our skilled staff will be recruited mainly in Britain, France, Italy and West Germany."

NEW HARBOUR SITE ANNOUNCED: Richards Bay, - on the Natal coast approximately 150 miles Northeast of Durban - the site for South Africa's new major harbour, has more potential than Durban harbour. This was revealed by Mr. B. J. Schoeman, the Minister of Transport, after he had announced the new harbour site last week.

Mr. Schoeman said: "I am tremendously impressed and pleased at what I have seen during my inspection of Richards Bay and have no doubt in my mind that it has even more potential than Durban harbour. Therefore I had no hesitation in choosing it as the country's next major harbour."

Planning for the new harbour would start almost immediately but building would not start within the next few years as it was a long term project, he said.

COIN DEADLINE CONFRONTS MINT: The South African Mint in Pretoria is working at full pressure in preparation for the issue of 80 million new coins next month. Well over a million new five-cent and two-cent pieces are being struck daily to meet the deadline.

There will be 7 denominations in all - a R1 piece (in silver), 50-cent, 20-cent, 10-cent and 5-cent pieces in nickel and 2-cent and 1-cent pieces in bronze. The two and a half cent piece (tickey) will be retained as long as it is felt necessary. The first of the new five-cent and two-cent pieces will be issued on May 11, and it is expected that all the new coins will be in use in about two years' time.

S.W.A. CASE - COURT ADJOURNED FOR EASTER: The International Court of Justice adjourned for its Easter recess with parties in the South West Africa case still arguing the vital points of law involved - the first phase of the case - a month after the oral hearing started.

SOUTH AFRICAN SUMMARY is published weekly to keep Americans up-to-date with news events in the Republic of South Africa. All inquiries, including subscription requests, should be addressed to: SUMMARY, Information Service of South Africa, 655 Madison Ave., New York 21, N.Y. All material may be reprinted with or without acknowledgement.

This material is filed with the Department of Justice where the required registration statement, in terms of the Foreign Agents Registration Act, of the I.S.S.A., as an agency of the Republic of South Africa, is available for inspection. Registration does not indicate approval of the United States Government.

South Africa, which is alleged to have violated its mandate over South West Africa, is expected to continue when the Court resumes on April 22, with its reply to points already argued by Ethiopia and Liberia. This may take three or four days and there will be comments from Ethiopia and Liberia followed by further arguments by South Africa.

The Court is also waiting to hear the reaction of Ethiopia and Liberia to South Africa's proposal that the Court, or a Committee of it, should make an extensive tour in Africa to get an impression of comparable standards of well-being and progress of the peoples.

LONDON SEEKS S.A. ART TALENT: During his visit to South Africa in December last year, Mr. Eric Estorick, Director of the Grosvenor Gallery in London, selected fifteen artists to exhibit in the first major representative showing of South African art in London since 1948. Mrs. Linda Miller, the Grosvenor Gallery's representative in South Africa, said that Mr. Estorick was so impressed with the standard of South African art that he is inviting other South African artists to submit examples of their work for possible inclusion in the big October show at the gallery.

SOUTH AFRICAN INVENTION NOTED IN BRITAIN: The new air conditioning developments devised in South Africa are listed in the latest journal of the New Product Centre in London which acts as a clearing house for information on new products throughout the world.

Listed under the heading "agriculture" is an evaporating cooling unit for greenhouses, developed by the air conditioning and refrigeration division of the National Mechanical Engineering Research Institute in Pretoria, primarily for use in countries with a hot dry climate. The unit, which can filter dust and microorganisms, aids air circulation to stimulate natural conditions for plants in greenhouses.

The air-conditioned overhead crane cabin devised by the Germiston firm of H.R. Lash is described in the journal as suitable for workshops where hot metal or similar substances have to be handled.

TRANSKEI INDUSTRIAL GROWTH A HIGH PRIORITY: The retiring Secretary for Bantu Administration and Development, Mr. C. Bruce Young, said last week that the next task would be to help develop the Transkei industrially and economically. "We have gone a long way on the constitutional development. Now the progress and development of industry, trade and economy is high up on the priority list."

SOUTH AFRICAN LECTURED ON HEART SURGERY: Professor C. N. Barnard, Associate Professor of Surgical Research at Cape Town University, said last week he believed a team of properly equipped South African surgeons and technicians could teach India a great deal about heart surgery. Prof. Barnard visited India recently at the invitation of the All-India Institute of Medical Science to lecture on valve replacement surgery. He said he had not completed his mission because he found that he could not "go it alone". A great deal more equipment was needed for heart surgery than he had at his disposal. He was pressed to return with a fully equipped team, he said.

GOOD RAINS - MORE ON THE WAY: Steady soaking rains last week have given farm lands a new lease on life in the parched and sun-scorched western and northern Transvaal, Free State and Northern Cape. The drought is spoken of as the worst in fifty years. Although the rains have been fairly general, many areas are still drought stricken.

SHOALS OF TUNNY AT CAPE: Recently hordes of tunny were massed off Cape Town in shoals stretching for 20 miles and more and probably covering a far wider area. A fortnight ago fishermen caught at least 400 on rod and reel to give one of the biggest single day catches ever recorded in South Africa.

ARGENTINE RUGBY TOUR: Twenty five Argentine rugby players are preparing for the first ever Argentine rugby tour of the Republic of South Africa. The Argentine team will have to travel 9,000 miles by air before arriving at Jan Smuts Airport on May 5 and during their eight week visit they will play 16 matches.

ESCOM HAS VAST DEVELOPMENT SCHEMES

Two giant power stations, the biggest in the world, are to be built in the Transvaal at a cost of more than R320 million ($448 million). Known on blueprint as Station X and Station Y, they will be built by the Electricity Supply Commission (ESCOM). A multi-million rand contract for the supply of coal to the first of the two stations will be awarded this week.

With the new stations in operation, ESCOM will use 4,000 million gallons of water and 36 million tons of coal annually. Its output will be 40,000 million units of electricity a year.

The new power stations will attract tenders for contracts totalling R320 million ($448 million) for turbines and boilers. They will each have a capacity of 2,000 megawatts.

S.W.A. CASE: SOUTH AFRICA'S INVITATION REJECTED: Ethiopia and Liberia told the International Court of Justice that they considered South Africa's proposal that it should go on an extensive visit to Africa as "wholly unnecessary."

Mr. Ernest A.M. Gross for Ethiopia and Liberia, told the Court he did not consider that resolution of the issues, required or justified the Court to exercise its functions elsewhere than at its seat in The Hague. He also said that the proposal was premature because a number of legal issues required to be decided before the proposal could be decided upon.

BANTU EDUCATION BETTER THAN IN ANY AFRICAN STATE: Phenomenal progress has already been made in educating the Bantu people of the Republic of South Africa. The education received by them is nowhere equalled in Africa, Mr. W.A. Maree, Minister of Bantu Education and Indian Affairs, said in Pretoria last week, according to a report in the South African newspaper DAGBREEK. Mr. Maree was commenting on a report that U Thant, Secretary-General of the U.N., had called for assistance by Britain, the U.S.A., Norway and Sweden to help with the education of Bantu and other non-whites in South Africa because separate development was "restricting their education."

Mr. Maree said that proof to the contrary is contained in the following figures: 80 per cent of the Bantu in the age group 7 to 20 years were literate and 83 per cent of the total Bantu population in the age group 7 to 14 years attended school for a longer or shorter period at present. The number of Bantu pupils attending school had increased from 209,000 in 1925 to 1.7 million in 1963 - an increase of 746 per cent. The number of schools had increased from 2646 in 1925 to 8463 in 1963, while the number of teachers had increased during this period from 6995 to 30119. Compared with an attendance percentage figure of 83 per cent in the age group 7 to 14, the comparable figures in other African countries were much lower. In Ghana, it was only 29 per cent, in Ethiopia 18 per cent, in Kenya 49 per cent, in Liberia 17 per cent, in Nigeria 34 per cent, the Sudan 11 per cent, and in Somalia 5 per cent.

TRANSFER OF INDIAN EDUCATION ADVANTAGEOUS: The South African Indian Council and the various Provincial Administrations concerned had agreed to the transfer of all Indian education to the control of the Department of Indian Affairs, the Minister of Indian Affairs, Mr. W.A. Maree, said in the Assembly last week when he moved the second reading of the Indian Education Bill. The Minister said the Bill would, among other things, provide more employment opportunities for Indian administrative and professional staff, prepare Indians better for the service of their own community and relieve Natal of the heavy financial burden which it had to bear in respect of primary and secondary education for Indians.

The South African Indian Council, which would eventually become an elected Council, would progressively gain control over Indian education under the Government's policy that each race group must eventually take responsibility for its social, economic and educational development services. An education advisory council for Indians, similar to the three existing advisory councils for Whites, Coloureds and Bantu respectively, would be established.

COLOUREDS NOW PERMANENTLY IN THE NAVY: For the first time, the South African Navy is to take on Coloured recruits on a permanent basis. There is a possibility that, under white officers, they may completely man smaller vessels like minesweepers, Naval Headquarters announced last week.

New recruits will receive basic training at the South African Coloured Corps Training Center at Eerste River and when this is done they will go to Simonstown for further training. A first batch of 100 Coloured men is to be recruited and there will be advertisements offering a career in the Navy later in the year.

TRANSKEI POLICY VINDICATED: Since its inception the Transkei Government had followed a policy which was fundamentally sound, being based on the proved and established principles of a genuine democratic form of Government, the Minister of Bantu Administration and Development, Mr. M.D.C. de Wet Nel, said last week while opening the Third Session of the Transkei Legislative Assembly in Umtata. The Minister said it was a policy which aimed at the closest possible cooperation with the Republic and the peaceful co-existence of white and Bantu in South Africa by means of maintaining and extending strong ties of friendship between the Transkei and the rest of the Republic.

The Minister congratulated the Transkei Government on the manner in which it had succeeded in attaining the aims of its policy and on the manner in which the duties, activities and responsibilities assigned to it had been discharged. The deliberations in the Legislative Assembly and the legislation which had been passed by it were a testimony of the ability and dignity with which members had performed their task as representatives of their people.

NEW TOWNSHIP FOR AIRCRAFT INDUSTRY: A R10 million ($14 million) housing project for technicians employed by the new South African Aircraft Industry was announced at a Press Conference at Jan Smuts Airport last week. A new township, Bonaeropark, will mushroom three miles north-east of Jan Smuts Airport and 1,000 houses will be built during the next three years. Houses will be built in such a way that new settlers can be accommodated the same day they arrive. Furniture requirements will be minimal and each house will have a fully fitted kitchen and laundry facilities.

The first hundred homes will be constructed from ten basic designs to give variety to the housing scheme and each unit will occupy one-third of an acre and will cost between R5000 ($7000) and R6000 ($8400). In addition to individual houses, duplex flats are to be built.

MONUMENT PLAN IN HONOUR OF DIAS: A fund to build a monument to Bartholomew Dias, the Portuguese navigator who rounded the Cape of Good Hope, was suggested at a luncheon recently by the South African Information Officer in Lisbon, Mr. Cyrus Smith. He suggested that such a monument should be built either at Dias' birthplace or in Lisbon, as a sign of Portuguese-South African friendship. A Director of a Portuguese shipping company, Commander Henriques, immediately offered 100,000 escudos ($3,500) towards the building of the monument.

CHIEF MINISTER MATANZIMA ON TRANSKEI DEVELOPMENT

The Transkei had embarked on an intensive experimental project which could lead to the State becoming a very important tea-producing country, the Chief Minister, Chief Kaizer Matanzima, said during his Budget speech in the Transkei Legislative Assembly last week.

The Chief Minister outlined other development projects and added: "The Government has made great strides towards a sound agricultural economy. The successful production of commodities such as tea, sugar cane, fiber, timber and hides could only be the forerunner to factories for further processing and the eventual industrialization of parts of our homeland."

The first year of self-government, he said, had passed into the pages of history as "a year during which the eyes of the world had been focussed upon us and especially upon our reactions to being clothed with full financial powers."

None but the "harbingers of doom" had been disappointed and the standard set during the past twelve months for the financial administration of the Transkei had surprised and even confounded her critics.

BAG FACTORY FOR S.A.: A huge factory for the manufacture of grain bags is to be erected in South Africa. It will be an asset not only for agriculture in general, but will also give an impetus to the development of certain Bantu homelands. The fibre used in manufacture -- Phormium Tenax -- has already been planted extensively in the Transkei and Natal. The factory would probably be erected near the Transkeian border.

SUFFICIENT ARMS PRODUCED IN SOUTH AFRICA - FOUCHE: Mr. Jim Fouche, the Minister of Defence, disclosed last week that South Africa was practically self-sufficient as far as the production of armament was concerned. Speaking in Bloemfontein, Mr. Fouche said that South Africa could supply all the neighbouring states with weapons and could even export arms to Western Europe if those countries wanted to buy armaments from the Republic.

ORANGE RIVER PROJECT -- EQUIPMENT FOR DAMS: Tenders are invited for the supply of mechanical and electrical equipment for the Hendrik Verwoerd and the Van Der Kloof Dams of the Orange River Project.

The Department of Water Affairs has prepared a printed explanatory memorandum containing full information and a questionnaire on the equipment required. Copies of this document are obtainable, on request, from all South African foreign offices abroad.

REQUESTS FROM NUMISMATISTS SWAMP S.A. MINT: In efforts to obtain proof sets of the newly-designed South African coins, numismatists are swamping the Mint in Pretoria with letters. Although only 25,000 proof sets will be struck, the Mint had received more than a million requests by the middle of April and by the time these proof sets become available in August, the Mint expects to have received at least three-million requests. Only numismatists who obtained proof sets from the Mint in previous years will be supplied and each collector will be entitled to only one set.

So great is the demand for these (as yet unstruck) proof sets in the United States, that 5,000 dealers and millions of numismatists are prepared to pay at least eight times the selling price of R3.50 ($4.9) per short set and R16.50 ($23.1) per long proof set.

SATOUR OPENS NEW OFFICES: The South African Tourist Corporation is aiming at 250,000 tourists a year by the end of 1966. Mr. Pierre Basson, Director of the Corporation, said recently that new promotional offices were being opened in Milan, Paris and Toronto this year as part of the drive to increase tourist trade. This would increase the number of offices abroad to eight, in addition to one in Salisbury, he said. The other offices abroad were at Sydney, London, Frankfurt, New York and Los Angeles.

Expanded air services made South Africa as accessible as many other popular tourist countries. "We are only fourteen hours away from Europe and another day away from the United States."

MORE TRAVEL BY AIR: Air passenger traffic at South Africa's six major airports more than doubled in the six years from 1958 to 1964. The total rose from 578,000 in 1958-59 to 1,182,000 in 1963-64. Statistics in the annual report of the Department of Transport for the year 1963-64 show that Jan Smuts Airport handled 574,000 passengers -- almost as many as the other five airports together.

BANTU IN CANE-SUGAR INDUSTRY: Bantu growers are obtaining an increased share in the Natal cane-sugar industry. Already 3,500 Bantu farmers with a total of 22,144 acres of registered quota land under cultivation are at present producing about R1-million ($1.4 million) worth of sugar cane per annum. In the last 10 years, with financial and technical assistance from the Department of Bantu Administration and-Development, Bantu growers increased their production from 34,317 tons to approximately 200,000 tons per year.

BOOKS FOR THE BLIND: When the service known as Tape Aids for the Blind began in Durban five years ago, it recorded ten books in its first year. It now records more than ten a month. The service depends entirely on public generosity and has no regular income. About a hundred men and women give their services free nearly every night as readers, operators and checkers. An average novel can take about forty man hours to record.

Non-fiction as well as fiction books are recorded in English, Afrikaans, Xhosa and other Bantu languages and a few in German and French. The record library today has 333 members.

UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH AFRICA HAS BIG ENROLMENT: Among the 387 degrees and 251 diplomas conferred at the graduation ceremony of the University of South Africa last week, several were awarded to foreign students.

Speaking at the ceremony, Professor A.C. Cilliers of Stellenbosch, said that in 1948 there were 18,000 students registered in the Republic's eight residential universities. In 1965 the figure had reached 36,000 -- an average annual increase of 4-1/2 per cent. At the non-residential University of South Africa, 16,000 students were enrolled in 1965. A start was made last year with South Africa's 9th residential university, the University of Port Elizabeth.

TRAINING OF BANTU DOCTORS: A stepped-up program for the training of Bantu doctors to accommodate the growing needs of the 11-million Bantu in the Republic was advocated recently by Professor Francois J. de Villiers, speaking at the University College of Fort Hare.

"I believe the time is ripe for the establishment of a medical school devoted exclusively to the training of Xhosa, Zulu and Sotho doctors," he said. "We envisage a hospital with laboratory and lecture room facilities for 1,000 Bantu students and a stepped-up medical program for the growing needs of 11-million Bantu people."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

REGISTRATION: Everyone attending the Conference is expected to register. There is no registration fee for Conference members, but individuals who are not members are requested to pay a registration fee of twenty-five cents. Please cooperate by registering promptly and filling in your address carefully. This registration is used as a mailing list for future meetings and one copy is kept with the permanent Conference records. Help us to keep this complete.

MEMBERSHIP: The fiscal year is from January 1 to December 31, and membership taken out now are for 1944. Please remember that the Conference depends upon its members for support and every membership serves to build a stronger, more effective, and more valuable Conference. If you are not a member, why not join? Your loyalty and assistance will mean much to the future program of the Conference and the social welfare program in South Carolina.

RESOLUTIONS: Resolutions originating in Section Meetings too late for consideration at the Buisness Session will be referred to the Executive Committee meeting for action.

PLEASE

Presiding officers are requested to start and close their meetings promptly at the hours scheduled. In turn, those attending the sessions are asked to show the chiarmen and speakers the courtesy of arriving at meetings on time. The confusion caused by late arrivals and drifting in and out of meetings is very distracting to speakers and annoying to the audience. We count upon your understanding and cooperation.

QUARTERLY BULLETIN

THE SOUTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE OF SOCIAL WORK

Volume 2 OCTOBER, 1944 Number 3

President's Message

In this last message as President of the South Carolina Conference of Social Work, I desire, first of all, to express my appreciation of the co-operation so generally extended and my pleasure at having enjoyed the privilege of working with you.

I am very hopeful of the continuing development of our organization, and its increased influence in our State for the achievement of reasonable social progress. There will be no doubt about it, if every member will recognize and act on the responsibilities which adhere to every liberal. Some of these are:

—to live without hypocrisy, thinking honestly and acting sincerely;

—to examine critically every tradition, custom and institution which has been received from past ages, accepting and sponsoring only those which serve the present wlefare of mankind;

—to be a constructive members of society, bearing the burden necessary for good government and contributing to every cause which promises to make this earth a brighter and happier world;

—to strive intelligently and to battle bravely to remove ignorance, poverty, disease and affliction from the face of the earth;

—to exact no advantage, to grasp no comfort or luxury and claim no privilege except as you concede and desire to share with every other man and woman;

—to recognize your moral responsibility to justify the worth of your individual life, by so conforming to the ideals and principles of righteousness that your life will be a blessing and a joy and death will present no fear or terror.

HENRY R. SIMS

CONFERENCE CALL

The South Carolina Conference of Social Work hereby calls its members and invites other interested individuals to meet in a war conference in Columbia, October 25-27 in the State House. The conference is being held so that social work may contribute its utmost to winning the war and establishing a just and lasting peace.

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

The Program Committee is delighted to announce that Mr. Alan Johnstone, General Counsel of the Federal Works Agency, Washington, D. C., will be the keynote speaker at the General Session of the State Conference on the evening of October 25, in the hall of the House of Representatives, The State House.

MR. ALAN JOHNSTONE

Mr. Johnstone is a native South Carolinian and needs no introduction to a South Carolina group and especially the South Carolina Conference of Social Work, for he has long been a member of the Conference and has rendered many services in the promotion of social betterment in the state. As a member of the State Legislature he was the author of the Child Labor and Compulsory Education Acts.

Mr. Johnstone organized and served as Director of the South Carolina Emergency Relief Administration during the dark period of the depression. Later as Field Representative for the Southeastern States for the Federal Emergency Relief Administration and Civil Works Administration, Mr. Johnstone supervised the activities in South Carolina.

Resolutions—Members of the Conference who may be planning to introduce resolutions at the 1944 Conference are asked to give very careful thought and consideration to the intent, purpose, and effect of such resolutions. Resolutions must be presented in duplicate, typed if possible, and complete as to text. Please send resolutions to the Conference Office not later than October 18.

EIGHTH ANNUAL SOCIAL SERVICE INSTITUTE

Sponsored By THE SOUTH CAROLINA CONFERENCE OF SOCIAL WORK

Wednesday, October 25, 1944

No. 1—"Problems of Institutional Workers"

A discussion of the present day problems of institutional workers serving children. An effort will be made to determine the kind of services that are most needed for children in the State.

Leader—Mrs. Kate B. Helms
Chief, Child Welfare Division, State Department of Public Welfare.

No. 2—"Preparing Home and Community for the Return of the Service Man."

A discussion of what the professional worker can do to help the returned service man; how these workers can help the community be prepared for the return of these men and women; what can be done in the community for the service man vocationally and industrially; what can be done to help the community cultivate the right attitude to the service man, especially the handicapped and mentally ill; how we can meet the changed attitudes of the returned service man; what can be done to help him meet the changed attitudes of the home; and how the home can be assisted in meeting his changed attitudes.

Leader—Doctor Luther E. Woodward, Field Consultant, Division of Rehabilitation, The National Committee for Mental Hygiene, New York City.

No. 3—Social Group Work

The Group Work Institute will examine the place and the function of group work in community welfare, the gains made during the war period, and the unmet needs and implications for the future.

Leader—Doctor Walter L. Stone, Director of Research, Council of Community Agencies, Nashville, Tennessee

(This institute is designed for Recreational Workers, Scout Leaders, Y.W.C.A., Y.M.C.A., Church Group Leaders and others.

No. 4—"The Case-Work Job in a Local Agency."

This institute will be centered around a discussion of the part played by the worker in a local agency in helping the persons who apply for, and later receive, the services of that agency. Case material will be used in the discussion.

Leader—Miss Edith Stander, Child Welfare Consultant, Department of Public Welfare, Indianapolis, Indiana

No. 5—"Social and Emotional Factors in Families Where Tuberculosis Is a Problem."

The basic facts about tuberculosis

Miss Adele J. Minahan, Executive Secretary
The South Carolina Conference of Social Work
1930 College Street
Columbia 21, S. C.

Dear Miss Minahan:

I am sorry to be this late in replying to your request for help in lining up a Negro speaker for your annual conference on November 6th. I have been thinking of a number of possibilities, and after talking with Dr. Forrester B. Washington, Director of the Atlanta University School of Social Work, I have decided to suggest Mrs. Dan L. Davis.

Mrs. Davis teaches courses on Child Welfare in the Atlanta University School of Social Work and has charge of their field work in child welfare. She is a native of Kentucky, and she has served as Consultant on Child Welfare in the State Welfare Department in Illinois. Dr. Washington recommends her very highly. I will know shortly whether Mrs. Davis is available or not.

In the meantime, I suggest that you let me know by collect telegram whether you would like to have Mrs. Davis and whether the Conference can take care of her expenses. Then, if you wish, I can proceed with final arrangements at this end.

Cordially yours,

GUY B. JOHNSON,

Dear Doctor Johnson:

We are planning for a series of institutes in connection with our Annual Conference on November sixth. We are writing in an endeavor to enlist your interest in an institute developed along the thought of a child welfare service program meeting the real needs of dependent Negro children. We should appreciate having your organization secure the services of the institute leader- a Negro leader, if possible. This institute will be attended by both races- social workers, and lay citizens.

Of course, we agree with Dr.Charles S.Johnson's statement: " Things that are happening to Negro children are things in bold relief that are happening to all children. In the long run, the best safeguards are security for Negro children rest in the determination of the whole nation to provide good care for all its children. We cannot care for our minority children one-handed; we need the cooperation of all the races in our Country."

On the other hand, the fact still remains, that we do not have adequate facilities for Negro children, and there is a poverty of resources and opportunities for Negro children, at least this the situation in South Carolina.

We feel sure that you understand that this situation will have to be handled carefully by the leader - we need to face facts -in a sound way.

Your assistance will be deeply appreciated.

My dear Dr. Johnson:

I am very grateful for your prompt reply to my appeal about Dr. Alexander. I sent a wire at once as advised, but have had absolutely no reply. Western Union can get no report. So today I put in a call for Dr. Odom's office at Chapel Hill and they say they do not know where he is. Can you give me any further light? I want to get a reply from him before taking any further steps and time is growing short.

Please tell me what his permanent address is, or will it be possible for you to"corral" him and find out whether he could be in Columbia November 8 for a Forum on connection with the State Conference of Social Work.

May I ask your judgment on the possibility of your "Publicity" member of the staff fitting into such a "pinch-hit". You know South Carolina and her limitations, and the need for glove handling this dynamite here; also the need for a person who is very dynamic in impressing his group. I have no authority to issue such an invitation, but I am sure that your opinion and mine will have weight with the Forum Committee.I have been instructed to invite Dr. W.W.Alexander.

Thanking you for an early reply and any help you can give me and the Cause I am,

Cordially yours,

Rebecca Reid

Rebecca Reid.

G.E.J. left for Washington before this could be handled.
Miss Reid telephoned 10/25. Asked me to get someone for meeting, perhaps Dr. Clement. I tried to get Clement, but he is away.
Called John Griffin; he thought he might be able to do it.
10/26 - I called Miss Reid & she says get Griffin if possible. S.C. Com. will pay his expenses.

Oct.19,1945. 5.30 P.M.

At last a Western Union report from Washington telegram being held for Dr. Alexander's return to that City Oct.23. Will let you know what I hear from him then.

Thank you for your cooperation.

Dear Miss Fripp:

Thank you for your letter of January 14. We do not have any detailed material dealing with social work in South Carolina, but we are enclosing a couple of pieces of literature which might be of some interest to you.

If you had more time for the preparation of your paper, I would suggest that you get in touch with Miss Adele Johnston Minahan, who is Executive Secretary of the South Carolina Conference of Social Work, 1930 College Street, Columbia 21, South Carolina. However, it is probably too late to obtain any information from her in time for your January 20 deadline.

With best wishes,

Sincerely yours,

Dear Sirs:

In one of my classes we are required to write a term paper entitled "The Development of Social Work in South Carolina from 1935-1945." You were given as a reference from whom I would possibly be able to secure such information. If you have information pertaining to Negroes in regard to the above subject I would appreciate that also. If convenient it would probably be advisable for me to come and get the material, if there is any. My telephone number is JA 8249 in case the suggestion is alright.

Enclosed you will find a self-addressed envelope as an early reply is greatly appreciated. The papers are due January 20th and I am thanking you for an early reply.

Yours very sincerely,

Dear Miss Minahan:

Thank you for your letter of May 20. I did not give you an immediate reply because of a meeting of our Executive Committee yesterday.

I suggest that the following SRC materials would be suitable for inclusion in the publication on race relations which is being compiled by a group of church women in South Carolina.

Unhealthy Roots
Brothers in Black
Black G.I. Joe Comes Home
Facing Facts in South Carolina
"Brothers or Bombs", an article by Dr. Trigg, which was published in New South

Of course, you probably have copies of all these in your files, but I am enclosing a copy of each for your convenience.

The group is welcome to use excerpts from any of our other materials such as the pamphlet, America's Tenth Man, or Understanding Our Neighbors. I am sure that they will find many good passages which they might like to quote in their publication.

The old Interracial Commission booklet, Repairers of the Breach, also might be of use. I shall send this and many other pamphlets I think of under separate cover.

All good wishes.

Cordially yours,

Dear Doctor Johnson:

We have been asked by a state-wide group of church women to suggest from four to six sound publications not too extreme (for they have to inch along) to include in a publication on race relations which they are compiling.

We are turning to you for sound advise in this matter . We are wondering if you could let us have copies of the publication. Will be glad to reimburse the Council. All this sounds very cautious but it is necessary to contribute sometime to the status quo if we are to go forward.

This service will be deeply appreciated.

We are again planning a series of Institutes in connection with our Annual Conference, October 8th to 10th in Columbia. We have received a number of requests for an institute with Negro leadership to consider the problems of the Negro youth.

You rendered such an excellent service in securing Mrs. Davis last year we are writing to ask for a similar service. We hesitate to impose on you, but we well realize you are in a key position to know the leaders of the Negro race who can make worthwhile contributions.

Whatever you may be able to do will be deeply appreciated.

This will acknowledge your letter of July 13, inviting me to speak at the South Carolina State Conference of Social Work on October 10 at three o'clock in the afternoon.

I am happy to accept this invitation and will speak to some topic within the general theme which you mention in your letter, Southern Needs and Cooperative Efforts to Meet Them.

I am sure that the Southern Regional Council will take care of my expenses for that trip, since this is a part of the work of the Council.

I look forward with keen pleasure to a visit to Spartanburg and to the privilege of appearing on your program.

Dear Dr. Trigg:

At the State Conference of Social Work on Oct. 10th at three o'clock there's to be an Interracial Institute — really a forum. It has been customary for us to have an informative, dynamic speaker and after a talk of twenty to thirty minutes there follows a discussion. We would like to have you as the guest speaker this year if possible.

Since our State Conference is active but not wealthy we have to plan our finances very carefully. As a member of the SRC staff your expenses would be covered by them, wouldn't they? Let us know and we will do whatever is necessary.

In the spirit of SRC you will of course take a subject dealing with Southern Needs and Cooperative Efforts To Meet Them, won't you?

You may concentrate on one need or emphasize a configuration of needs.

Please let me hear from you at your earliest convenience as I leave on July 25 for the West Coast and want to hand in all program material to State Conference for printing.

We are so pleased that you can be with us at our Institute affiliated with the S.C. Conference of Social Work.

My note obviously was not clear as to place of meeting. Columbia being centrally located and, also, being the seat of Government and state-wide agencies is our customary meeting place. Many of us from Spartanburg will be there and we want you to help us with plans for our city as well as with plans state-wide in scope.

Friend:

The Institute Committee of this Council is planning a Forum for Thursday, October 10, 1946, 3:00 P.M., at Trinity Parish House, Columbia, in connection with The South Carolina Conference of Social Work.

This Forum will be led by Dr. Harold L. Trigg, Associate Director of Southern Regional Council, Atlanta, Ga. The subject for discussion will be:

"THE SOUTH'S NEEDS AND COOPERATIVE EFFORT TO MEET THEM".

Dr. Trigg, a vestryman and lay reader of the Episcopal Church, was for eleven years supervisor of Negro Schools in North Carolina, has been a college president and president of North Carolina Negro Teachers Association. He has completed his course requirements for his doctorate at Columbia University.

With this first-hand liberal understanding of the South and a broad background of study and experience, his approach to the questions involved is different.

We are asking interested and forward-looking citizens of our State to share with us this rare opportunity.

CONFERENCE CALL

The South Carolina Conference of Social Work hereby calls its members and invites other interested citizens to meet in Columbia, October 8-10, 1946, in the State House.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

The theme of our approaching Conference, October 8-10—"One World and Human Welfare"—has about it a cry of universal appeal. It will deal with interests in which every human being is, or ought to be, concerned—Human Welfare. May I express the earnest hope that, in point of attendance, we make a supreme effort to be there. Surely at a time like this in world affairs, we can't afford to be complacently unconcerned about the vital human interests which justify the existence of our Conference.

Yours for a fine meeting and a great attendance

Funderburk, 1706 Gervais St.; Gilliams, 1218 Bull St.; Byrd's, 1413 Washington St. The management of these tourist homes request that a check be sent with reservation. Please make all reservations direct.

EXHIBITS—Organizations desiring to arrange an exhibit please make application for space at once to Conference Office, 1930 College Street, Columbia. Exhibits will be housed in the Library and Lobby of the State House. We are desirous of having the exhibits arranged on Monday afternoon, October 7, after two-thirty o'clock, and on Tuesday morning, October 8.

MEMBERSHIPS—Have you enrolled for 1946? Please remember that the Conference depends upon its membership for support and every membership serves to build a stronger, more effective, and more valuable Conference. If you are not a member, why not join? Your financial assistance and participation will mean much to the future program of the Conference, and the social welfare program in South Carolina.

RESOLUTIONS—Members of the Conference who may be planning to submit resolutions at the 1946 Conference are asked to give very careful thought and consideration to the intent, purpose, and effect of such resolutions. Resolutions must be presented in duplicate typed, if possible, and complete as to the text. Please send Resolutions to the Conference Office not later than October 1, 1946.

Dear Miss Minahan:

I thank you for your letter of October 14 and for the engraved plate which cameunder separate cover.

May I assure you that I enjoyed thoroughly my vist to Columbia and the opportunity to speak to the very fine audience which attended the interracial forum. It was stimulating and inspiring throughout. It is apparent that South Carolina has a fine group of courageous leaders in this field of human relations and we are anticipating continued improvements in the interaction between racial groups as the years go by.

With every good wish, I am

Dear Miss Mary:

I called Mrs. Turman, and she had already written you about the Georgia Citizens Council.

To buttress your knowledge of it, I send you a few items from our files. Do send these back to us when they have served your purpose.

The Georgia Citizens Council was a useful thing until we got a bad governor. He ruined it quickly. Except for a brief period, it was never less than quite timid on Negro matters. I seem to recall that they had a practice of forming a large white meeting and then doing the thing all over again for a smallish Negro meeting.

All my advice would be on the side of keeping your organization strictly private.

Would it not be well if a group of South Carolina people turned out a leaflet on the McCray case? It does from here look to be a disgraceful matter. I am mentioning the subject to Mr. Dabbs.

Nice to have the occasion for calling Mrs. Turman. She and I are apt to converse reminiscently about real ham and the other joys of Virginia.

Dear Doctor Mitchell:

Help wanted.

First, read copy of letter to Mrs. Turman. If she is in Atlanta she will give desired information. Please ask your secretary to find whether she is in Atlanta and if not will you send me the address of "The Georgia Citizens Association"?

Some of the South Carolina Council members wish to change to Georgia type of organization.

It is meant that men and women should work together.

"The Lighthouse and Informer" issue of August 18 is distressing--the action against Mr. McCray unjust.

The New South's recent presentation of the segregation matter was fair and fine.

I rejoice in your leadership.

Yours sincerely,

Dear Mrs. Turman:

GREETINGS! How I did enjoy you last October!

Now help is wanted!

Is the Georgia Citizens Committee still active? If so, will you give me the address, better yet phone its office asking that it send me material telling of its objectives and ways of getting things done.

Is the membership of men and women about equal? If not, which sex is in the majority? Is the major office held alternately by a man and a woman?

See attached article on The South Carolina Women's Council for The Common Good.

Some of our members would like it to drop "Women's" from its name but the majority has opposed doing so. Its constitution requires that women shall predominate in numbers in having membership in The Council.

Mrs. T. B. Stackhouse, fine Council member is asking that The Council change to The Georgia Citizens plan of organization and operation.

Your "Active Voters" program is suggestive; but the Council is committed to a wide range of social and civic interests with chief emphasis on the legislation the study of its standing committees reveals to be needed.

The objectives of The Council and those of The Georgia Citizens Committee are similar.

Men as well as women should be members of The Council in nearly equal numbers. If so, the South Carolina women are afraid the men will "take over". Have they done so in The Georgia Citizens Committee.

I go to a family house party next Monday at Ellie's camp near Lexington then to Richmond for a week.

If you can get the material desired to me here I will appreciate it.

Perhaps Atlanta will be calling me this autumn. It will be a happy occasion if it offers opportunity for an hour with you.

THE SOUTH CAROLINA WOMEN'S COUNCIL FOR THE COMMON GOOD.

WHAT IT IS: Its constitution states that "The object of this organization shall be to bring about a coordination of the plans and policies of the various state-wide and county organizations of women and men looking toward greater social, economic and governmental progress in South Carolina through united effort". Eighteen South Carolina organizations having state-wide membership, predominantly women, are members of The Council. Each is represented on it by its president, its legislative chairman, and a member-at-large. Approximately 200,000 persons are members of the eighteen organizations that make up The Council.

WHAT IT DOES: The standing committees of The Council study social, economic and governmental conditions in order to support intelligent recommendations for action, usually leading to effort to secure legislation to meet the needs study has disclosed.

Its major objective is to stimulate its members to a greater interest in government and to purposeful effort through its standing committees. Since it believes that "action without study is futile and that study without action is fatal", it endeavors to get bills introduced in the General Assembly to meet the most urgent needs and supports bills in the United States Congress of interest to it.

Its members agree that the study of qualifications of persons offering for office is a responsibility of every citizen as is the obligation to vote and get others to vote.

Its chief effort is in the field of legislation. Annually it publishes "United We Stand", the compilation of the legislative items receiving a majority favorable vote at the meeting of the legislative committee of The Council and a later majority favorable vote at the annual meeting of The Council. "United We Stand" is mailed to the members of The Council, each state legislative chairman of each member organization is asked to secure copies for each local legislative chairman of her organization.

The National Council on State Legislation has members in 17 states and the District of Columbia. The South Carolina Women's Council for The Common Good is one of the 17. Through this national membership each of states is kept informed of the current legislative efforts and results in all the other member organizations of the National.

Progress Continues In Human Relations

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Mrs. Eugene Spearman didn't hesitate to accept when the job of executive director of the S.C. Council on Human Relations was formed.

"It fit my temperament," she recalls.

She gathered together the remnants of the old S.C. Council on Interracial Cooperation and started piecing together a new organization.

FROM 78 members, the rolls quickly went up to 500, and then she says, "The resistance movement began."

In Camden, a school bandmaster was severely beaten. The dean of the school of education at the University of South Carolina was fired for saying that segregation in schools could not be morally defended.

Complusory school attendance was repealed, as was a constitutional requirement for a public school system.

There were crosses burned in the yards of persons who dared speak out.

"We could only tread water," she says of the late 50s.

Even in the roughest years of the 50s, Mrs. Spearman says she was never really threatened or physically intimidated. "People here are not mean people," she maintains. "There are wonderful people in this state."

CONDITIONS and attitudes have changed in South Carolina, and the Council on Human Relations has become activist in many programs in the last few years.

In 1965, when state and local officials looked with suspicion at Head Start programs, the council organized groups in more than 30 counties to make applications.

In many instances, the public schools later agreed to help run the programs. More than 18,000 pre-schoolers participated in 1966, and every county in the state has indicated plans to apply for a Head Start program next year.

Meanwhile, membership in the council had climbed to 1,178 persons in 153 communities by September of this year. The number of local councils on human relations increased to 12 this year from a previous high of eight.

LAST SUMMER, the S.C. Council on Human Relations secured a demonstration grant for $137,454 from the Office of Economic Opportunity for SPEED-UP (Student Program for Educational and Economic Development).

This was a crash 12-week program in which 2,000 high school students from low income families received special accelerated training. A number of South Carolina college seniors and graduates particiapated, living in the communities in which they worked, with whites often living with Negro families in 13 counties and 28 neighborhoods under the guidance of local bi-racial advisory committees.

Since 1961, the council has received supporting grants from the Field Foundation, beginning the first year with $3,500. A $17,000 grant has been announced for fiscal 1967 to help the expanding programs.

South Carolinian Doesn't Pussy-Foot About Life

1/3/67 Charlotte Observer

By JACK BASS
Observer Columbia Bureau

COLUMBIA, S.C. — For almost three years as a young woman, Alice Buck Norwood traveled the world, living on skimpy savings, $500 from her father, and by her wits.

She spent six weeks in Russia with a student group in 1930 and later found herself branded a Communist as a result.

To save money, she slept on the floor of train stations in India—with hundreds of the native poor.

Through it all, the South Carolina banker's daughter developed a sense of compassion, a rejection of race as a measure of individual worth, and a desire "to teach people to raise hell and do something."

AS EXECUTIVE director of the S.C. Council of Human Relations, she took over a sickly organization in 1954 with 78 members and has given it her own drive and vitality.

She has been Mrs. Eugene Spearman for almost 30 years, a smartly-tailored — but not overly stylish—animated aristocrat committed to democracy.

Strangers meeting her for the first time usually guess she is in her early 50s. It is almost unbelievable that she will be 65 next year—a fact she easily volunteers—and is talking of retirement.

"You have only one life to live and you have to choose whether you want to go around pussy-footing about what you believe is right," Mrs. Spearman says.

At the same time, she believes it "stupid to alienate people who are just as sincere in the light of the experience they've had as you are."

While she may be a reformer, she doesn't believe it practical to try to tell other people what they should think.

THERE ARE still Negro leaders in South Carolina who distrust all whites, but there are others who once felt this way who have found through this woman of commitment a bridge of reconciliation.

When Gov. Donald S. Russell announced in December, 1963 his Special Training for Economic Progress (STEP) program to provide job training and basic education for adults on an integrated basis, many Negro leaders viewed it cynically as another empty promise. There had been almost no desegregation in South Carolina at that point. The 1964 Civil Rights Act was six months away.

In several counties, quiet visits by a field representative of the Human Relations Council persuaded local leaders to work in support of the program. There have been more than 6,000 graduates of STEP since it began.

As a pilot project, its success resulted in several amendments to the Manpower Development and Training Act. In South Carolina, STEP provided the foundation for a more massive assault against the crippling roadblocks of untrained and uneducated masses. This will be Project T-Square (Training for Tomorrow), a $20 million federally financed, state-operated project aimed at reaching 22,000 adults in two years.

MRS. SPEARMAN'S eyes sparkle at the memory of her work as a New Deal administrator in South Carolina. She met the man she married while she was state director of the Worker's Education Project.

It was in this role that the Hearst newspapers called her a Communist, strongly implying that her visit to Russia had trained her to implant subversive ideas in the minds of the poor.

Never one to back down for a minute, Mrs. Spearman stood up to the charge, saw it discredited and recalls with fondness the support she received from the South Carolina press and legislature.

Much of Mrs. Spearman's interest in the welfare of others came about as a result of experiences during her childhood.

Although her family was aristocratic, Mrs. Spearman attended public schools in Marion because her father was "very democratic."

While attending Converse College in Spartanburg, she spent a summer working in a textile mill to learn about both the conditions and the character of the working girls.

She came to admire the girls and abhor the conditions.

After two years of study at Columbia University, she began her travels abroad, there again to see people in impoverished conditions.

When her father died in 1932, she returned to South Carolina to stay.

Among other activities, she has been administrator of relief in Marion County, a member of a White House study committee called by Eleanor Roosevelt and S.C. director of the Worker's Education Project.

After her husband died in 1962, she was executive director of the S.C. Federation of Women's Clubs before taking charge of the human relations council.

Dear Mrs. Thompson:

Please forgive us this long delay in responding to your inquiry about the audit. Ed and I discussed the inquiry immediately on its receipt, but unfortunately each thought the other had agreed to answer it. Since Ed is out of the office today, I am happy to do so.

It is not necessary to have a CPA conduct your annual audit so long as a competent accountant does so following all of the normal and appropriate rules of accounting. This would include a full statement with breakdown of all income and expenses for all operations of the South Carolina Council and a balance sheet showing all liabilities outstanding and all assets controlled by the South Carolina Council. Would you please share this letter with whoever conducts the work and ask that this be considered as he does it.

With best wishes.

Dear Friends:

I am writing this letter to both of you to clear up a stipulation set forth in the guidelines which accompanied the 1967 announcement of the SRC grant to SCCHR. No doubt I shall be writing for fuller information on a number of items, if needed. At the moment, however, I would like to clear up your reference to having our books audited annually by a CPA.

Paul, you will recall the expensive audit which we had made a number of years back by an expensive company. All the work was done by a totally green, recent graduate of U.S.C. and from our point of view left much to be desired, especially by way of a reasonable charge. At that time, Paul, you told me that SRC was not using a CPA but a person in whose skill and integrity you had complete confidence. I remember your confiding the flexibility he allowed in adjusting over-charges which invariably occurred to certain funds when a person professionally responsible for allocating charges cannot be on hand to advise against what fund each expenditure shall be entered. Naturally I understood your need for this flexibility, which we find also. At that time I also understood that if it were satisfactory with our board that it would not be necessary for us to use the professional services of a CPA. We have not done so. I am wondering if the present guidelines are to be interpreted as a new policy to be strictly adhered to. Please advise fully.

Last year our treasurer was a CPA who took the trouble to visit our office frequently, check with the bookkeeper and run a variety of checks on the system being used. Since this person has moved to Charleston, South Carolina, and will not be available for these frequent checks, we had planned to try to work for 1967 an arrangement similar to the one Frances Pauley had told me she uses -- that is, to have monthly audits by an accountant whereby the December cumulative report would represent an annual audit. I doubt seriously that we could get such a service from one of the CPA firms but perhaps could from several reputable accountants whom we plan to approach.

We shall not take any step in this matter until advised by you. ----

NOTE: Mrs. Spearman was interrupted before she was able to dictate about a few other matters. I am sure she will be doing this as soon as she returns from a field trip.

Sincerely yours,

YOU ARE INVITED to the

1967 OBSERVANCE OF BROTHERHOOD WEEK
February 19-26

WHERE? . . . At the Parish House, Trinity Episcopal Church, Senate and Sumter streets (across from the State Capitol), Columbia, South Carolina

WHEN? . . . Sunday afternoon
February 19, 1967
at four o'clock

The South Carolina Council on Human Relations and the Columbia Council on Human Relations are presenting jointly as speaker

DR. LUCIUS PITTS
President of Miles College
Birmingham, Alabama

MAN OF THE HOUR . . . Dr. Pitts is a native of Georgia, where as a boy his father farmed as a sharecropper. There he established life-time habits of hard work which 'stood him in good stead' as he labored against the educational odds of poor rural schools and of economic hardships. He knows the personal cost and value of education. Perhaps that is why he became an educator. In no sense, however, is Dr. Pitts a traditional educator; he is a 'telling' advocate of a sweeping overhauling as well as of a mammouth strengthening of education at all levels.

Because thinking South Carolinians realize that education, relevant education, is a top priority for the State if its progress is to continue, Dr. Pitts will be a timely speaker.

Because ways must be found to extend equal opportunities for self realization and expression to all our citizens,

Because all citizens have an equal right to job training and placement, and

Because education of the head and hands will not be enough,

SOUTH CAROLINA COUNCIL ON HUMAN RELATIONS

1330 Laurel Street Columbia, South Carolina, 29201

February 3, 1967

Dear "Special Person":

The SCCHR Executive Committee voted to hold an "enlarged" Board meeting and wants you to participate in its vital deliberations.

YOU ARE INVITED . . . . .

to participate in two important meetings. Mark your calendar now and begin to make plans to attend!

PLACE: Trinity Episcopal Church -- The Parish House on Senate street at Sumter, across from the State Capitol, Columbia, South Carolina

TIME: Sunday afternoon -- February 19, 1967
1:30 p.m.--3:30 p.m. and 4:00 p.m.--5:30 p.m.

WHAT: First meeting of the 1967 SCCHR Board of Directors-- perhaps the most significant and far-reaching one in The Council's history -- 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Followed by Observance of Brotherhood Week -- a public meeting at which Dr. Lucius Pitts, president of Miles College, Birmingham, Alabama, will speak -- 4:00 to 5:30 p.m.

Dr. Pitts is an ardent advocate of education for life as well as for making a living and urges bold, new and creative programs. Although education is a major concern of South Carolina at this time, perhaps most of all it is the depth of this man's faith, the breadth of his understanding and empathy with his fellowman which make the "State Council" and the Columbia Council grateful of the opportunity to present Dr. Lucius Pitts as speaker to open National Brotherhood Week, February 19-25, to a statewide audience.

The Board meeting is scheduled at this time so that members will be available to hear Dr. Lucius Pitts, president of Miles College, Birmingham, Alabama, who will speak at the public meeting co-sponsored by the Columbia Council on Human Relations and the South Carolina Council on Human Relations, following the Board meeting.

We need you. --- Do come! Let us hear that we may expect you.

Faithfully yours,

February 3, 1967

Dear SCCHR Board Member:

The first meeting in 1967 of the SCCHR Board of Directors will be perhaps the most significant and far-reaching on the The Council's history. We must count upon you to be present. If not possible, won't you designate a substitute and let us hear who it will be?

TIME: Sunday afternoon
February 19, 1967
1:30 p.m. -- 3:30 p.m.

PLACE: Trinity Episcopal Church-- Parish House on Senate at Sumter across from The State Capitol, Columbia, S. C.

Immediately following the Board meeting there will be a Coffee Hour Fellowship.

At 4 o'clock the South Carolina Council on Human Relations and the Columbia Council on Human Relations are presenting as speaker Dr. Lucius Pitts, president of Miles College, Birmingham, Alabama, in a public observance of Brotherhood Week, which is February 19-26. After reading the enclosed "brief" about Dr. Pitts, I'm sure you will want to stay to hear him.

Please advertise the public meeting which, like the Board meeting, will also be held at Trinity Parish House.

The SCCHR Executive Committee voted to invite some key members and friends of SCCHR to the board meeting, which will not be an executive session but one to chart a new course for which widely representative participation and enthusiasm will be needed.

Your involvement will be vital if we are to build a close-knit, responsible citizens movement in South Carolina.

Yours with great expectations,

Alice Spearman

Dear Alice:

I would be delighted to meet with you on the afternoon of the 23rd. I am sharing your letter with Josephine both to determine if she will be available and to give her some idea of the purpose of our meeting.

If I understand your general idea, you are proposing that the South Carolina Council go substantially into the fact finding business and build on this to inform and educate South Carolinians on conditions and needs. If this is the case, I am enthusiastically in agreement.

Certainly I agree it's premature to send any final comments to Mrs. Harvey or for any of us to react too quickly at this point. As you say, a great deal of thinking and cognizance needs to take place on this extremely important subject.

With warmest regards.

Sincerely,

CONFIDENTIAL

Mr. Paul Anthony,
Southern Regional Council,
5 Forsythe Street, N.W.,
Atlanta, Ga. 30303

Dear Paul:

I have had a letter from Mrs. Harvey who is serving on a SRC committee relative to re-thinking the working relationships between SRC and the state councils. It is the second request which I have received from her by letter following a verbal one made to me at the time of the SRC annual meeting. She has asked me to put in writing for her any ideas which I might have. I am sure that I do not need to tell you that I have many tentative suggestions but feel a reluctance to put into writing anything which might create an impression that my ideas have completely jelled. The truth is that this area of inquiry needs to be an in-depth shared quest for identity for both SRC and the state councils as they attempt to function effectively in a rapidly-changing situation. You will agree, I am sure.

I would like very much to have an opportunity to send up some trial balloons with you as the recipient so that I might have the benefit of your responses. However, because of my delay in writing Mrs. Harvey, I think I should make a few jottings immediately and rush them to her. I shall tell her that I shall be sending them to you as well as to her, lest any misunderstanding develop. Your reaction, please.

Needless to say, I am eager to wrap up a great many loose ends so that my successor will not come in at a disadvantage. This is extremely hard to do because the situation in South Carolina is mobile enough at the present time to require a legion of new programs and processes which hitherto would have been so difficult as to be virtually impossible.

In the last quarterly report made to SRC covering the period September through November I projected not only for your response but that of our Executive Committee to whom we send copies, a long-range goal for SCCHR of building an 'inclusive' citizens' movement. Such a movement would be dedicated, of course, to the development of human resources and relationships.

In the back of my mind is the thought that Josephine Wilkins as a professional, directed a citizens' fact-finding movement in Georgia many years ago. Such fact finding, of necessity, would provide a rational basis for decision-making in a state which has previously relied heavily upon feeling rather than fact.

I have written Mrs. Tilley that, barring some unforseen emergency, I shall attend the Fellowship of the Concerned at the Atlantan on March 22 through 23 at noon. I have wondered if you and Josephine might have some time in the afternoon of the 23rd when I might discuss this matter with the two of you jointly. If, for any reason, you can not be available, would you find out from Josephine and let me know about her availability?

Sincerely,

Alice N. Spearman

Dear Alice:

Enclosed is our check for $344.84 to cover the cost of the two consultants reported on by Mrs. Thompson in her letter of April 24th.

(Incidentally, I don't know Mr. Faxon of Detroit and assume he was worth it. But nearly $200 total, including a $100 honorarium strikes me as pretty dear.)

At any rate, here it is and I hope we can help with some others. Do, however, check in advance since we are commiting these funds rather rapidly.

Dear Mr. Anthony:

We are enclosing copy of a letter written to Dr. Lucius Pitts on March 3, soon after his speech at the Brotherhood Week Observance in Columbia, sponsored by the South Carolina andthe Columbia councils on human relations. You will note that we sent a check for $150.00 to Dr. Pitts to cover his travel expense and an honorarium. We will deeply appreciate reimbursement for this $150.00 from the Southern Regional Council.

Also, the Student Council incurred expenses of $194.84 (travel $94.84 and honorarium $100.00) for a special speaker, Mr. Jack Faxon* of Detroit, Michigan, at a meeting of the students on "Youth and Politics," in Columbia on April 16. Reimbursement for this amount will also be appreciated.

Total reimbursement requested is $344.84. Thank you.

Dear Dr. Pitts:

You, your honesty, your courage and wisdom are a source of strength to me personally and I'm sure to literally thousands of others. Thank you deeply for bringing us such a sensitively interpretative message on February the 19th.

Although the number of persons who ably organize and present information and ideas are scarce, they're numerous compared with those who are able in a telling way to project a range of feelings, deep-seated and strong. You showed yourself to be more than an artist, but an artist none-the-less. Many previously inactive persons are asking for a recording of your address. Has the radio station sent you a recording yet? If not, let us know and we'll follow up for you.

We are still eager to secure from your secretary a copy of your paper when convenient.

Dr. J. M. Dabbs, Martin England and Bishop Paul Hardin were among those who sent special messages to you.

We are enclosing our check in the amount of $150.00, which we hope will cover your travel expense and an honorarium. I'm taking the liberty of sending this before hearing from you in order to avoid further delay in repayment of your travel expense. Let me hear from you if we have inadvertently overlooked any possible additional expense.

We regretted that you could not be with us longer, and the circumstances which required your immediate return. Hopefully progress is being made.

I join you in a deep concern for the future of the South and of the nation. It will be helpful to have your ideas of what might be done and should be tried.

With sincere gratitude to you and for you, and with every good wish,

Dear Paul:

Please find enclosed a check for $500.00 about which I talked with you last week. As I told you, it is being sent to you earmarked for the South Carolina Voter Education Project. I shall appreciate its being sent to the SCVEP at the very earliest convenience as it is needed to be applied on a bank note which has already become due.

Unfortunately, I have not yet received any word from the Internal Revenue in Columbia and have hesitated to stir up anything there. It was heartening to have the assurance from you that even though SRC has recently been called "on the carpet", it was swept clean and neither your tax exempt status nor that of VEP are in any way in question.

We are happy to be able to transmit this anonymous gift but there have been a few headaches, just to prove, I suppose, that even the price of a gift may come high!

Thank you for your gracious help in this matter.

Dear Paul:

I have not yet had much time to go through files, some of which have accumulated over almost thirteen years and a few of which ante-date them! I feel that I want to do this and in time shall be able to. Much of our material is in pasteboard boxes into which they were placed hastily and without too much rhyme or rhythm. Upon several occasions when we have needed space, we have turned over newspaper clippings files. Dr. Howard Quint, author of "Profiles in Black and White" drew heavily upon these files for his book at the time he wrote it and was a professor at the University of South Carolina. Dr. John McConaughy, political science professor at the University of South Carolina and a graduate student who later studied at the University of North Carolina were glad to get many of our clippings having to do with Negro registration and voting in South Carolina.

After a visit to the microfilm clipping files at the Southern Education Reporting Service, we mailed them a lot of our clippings.

More recently, the University of Wisconsin has written us and also sent a graduate student -- a native of Columbia -- to us a number of times, asking that our papers be turned over to them.

On Saturday I received copies of correspondence between Dr. P. M. Hamer from the National Archives and the librarian at Duke University, indicating that the library may have some interest.

Any advice or reaction you may have, I hope you will share with me.

I have come across a few folders which are carefully marked SRC memoes, communications, news releases, publication lists, and attacks on SRC. A peep inside reveals a few of the memoes in which history, personnel, questions and proposals concerning the future of SRC, state and local organizations relationships etc., were offered. Would you like to have me send these materials for your files or do you think your own files are complete?

Please let me hear from you.

Alice

Dear Mr. Antony:

Having been in recent contant with Mrs. Spearman, Executive Secretary of the South Carolina Council on Human Relations, I have been advised that there is a possibility that you would have funds available for a project which I have been involved with for some time.

Early in February, Dr. Robert Moore, Second Vice President of the South Carolina Council on Human Relations and history professor at Columbia College, asked me to take charge of a program to be presented in connection with a study of poverty then being conducted by the Methodist Church in South Carolina. For this program, I directed "Two in a Trap", a thirty minute one- act play, to be followed by a discussion period led by myself and the two actors involved. Subsequently, due to the enthusiastic reception of the play, we were confronted with several requests for performances from various churches and social welfare organizations, including the Columbia chapter of the South Carolina Council on Human Relations. We attempted to comply with as many requests as possible. However, we soon realized that due to such technical problems as transportation of lighting and sound equipment and of the set and our own rather limited time as a result of academic obligations, it had become a physical impossibility for us to continue with the program as much as we desired to keep it alive. It was a mutual feeling that a program of such merit should not be lost to the community. It was then that we hit upon the idea ofa film adaptation of the play, thus making it more easily accessible to a greater number of people than we could reach in person.

We have proceeded along these lines, securing use of locations, and a photographer, and clearing film rights to the play. Unfortunately, we have now reached an impasse in obtaining the necessary funds. In concidering all aspects of the expense involved, we have realized we cannot produce this film with less than 1250 dollars. We have been in contact with several church related organizations concerning funds, but to no avail. Mrs. Spearman has informed us that there might be in your budget funds for a student involvement such as we have planned.

With your provision of funds, we will produce the film. The play has become too meaningful to us to let it die. There are too many people who need to be reached and we want to reach them.

Thank you very much for your time .

Sincerely yours,

Tally T. Sessions

I know what a tremendous problem is posed in finding and keeping good personnel. Therefore, I am writing to tell you that I esteem highly Jacques Wilmore who is directing the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights Memphis office. Things have begun to move since he took over as they had not done previously. He seems to be an extremely well adjusted person, dynamic, creative and efficient - I would think he may have considerable executive ability. The way he is going about program planning for the advisory committees is quite exciting. A few of us from each of the committees in the eleven to fourteen states under his supervision will be going into Memphis for a two-day planning session June 30. I shall give you any further reactions which may develop out of that meeting, if you are interested.

"I disapprove of what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it."

—Francois M. A. Voltaire
1694-1778

" . . . To those who, misled by their fears, their ignorance, or by evil counseling, turned a deaf ear to our appeals, we should not be vindictive but magnanimous. Let us show to all of them that the true interests of both races can best be secured by cultivating peace and promoting prosperity among all classes of our fellow citizens . . . "

—Wade Hampton

Preface

In the course of human affairs, whenever a change in the existing order is proposed, it is inevitable that some men will favor the new path of action, others will defend the accustomed patterns, and most will not commit themselves to either way, desiring only that the issue be settled peacefully and justly. The present controversy in the field of race relations is no exception. Recent days in South Carolina, as well as in the entire Southern region of the United States, have seen the development of a climate of opinion and emotion in which extreme positions have dominated. Not only has communication between the two races virtually ceased, but we have come tragically close to being unable to communicate with one another within our own race. As the opposing camps become more firmly entrenched, they inadvertently drift toward a struggle which may impair the growth of our State for decades. Is this an absolute "either — or" issue, one on which there can be no compromise? We believe not. The time is long overdue for a strong voice of moderation to be heard, and for a middle ground of peaceful settlement to be cleared in South Carolina.

The current racial dilemma is producing a threat to one of the basic institutions of American democracy — the right of the individual to freedom of thought, opinion and speech. Often the real question has not been, "What shall we do about segregation and desegregation?" but, "Shall men have the freedom to differ and still maintain mutual respect for each other?" There are some who would require all South Carolinians to subscribe to their point of view or be ostracized from the community. Fear of free, unrestricted discussion of the problem, and hesitancy to disagree with either the majority or the minority quickly lead to a withering of American ideals.

The undersigned group of ministers believes that the moderate leadership which is desperately needed will come from the esteemed and respected men and women of each community in our State. Until such leadership manifests itself, the impasse will not be broken, and creative communication and understanding between the races will not be strengthened. We have, therefore, compiled this booklet as one means of giving public expression to such moderate leadership. As Christian pastors of various denominations, we believe that our commitment to Jesus Christ calls us to minister to the sicknesses of society as well as to the ills of the individual.

Each of the persons whose statements appear herein was visited personally. We asked them if they would venture out with us into that difficult middle ground through a public statement of their own thoughts and feelings. Although they did not seek this task, out of a love for their communities and their State they have undertaken this vital responsibility. They, as we, are people of the South with a deep love for this section of our country. While not presuming to be experts in the field of race relations, they live in daily touch with the problems and are concerned about the present trends. The statements are as the various writers submitted them to us. They do not necessarily agree with us on every point, nor we with them. It will also be apparent that the individual writers differ among themselves at certain places. We believe, nevertheless, that they all represent a moderate position and provide the kind of guidance so urgently required.

We offer South Carolinians Speak in the hope that it will give strength to the countless people who see a moderate approach toward a solution as the only workable one. May this book also give encouragement to concerned citizens who have feared, or have had difficulty in expressing themselves. Finally, it is our prayer that all thoughtful people will affirm the necessity of the free, open exchange of ideas and will insist on mutual regard for persons of differing opinions.

To the many people who have heartened us in this effort, and to those without whose support the book would not have been published, we can only indicate our grateful appreciation. We are convinced that the serious, reasonable people of South Carolina will adhere to our democratic principles in dealing with this complex issue, and that together all our citizens will move into an era of more harmonious relations and greater usefulness in fulfilling God's will for our State.

Dear Mr. Fleming:

The compilers of South Carolinians Speak have about two to three thousand copies of this publication remaining undistributed and will happily give them away or sell them at a minimal cost where they will be effectively used in the "deep South". Mail orders continue to come in but these are slow and do not require such a large supply.

Possibly, the Councils on Human Relations in such states as Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi might like to have copies for distributing to their members or generally. For the postage we would send them copies if it appeared they would be used.

It isn't that we don't have needs of our own. We are still working on raising the money to pay for this venture. The enclosed copy of a fund letter will give you some idea of this - and, also, some picture of our evaluation of response to the book. But, we want to see the copies we have left exerting a positive influence in the kind of climate and with the kind of people they're designed to reach.

If you would care to pass this information on to any affiliate organizations please feel free to do so.

Yours sincerely,

John B. Morris

SOUTH CAROLINIANS SPEAK

Dillon, South Carolina

February 28, 1958

Dear Friend:

Four months ago I shared, along with four other clergymen, in the publishing of a book as an effort to bring a greater degree of calm and reason to bear upon the race controversy. Together with our Preface this book is a collection of statements of belief from twelve respected and influential lay people. Fifteen thousand copies of South Carolinians Speak: A Moderate Approach to Race Relations are now in circulation and are working quietly to strengthen freedom of expression, improve communications on the issue, and draw out the great numbers of citizens who reject any extreme position and seek a moderate approach.

The response of South Carolinians to this book has fully substantiated our premise that political spokesmen of the "deep South" have not always reflected the true picture of our region. This response has been overwhelmingly positive - with only the ugly incident of the dynamiting of the home of one of the book's writers to the contrary and in substantiation of the need for a better climate of opinion. Leading newspapers have editorially commended South Carolinians Speak and notable figures in the state have praised it, including former Congressman James P. Richards who termed it a "real contribution" toward "preserving freedom of expression of thought". We have received hundreds of supportive letters from South Carolinians, and informed observers tell us that they feel the book has served to lessen the rigidness of extremists on both sides.

We who sponsored South Carolinians Speak acted wholly on our own initiative and with the shared concern of the writers. We carried the project to completion in the confidence that persons anxious for the health of the South would contribute toward the costs. While many contributions have already come in, we must raise approximately $3,000 more. That the book was priced lower than cost to encourage sales (which have been good) and the fact that we sent 8,000 free copies to selected community leaders in South Carolina are factors which would compel us to ask the help of others from the outset. We will derive no financial profit from this, and have already invested considerably of personal funds, and will have to assume any deficit that might remain.

Checks may be made payable to South Carolinians Speak - or to me - and should be sent to the above address. There will be no published list of contributors. If you do not have a copy of the book, kindly advise me and one will be sent to you. Also, copies may be ordered at 50¢ each. Many persons have secured copies to send to friends in other parts of the country - believing, as we do, that an additional value of the book is in helping persons outside of the South to appreciate the complexities of our problem. A further use reported to us is by church and club study groups.

With gratitude for your consideration of this, I am
Yours faithfully,

(Rev.) John B. Morris

Mr. Hallock Hoffman
The Fund for the Republic
60 East 42nd Street
New York 17, New York

Dear Mr. Hoffman:

Your phone call today was the best news we've had in a long time. Assistance that the Fund for the Republic is able to grant to the Southern Regional Council, thereby enabling them to purchase copies of SOUTH CAROLINIANS SPEAK, will be greatly appreciated by us. This will go a long way toward eliminating our deficit which, at the present, is down to about $2,000.00.

I told you on the phone that we could probably supply the Southern Regional Council with 2,500 copies of the booklet. I have just gone over our supply of copies and find that we could let them have as many as 3,000 copies. I am presently filling an order for 500 copies for a church agency but have estimated that this increased number could be made available to the Council if they desire them. This would leave us with around 700 copies on hand which would not be too many for meeting the mail orders that continue to come in. I am sending a copy of this letter to Mr. Fleming of the Southern Regional Council so that he may have these figures.

As mentioned on the telephone I am sending you herein a copy of a mimeographed letter that my wife and I enclosed with our Christmas cards this past December. The major parts of it deal with the background and publication of SOUTH CAROLINIANS SPEAK. Together with the copy of our fund letter of April 16th and the book itself I believe you have the whole picture.

Thank you for calling me. The concern and interest of others is as appreciated as the possibility of actual assistance. I should like to publish another book now which would be composed of samples of the many responses we have had to SOUTH CAROLINIANS SPEAK - some "crank" letters, but many more affirmative communications. The possibility of financial help from the Fund for the Republic is, in a similiar way, reinforcing and strengthening to us.

Yours sincerely,

(Rev.) John B. Morris

Dear Mr. Fleming:

I may see you before you receive this. At any rate this is entirely separate from the other matter I have written you about.

Your frank comments on the enclosed will be appreciated at some time. I'm sending it to various selected persons - mostly clergy - and asking for criticisms so that I can assess whether or not to press on with it.

Should you generally approve the idea and see a need for such as this, I would welcome suggestions of particular persons for the chapters, or some of them, and, also, some advice on the publishing end of things.

Thank you for your consideration of this.

Sincerely,

John Morris

PROSPECTUS

Proposal: Issuance of a book, in symposium form, that will speak to the role of the Church and the clergy in meeting relevantly the segregation issue in the South. A proposed outline is attached. It would encompass an analysis of the situation, presuppositions of Christian social concern, discussion of the prophetic ministry in its various expressions, and such resource data or chapters as would be useful to Southern churchmen, etc. A portion of the book would contain actual accounts of instances where effective prophetic ministries have been exercised.

Purpose: To challenge the Church in the South, and clergy in particular, to meet increasingly - with adequate concern, strategy, and faith - the controversy over racial discrimination and attendant efforts to eradicate or support its practices and attitudes.

Scope: With regard to the varied and changing complexion of the South, such a symposium should be directed primarily to the situation existing in the "hard-core" or "deep South" states.

As regards orientation to the different denominations, such a book should be pertinent to the major churches of Protestantism within the South.

Regarding the authorship of various chapters, they would be written by clergymen in all probability, but full consideration should be given any suitable persons. The writers should have a direct connection with the South in terms of background or residence. If possible, they should include persons from each major church - with consideration given to such as would the more readily command respect and attention from others of the same persuasion. Prior emphasis, however, should be placed on any contributor's ability to deal with a particular facet.

Editing: The undersigned will retire this proposal if other parties are already engaged in preparing such a volume. Otherwise, and subject to counsel received from selected persons to whom this Prospectus may be sent, an endeavor will be made to carry it through. It may be that increasing the number of editors at the outset would be advisable for a sharing of work and collaboration on decisions and policy. Whatever arrangement is settled upon, it is apparent that the advice and interest of key persons in the various churches will be necessary for its effective accomplishment.

Publishing: Unless some agency wanted to underwrite it, publication and distribution would be by one of the standard publishing firms - possibly a church-related one. Hopefully, they could be shown, during the early stages of compilation, the need for such a volume and its potential market. That costs might be at a minimum, the book's format should be of the less expensive type, with no realization of profit to the editors or authors.

Dear Bob:

On April 2nd I wrote you asking for your suggestions about possible distribution of "South Carolinians Speak." You will recall that the Rev. John B. Morris of Dillon, South Carolina, one of the publishers of the volume, had asked if the Deep State Councils would be interested in distributing this booklet within their respective states. I further wrote that SRC might be able to absorb the cost of the booklets.

I have not had a reply from you, and now developments make it imperative that we proceed on this matter. SRC has accepted a foundation contribution earmarked for the purchase of the remaining stock of "South Carolinians Speak" - about 2500 copies. In turn, we have agreed to see that these volumes are given effective distribution in the Deep South.

Would you please let me know at your very earliest convenience, (1) whether or not you would be interested in making a distribution of this booklet; (2) if so, the type of distribution you have in mind and the number of copies you feel you could use; (3) whether or not you feel your State Council could make a distribution, your suggestions as to other appropriate groups or channels through which distribution could be made in your State.

I might say in passing that Will Campbell of the National Council of Churches has written that he is preparing a report of key religious leaders in the Deep South who would benefit from the booklet. We would plan to make this distribution, or some part of it, ourselves. If we do so, we will supply you with the names in your State who are receiving it from us.

Your earliest reply will be very much appreciated.

My dear Rabbi Mantinband:

You will recall that I wrote you a couple of months ago about the possibility of some distribution of "South Carolinians Speak" in Mississippi. We have now made arrangements to secure approximately 2500 copies of the booklet and are ready to proceed with such distribution as seems most desirable.

Have you had a chance to read the booklet and to make some judgment of how it might best be used in Mississippi? If so, I would deeply appreciate it if you would let us have your recommendations. If you could supply us with a list of names, we would be happy to make that distribution from here; or alternately, we could supply a specified number of the booklets for distribution out there, as you think best.

I will look forward to hearing from you. Meanwhile, my warm regards and good wishes to you and Mrs. Mantinband.

Harold, who is away from the office, has asked me to acknowledge your letter of June 16th concerning the Alabama distribution of "South Carolinians Speak."

As soon as all returns are in from those whom we've contacted on this matter, we'll know how many we can shake loose from Alabama. This we should be able to do shortly. John Constable is handling the returns so you'll probably hear from him.

I have our file - such as it is - on the Alabama resistance movement for your inspection if and when you get the opportunity. If your trip to Fisk does not enable you to get by Atlanta, perhaps we can mail you anything of possible value. Dear Harold:

I trust that Emory informed you that we could use up to approximately 1,000 copies of the "South Carolinians Speak" pamphlet or booklet. Now that I've gotten Emory's survey project out of the way I'll attempt to give you an answer on the distribution questions.

If we had 1,000 we could send them out through our membership & prospect mailing list. 300 copies alone would cover our membership. 200 copies would cover white moderate to liberal ministers over the state some of which are covered in the membership and all in our general (1,000) mailing list. Our state ministers organization could make this mailing to white ministers and we as they could add an additional 200 for negro ministers.

Dear Mr. Morris:

I did enjoy our conversation when you were here and only wish that there had been time for us to talk at much greater length.

I have read with interest the sample letters of reactions to "South Carolinians Speak." If you have no pressing need for them, I would like to hold on to them for a while and consider ways in which their contents might be effectively used to shed light on Deep South attitudes. I will be writing you again about this within a couple of weeks.

I wish you the very best of luck in your plans to further your education.

A FINAL REPORT ON "SOUTH CAROLINIANS SPEAK":

The compilers and publishers of South Carolinians Speak: A Moderate Approach to Race Relations are able to report that its total costs of almost $7,000.00 are now virtually met through sales and contributions. This is a final report on the project and is being sent to writers for the book and to others who have had a particular interest in its progress. It is made two years after preparatory work on the book was begun, a year following the attack on the project by Governor Timmerman, and ten months after publication.

Nineteen thousand copies of South Carolinians Speak have been distributed to date. Of these about 9,000 comprised the free distribution we made to community and state leaders in South Carolina. News stand and book store sales in South Carolina (with one distributor still to report final sales) totaled 4,760 copies. A definite correlation was evident between the number of copies sold by area distributors and the racial attitudes of the respective agency managers or their fear of handling the book. In some areas the distribution was quite good and in others it was only sparse - with copies remaining out on the stands only a limited time. Some intimidation of news stand operators was suggested in a few locales. One agency solicited the opinion of the local newspaper before consenting to distribute the book. Mail orders from within South Carolina presently account for 639 copies. Including these, the initial free mailing, and subsequent donations of copies to various organizations, church groups, and individuals, the total distribution within South Carolina comes to about 15,000 copies. The bulk of these were distributed in the two months following publication date. The total number of copies sold outside of the state presently comes to 3,848.

The response of South Carolinians to this book has been overwhelmingly positive. There have been the usual few anonymous letters, some signed ones, together with an array of spurious literature, but in the first months of publication we heard from people all over the state who wrote to express their appreciation for the book. During ensuing months commendatory letters have continued to come from South Carolinians, but also from as far away as have the mail orders - including such distant places as Paris and New Zealand. Within the state we feel the response fully substantiates the claim that the greater number of thinking South Carolinians want moderate leadership in the racial crisis. Financial contributions, coming largely from South Carolinians, are an additional indication of this concern among the people. From the northern part of our country have come letters that suggest the book is serving to strengthen communications in that direction by helping others understand the complexity of our problems.

Response to South Carolinians Speak from political leaders in the state has varied. Some have expressed positive feelings for the book, although such expressions have been on a confidential basis generally. It was apparent that Governor Timmerman sought no favors for us last summer when he released a copy of the project's "Prospectus" to the press along with his own covering statement. While he must have hoped that pressures brought against us after his statement would cause the termination of the project, it worked quite to the contrary and provided the stimulus to public interest and a general anticipation of the book's appearing far beyond what we might have desired or hoped for. To the often-asked question, "How did the governor obtain a copy of the Prospectus?, we can only surmise that one or more influential persons who failed to reply to our correspondence that sought writers for the project chose to furnish the governor with the Prospectus we had sent them. The prospectus asked that the matter be kept between those with whom we corresponded and ourselves, because no one publishing a book goes around publicizing it before he is sure it will come out. Several newspapers were appropriately critical of the governor for his action. Since the appearance of the book he has declined to comment upon it on several occasions when members of the press have asked his opinion.

Press reaction to South Carolinians Speak has been quite favorable for the most part. Some headlines in the beginning were slanted to suggest that this was an "integrationist" book, but as the weeks went by and the book received public support from significent persons, the press increasingly reported on it altogether fairly. One exception to this is a major newspaper which changed the sub-title of the book in several stories from "A Moderate Approach to Race Relations" to "A Moderate Approach to Integration". They have persisted in doing this despite repeated and unacknowledged communications to them pointing out the error. The several letter writers from the North who castigated us for publishing such a conservative document would not understand this distortion of fact! On the more positive side it can be reported that an equally major newspaper in South Carolina editorially commended the book several times. Altogether there were seven negative editorial-type comments on the book as compared to eighteen positive references. These all appeared before the Gaffney dynamiting incident. In reaction to that affront to freedom of speech nearly every daily and many weekly newspapers in the state had editorials deploring such violence.

Public statements in commendation of South Carolinians Speak included one from former Congressman James P. Richards who said the book was a "real contribution" toward preserving freedom of expression. Henry Savage, Jr., author and former mayor of Camden, said in a statement of praise for the book, "It is high time that South Carolina should start building some measure of freedom of speech and freedom of thought". Dr. R. Wright Spears, President of Columbia College, said, "With hearts of gratitude many, many people will welcome the statements of this book in sharp contrast to the cutting remarks of extremists of various groups!"

How seriously South Carolina will contend with persons who would abridge freedom of speech with acts of violence remains to be seen. Proceedings are pending against alleged Ku Klux Klansmen who are charged with dynamiting the home of one of the book's writers, Mrs. J. H. Sanders, of Gaffney, on the evening of last November 19th. Only a technical failure in the explosive device limited the damage to the house and spared the lives of four persons inside. The influence of official South Carolina is being brought to bear in favor of extremists in that a state senator is serving as defense attorney for the suspects in the case. Recent reports indicate a possibility that persons responsible for pressing the case may not do so as thoroughly as they could. With a little influence here and a little sympathy for the extremists there, it could all be overlooked on the basis of technicalities if the authorities grow weary of pressing their charges which, according to the newspaper accounts, contained considerable evidence. The State Law Enforcement Division, responsible for preparing the case and collecting the evidence, is to be commended on its good work. It is frustrating for them, though, as one agent expressed it to me, for a case to be thoroughly prepared and have justice fail. Such was the occasion with the Camden assault case of several years ago. We may hope that righteous indignation of the South Carolina press and the people generally when this dynamiting occured will be sufficient stimulus to obtain justice in the Gaffney case. Happily I can note that Mrs. Sanders has survived the strain and tension of the whole experience satisfactorily through drawing upon the resources of her deep Christian faith and the support of family and friends.

Other writers for South Carolinians Speak indicate there has been a generally positive response to the book in their communities. Exceptions to this include an instance of a threat of bodily harm, similar to the Gaffney matter, and anonymous phone calls were inflicted on one or two of the writers for a brief period. In most cases, though, there were neighbors and associates who were quick to register their approval for the stand taken and especially for the fact that some had dared speak out in a moderate manner. One writer reports that his volume of business has increased since the book's appearance and another writer was elected to the state legislature three months after the book came out.

Of the five clergymen who compiled and published the book, one was enroute to a long-desired overseas appointment at the time of the governor's attack. Three of us have suffered no particular strain, although there have been moments of stress in our pastorates. For the most part we have found a sympathetic and supportive laity. It did not go so well, however, with the Rev. John S. Lyles, of Marion. Although our project's plans were known locally, the release of them by the governor provoked his church's governing board to plan the termination of his services. This separation was planned before the book could attest to its moderateness. Mr. Lyles left in December and is now serving a large church in West Virginia. There are those who rejoice at the departure of young Southern clergymen who speak their conscience and the Will of God, but for everyone who has to leave the South there are countless others who are awakening to the prophetic mission of the Church.

In summary, the accomplishments of our booklet could be described as giving strength to the moderates, buttressing the principles of freedom of thought and speech, and generally assisting in improving communications across racial and regional lines and between white South Carolinians. Instances may be noted where the book has helped a clergyman, a church group, or other persons to speak positively on the issue where they might have neglected an opportunity. In short, the book's chief accomplishments are in intangible ways that have to do with public opinion and personal stands. While some political leaders have tempered their racial views with a little more moderation due to the book's influence, the greater consequence is in the hearts of the many who were given cause to reconsider their position.

What does the future hold for South Carolina in the racial controversy? I do not know - nor does our booklet offer a single answer. Its purpose is to stimulate constructive discussion - which, in itself, must be a part of any solution. We will have dark days ahead if official South Carolina holds to a rigid position and does not move ahead voluntarily in the improvement of race relations and in providing equal education opportunities for all its people. Our sister Carolina state is setting an example we would do well to consider. In desegregating at the upper levels, with some desegregation at lower levels, they are showing a "good faith" compliance with moral and legal imperatives of the day and are, thereby, insuring for themselves a strong position before the courts. While I do not believe it would be wise to desegregate the public schools in most parts of a "deep South" state such as ours, I know that it is an affront to our democratic heritage and our religious conviction that we have made no movement at the graduate school level and in other areas. Even Virginia, the present leader in "massive resistance", long ago began to correct the situation with regard to higher education and Florida has indicated it will do so peacefully this coming fall. This is what the moderate position means in South Carolina, I believe: careful and wise planning for a more democratic society through definite, although limited, movement ahead - at the same time that the expediency of separate facilities at certain levels is dispassionately maintained. To do otherwise we move backwards and begin to compete with South Africa for the formost place in the West in maintaining a structure that is repugnant to our Christian teaching and our American traditions.

For you who wrote the chapters for South Carolinians Speak - I have the highest respect and admiration. Because you took a stand, however much you may differ among yourselves, there are now more South Carolinians who will speak when a calm voice is needed. The publishing of a book containing personal views on the race issue will be forgotten, but the principles that the book presupposed - freedom of thought and the need for open discussion - will be more firmly imprinted on the minds of a host of South Carolinians because of your witness. That we have been on an adventure or pilgrimage together in this project is an understatement. The fact of our association is a sufficient bond, though, to warrant enduring relationships. In the next year I shall enter upon a program of graduate study in areas that pertain to the churches' role in the South's racial crisis. I shall hope to see you from time to time - both for the renewal of personal friendships and for a sharing of mutual concerns.

Faithfully,

(Rev.) John B. Morris

Gentlemen:

Thank you for the Prospectus for A Regional Education Laboratory. We hope you are able to develop this important service.

I note in reading this that your organizational chart calls for a regional council. While it's really not a matter of major importance, I would only ask that you consider not using this term. This is not because we have any objection to sharing the title, but we have found from our own experience that there are a number of organizations with these two words in their title, ranging from SRC to the Southern Regional Council on Mental Health and this has caused some confusion for everyone. Should you decide to join in the confusion, we will welcome it but I did want to mention our own experience in this regard.

With best wishes.

Dear Mr. Anthony:

I note with interest your request that we refrain from using the title "Regional Council" in connection with the Southeastern Regional Education Laboratory. I will certainly bring this matter to the attention of the interim Board of Directors at its next meeting. I see no good reason why we could not change the name to something like "Governing Council."

Let me point out that the Regional Council to which we refer in our literature is a group which meets only twice a year for a couple of hours or so and their primary purpose is the election of the Board of Directors of the Corporation. It is this Board which has the real power and the Regional Council serves only as a kind of electoral college. The Council will not be identified prominently with the Laboratory as the Board of Directors will. This is by way of pointing out that the Regional Council as we envisage it will not be an active organization in the usual sense and I doubt that the term will be used very much. Nevertheless, your request is certainly reasonable and I will ask the interim Board of Directors to consider changing our title.

Sincerely yours,

Burned Churches...

Portion of 400 persons who observed ground-breaking ceremony for three churches burned last summer. Walker, author of statement below is shown 2nd to right of Dr. King.

Ground-Breaking Services Held

During the last summer, the dynamism and fervor of the Albany Movement electrified all of South Georgia. It was the most dramatic bid for self-respect and human dignity in the Negro community since the Freedom Ride of 1961. The sharp lines of racial separation and discrimination in the general Albany area ultimately overflowed the cup of the Negro community's patience and twice, within the span of a year, the Albany Movement erupted in its bid for Freedom.

The Albany Movement was prodded by the voter registration activity of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) and the December protest as well as the July and August activity, were supplemented by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and two of its titular leaders, Martin Luther King, Jr., and Ralph D. Abernathy. Parallel to the registration and direct action efforts in Albany, SNCC maintained training centers in Lee and Terrell County to aid the rural community equip itself for full citizenship. The church communities of Leesburg and Sasser were particularly responsive.

The impact of the revived activity of the Albany Movement in early July and increase of staff workers on summer internships with SNCC, produced a never-ending series of incidents directed at harassing the work of voter registration.

The harassment degenerated to church burnings and/or bombings. On the morning of August 15th, Miss Margaret Dammond of the SNCC staff notified SCLC headquarters in Albany that the Shady Grove Baptist Church at Leesburg had been almost leveled by fire in the aftermath of an obvious bombing. Scarcely three weeks later, on September 9th, the Mount Olive and the Mount Mary churches were burned to the ground

SOLID WALL OF SEGREGATION CRACKS AT ALBANY

By Martin Luther King, Jr.

Sharp social change is painful and at times painfully slow. This has been apparent at Albany, Georgia, scene of the largest "jail-ins" of the non-violent movement. The City Commission, recently repealed the entire section of the city code that carried segregation ordinances. Despite the fact that this was only an obvious maneuver to preserve the segregated system through some sophisticated technique other than by law, it is of critical significance to those who have been working for more than a year to "democratize" this now-famous southwest Georgia city.

The repeal of the city's segregation laws indicates clearly that the city fathers are realistically facing the legal death of segregation. The city is not wont to battle in the legal arena because the outcome, with all its costliness, is a forgone conclusion. In the wake of the legal retreat at Albany, the public library has been opened on a 30-day "trial" basis—integrated!

To be sure, neither of these related

Dear Friend and Supporter:

I am pleased to enclose a copy of the Annual Financial Report of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference which includes a statement of income and expenses as well as a schedule of operating expenses for the fiscal year ending August 31, 1963.

As Financial Secretary and Treasurer of SCLC, I would like to call your attention to two items in the statement of income and expenses which may appear misleading without further clarification. The first of these is the item carried as "Net Income Over Operating Expenses," which indicates that the sum of $263,358.84 has been appropriated for future legal defenses.

At a glance, it would appear that this item is a reserve for expenditure at some point in the future, when, in truth, almost all of this sum already has been used in providing bail bonds for demonstrators and others in Birmingham, Ala., particularly, and in such other areas as Savannah, Ga.; Albany, Ga.; Danville, Va.; Jackson, Miss.; Greenwood, Miss.; and elsewhere. Accounting procedures will not allow this particular item to be carried as an expenditure, therefore, it must be listed as income. The reason is simply that because once these cases reach the Supreme Court there is a possibility that these funds may be returned to the organization. However, as you undoubtedly know, this may not be possible until after several more years of litigation.

In the instance of the second item, listed as "Net Income After Appropriations," you will observe from the report a balance of $88,633.36, but I wish to inform you that our intensified operations since August 31 has lessened this sum greatly. Certainly 1963 has been a big year in the growth of SCLC, but the growth has been so phenomenal that the necessity for staff expansion and additional machinery to carry on our daily work load has already eaten heavily into this balance. Our actual balance at present is less than $20,000.00. Yet, while our struggle for equality and human dignity continues to be a long and wearisome battle, we know that it is because of your continued support and generous contributions that we are constantly being helped in our fight.

Therefore, this letter carries with it a two-fold purpose--that of thanking you for your past support and asking that you kindly make a contribution to SCLC at your earliest convenience.

Sincerely yours,

Ralph D. Abernathy

Dear Friends of Freedom:

We are pleased to present our Financial Statement reflecting the Revenue and Expenses of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

We deeply appreciate the confidence you have placed in us by contributing to this organization. We are proud that it is built on your goodwill and the goodwill of your friends and neighbors.

Our battle for freedom, equality, and human dignity has been a long and arduous one. With your generous assistance we shall continue this just struggle against the forces of reaction until we attain the "American Dream".

Cordially yours,

Time Magazine Names Dr. King 'Man Of Year'

PROTEST IN ATLANTA—Touching off a protest mood in Atlanta, Ga., because of the city's false image and refusal to meet desegregation demands, a crowd of some 2,500 gathered in freezing weather in Hurt Park on Dec. 16 to hear SCLC President Martin Luther King, Jr. (in photo at left) tell them that "Negroes are disappointed with Atlanta."

SCLC PRESIDENT FIRST NEGRO TO BE SO NAMED IN 37 YEARS

By Ed Clayton

The long distance call was from New York. It was James Keogh, one of two assistant managing editors of Time Magazine.

"Hello?"

"Yes?"

"I'm Jimmy Keogh, one of the assistant managing editors of Time magazine. We're getting ready to do a kind of end-of-the-year story on civil rights and we want to use Dr. King on the cover. The problem is that we'd like to get him to pose for one of our artists, rather than try to paint a picture from a photograph. Think it can be arranged?"

I laughed. "That's really a big order. Dr. King has such a crowded schedule and is always on the go, it's almost impossible to get him to pose for a portrait photograph to say nothing of posing for an artist's portrait. How long do you think he would have to sit?"

"Maybe two or three sittings—say two or

Three SCLC Staff Members Go To Jail In Desegregation Attempt In Atlanta

As direct action against racial injustice began to mount in Atlanta—often referred to as "the model city" in race relations in the South—three staff members of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference were hauled off to jail the night of Jan. 11 after requesting and being refused service in the restaurant of the Heart of Atlanta Motel.

The three were Wyatt Tee Walker, executive assistant to SCLC President Martin Luther King, Jr.; Harry Boyte, special assistant to Dr. King; and John Gibson, Assistant to SCLC's Program Director Andrew Young. They were part of a group which brought a confrontation to the rigid segregationist owner of the motel, Morton Rolleston.

Charged With Trespassing

Others in the group, all arrested under Georgia's questionable anti-trespass statute passed in 1960, were: John Lewis, Chairman of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee; Leon Cox, NAACP State Secretary; Dr. Clinton Warner, prominent Atlanta physician; Rev. John Morris, Executive Director of the Episcopal Society for Cultural and Racial Unity; Rev. Joseph Boone, Minister of Rush Memorial Congregational Church; Miss Prathia Hall, Mrs. Brady Cooper, Miss Joyce Barrett and Albert Dunn.

As the group sought accommodations in the motel's restaurant, one of the young ladies among them was injured and required hospital treatment when she was struck by an employee of the establishment. She was taken by ambulance to segregated Georgia Baptist Hospital and was at first refused treatment. However, when Dr. Lee R. Shelton, who accompanied her in the ambulance, insisted on her admittance the emergency room clerk hurriedly telephoned the hospital administrator who rushed to the scene and decided to admit the young lady.

Under $1,000 Bond

All arrested were released Sunday morning, Jan. 12, under the uncommonly high bond of $1,000 each.

Meanwhile, the sit-in assault continued on eateries in the Dixie city with the so-called RIGHTS LEADERS MEET WITH PRESIDENT—Summoned to the White House for a special conference with President Lyndon B. Johnson, four of the nation's top civil rights leaders conferred with the President concerning the present civil rights bill now before the Senate and his plans to cope with poverty in the nation. In the group were from left: Roy Wilkins, Executive Secretary of the NAACP; James Farmer, national director of CORE; SCLC President Martin Luther King, Jr.; and Whitney M. Young, Jr., Urban League Executive Director.

SCLC Sets Up New Washington Bureau; Names Walter E. Fauntroy As Director

Walter Fauntroy

A new SCLC bureau has been established in Washington, D. C., at 812 S St. N.W. and former Regional Representative Walter E. Fauntroy has been named as its director. In announcing the expansion move, SCLC President Martin Luther King, Jr. pointed out that because of the critical civil rights situation in Washington which demands constant attention, establishment of the bureau had become urgently necessary.

Fauntroy, who is 31 and has served SCLC as regional representative for the past three years in the Washington area, was handpicked by Dr. King for the new assignment. He will be assisted in the functions of the office by Atty. Belford Lawson, who will serve as legal advisor.

As new director of the SCLC bureau, Fauntroy will serve as Dr. King's spokesman on Capitol Hill, and will keep him

1,435 New Voters Register In Savannah During January

The Chatham County Crusade for Voters launched a drive to register 6,000 new voters during the next four months. The drive began with the stirring oratory of SCLC's President, Martin Luther King, Jr., speaking before a capacity audience in the Savannah Municipal Auditorium, after which 1,435 new voters were added during the first month of operation.

Reach Hard Core

Hosea Williams, Special Projects Director for SCLC, stated that this was an attempt to reach the "hard core" of un-registered Negroes in the city. Savannah already boasts a Negro vote which is 30 per cent of the total electorate, and Negro voters have been the determining factor in elections for the past four years. This vote, however, is primarily a 'middle class' vote, Williams pointed out, noting that the vast resources of the Negro voting potential remains untapped.

Register Unemployed

Special teams of workers under the direction of Henry Brownlee and Joseph Hankerson have scoured the streets and alleys of Savannah attempting to register and educate the unemployed Negroes of that city and educate them to the importance of voting as a partial remedy to their problem. Last reports were that 30 to 40 persons per day were being registered in this manner and pledging themselves to work through the Crusade for Voters in an effort to meet their problems through political action.

SUPPORT FOR FREEDOM — Checks totaling $2,858 were given to Miss Carole Hoover of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference of Atlanta, Ga., following a review of the book, Strength To Love, by Martin Luther King, Jr., SCLC President, at Los Angeles' Victory Baptist Church. The checks represented gifts and donations in connection with a book review program, sponsored by the Los Angeles Chapter of the Western Christian Leadership Conference, led by Rev. Arthur A. Peters (l.), president and pastor of Victory Baptist Church. Others from left: Rev. J. B. Reese, Rev. E. V. Hill, Rev. T. M. Chambers, Sr., Rev. Thomas Kilgore, Jr., Bishop L. C. Page, and Rev. C. A. SCLC Board Members, New York Times Win Reversal In $500,000 Libel Suit Brought By Ala. Police Official

The Supreme Court on March 9 unanimously threw out a $500,000 libel judgment awarded Montgomery, Ala., Police Commissioner L. B. Sullivan against four board members of SCLC and the New York Times in 1960. The libel suit was based on an advertisement in the New York Times of March 29, 1960, which carried a statement critical of the handling of racial demonstrations in Montgomery.

The advertisement was placed at the time by an organization called "The Committee To Defend Martin Luther King and the Struggle For Freedom In The South." It bore the names of Board Members Ralph Abernathy, SCLC treasurer; Fred L. Shuttlesworth, SCLC secretary; Joseph E. Lowery, SCLC second vice-president; and S. S. Seay, Jr., an executive board member of SCLC.

Cars Seized and Sold

When the judgment was returned against the SCLC officials and the Times in 1960, three of them had their cars seized and sold at a sheriff's sale as result of the verdict and two others had their lands seized. In winning their appeal, the board members will probably get back about $6,000 plus six per cent interest, the $6,000 being the value of their confiscated property.

The advertisement and the litigation stemmed from an appeal to solicit funds for defense of SCLC President Martin Luther King, Jr., who at the time, was under charges

Shuttlesworth Wins In Ala.

In a brief order, the Supreme Court on March 9 overturned a conviction of SCLC Secretary Fred Shuttlesworth on a charge of interfering with Birmingham police. The interference allegedly occurred on May 17, 1961, when police took into "protective custody" a group of "freedom riders" at Birmingham's Greyhound Bus station.

Shuttlesworth, sentenced to 180 days in jail and fined $100, denied any interference and said he was "convicted without evidence of guilt."

FIVE-POINT PLAN ADOPTED IN STATE-WIDE MEET OF 215

An all-out voter registration drive and assault on segregation in the state of Alabama was set in motion on March 4 by Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. in a state-wide meeting in Montgomery, Ala., of 215 conferees of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference's Alabama unit. The delegates, representing 30 counties and 24 communities, adopted a five-point plan of action aimed at breaking down discrimination barriers and securing the vote for Alabama's 481,000 Negroes of voting age, only 90,000 of whom are registered.

In addressing the group prior to adoption of the plan, Dr. King said:

"We have not lost sight of the fact that nonviolence was born in Alabama. Our meeting today brings us together in a state-wide effort in Alabama, with Montgomery as headquarters, to rid our state of its by-products of discrimination."

'Historical Moment'

"It was in Montgomery, Alabama, that the Negro made his most significant stride toward freedom, and we believe it may now be the historical moment to make this the most significant stride into freedom."

In a later press conference, Dr. King indicated that "Birmingham-type" demonstrations might take place in major cities across the state within 30 days because Birmingham has "reneged" on the desegregation agreement reached last May 10. It would, in effect, be an all-out assault on segregation and discrimination in the state, which has systematically denied Negroes the right to vote through such devices as literacy tests, poll taxes and an educational system which deprives Negroes of full political knowledge.

List Five-Point Plan

The five-point action program adopted by the SCLC State Conference is as follows:

1.) Cognizant of this critical election year, we commit ourselves to an intensification of voter registration in all of Alabama's communities.

2.) To initiate a state-wide coordination of masses in direct action to secure in fact

Dear Martin:

You either have, or will shortly have, an invitation to keynote the World Assembly of Youth, meeting this year in the United States, at the University of Massachusetts. Your eternal problem is, I know, which to accept of the never ceasing invitations to speak. The World Assembly of Youth, and its American affiliate -- the United States Youth Council -- hardly need me to speak for them, but I would nevertheless like to add to their's my hope that you can accept. This is a good outfit.

I had a most pleasant telephone conversation recently with Coretta. It's been too long since we have had an evening together; we'll call you soon, in hopes that may be remedied.

All best regards.

SCLC Scores Victory In St. Augustine Against Klan, Violence

Rebuilt Georgia Churches Dedicated

The three Negro churches which were burned two years ago in the rural area of southwest Georgia, were rededicated on Sunday, June 28, by SCLC President Martin Luther King, Jr. and others who had spearheaded a fund-raising drive to get them rebuilt.

Addressing more than 600 persons at Mt. Olive Baptist Church, Dr. King declared: "Two years ago I stood among the smoldering ruins of these churches. Those days told us of man's potential for evil. Now we see the goodness of man reflected. These new churches symbolize the quest for human dignity. You can't kill an idea. It will live on. The rebuilding of these churches symbolizes this fact."

Cost $100,000

The three churches—Mount Olive and Mount Mary in Terrell County and Shady Grove in Lee County—were rebuilt at a total cost of more than $100,000.

Former baseball star Jackie Robinson, who served as honorary chairman for the SCLC church fund, told the group: "We in the North can only hope that we can acquire the kind of courage you have in the South. With this spirit, we will be truly able

Report 275,000 Negroes Registered In Georgia

An estimated 275,000 Negroes are now registered voters in Georgia, according to the latest figures. Negro candidates are also being encouraged to qualify for public office. The statewide, non-partisan, non-political group, sponsored by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and the Georgia Voters League, conducted Citizenship Clinics in eight different cities, supported by the Voter Education Project.

Demonstrators Assaulted By Police, Ku Klux Klan

After more than a month of raging violence in St. Augustine, Florida, America's oldest city, in which more than 300 SCLC-led demonstrators were arrested and scores of others injured by Klansmen wielding tire chains, and other weapons, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. was able to proclaim victory in this rock-bound bastion of segregation and discrimination.

The nonviolent forces of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, determined in its desegregation thrust in this ancient stronghold of slave trading, suffered the most violent assaults to date at the hands of Ku Klux Klansmen, openly endorsed by law enforcement officials. Yet, they continued their protest marches by night and day to the old slave market where surly gangs of Klansmen awaited them with chains, clubs

SCLC Dispatches Anti-Riot Team North; Finds Teen-Agers Hostile To Everyone

By Andrew J. Young

"We're not here to tell you not to fight, we're here to teach you how to fight." This was the slogan of SCLC's team of community organizers as they moved North for the first time in an attempt to deal with Negro discontent in a hostile riot-torn Negro community.

As the National Guard pulled out of Rochester, leaders in the Negro community feared a repetition of the events of previous weeks and asked SCLC for help. A staff team, led by Andrew Young and James Bevel, moved immediately into the city and began work with the teen-age clubs which initiated violence in the city. Young and Bevel were accompanied by SCLC staffers James Orange and Richard Boone from Alabama, Willie Bolden and Lester Hankerson of Savannah, and Bernard Lafayette of the American Friends Service Committee, now working in Chicago.

Immediate Success

The team began to work in Rochester's 3rd Ward, along with 3rd Ward Supervisor Constance Mitchell, a social worker at the Montgomery Community Center, and perhaps the only person in Rochester who had established any rapport with the city's errant teen population. At noon on August 7th, SCLC's team divided into smaller groups and began to comb the streets of the Negro community. Several were dressed in bib-front overalls the work clothes of the Southern movement, so we were easily identified as strangers in the community. In spite of an open hostility to the idea of nonviolence, the group had amazing and almost immediate success.

Dr. King Tours Mississippi; Is Seen And Heard By 20,000 Persons

Philadelphia, Mississippi is a hot dusty town in the middle of the summer. The SCLC caravan found it's way up the red clay hills to the "community center," a small barn-like structure outfitted with a pool table, juke box and soft drink machine. When the word began to spread through the streets that Martin Luther King was in town, a beautiful, warm black crowd began to flow from the small houses and lawns toward the Center.

In a matter of minutes, more than 100 persons gathered, and Philadelphia, Mississippi began its first Freedom Rally. Dr. King began to speak in calm measured tones, but the warmth aroused the "preacher" in him and soon the spirit of freedom rang through the streets of this oppressive village.

IF NOT NOW WHEN !

An Address Delivered by the Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker, Executive Assistant to Martin Luther King, Jr. at the Hungry Club Open Forum, Atlanta, Georgia, May 6, 1964 as a part of the Annual Observance of Alpha Phi Alpha's Education For Citizenship Week.

Dr. Newsome, Brothers in Alpha, Ladies & Gentlemen: I am appreciative of the opportunity to address what is perhaps one of the most significant luncheon forums in the nation. Let me say to my Greek brothers that I am humbled that they have chosen me to speak during the Annual Observance of Alpha Phi Alpha's Education For Citizenship Week.

There is no need for me to confess to you that I am not an educator per se. However, I sincerely believe that the task with which my hands have been ~~buised~~ BUSIED for the past ten years or so is helping more than anything else to draw out of and develop in the Negro his stifled and blocked native capacities that have been literally strangled for the past one hundred years. If we deal with education from an etymological point of view, it means precisely that. The root word in the original Latin idiom is the verb duco meaning to lead. Coupled with the prefix ex, a preposition meaning from or out, it forms educo- literally to lead forth or to lead out of- from which the word education is derived. Thus in the literal sense, education does mean to lead or to draw or to develop from personality that which is already inherent. Thus the aim and end of result of education is not to put something in us but to develop that which we already possess to its ~~maximum~~ MAXIMUM.

To be sure there are different kind of education. There is in our person Biological education, In that moment when the spark of life is struck in the coniugal relationship, our being is 1/100th the size of the point of a pin. Yet at that microscopic level of development, the ear which is not yet formed is already adapted to hear and the tongue to taste and the eye to see. This is biological education. As we lay in our crib, in a few months, our eyes begin to distinguish colors we roll over, pull up on all fours, and ultimately walk. Sinew, muscle and bone strengthen and we clearly experience Physiological education. The one day, someone takes by the hand and leads us to school where we learn "reading, 'ritin, and'rithemetic" and we come to know the discipline of Mental education a as our minds are honed to sharpness. The ~~nature~~ NURTURE of our churches and the basic morality of our heritage develops within us a sense of Religious education, that I suppose in most instances we grapple with unceasingly to respect its demands. But yet the compounded discipline of all these are not sufficient to equip us to meet life on better than even terms. I submit to you that successful living is not measured quantitatively so much as it is qualitatively. The most meaningful life is that which spills over beyond its immediate historical context. Our concern should focus on the rest of life in such manner that our passing will be more than an incidental note in the obituary column but rather, that the presence of our lives can still be recognized in some humanitarian and noble cause long after the ashes of our remains are blown to the four winds. Thus, I would suggest within our immediate frame of reference - that of being a part of the Negro community and living in Atlanta, Georgia - that we need to submit ourselves to what I call Spiritual education. I mean by this to so develop within the aura of our lives, a sensitivity to the great issues of our time; the oppression of the weak, the exploitation of the poor, the terror foisted upon the defenceless, slaying of the innocent, degradation of the human spirit the hunger of the starvin g etc. A commitment to relieve these conditions should influence the bent of our lives. All of the others educational disciplines become empty and shallow unless unless they are undergirded by the discipline of an edueated spirit that translates into action the real meaning of life.

Thus, by this measure, how can we ignore in any degree the swirling events of sharp social transition about us which are aimed squarely at relieving many esternal and internal problems of the Negro as well as striking the shackles of prejudice and guilt from the white man as a prelude to establishing the beloved community. Against the backdrop, let us consider what is immediately before us in order that we may fix the responsibility that is ours.

No one need be sage or seer to discern clearly that 1964 will be a far more critical year in the civil rights fortunes of the Negro than was 1963. This assertion in no way is an attempt to minimize the importance of the epochal "summer of discontent." Rather it is aimed at underscoring what is to come in an awesome and devastating social context. The mood of the larger Negro community, white certainly not vengeful, bitter or violent, is distinctly one of extreme impatience with the continual denial of his basic freedoms: Behind his alleged unrealistic demand for "Freedom Now!" there stands his almost surly, "If not now, when?"

It is so very apparent that a counter-revolution at this moment is reaching its crest. The chief evidences are the "Stall-In" in the Senate on the present civil rights legislation and the polling of more than a quarter million votes by the racist George Wallace in the Wisconsin primary. There is hardly a reasonable conjecture that the Negro is going to turn around or even delay his forward movement though the resources and determination of the opposition must not be lightly judged. The few months (?) or weeks ahead will most certainly spell the moment of truth, not only for the Negro revolution, but in a larger sense, for the nation as a whole. If the counter-revolution displays more strength and stamina than the revolution that spawned it, America and the Negro community will be in real trouble. This is not meant to be a prophecy of doom, but only a realistic appraisal that there are two possibilities existent.

Let me address myself to the other possibility - that is, the off setting of the counter-revolution by a determined thrust forward by the Negro community and its allies. First, it seems that if the counter-revolution is to be turned aside, there will be definite ear-marks by which the Negro revolution will be heightened and intensified. It will be preceded and prodded by new events and dimensions, some of which we already have seen glimpses.

The Negro revolution will begin to develop in structured form along national lines. This does not mean the cessation of local protest, but rather a consistent pattern with a high degree of uniformity evident. The basic approach of the nonviolent revolution will not be changed. It will be marked by increasing frequency and intensity of activity. Broad goals will be sought as over against specific demands of the past. It is already evident that the South will not be the chief focus of activity. The entire nation will feel the brunt of nonviolent forces insisting "Freedom Now." The South will see most of the activity focused on public accommodations and the right to vote; . The North's activity will center chiefly on de facto school segregation and housing; both North and s South will give considerable attention to employment. In no event will any form of discrimination go unchallenged.

It has become remarkably clear in the national community that we have a problem. We thought after the civil rights bill cleared the House with flying colors, principally intact, that we were on our way to some solution. The recent events in the Senate and the advent of what has been called the "white back-lash" against civil rights, gives the general Negro community a sense of being on a treadmill. The much critized "Stall-In" in the words of Dr. King, "is symptomatic of the discontent, frustration and seething despair of the Negro" in the face of continuing and entrenched segregation across the spectrum of his experience North and South. It was above all else, a sincere attempt to dramatize the "unfair world" at the World's Fair. Somehow, the Negro intuitively understands that the nation will only respond to his dilemma under the hammer of national crisis. He is now convinced that "nobody really gives a damn!"

The Negro community has some concrete ideas as to how he might call national attention and relief to his problem. He contemplates seriously the implementation of a national program of economic withdrawal. With nation-wide coordination, it would be aimed at a show-case, giant, consumer industry. The convening city has already been chosen and only the date and the industry are left to be named.

To quote from an earlier paper:

> "A massive refusal to buy on the part of the Negro community and others of good will would throw the business community into shock. Maybe then, and only then, will the nation's financial leaders exert some initiative in eliminating the evils of segregation and discrimination."

Money does not talk, it screams!

We have already had intimations of what is to come. It is very possible that in the next few months that on some appointed day, at some appointed hour, the nation will be literally immobilized by widespread acts of civil disobedience. That day may not be far off if the nation does not act swiftly on the Negro's plea for justice and morality. Transportation centers could be strangled by the bodies of committed witnesses nonviolently insisting, "Freedom Now!" Airports, train stations, bus terminals and the traffic arteries of large cities could very well be the site of the next major battleground in civil rights.

The plight of the Negro is swiftly becoming desperate. On the one hand, he carries the social leprosy of his visible identity which has crippled him psychologically, emotionally and educationally; on the other hand, the dread onslaught of automation is grinding out his economic existence. He supposes that a nation-wide work stoppage might attract enough attention to persuade someone to do something to get this monkey of segregation off his back. And of course, there is the fast unto death. This is not as far-fetched as it seems for in an almost literal sense the Negro is economically and politically put to death by the thousands under the present system.

We may see one or all of these in the next few months ahead. Why is it that we must be concerned as to where our allegiance falls in the future? INSERT The summer of 1963 was long and hot; the summer of 1964 will be longer and hotter. The Negro, for the sake of our nation must find a definite answer to his present query, "if not now, when?"

Dear Mr. Dunbar:

On behalf of Dr. King, the Randolph Institute is helping to organize the orientation session for the thousand people who will be working in the South this summer. The orientation will take place from June 14th through June 19th. We would very much like for you to serve on the faculty.

It is obviously too late to clear by correspondence so will you, therefore, feel free to call, collect, either Mr. Norman Hill or me at the telephone number listed above; and we will discuss all arrangements with you.

Hoping to hear from you soon.

Dear Mr. Anthony:

At the present time there is great concern in many quarters regarding the terribly slow pace of school desegregation throughout the country. In both the North and South civil rights leaders have been able to see minimal gains in the area of school desegregation. As a matter of fact, the recent White House Conference planning session indicated that school integration in the North is being reversed, and that more than 90% of Negro and whites are attending segregated schools as of January 1966. This must not be allowed to continue if the present educational plight of Negro children is to be remediated.

In this regard, the education department of SCLC is prpposing a meeting of representatives from all civil rights organizations on January 25th in Atlanta to explain what our role should be in this area. We hope to draw up possible methods and approaches for each group represented to jointly effect the implementation of Title VI. Determined and immediate action and maximum cooperation of all civil rights organizations concerned seems strongly indicated.

We are planning to start with breakfast at 8:00 A.M. at B.B.Beamons Restaurant and concluding at 5:00 P.M. on that same day. The formal session will be held at the SCLC office at 334 Auburn Avenue, N.E. Please let me know immediately if you can attend this meeting. In addition to SRC representatives from other civil rights organizations have been invited: SNCC- CORE-NAACP- American Friends Service Committee and CCCO

(Al Raby)

Since most of the individuals that are being invited to attend this strategy session will be knowledgable in the area of school desegregation, there seems not to be a need to structure a rigid agenda; however, I sincerely hope that one of the many outcomes of this meeting will be some strong resolutions regarding our concern in the area of school desegregation, and proposed plans of action that the civil rights organizations can jointly take to bring about meaningful school desegregation by September 1966.

Respectfully,

Southern Christian Leadership Conference

Martin Luther King Jr., President

FOR RELEASE: IMMEDIATE -- August 7, 1967

"CRISIS IN CITIES" TO BE TOPIC

AT SCLC CONVENTION AUGUST 14-17

ATLANTA, GA. -- The crisis in America's cities will be openly discussed by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Bayard Rustin and Dr. Kenneth Clark at the first working session of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference's Tenth Anniversary Convention in Atlanta, August 14-17.

The three authorities will give in-depth analyses of today's rioting, its direct and indirect causes and effects. They also will propose specific solutions and programs to meet the urban crisis. Dr. King is president of SCLC, Mr. Rustin is director of the A. Philip Randolph Institute, and Dr. Clark is an author and psychologist at New York University.

All working sessions will take place at convention headquarters, Ebenezer Baptist Church, where the first meetings to found SCLC were held 10 years ago. Sessions will cover such timely and provocative topics as "Civil Rights and Politics," "Approaches to Poverty," and "The Movement for World Peace."

Two thousand grass-roots delegates including members of SCLC affiliate chapters throughout the nation will meet with leading political figures, government officials, economic and other experts, civil rights leaders, and SCLC Executive Board and Staff members.

(MORE)

Actor Sidney Poitier will deliver the main address at the official opening banquet, Monday evening, August 14, at the Regency Hyatt House Hotel. Singer Aretha Franklin will offer vocal selections. Others on the banquet program include Dr. King, SCLC Vice President Rev. Ralph D. Abernathy, Atlanta Mayor Ivan Allen, educator Dr. Benjamin E. Mays, and journalist Ralph McGill.

Two mass night rallies with nationally known speakers will be held, and a special program on "Negro Heritage and Culture" is scheduled.

Congressman John Conyers, Jr., of Detroit, Michigan, will receive SCLC's annual Rosa Parks Freedom Award, which is given for an outstanding contribution to the Freedom Movement.

The SCLC Affiliate of the Year Award goes to the Grenada County (Mississippi) Freedom Movement, which has conducted an all-out comprehensive rights campaign in a bastion of segregation.

Several news conferences will be held by leading participants at the convention.

Major events, sessions, meetings and speakers are as follows:

* Annual policy-making meeting of the SCLC Executive Board: Monday afternoon, August 14.

* Tenth Anniversary Banquet: Monday evening.

* "The Crisis in America's Cities": Tuesday morning.

* "Civil Rights and Politics": Tuesday afternoon. Hosea Williams, SCLC; Louis Martin, Democratic National Committee; Clarence Townes, Republican National Committee; Vernon Jordan, Southern Regional Council. William Pepper, New Politics. Summary address by Texas State Senator Barbara Jordan.

* Mass-rally: Tuesday night, Ebenezer Baptist Church: Judge Benjamin Hooks, Negro jurist and clergyman from Memphis, Tenn.; Episocopal Bishop James Pike.

* "Approaches to Poverty": Wednesday morning. Dr. Robert Theobald, economist; Dr. Maurice Dawkins, U. S. Office of Economic Opportunity.

* "Business and Economic Directions": Wednesday afternoon. Rev. Fred. C. Bennette, Jr. and Rev. Jesse Jackson, SCLC; Cirilo McSween, Chicago businessman; Randolph T. Blackwell, Southern Rural Action Project. Summary address by Dr. Vivian W. Henderson, economist and president of Clark College, Atlanta.

* "Negro Heritage and Culture": Wednesday night. Site to be announced.

* "A Look at the Movement for World Peace": Thursday morning. Rev. James Bevel and Rev. Andrew Young, SCLC. Summary address by Dr. Benjamin Spock.

* Mass meeting and convention conclusion: Thursday evening. Presentation of Rosa Parks Freedom Award by Rev. Abernathy to Congressman Conyers; major address by Dr. King; Rev. Howard Creecy, president, Atlanta SCLC (host affiliate).

The convention theme, "Where Do We Go From Here?", will serve to give all discussions a context of evaluating the last ten years of the civil rights movement and planning for the future.

MARTIN LUTHER KING
AND THE MONTGOMERY STORY

DECEMBER 5, 1955
WALK TO FREEDOM

DECEMBER 21, 1956
VICTORY FOR JUSTICE

IN MONTGOMERY, ALABAMA, 50,000 NEGROES FOUND A NEW WAY TO WORK FOR FREEDOM, WITHOUT VIOLENCE AND WITHOUT HATING. BECAUSE THEY DID, THEY PUT NEW HOPE IN ALL MEN WHO SEEK BROTHERHOOD, AND WHO KNOW YOU DON'T BUILD IT WITH BULLETS. NO ONE PERSON MADE THE MONTGOMERY STORY, BUT ONE MAN'S NAME STOOD OUT AMONG THE HUNDREDS WHO WORKED SO HARD AND UNSELFISHLY. THAT MAN WAS 29-YEAR-OLD MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR., MINISTER OF THE DEXTER AVENUE BAPTIST CHURCH AND PRESIDENT OF THE MONTGOMERY IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION.

YOUNG MARTIN GREW UP IN THE SHADOW OF THE CHURCH. HIS FATHER WAS PASTOR OF ONE OF THE LARGEST BAPTIST CHURCHES IN ATLANTA, WHERE MARTIN WAS BORN.

THE BASIC BOOK IN THE KING HOUSE WAS THE BIBLE. FROM IT YOUNG MARTIN EARLY LEARNED JESUS' TEACHINGS ABOUT LOVE AND ITS POWER.

MARTIN FINISHED HIGH SCHOOL AT 15 AND ENTERED MOREHOUSE COLLEGE IN ATLANTA. THERE HE WORKED WITH THE CITY'S INTERCOLLEGIATE CHRISTIAN COUNCIL, WITH BOTH WHITE AND COLORED STUDENTS.

AT CROZER SEMINARY, ONE OF SIX NEGROES AMONG NEARLY 100 STUDENTS, HE WAS ELECTED PRESIDENT OF THE STUDENT BODY AND GRADUATED AT THE HEAD OF HIS CLASS...

WHILE HE STUDIED FOR A PH.D. DEGREE AT BOSTON UNIVERSITY, HE MET AND MARRIED CORETTA SCOTT, A PRETTY YOUNG SINGER.

NORTHERN CHURCHES WERE OPEN TO THE YOUNG MINISTER, BUT IN 1954, MARTIN LUTHER KING AND HIS BRIDE DECIDED TO RETURN TO THE SOUTH.

I LIVE IN MONTGOMERY, ALABAMA. I LOVE MONTGOMERY, BUT I'VE HATED IT, TOO. A NEGRO ANYWHERE IN THE DEEP SOUTH HAS A HARD TIME. JIM CROW SITS MIGHTY HEAVY ON A MAN'S SPIRIT.

PEOPLE LIVE SCARED UNDER JIM CROW. I WAS SCARED, TOO. YOU NEVER KNOW WHEN SOMETHING MIGHT BUST OUT, AND I HAVE A WIFE AND BABY.

NOW TAKE ROSA PARKS. SHE REALLY HAD COURAGE. SAT THERE IN THE BUS THAT NIGHT AND JUST QUIETLY SAID NO WHEN THE BUS DRIVER TOLD HER TO GIVE HER SEAT TO A WHITE MAN.

WE USED TO PLAY--THE BABY AND I--RIGHT NEXT TO THE BUREAU WITH THAT LOADED GUN. I WONDERED IF I'D HAVE THE COURAGE TO USE IT TO DEFEND MY FAMILY. LATELY I'VE STARTED TO WONDER IF THAT REALLY WOULD BE COURAGE.

BECAUSE SHE WAS TIRED AND HER FEET ACHED, ROSA PARKS REFUSED TO GIVE UP HER SEAT IN THE BUS. ROSA PARKS WAS ARRESTED.

THAT NIGHT I COULDN'T SLEEP. I WAS GETTING SICK AND TIRED OF ALL THIS. I WOKE UP MY WIFE.
SOMETHING OUGHT TO BE DONE. ROSA IS A GOOD WOMAN AND NOT A TROUBLE MAKER. THEY HAD NO RIGHT ARRESTING HER!
BUT WHAT CAN WE DO?

I DECIDED TO TALK TO SOME OF MY FRIENDS. THE VERY NEXT DAY...
THEY MAKE US MOVE IF ANY WHITE PERSON WANTS OUR SEAT. WE OUGHT TO PROTEST-- AND NOT RIDE THE BUSES FOR A DAY.
NOW HERE'S MY PLAN...
Today Special

WE GOT OUT A MIMEOGRAPHED SHEET PROTESTING WHAT HAD HAPPENED TO ROSA PARKS AND CALLING FOR A ONE-DAY BOYCOTT OF THE BUSES.
THERE ARE 50,000 NEGROES IN MONTGOMERY-- HOW MANY OF THEM CAN WE REACH WITH JUST A FEW HUNDRED COPIES OF THIS LEAFLET?
LET'S JUST HOPE THAT THOSE WHO READ IT SPREAD THE WORD.

THAT NIGHT, WORD WAS FLASHED AROUND TOWN THAT THE PROTEST WAS SET FOR THE NEXT DAY.
YOU HEAR THE NEWS?
SURE DID. NOBODY'S GOING TO RIDE THE BUSES TOMORROW.

THE NEWSPAPERS OF MONTGOMERY HELPED MORE THAN THEY KNEW.
LOOK AT THIS! THEY'VE PRINTED IT UP BIG FOR EVERYONE TO READ.
THAT'S WONDERFUL. WE COULDN'T HAVE REACHED THAT MANY PEOPLE WITH OUR LITTLE SHEET. NOW EVERYONE WILL KNOW WHAT TO DO.
NEGROES PLAN BUS BOYCOTT

DECEMBER 5, 1955 -- THE DAY OF THE PROTEST, EVERYONE WALKED...
...OR RODE IN A FRIEND'S CAR... OR HITCHED A RIDE WITH NEGRO TAXI DRIVERS.
TAXI
OUR PROTEST IS A SUCCESS! NO ONE'S RIDING THOSE BUSES.
DURING THE DAY WE FORMED A COMMITTEE. THAT NIGHT WE HAD MEETINGS IN THE CHURCHES.
WE'RE CALLING OURSELVES THE MONTGOMERY IMPROVEMENT ASSOCIATION. WE'RE GOING TO SEE TO IT THAT NEGROES ARE TREATED FAIRLY IN THE BUSES OF MONTGOMERY..!
THE CROWDS WERE HUGE. WE USED LOUDSPEAKERS SO THAT THOSE WHO COULDN'T GET IN COULD HEAR WHAT WAS HAPPENING FROM OUT ON THE STREETS...
...I WANT YOU TO MEET THE LEADER WE HAVE CHOSEN TODAY... REVEREND MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR.!
AT THAT TIME I KNEW MARTIN LUTHER KING ONLY SLIGHTLY, BUT I SOON LEARNED THAT A NEW AND IMPORTANT LEADER HAD COME ON THE SCENE -- ONE AMERICA WOULD FEEL PROUD OF...
YOU ALL KNOW OF THE SUCCESS OF OUR ONE-DAY PROTEST. BUT A SINGLE DAY IS NOT ENOUGH. LET'S STAY OFF THE BUSES UNTIL WE CAN RIDE THEM WITH DIGNITY. LET'S WALK TO FREEDOM!
THIS IS A NONVIOLENT PROTEST AGAINST INJUSTICE. OUR CHIEF WEAPONS ARE MORAL AND SPIRITUAL FORCES. WE DEPEND ON LOVE! LOVE AND GOODWILL TOWARD ALL MEN MUST BE AT THE FOREFRONT OF OUR MOVEMENT IF IT IS TO BE SUCCESSFUL.

AND SO BEGAN THE WALK TO FREEDOM. DURING THE DAY WE WALKED... AT NIGHT WE HELD PRAYER MEETINGS.

WE WALKED AND WALKED AND WALKED... AND SOMETIMES THUMBED A RIDE LIKE ANY HITCH-HIKER.

THINGS WERE GOING ALMOST TOO GOOD. THERE WAS BOUND TO BE TROUBLE.

THE POLICE OFFICERS KEPT BOTHERING US. THEY EVEN STOPPED MARTIN LUTHER KING'S CAR.

JANUARY 30, 1956. SOMETHING HAPPENED ON THAT DAY THAT TOUCHED MY HEART AND DID SOMETHING TO ME. MARTIN LUTHER KING WAS SPEAKING AT A MEETING...

MRS. KING WAS AT HOME TALKING TO A FRIEND...

MARTIN LUTHER KING RUSHED HOME. A CROWD WAS GATHERED OUTSIDE. THEY WERE IN AN ANGRY MOOD, WANTING TO ANSWER VIOLENCE WITH VIOLENCE. AND THEN KING SPOKE TO THEM.

LATER, WE WALKED BACK THROUGH THE NIGHT TO OUR HOMES...

THOUGH WE TRIED TO LOVE OUR ENEMIES, THEIR HEARTS WERE NOT SOFTENED TOWARD US. IN THEIR ATTEMPT TO BREAK UP OUR BUS PROTEST, THEY INDICTED 93 OF OUR LEADERS, INCLUDING E. D. NIXON, OF THE SLEEPING CAR PORTERS UNION.

WE WERE THRILLED TO SEE MANY OF OUR LEADERS SURRENDER WITHOUT BEING HUNTED DOWN...

WE BEGAN TO MAKE PREPARATIONS FOR WHAT WE WOULD DO WHEN WE GOT BACK ON THE BUSES. THINGS WOULD BE DIFFERENT. WE ACTED IT ALL OUT.

THAT WAS HOW WE GOT READY TO GO BACK ON THE BUSES. TO MAKE SURE WE WOULD NOT BE ACCUSED OF VIOLENCE, WE DECIDED TO CLASP OUR HANDS IN OUR LAPS AND NOT USE THEM AGAINST ANYONE, NO MATTER WHAT HAPPENED.

THEN I SAW A NEWS DISPATCH THAT MADE MY HEART JUMP...
THE U.S. SUPREME COURT HAS DECLARED BUS SEGREGATION ILLEGAL IN MONTGOMERY!
DAILY COURIER
SUPREME COURT RULES BUS SEGREGATION ILLEGAL IN MONTGOMERY

ON DECEMBER 21, WE WENT BACK ON THE BUSES. SOMEONE SHOUTED VILE AND ABUSIVE WORDS AT A YOUNG FELLOW WHO WAS GETTING ON THE BUS.
ONCE I WOULD HAVE GOTTEN SORE ABOUT THAT-- AND SHOUTED DIRTY WORDS BACK--AND MAYBE HIT BACK!

BUT NOW IT WAS DIFFERENT FOR ALL OF US. WE ALL JUST SMILED. AND THAT DID SOMETHING TO THE MAN WHO SHOUTED. THE NEWSPAPER FELLOWS TOOK HIS PICTURE...
HEY! YOU'RE SMILING! I THOUGHT YOU WERE MAD AT THESE PEOPLE!
I AM! BUT IT'S PRETTY HARD TO STAY MAD WHEN THEY DON'T FIGHT BACK!

ONE BUS DRIVER MADE A WOMAN PAY HER FARE TWICE.
I'M GOING TO PRAY FOR YOU.
HERE! TAKE BACK YOUR FARE-- I DON'T WANT YOU PRAYING FOR ME!

ON ANOTHER BUS, SOMEONE SLAPPED A WOMAN.
I COULD REALLY WALLOP HIM-- HE'S SMALLER THAN ME! BUT I'M GOING TO REMEMBER WHAT REVEREND KING TOLD ME ABOUT PEACE AND NON-VIOLENCE. I'LL JUST KEEP MY HANDS CLASPED THAT WAY THERE WON'T BE ANY TROUBLE.

AT FIRST, A FEW BUSES ON NIGHT RUNS WERE PEPPERED WITH SHOTGUN BLASTS.
CRASH!
THEN THINGS SEEMED TO QUIET DOWN. IT WAS A FALSE QUIET.

THE KU KLUX KLAN PARADED THROUGH THE STREETS...

CROSSES WERE BURNED IN THE NIGHT...

THEN THE NIGHT BOMBINGS BEGAN. THERE WERE SEVEN OF THEM.

ONE OF THE HOMES BOMBED WAS THAT OF REVEREND ROBERT GRAETZ, WHITE PASTOR OF A NEGRO LUTHERAN CHURCH, WHO HAD BEEN ONE OF US RIGHT FROM THE START.

NEGRO CHURCHES WERE BOMBED AND AN UNEXPLODED BOMB WAS FOUND ON KING'S FRONT PORCH. BUT NOW MONTGOMERY'S LAW-ABIDING WHITE CITIZENS TURNED AGAINST THE VIOLENCE.

MARTIN LUTHER KING TELLS HOW A NATION WON ITS FREEDOM BY THE MONTGOMERY METHOD

"MAHATMA GANDHI STARTED HIS CAMPAIGN FOR FREEDOM IN INDIA IN 1919. IT LOOKED HOPELESS. THE BRITISH EMPIRE WAS THE STRONGEST THE WORLD HAD EVER KNOWN. INDIA'S PEOPLE WERE POOR AND POWERLESS."

"THE NEW CAMPAIGN MEANT SUFFERING AND EVEN DEATH. WHEN GANDHI CALLED ON THE PEOPLE TO FAST AND PRAY TO PROTEST A BAD LAW, THE BRITISH SHOT DOWN HUNDREDS OF THEM AT AMRITSAR. IT RAISED HORRIFIED PROTESTS ALL OVER THE WORLD."

"AGAIN AND AGAIN THEY PUT GANDHI IN PRISON, BUT THAT DID NOT STOP HIM. HE WOULD WAIT PATIENTLY, THINKING AND PRAYING, AND AS SOON AS HE WAS OUT WOULD START AGAIN..."

"MILLIONS OF THE POORER PEOPLE IN INDIA WERE CALLED 'UNTOUCHABLES'. THEY COULD NOT EVEN USE THE PUBLIC HIGHWAY. GANDHI RENAMED THEM 'HARIJAN--CHILDREN OF GOD,' AND LED THEM TO STAND IN THE FORBIDDEN ROAD. IT TOOK 16 MONTHS OF STANDING, BUT THEN THE POLICE GAVE IN AND LET THEM PASS."

"THE BRITISH PUT A TAX ON SALT, AND SAID INDIANS COULD NOT MAKE THEIR OWN SALT. GANDHI WALKED WITH HIS FOLLOWERS 200 MILES TO THE SEA TO BREAK THE LAW BY GATHERING SALT. SOON THE JAILS WERE OVERFLOWING WITH INDIANS--AND THE BRITISH DID AWAY WITH THE SALT ACT."
"IT BECAME HARDER AND HARDER FOR THE BRITISH TO KEEP CONTROL. THEIR JAILS WERE FILLED WITH INDIA'S BEST-LOVED LEADERS, INCLUDING SUCH MEN AS NEHRU, WHO LATER BECAME PRIME MINISTER."
"BESIDES, THE NEWS THAT BRITISH SOLDIERS WERE SHOOTING UNARMED MEN AND WOMEN AND PUTTING LEADERS IN JAIL, WAS TROUBLING THE BRITISH AT HOME."
THE VOTERS IN MY DISTRICT DON'T LIKE WHAT WE'RE DOING IN INDIA.
WE'LL HAVE TO GET OUT. THAT'S CLEAR.
"...FINALLY THE BRITISH GAVE IN AND GRANTED INDIA'S INDEPENDENCE. GANDHI HAD MADE A REVOLUTION WITHOUT FIRING A SHOT."
IT WASN'T EASY. IT TOOK YEARS OF NONVIOLENT STRUGGLE, MANY LONG HOURS OF PRAYER AND SUFFERING. THE INDIANS WERE SHOT AND BEATEN, BUT NEVER LICKED. THEY WON THEIR FREEDOM--AND SOMETHING ELSE, TOO. THEY WON THE FRIENDSHIP AND RESPECT OF THE BRITISH. THIS IS THE UNUSUAL THING ABOUT NONVIOLENCE--NOBODY IS DEFEATED; EVERYBODY SHARES IN THE VICTORY.

HOW THE MONTGOMERY METHOD WORKS

IN MONTGOMERY WE USED THIS NONVIOLENT CHRISTIAN ACTION TO GET JIM CROW OFF THE BUSES. IT CAN BE USED ANYWHERE, THOUGH, AGAINST ANY KIND OF EVIL. HERE IS HOW IT WORKS.

FIRST, REMEMBER THAT YOU CAN DO SOMETHING ABOUT THE SITUATION. NOT JUST THE GOVERNMENT, OR SOME BIG ORGANIZATION, BUT YOU. GOD SAYS YOU ARE IMPORTANT. HE NEEDS YOU TO CHANGE THINGS.

THE SECOND THING IS MUCH HARDER. GOD LOVES YOUR ENEMY, TOO, AND THAT MAKES HIM IMPORTANT TO YOU. YOU HAVE TO SEE HIM AS A HUMAN BEING, LIKE YOURSELF. YOU HAVE TO TRY TO UNDERSTAND HIM AND SYMPATHIZE WITH HIM.

TO SEE YOUR ENEMY AS A HUMAN BEING, YOU HAVE TO STOP SEEING HIM AS YOUR ENEMY. EVEN WHEN HE DOES CRUEL, HEARTLESS THINGS TO YOU, HE IS A CHILD OF GOD. HE IS YOUR BROTHER, EVEN WHEN HE HURTS YOU.

HARDEST OF ALL, YOU HAVE TO HELP YOUR ENEMY TO SEE YOU AS A HUMAN BEING. HE HAS TO SEE YOU AS A PERSON WHO WANTS THE SAME KIND OF THINGS HE WANTS: LOVE, A FAMILY, A JOB, THE RESPECT OF HIS NEIGHBORS.

IT WILL BE EASIER FOR HIM TO SEE YOU THIS WAY IF YOU ACT LIKE A BROTHER. SO, EVEN WHEN HE TRIES TO HURT YOU, YOU MUST NOT STRIKE BACK. EVEN IN YOUR THOUGHTS, YOU MUST NOT STRIKE BACK. YOU MUST GO ON LOVING HIM. LIKE THE SCHOOLGIRL IN LITTLE ROCK, YOU MUST SAY, "FATHER, FORGIVE THEM, FOR THEY KNOW NOT WHAT THEY DO."

THIS DOES NOT MEAN GIVING UP, THOUGH. IT IS WRONG FOR THIS BROTHER OF YOURS TO TREAT YOU AS THOUGH YOU WERE NOT A HUMAN BEING, AND IT WOULD BE WRONG FOR YOU TO HELP HIM TREAT YOU THIS WAY. YOU HAVE TO DO SOMETHING TO STOP HIM.

HE IS A HUMAN BEING AND SO HE CAN TREAT YOU BADLY ONLY BECAUSE, SOMEHOW, HE IS AFRAID OF YOU, OR OF WHAT YOU MIGHT DO TO HIM. IF YOU TRY TO STOP HIM BY USING VIOLENCE AND BY "GETTING EVEN", HE WILL BE SURE HE IS RIGHT IN BEING AFRAID OF YOU.

IF YOU SHOW HIM LOVE, THOUGH, YOU START TO TAKE AWAY THE REASON FOR HIS FEAR AND YOU MAKE IT HARDER FOR HIM TO GO ON HATING YOU. HERE'S HOW TO GO ABOUT IT.

FIRST, DECIDE WHAT SPECIAL THING YOU'RE GOING TO WORK ON. IN MONTGOMERY, IT WAS BUSES, SOMEWHERE ELSE IT MIGHT BE VOTING, OR SCHOOLS, OR INTEGRATED CHURCHES. DON'T TRY TO DEAL WITH EVERYTHING WRONG AT ONCE.

SECOND, BE SURE YOU KNOW THE FACTS ABOUT THE SITUATION. DON'T ACT ON THE BASIS OF RUMORS OR HALF-TRUTHS. FIND OUT.

THIRD, WHERE YOU CAN, TALK TO THE PEOPLE CONCERNED. TRY TO EXPLAIN HOW YOU FEEL, AND WHY YOU FEEL AS YOU DO. DON'T ARGUE--JUST TELL THEM YOUR SIDE, AND LISTEN TO THEIRS. SOMETIMES YOU'LL BE SURPRISED TO FIND FRIENDS AMONG THOSE YOU THOUGHT WERE ENEMIES.

NEXT, BE SURE YOU ARE READY. JOIN WITH OTHERS WHO FEEL THE WAY YOU DO. HAVE SOMEONE WITH EXPERIENCE COME IN TO TELL YOU HOW TO GET READY. TRY PRACTICE SITUATIONS AS WE DID IN MONTGOMERY. MAKE SURE YOU CAN FACE ANY OPPOSITION WITHOUT HITTING BACK, OR RUNNING AWAY, OR HATING.

WHEN YOU ARE READY, THEN GO AHEAD, AND DON'T TURN BACK NO MATTER HOW HARD THE WAY OR HOW LONG THE STRUGGLE. WHEN MY FRIEND, THE REV. RALPH ABERNATHY, FOUND HIMSELF ABOUT TO BE PUT IN JAIL IN MONTGOMERY, HE PRAYED, "GOD, I'M AFRAID TO GO TO JAIL. I'VE NEVER BEEN IN JAIL BEFORE. IF I GO, GOD, WILL YOU GO WITH ME?"

Dear Friend:

The following data is for your information.

You will recall the Southern Negro Leader's Conference (now a permanent organization known as the Southern Leaders Conference) held in Atlanta on January 10-11. Included in their "Statement to The South and Nation" was a report of a telegram to President Eisenhower asking him "to come south immediately, to make a major speech in a major city," and to "use the weight of his great office to point out to the south the moral nature of the problems posed at home and abroad by the unsolved civil rights issue."

Following this request by the Negro leaders an invitation was extended to the president by an interracial group of Southern Churchmen to address the conference announced in the enclosed "Call." The president did not find it possible to accept either the request or the specific invitation.

The enclosed telegrams are the answer to President Eisenhower's stated inability to accept the request of the Southern Negroes. They represent the basic action of the second conference held in New Orleans on February 14. The meeting was attended by 97 leaders from 35 communities in 10 southern states. I call your attention especially to the last two paragraphs of the telegram to the president.

Cordially yours,

Dear Mr. President:

Permit us to acknowledge receipt of the White House communication of January 18, 1957, stating your inability to schedule an address in the south to encourage the maintainence of law and order as requested by the Southern Negro Leaders Conference on January 11, 1957.

We pointed out in our letter to you that lawlessness was becoming a deeply disturbing feature of the daily life of our communities. Violence has continued to erupt by night and by day. It has grown to alarming proportions. Some of the acts of violence would be unbelievable were the grim ruins not mute testimony. Under the cover of darkness, dynamite bombs have been exploded in our churches and the homes of our ministers and citizens. We have been compelled to post unarmed guards nightly to protect our church property. We are no longer faced with sporatic violence, but with what appears to be an organized campaign of violence and terror.

Against this shocking background, we have met in New Orleans to consider your response to our request.

While we are sensitive to the burden of your responsible office, we are aware that human life and orderly, decent conduct of our communities are at stake. These imperative considerations make it difficult for us to accept as final your message that you cannot make a speech in the South at this time. It is our sincere belief that action on your part at this moment can avert tragic situations by cooling passions fostering reasonableness, and encouraging respect for law. In saying this, we are not unmindful of the immense responsibility of your office in the conduct of our national and international affairs. However, morality like charity, begins at home. Here at home, as we write, we are confronted with a breakdown of law, order, and morality. This condition is a sinister challenge and a threat to government by law. It calls for drastic and remedial action.

The flouting of the Supreme Court decisions serves not only to deprive a part of our citizenry of its rightful privileges but even more, it weakens the fabric of our democratic society for all citizens, Negro and White. The unleashing of violence against individuals who peacefully pursue justice, against Christian clergymen, and against the House of God are unspeakable crimes. They arouse the conscience of all honorable Americans to compel an end to those outrages as proof of their devotion to democratic and spiritual ideals.

To this end,

1. We implore you to re-examine your decision not to speak out to the south on the question of law and order.

2. We further urge you to call a White House Conference on the maintainence of law and order similar to those held earlier on Education and Juvenile Delinquency. We believe such a conference can help develop in the South and in the nation an orderly growth toward Civil Rights.

We ask you to do these things because our people, though resolute and courageous, cannot be expected forever to be targets for rifles, shot-guns, and for bombs, particularly when our women and children are brought within range of those deadly weapons. We know that if a halt is not put to these terroristic practices, our appeals for non-violent Christian behavior will come into serious question by those whose frustration it has already been difficult to contain.

We believe your inability to come south is a profound disappointment to the millions of Americans of goodwill both north and south, who earnestly are looking to you for leadership and guidance in this period of inevitable social change.

Mr. President, we urge you to give democratic leadership to the confused citizens of the south and the nation in this critical hour. We implore you to enunciate whether in the North or South and Eisenhower Doctrine for Democracy at Home.

In the absence of some early and effective remedial action, we shall have no moral choice but to lead a Pilgrimage of Prayer to Washington. If you, our president cannot come south to relieve our harrassed people, we shall have to lead our people to you in the capital in order to call the nations attention to the violence and organized terror directed toward men, women and children who merely seek freedom and first class citizenship. People of goodwill from across the nation will undoubtly join in such a pilgrimage for freedom and human dignity.

Mr. President, we prayerfully urge you to give early and serious consideration to the two requests we have made in this letter, for the violence our people face by day and in the dark of each night, makes it imperative that we hear from you at your earliest convenience.

Dear Mr. Nixon:

One month has passed since we urged you to make a trip into the South sinilar to the one you made in Europe on behalf of the Hungarian refugees. At that time we urged you to examine the violence directed toward Negroes in the South who merely ask for justice and freedom under law and to report your findings to the President and to the Nation.

We are sorry that you have not seen fit to answer out telegram.

Meantime, we note that you have been chosen to represent the United States government at the gold coast Independence Celebration March 6th, when that first Negro country in Africa receives its freedom from colonial domination.

We are convinced that you will better be able to represent America's defense of justice and freedom at the celebration, if prior to your leaving for Africa on March 6th, you arrange for the fact-finding trip we have proposed into the South.

In any event, we urge you to make such a trip at your earliest convenience.

Dear Mr. Brownell:

We have received your reply to our telegram of January 11, 1957, in which you state you cannot receive Southern Negro Leaders in a conference on our responsibility under law for peaceful social change. We regret your reply. The continued violence in the South over the last month leads us to feel a conference with you is now imperative.

In this connection, we were elated with your statement in Washington a few days ago to the effect that 165 years is far too long a period for Negroes to have sought justice. We were further impressed with your public support of the Civil Rights legislation now pending before Congress.

There appears to be a wide discrepancy between your public statements, and the manner in which some of the District Attorney's are inclined to act in the matter of prompt enforcement of Court decrees. (Of particular instance is your promouncement that bus segregation laws are dead letter and unenforceable in view of the Supreme Court Decision, and the lack of federal initiative and leadership in this area in the south.)

We therefore, feel that it is urgent not only to meet with you, but also to ask you to invite all Southern District Attorneys to join in this meeting. In this manner existing discrepancies can be cleared up, and a positive approach can be gained toward enforcement decrees.

Since there is every reason to believe that Federal District Courts in the South will extend integration into several areas, we believe that such a Conference should be had without further delay.

Thanks for your recent letter about the Southern Leaders Conference. I agree with you that it would be desirable to invite a representative of this group to take part in our next Southern meeting and will act accordingly.

I am taking the liberty of sending a copy of your letter on to Arnold Aronson, secretary of the CCD. Any decision about including the Southern Leaders Conference in that group will have to be made by him and the CCD Executive Committee, but I am sure that they would also take a favorable view.

Dear Harold:

I am sure that the formation of a permanent organization known as the Southern Leaders Conference has come to your attention. This resulted from the meetings in Atlanta on January 11-12 and New Orleans February 14. The temporary organization was called the Southern Negro Leaders Conference, but when it was made permanemt in New Orleans the group voted to use the new title.

I am suggesting to you the possibility of inviting them to participate in C.C.D. and in our own Southern group. I have not discussed this with Dr. M. L. King, Jr. chairman of the organization.

I am sending you the data of the last conference and will be glad to furnish other information regarding the group on the basis of my experience with them. I believe that it will be to the mutual benefit of all if this new and significant organization is included.

A Call

to

A Conference

on

Christian Faith and Human Relations

Because the Christian faith testifies that God has entrusted to His people a ministry of reconciliation;
And because this ministry has peculiar urgency in these days when divisions and hostilities threaten our country and our churches --
We call this Conference on Christian Faith and Human Relations, to convene in Nashville, Tennessee, April 23-25, 1957.

This invitation goes to churchmen who are united in both a Commitment and a search.

Our commitment is to Christ, who asks our loyalty and discipleship in all the walks of life. Through twenty centuries of human life His love has won men from their prejudices and resentments, their lesser loyalties and idolatries. Again today He asks that men worship not only with their lips but also with their lives.

Our search is for the specific meaning of Christian loyalty in our common life. Like all our countrymen, we are puzzled by many problems. We need to study, to pray, and to consult with each other about the meaning of our theological beliefs for our Christian living. Although we know that Christian faith impels us, not to withdraw from life but to serve God in the midst of His world, we need illumination on our present confusions as to how we can best serve God.

We call this Conference as a common testimony of churchmen to God's Lordship over life and as a common search for greater wisdom and strength in faithful living.

Atlanta 3, Georgia

Dear Mr. Fleming:

On returning to the office your letter of May 15, was found on my desk. I am very sorry that I got back too late to comply with your request. It would have been a real pleasure to attend the inter-agency conference and to have other representatives from the Southern Leadership Conference. I do hope that you had a most profitable meeting. Please feel free to keep me informed on future meetings and I am sure that I will be able to meet with you and have the Southern Leadership Conference send representatives.

Let me express my appreciation to you for the great work that you are doing in the area of better human relations.

Very sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Collins:

In the absence of Mr. Fleming we are responding to your letter of the 28th. Mr. Via had spoken of his recent conversation with you and we are happy to send you the enclosed materials.

Enclosed you will find a copy of our charter, dated January 6, 1944, and a copy of our By-Laws with recommended changes to be acted on in November by our Board of Directors. You will note that the By-Laws allow for the affiliated Councils on Human Relations which SRC established in each of the Southern states. These state groups are now independent organizations, of of October 1, 1957. This fact accounts for the recommended changes in the By-Laws.

We have found the matter of tax exemption to be an especially difficult problem for social and educational agencies. An excellent summary of the federal laws and conditions which apply to tax-exempt or would-be tax-exempt organizations has been prepared for the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials by Jules Cohen. We are enclosing a copy of that summary delivered at the NAIRO convention on November 28, 1956.

We are, of course, interested in the progress of your organization and would like to be kept informed. In turn, if we can supply you with further information, please let us know.

Sincerely,

Paul Anthony
Administrative Assistant

Dear Sir:

We are the attorneys for the Southern Christian Leadership Conference which is headed by Rev. Martin Luther King of Montgomery, Alabama. This organization in launching a southwide voters registration campaign among Negroes. We are considering incorporating the organization but before we do so we are making a study of the structure of other organizations so that we can take advantage of their experience in protecting themselves both from unwarranted persecution and from taxation by the southern states. We would therefore appreciate it very much if you would supply us with a copy of your charter, and/or act of incorporation and any other information which might prove helpful in this regard.

Yours sincerely,

RECENT HAPPENINGS

It has been seven months since the last MIA newsletter was published, and the editorial staff is grateful for the many letters of inquiries concerning it.

The MIA has been in the process of reconstructing its program, after thirteen months of emergency operation, to one of permanence and endurance. The ten-point future program to be undertaken by the Association includes: 1. Civic education and participation on a non-partisan basis. 2. Community relationship. 3. Education for individual competence. 4. Improvement of economic status. 5. Health. 6. Recreation. 7. Law enforcement. 8. Public relations. 9. Cultural advancement. 10. Spiritual enrichment.

GENERAL OUTLOOK

Integration on city busses is working smoothly, with both races accepting the social change as law of the land. But the Association faces a dark future just now, with some conditions getting worse, with no obvious efforts on the part of proper authorities to inaugurate "the equalization plan" in their so-called separate-but-equal doctrine.

1. Practically all of the 27,000 Negroes who lived within the city limits of near-by Tuskegee have been gerrymandered out of the city limits by legislative action designed to shrink the city to an all-white population. All but ten of the Negroes have been disfranchised because of the action. The city has a white population of about 7,000. To add to this injury, the people of Alabama will go to the polls on December 17, to vote on whether the whole county- Macon- in which Tuskegee is located, will be abolished so that the possibility of Negroes ever gaining control of the ballot will be eliminated. If this move is successful, twelve other counties with dense Negro populations stand ready for similar action, thereby merging Negroes to larger numbers of whites.

2. City architects are about to begin the erection of a sparkling glass and steel combination Museum-Library for white people, which will cost the tax payers $900,000. The same architects will build for the 46% Negro population a "branch" library costing $100,000. One wonders at the consciencelessness of city planners who can take a million dollars of public funds and allocate 9/10 to 54% of the city's population and 1/10 to the remaining 46% and expect "good race relations" to exist.

3. The park situation is just as unsatisfactory to Negroes in Montgomery. Recreational facilities for white and Negroes are incomparable, the ratio between them is of such magnitude. During recent months several Negroes were arrested for "recreating" in the park. Their case was later dropped. But the most grievous incident of recent weeks was the "beating, the arrest and fine imposed upon a seventeen year old Negro boy, whose only offense was "to walk through a park for whites", as a short route to his job. The case was appealed, and just this week, dropped by the judge. But the lad got the works, both from the judge and from the private hospital where he was employed as a porter. He was fired from that job the next week following his conviction.

4. Lawyer Fred Gray was arrested for "sitting in the white section" of the Montgomery Airport. His case was dropped, but not before a citizen of these United States suffered the embarrassment of arrest in a public airport, whose improvement is being financed by federal funds.

5. Reverend M.L. King, Jr. appeared on the National NBC Television broadcast three Sundays ago when Martin Agronsky, T.V. News Commentator, interviewed him. But some vandals, believed to be operating under the dictates of the WCC, which had attempted unsuccessfully to prevent the broadcast, sabotaged a cable and caused a blackout of the broadcast over surrounding areas. A film was made however, and the local station later shheduled a showing of the film.

6. The NAACP is still inactive in the State of Alabama as a result of the $100,000 contempt fine by a circuit court judge, for failure of the organization to produce records of memberships. The case is now pending in the U.S. Supreme Court.

7. Negroes have re-doubled their efforts to become registered voters. Stiff resistance is evidenced at the Board of Registrars, for out of the hundreds who go regularly only a few are able to qualify.

9. Many of the super markets have fired, or dismissed most or all of the Negro help. Even some of the truck drivers for leading stores have been replaced by white drivers.

Yes, the Montgomery Improvement Association has a great task ahead, but it plans to keep at the wheels of democracy until human rights are guaranteed every citizen of these United States, and until respect and dignity are accorded every man.

MONTGOMERY NEGROES TO OBSERVE SECOND MIA ANNIVERSARY

The MIA is preparing to observe its second anniversary during the first week of December (5-9), when an Education Workshop similar to the one followed last year will be conducted to help to educate the people in their continued struggle for freedom and first class citizenship.

Special seminars on Non-Violence and Social Change will be organized and developed around the theme: "Freedom Through Civic Responsibility." Among those who will take part in the Institute will be Dr. Archibald Carey, pastor of the Quinn Chapel AME Church of Chicago, and the Honorable Paul Simon of the Illinois Legislature.

The Institute will go through four days of seminars and mass meetings which will address themselves to the theme. Dr. King will be the principal speaker at the opening night mass meeting, Thursday, December 5. Two of the four seminars scheduled for the Institute will be given over to the youth of the city and surrounding areas. Contestants will vie together in the annual oratorical contest for the three scholarships that are awarded annually. After the contest, Friday night, the Institute preacher will deliver the Institute sermon at a mass meeting.

The last two seminar sessions will be conducted during Saturday, December 7. Nothing has been scheduled for Saturday night so that visitors might have free time to acquaint themselves with the citizens of Montgomery. In addition to the seminars and mass meetings will be the fireside chats. These will be held in the various homes after mass meeting each night.

The Institute will close after the huge mass meeting which is to be held on Sunday Afternoon, December 8. The speaker for this occasion will be Dr. Archibald Carey, pastor of the Quinn Chapel AME Church of Chicago. The public is invited to participate.

MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN

The membership campaign is one aspect of the anniversary celebration. It began in October and will terminate with the close of the institute on "Non-Violence and Social Change,", December 9.

The membership classifications are as follow: Youth $.50; adults $2.00, $5.00 and $10.00. The membership classifications are significant only in the light of the evaluation the purchaser places upon the work of the MIA; the future program of the movement and the economic circumstances of a person who desires to be a part of the struggle for freedom, justice and universal human rights.

The slogan for the membership drive is "WE HAVE COME TOO FAR TO TURN BACK". A membership from every interested person or organization, local and otherwise, will strengthen us in our struggle forward.

The individual that has the spirit and the means is asked to get a gold membership card for ten dollars. There are those who have the loyalty in spirit but they do not have the means. These are asked to do what they can.

Those institutions that feel like contributing fifty dollars will be given a white-and-gold certificate. Churches, social and civic clubs as well as other organizations too numerous to be mentioned in this letter, are in this classification. Individuals and groups that send contributions will be sent one of the MIA booklets. Those booklets embody the Ten Point Program of the organization.

INSTITUTE PARTICIPANTS LISTED

The full list of institute participants, not available before, follows: Honorable Paul Simon, Illinois Legislature; Atty. Harris Wofford, Washington, D.C.; Reverend Marshall Sheppard, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania; Dr. Archibald Carey, Quinn Chapel A.M.E. Church, Chicago.

FLASH!

Dr. M.L. King, Jr. became the proud father of an eight pound, seven ounce boy on October 25. He was named Martin Luther King, III.

Reverend Ralph D. Abernathy is the happy father of a second daughter, born August 5, to be called Donza Leigh.

Reverend B.D. Lambert has his first daughter among two boys, born October 28. All three of these are labeled "Protest" babies.

Hollywood plans to film "The Montgomery Story" next spring, with Harry Belafonte playing the role of Reverend King. Jeffrey Hayden is to direct the show and John Killens of New York is writing the story. When Director Hayden visited Montgomery to get permission to do the story and to gather data, he informed us that he was successful in getting consent of city officials to cooperate in the filming of the story in Montgomery. Since then, however, Commissioner Sellers, one of the city officials, has notified the producer that he has withdrawn his promise to cooperate, and he plans to "fight against it being filmed here or elsewhere," because it will "further glorify and praise M.L. King."

MIA EXECUTIVE BOARD SPEAKS

THE MEMBERS OF THE MIA EXECUTIVE BOARD, ALONG WITH THE ENTIRE ASSOCIATION, WISH TO EXPRESS THANKS TO ALL THE WELL-WISHERS OF THE MONTGOMERY MOVEMENT: THOSE WHO HAVE MADE CONTRIBUTIONS AND OFFERED PRAYERS FOR SUCCESS. AN INVITATION IS EXTENDED TO ANY AND ALL WHO MAY DESIRE TO ATTEND THE EDUCATION INSTITUTE. PROVISIONS WILL BE MADE UPON REQUEST FOR LIVING QUARTERS.

Dear Mr. Anthony:

We received your letter of October 31, 1957 with the enclosed material. We wish to express our sincere appreciation. The material you sent will prove invaluable to us. The material entitled "Tax exemption and Private Intergroup Relations Agencies" by Mr. Jules Cohen will be especially helpful, however, in reading over this material we note that page 14 was omitted. We would appreciate it if you would be so kind as to supply us with this missing page.

It is our intention to be in Atlanta in the not too distant future, and we would welcome the opportunity to confer with you and other members of your staff.

April, 1960

Dear Friend,

In recent weeks, three developments have combined to create a civil rights crisis of historic depth and magnitude:

First, Southern Negro students launched a mass offensive that is cracking the walls of segregation. Their courageous and non-violent spirit has awed millions and given a new dignity to the cause of freedom. In retaliation, the Southern racists have expelled them from schools, arrested and jailed them, denied them bail, and visited violence upon them.

Second, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference is spearheading a crusade to bring over a million new Negro voters into the 1960 Presidential elections, threatening the political power of the Dixiecrats.

Third, as the student sit-ins and voting crusade struggled on with grim determination, a vicious attack was directed at Martin Luther King, Jr. With calculation, the State of Alabama indicted the leader of the historic Montgomery Bus Protest on obviously false charges of perjury.

What is the purpose of this sinister indictment? It seeks to destroy leaders indigenous to the South to whom the students are looking for support and guidance, and to cripple the voting crusade now under way. Because of Dr. King's importance to these struggles, and because of his organizational drive and influence as president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the Dixiecrats are determined to jail him.

To defend themselves and to continue their assault on Jim Crow, Southern Negroes—especially the students—cry out for moral and material support. They face a fanatical and unscrupulous adversary. Your help is urgently needed now. This Combined Appeal gives you the opportunity to support both needs—the Student Defense Fund and the Committee to Defend Martin Luther King, Jr. It also makes your contribution most effective by minimizing expenses and simplifying your response.

We appeal to you to come to the defense of those who are daily risking their careers and facing jail terms and even death in their struggle to make our nation truly democratic.

Please send your generous contribution today. Funds are needed desperately.

DEAR FRIEND OF FREEDOM:

THIS IS A FORM LETTER. BUT, I WANT YOU TO KNOW THAT IT IS AS PERSONAL AND SERIOUS AS ANYTHING I HAVE EVER WRITTEN. IT IS AN APPEAL FOR YOUR SUPPORT FOR THE SOUTHERN FREEDOM STRUGGLE. THEREFORE, I HOPE YOU WILL READ EVERY WORD OF THIS LETTER WITH DEEP AND SYMPATHETIC CONCERN.

IN RECENT MONTHS, SEVERAL DEVELOPMENTS HAVE COMBINED TO CREATE A "CIVIL RIGHTS CRISIS" OF HISTORIC DEPTH AND MAGNITUDE:

FIRST, SOUTHERN NEGRO STUDENTS LAUNCHED A MASS OFFENSIVE THAT IS CRACKING THE WALLS OF SEGREGATION. THEIR COURAGEOUS AND NON-VIOLENT SPIRIT HAS AWED MILLIONS AND GIVEN A NEW DIGNITY TO THE CAUSE OF FREEDOM. IN RETALIATION, THE SOUTHERN RACISTS HAVE EXPELLED THEM FROM SCHOOLS, ARRESTED AND JAILED THEM, DENIED THEM BAIL, AND VISITED VIOLENCE UPON THEM.

SECOND, THE SOUTHERN CHRISTIAN LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE IS SPEARHEADING A CRUSADE TO BRING HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF NEW NEGRO VOTES INTO THE 1960 ELECTION. THE SUCCESS OF THIS CAMPAIGN WOULD, WE ARE CONVINCED, BE ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT STEPS TOWARD WINNING THE NEGRO'S EQUAL RIGHTS IN AMERICA.

THIRD, AS THE STUDENT SIT-INS AND VOTING CRUSADE STRUGGLED ON WITH GRIM DETERMINATION, A VICIOUS ATTACK WAS DIRECTED AGAINST ME BY THE STATE OF ALABAMA. WITH CALCULATION, THE STATE INDICTED ME ON OBVIOUSLY FALSE CHARGES OF PERJURY. WHEN THEY MOVED TO AID ME, FOUR OF MY CLOSE ASSOCIATES WERE ALSO STRUCK BY THE STATE. HAVING ENDORSED AN ADVERTISMENT IN THE NEW YORK TIMES APPEALING FOR FUNDS ON MY BEHALF AND THE STUDENTS, FOUR SCLC BOARD MEMBERS, REVERENDS RALPH D. ABERNATHY, J. E. LOWERY, FRED SHUTTLESWORTH, AND S. S. SEAY, ARE BEING SUED BY THE CITY COMMISSIONERS OF MONTGOMERY AND THE GOVERNOR OF ALABAMA FOR TWO AND ONE HALF MILLION DOLLARS FOR LIBEL.

IT IS CLEAR WHAT THE SEGREGATIONISTS ARE ATTEMPTING TO DO. FACED WITH THE ENDING OF THEIR OLD ORDER THEY WOULD DELAY THEIR DEMISE BY DESTROYING THE HEROIC MASS STUDENT MOVEMENT, BY DESTROYING UNCOMPROMISING NEGRO LEADERSHIP, AND BY DEMOLISHING OUR ORGANIZATIONS OF STRUGGLE AND PROTEST.

THE FRANCHISE IS A CITIZEN'S RIGHT . . . NOT A PRIVILEGE

YOU CAN PREVENT THIS BY GIVING YOUR MORAL AND FINANCIAL SUPPORT. EACH OF THE AFOREMENTIONED DEVELOPMENTS HAS GIVEN TO THE SOUTHERN CHRISTIAN LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE NEW AND HEAVY RESPONSIBILITIES. FUNDS ARE DESPARATELY NEEDED NOW FOR LEGAL DEFENSE; FOR THE STUDENT MOVEMENT WHICH CONSTANTLY CALLS ON OUR ORGANIZATION FOR AID AND GUIDANCE; FOR CARRYING OUR MESSAGE OF NON-VIOLENCE ACROSS THE SOUTH THRU INSTITUTES AND WORKSHOPS; AND FOR CONTINUING OUR VOTING CRUSADE. WE NEED TO EXPAND OUR STAFF AND TO PUT EXPERIENCED STUDENTS AND ADULTS ON THE FIELD TO PROPAGATE AN UNDERSTANDING OF NON-VIOLENT RESISTANCE. PLEASE HELP US MAKE THE SOUTHERN CHRISTIAN LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE STRONG FOR OUR BATTLE.

I APPEAL TO YOU TO HLEP US MAKE THE MOST OF THE HISTORIC OPPORTUNITIES BEFORE US. PLEASE SEND WHATEVER CONTRIBUTION YOU CAN AFFORD TODAY. SPEED YOUR GIFT NOW IN THE ENCLOSED ENVELOPE. NO POSTAGE IS NECESSARY. IN ADDITION TO YOUR IMMEDIATE CONTRIBUTION, I WOULD ALSO LIKE TO URGE YOU TO MAKE AN ANNUAL PLEDGE TO OUR ORGANIZATION. ALSO, HAVE YOUR CHURCH, CLUB, OR OTHER ORGANIZATION TO DO LIKEWISE. THIS WILL KEEP OUR WORK GOING ON A SUBSTANTIAL BASIS. THE PLEDGE CARD IS ENCLOSED - PLEASE RETURN IT TODAY WITH YOUR CONTRIBUTION. AS YOU WRITE YOUR CHECK THINK OF A FEW OF OUR HEROIC BOARD MEMBERS SUCH AS DAISY BATES, FRED SHUTTLESWORTH, C. K. STEELE, RALPH D. ABERNATHY, ONLY TO MENTION A FEW, AND THE HEROIC STUDENTS OF THE SOUTH. IF THEY CAN FACE JEERING AND HOSTILE MOBS AND SUFFER BRUTAL AND NIGHTMARISH BOMBINGS TO ADVANCE JUSTICE, HOW CAN YOU AND I BE LESS GENEROUS IN OUR SUPPORT?

YOURS FOR THE CAUSE OF FREEDOM,

Dear Mr. Reid:

Thank you for your letter of January 10 and the invitation it extends. We are, of course, deeply concerned with the plight of the children of Prince Edward County and are appreciative of the leadership offered by your organization.

Thus I regret all the more the Southern Regional Council's inability to serve as sponsor of the proposed pilgrimage. The Council's charter and policies prevent its serving as sponsor or participant in this type of demonstration, sympathetic though we are with its aims and sponsorship.

As you may know, however, our associated group in Virginia -- the Virginia Council on Human Relations -- has been closely in touch with, and active in, the Prince Edward situation. We have cooperated closely with the Virginia Council and its director, Mr. Daniel Bowers, in these efforts. You may wish to consider inviting the Virginia Council, as a directly involved group, to cooperate in the proposed Washington pilgrimage.

Please be assured of our good wishes for you and the Virginia Christian Leadership Conference, and for your efforts to relieve the tragic situation of the school children in Prince Edward County.

Sincerely yours,

Mr. Harold Flemmings
Southern Regional Council

Dear Mr. Flemmings:

As per our recent conference, the Virginia Christian Leadership Conference is sponsoring a pilgrimage for free public school education in our nation's capital on or about March 7, 1961. The date to this point is tentative and a permanent date will be set by January 31. The pilgrimage which will be called possibly a "school-in", will be held in Washington, D. C. on behalf of 4,000 disposed black and white boys and girls in Prince Edward County, Virginia. The closing of schools to avoid integration is without question an open defiance of law and order, and is to date unprecedented in the history of our nation.

The Virginia Conference plans to bring to the silent lawmakers of the land not less than 500 white and Negro students in Prince Edward. We want them to see and hear the voices of youth crying in this American wilderness. Plans are underway to make an appeal to the Honorable John F. Kennedy. We hope to have a mass demonstration of concern by having students from across the state to participate in a parade with high school and possibly college bands. After the parade, we plan a mass assembly in Washington at which time we trust that our president will personally address himself to this situation. We recognize the fact that Mr. Kennedy will be new in his office, but the school closing is old in Prince Edward County.

We ask of you your sponsorship for this pilgrimage, as we wish to make this effort a nation-wide affair. I have made contact with organized groups in the civil rights struggle, such as The American Friends, The Congress of Racial Equality, The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, The National Council of Negro Women, The National Beauticians Association, The Southern Christian Leadership Conference, and with Mr. A. Phillip Randolph, Vice-president C.I.O.-A.F. of L. Sponsorship will mean a representative from your office as a member of the sponsorship committee, that will make detailed program planning; to give financial assistance (approximately $500); and a mailing to members of your organization announcing the "school-in".

Please let me know by return mail or as soon as possible whether or not you will be an endorser and a sponsor. The greater portion of the expenses involved will be used for the transportation of Prince Edward County students, and to give them the evening meal before returning to Prince Edward. We do not plan to keep them overnight. They will eat breakfast at home and will bring a lunch. The first meeting of the sponsorship committee will be held in Washington on January 31. Time and place will be forwarded to you immediately upon your reply.

Yours for the cause of human justice,

Dear Martin:

Thanks so much for your letter of February 13, and for your thoughtfulness in sending me a reprint of your Nation article. It is a clear and forceful statement and couldn't be more timely. Needless to say, we are gratified that Dan Pollitt's study has proved so useful.

Between your whirlwind schedule and my own complications, I despair of the prospect of our seeing one another as often as I should like. But I do hope we will manage it soon.

Meanwhile, all good wishes.

Sincerely,

Dear ~~Mr. Fleming~~ Harold:

Enclosed is a re-print of the article which I wrote over the Christmas holidays. I thought you may be interested in reading it. I was amazed to discover, after careful research, the powerful things that the President can do in the area of civil rights through Executive Orders. I hope that through the necessary pressure and persuasion we will be able to bring many of these possibilities into full realization under the new administration. I tried to bring some of these things out in the article.

Incidently, most of my information concerning Executive Orders came from the study made by Dan Pollit which your secretary was gracious enough to mail to me. Thank you very much for providing me with this valuable material.

Sincerely yours,

Martin

P.S. I was so happy to read the article in the New York Times concerning you a few days ago. It was an excellent piece and you justly deserved every word of it

THE PRESIDENT HAS THE POWER

THE NEW Administration has the opportunity to be the first in one hundred years of American history to adopt a radically new approach to the question of civil rights. It must begin, however, with the firm conviction that the principle is no longer in doubt. The day is past for tolerating vicious and inhuman opposition on a subject which determines the lives of 20,000,000 Americans. We are no longer discussing the wisdom of democracy over monarchism—and we would not permit hoodlum royalists to terrorize the streets of our major cities or the legislative halls of our states. We must decide that in a new era, there must be new thinking. If we fail to make this positive decision, an awakening world will conclude that we have become a fossil nation, morally and politically; and no floods of refrigerators, automobiles or color TV sets will rejuvenate our image.

The second element in a new approach is the recognition by the federal government that it has sufficient power at its disposal to guide us through the changes ahead. The intolerably slow pace of civil rights is due at least as much to the limits which the federal government has imposed on its own actions as it is to the actions of the segregationist opposition.

If we examine the total of all judicial, executive and legislative acts of the past three decades and balance them against the sum needed to achieve fundamental change, two startling conclusions are inescapable. The first is the hopeless inadequacy of measures adopted—pitifully insufficient in scope and limited in conception. The second conclusion is even more disturbing. Federal action has been not only inadequate; viewed as a whole, it has also been self-nullifying. In 1954, the Supreme Court declared school segregation to be unconstitutional. Yet, since then federal executive agencies and vast federal legislative programs have given millions of dollars yearly to educational institutions which continue to violate the Supreme Court decision.

FURTHER, the federal government collects taxes from all citizens, Negro and white, which it is Constitutionally obligated to use for the benefit of all; yet, billions of these tax dollars have gone to support housing programs and hospital and airport construction in which discrimination is an open and notorious practice. Private firms which either totally exclude Negroes from the work force, or place them in discriminatory status, receive billions of dollars annually in government contracts. The federal government permits elections and seats representatives in its legislative chambers in disregard of the fact that millions of Negro citizens have no vote. It directly employs millions in its various agencies and departments; yet its employment practices, especially in Southern states, are rife with discrimination.

These illustrations can be multiplied many times. The shocking fact is that while the government moves sluggishly, and in patchwork fashion, to achieve equal rights for all citizens, in the daily conduct of its own massive economic and social activities it participates directly and indirectly in the denial of these rights. We must face the tragic fact that the federal government is the nation's highest investor in segregation.

Therefore, a primary goal of a well-meaning Administration should be a thorough examination of its own operations and the development of a rigorous program to wipe out immediately every vestige of federal support and sponsorship of discrimination. Such a program would serve not only to attack the problem centrally, where results can be produced, but collaterally to educate and influence the whole American populace, especially in the Deep South of massive resistance. It would also be the first step in the evolution of federal leadership to guide the entire nation to its new democratic goals.

THERE is impressive precedent in recent history for massive governmental mobilization to create new conditions. As a consequence of economic crisis in the early thirties, the federal government, under the leadership of President Kennedy's party, undertook to change fundamental economic relationships. Every person in the nation was affected. In a bewilderingly brief period, wages were regulated at new levels, unemployment insurance created, relief agencies set up, public works planned and executed. Regulatory legislation covering banking, the stock market and money market was immediately enacted. Laws protecting trade-union organization were brought into being and administrative agencies to interpret and enforce the labor laws were created. Along with this broad assault on the depression went an educational campaign to facilitate the changes in public psychology requisite to the acceptance of such formidable alternatives to old thought patterns. The nation which five years earlier viewed federal intervention on any level as collectivism or socialism, in amazingly swift transition, supported the new role of government as appropriate and justified.

These breathtaking, fundamental changes took place because a leadership emerged that was both determined and bold, that rejected inhibitions imposed by old traditions and habits. It utilized all agencies and organs of government in a massive drive to change a situation which imperiled the very existence of our society.

Viewed in this light, an Administration with good will, sincerely desirous of eliminating discrimination from American life, could accomplish its goal by mobilizing the immense resources of the organs of government and throwing them into every area where the problem appears. There are at least three vital areas in which the President can work to bring about effective solutions.

First, there is the legislative area. The President could take the offensive, despite Southern opposition, by fighting for a really far-reaching legislative program. With resolute Presidential leadership, a majority in both houses could be persuaded to pass meaningful laws. A determined majority-party leadership possesses the means to carry the reluctant along —and to hasten the end of the political careers, or the privileges, of those who prove unyielding. The influence the President can exert upon Congress when, with crusading zeal, he summons support from the nation has been demonstrated more than once in the past.

AN EXAMPLE of an area in which a vigorous President could significantly influence Congress is that of voter registration. The Civil Rights Commission has revealed that "many Negro American citizens find it difficult, and often impossible, to vote." It went on to assert that these voting denials are accomplished through the creation of legal impediments, administrative obstacles and the fear of economic reprisal and physical harm. A truly decisive President would work passionately and unrelentingly to change these shameful conditions. He would take such a creative general proposal as that made by the Civil Rights Commission of 1959 on Federal Registrars to insure the right to vote, and would campaign "on the Hill" and across the nation until Congress acted. He would also have the courage to insist that, in compliance with the Fourteenth Amendment, a state's representation in Congress be reduced in proportion to the number of citizens denied the right to vote because of race [see "Forgotten Remedy for the Voteless Negro," by Thomas I. Emerson and Arthur E. Bonfield, The Nation, January 21].

This approach would help us eliminate the defeatist psychology engendered by the alliance of Dixiecrats and Northern reactionaries in Congress. The same alliance, existing in even greater strength, failed in the past to stop legislation that altered patterns just as deeply imbedded in American mores as racial discrimination. It is leadership and determination that counts—and these have been lacking of recent years.

A SECOND area in which the President can make a significant contribution toward the elimination of racial discrimination is that of moral persuasion. The President is the embodiment of the democratic personality of the nation, both domestically and internationally. His own personal conduct influences and educates. If he were to make it known that he would not participate in any activities in which segregation exists, he would set a clear example for Americans everywhere, of every age, on a simple, easily understood level.

The calling of White House conferences of Negro and white leaders could be extremely useful. The President could serve the great purpose of opening the channels of communication between the races. Many white Southerners who, for various reasons, fear to meet with Negro leaders in their own communities would participate unhesitatingly in a biracial conference called by the President.

It is appropriate to note here that, even in the hard core South, a small but growing number of whites are breaking with the old order. These people believe in the morality as well as the Constitutionality of integration. Their still, small voices often go unheard amid the louder shouts of defiance, but they are active in the field. They often face problems of ostracism and isolation as a result of their stand. Their isolation and difficulties would be lessened if they were among the invitees to the White House to participate in a conference on desegregation.

No effort to list the President's opportunities to use the prestige of his office to further civil rights could be adequate; from fireside chats to appearances at major events, the list is endless. All that is needed at the outset is a firm resolve to make the Presidency a weapon for this democratic objective; the opportunities would then arise by themselves.

BUT BEYOND the legislative area and the employment of Presidential prestige, a weapon of overwhelming significance lies in the Executive itself. It is no exaggeration to say that the President could give segregation its death blow through a stroke of the pen. The power inherent in Executive orders has never been exploited; its use in recent years has been microscopic in scope and timid in conception.

Historically, the Executive has promulgated orders of extraordinary range and significance. The Emancipation Proclamation was an Executive order. The integration of the Armed Forces grew out of President Truman's Executive Order 8891. Executive orders could require the immediate end to all discrimination in any housing accommodations financed with federal aid. Executive orders could prohibit any contractor dealing with any federal agency from practicing discrimination in employment by requiring (a) cancellation of existing contracts, (b) and/or barring violators from bidding, (c) and/or calling in of government loans of federal funds extended to violators, (d) and/or requiring renegotiation of payment to exact financial penalties where violations appear after performance of a contract. With such effective penalties, enforcement of fair employment practices would become self-imposed by those enjoying billions of dollars in contracts with federal agencies.

An Executive order could also bring an immediate end to the discriminatory employment policies of federal agencies and departments. It is no secret that, despite statutes to the contrary, Negroes are almost totally excluded from skilled, clerical and supervisory jobs in the federal government. A recent report of the President's Committee on Government Employment states: "That there is discrimination in federal employment is unquestionably true." A basic reason for this is that there have never been any sanctions imposed for violations of the law. In a real sense, a President can eliminate discrimination in federal employment, just as it was eliminated in the military services, by setting up adequately staffed committees with authority to punish those who violate official government policy from the inside.

We can easily see how an end to discriminatory practices in federal agencies would have tremendous value in changing attitudes and behavior patterns. If, for instance, the law-enforcement personnel in the FBI were integrated, many persons who now defy federal law might come under restraints from which they are presently free. If other law-enforcement agencies under the Treasury Department, such as the Internal Revenue Service, the Bureau of Narcotics, the Alcohol Tax Unit, the Secret Service and Customs had an adequate number of field agents, investigators and administrators who were Negro, there would be a greater respect for Negroes as well as the assurance that prejudicial behavior in these agencies toward citizens would cease.

ANOTHER area in which an Executive order can bring an end to a considerable amount of discrimination is that of health and hospitalization. Under the Hill-Burton Act, the federal government grants funds to the states for the construction of hospitals. Since this program began in 1948, more than $100 million a year has gone to the states in direct aid. The government also makes grants to the states for mental health, maternal and child-care services, and for programs designed to control tuberculosis, cancer and heart disease. In spite of this sizable federal support, it is a known fact that most of the federally financed and approved health and hospitalization programs in the South are operated on a segregated basis. In many instances, the Southern Negroes are denied access to them altogether.

The President could wipe out these shameful conditions almost overnight by simply ordering his Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare not to approve grants to states whose plans authorize segregation or denial of service on the basis of race. This type of sanction would bring even the most recalcitrant Southerners into line.

There is hardly any area in which Executive leadership is needed more than in housing. Here the Negro confronts the most tragic expression of discrimination; he is consigned to ghettos and overcrowded conditions. And here the North is as guilty as the South.

Unfortunately, the federal government has participated directly and indirectly in the perpetuation of housing discrimination. Through the Federal Housing Administration (FHA), the Public Housing Administration (PHA), Urban Renewal Administration (URA), and the Veterans Administration Loan Program, the federal government makes possible most of the building programs in the United States. Since its creation in 1934, the FHA alone has insured more than $33 billion in mortgages involving millions of homes. As a result of PHA programs, more than two million people presently live in more than 2,000 low-rent housing projects in forty-four states and the District of Columbia. The URA, which was established in 1954 to help cities eliminate slum and blighted areas, has approved projects in more than 877 localities. The GI Bill of Rights authorizes the Veterans Administration to make loans outright to veterans for the construction of homes. This program has become so extensive that there have been years in which 30 per cent of all new urban dwelling units were built with the help of VA loan guarantees.

WHILE most of these housing programs have anti-discrimination clauses, they have done little to end segregated housing. It is a known fact that FHA continues to finance private developers who openly proclaim that none of their homes will be sold to Negroes. The Urban Renewal program has, in many instances, served to accentuate, even to initiate, segregated neighborhoods. (Since a large percentage of the people to be relocated are Negroes, they are more than likely to be relocated in segregated areas.)

A President seriously concerned about this problem could direct the Housing Administrator to require all participants in federal housing programs to agree to a policy of "open occupancy." Such a policy could be enforced by (a) making it mandatory for all violators to be excluded from future participation in federally financed housing programs and (b) by including a provision in each contract giving the government the right to declare the entire mortgage debt due and payable upon breach of the agreement.

These are merely illustrations of acts possible of multiplication in many other fields.

EXECUTIVE policy could reshape the practices and programs of other agencies and departments whose activities affect the welfare of millions. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare could be directed to coordinate its resources to give special aid in those areas of the country where assistance might change local attitudes. The department could give valuable assistance to local school boards without any additional legislative enactments.

The Department of Agriculture—which doubtless considers civil-rights issues as remote from its purview—could fruitfully reappraise its present operations with a view to taking certain steps that require no new legislative powers. The department could be of tremendous assistance to Negro farmers who are now denied credit simply because of their desire to exercise their citizenship rights. To wipe out this kind of discrimination would be to transform the lives of hundreds of thousands of Negroes on the land. A department zealous to implement democratic ideals might become a source of security and help to struggling farmers rather than a symbol of hostility and discrimination on the federal level.

A Justice Department that is imbued with a will to create justice has vast potential. The employment of powerful court orders, enforced by sizable numbers of federal marshals, would restrain lawless elements now operating with inexcusable license. It should be remembered that in early American history it was the federal marshal who restored law in frontier communities when local authority broke down.

In the opinion of many authorities Executive power, operating through the Attorney General, opens many hitherto untried avenues for Executive action in the field of school desegregation. There are existing laws under which the Attorney General could go into court and become a force in the current school struggles. Atrophy is not alone a medical phenomenon; it has its counterpart in social and political life. Long years of ignoring this area of law and Executive power have led, indeed, to atrophy; nothing is done, nothing is studied, though new situations arise constantly where existing laws could reasonably be utilized.

SPACE WILL NOT permit a spelling out of all the measures by which every federal body could contribute to the enforcement of civil rights. This is the task of a master plan. Nor is it necessary to detail a legislative program, nor to list still unused powers inherent in the Judiciary. Justices J. Skelley Wright and W. A. Bootle in Louisiana and Georgia respectively have given examples of the ability of a single Federal District Judge to handle the unconstitutional maneuverings of state legislatures.

The purpose of this review is to emphasize that a recognition of the potentials of federal power is a primary necessity if the fight for full racial equality is to be won. With it, however, must go another indispensable factor—the recognition by the government of its moral obligation to solve the problem.

A recent visit to India revealed to me the vast opportunities open to a government determined to end discrimination. When it confronted the problem of centuries-old discrimination against the "untouchables," India began its thinking at a point that we have not yet reached. Probing its moral responsibilities, it concluded that the country must atone for the immense injustices imposed upon the untouchables. It therefore made provision not alone for equality, but for special treatment to enable the victims of discrimination to leap the gap from backwardness to competence. Thus, millions of rupees are set aside each year to provide scholarships, financial grants and special employment opportunities for the untouchables. To the argument that this is a new form of discrimination inflicted upon the majority population, the Indian people respond by saying that this is their way of atoning for the injustices and indignities heaped in the past upon their 70 million untouchable brothers.

Although discrimination has not yet been eliminated in India, the atmosphere there differs sharply from that in our country. In India, it is a crime punishable by imprisonment to practice discrimination against an untouchable. But even without this coercion, so successfully has the government made the issue a matter of moral and ethical responsibility that no government figure or political leader on any level would dare defend discriminatory practices. One could wish that we here in the United States had reached this level of morality.

TO COORDINATE the widespread activities on the civil rights front, the President should appoint a Secretary of Integration. The appointee should be of the highest qualifications, free from partisan political obligations, imbued with the conviction that the government of the most powerful nation on earth cannot lack the capacity to accomplish the rapid and complete solution to the problem of racial equality.

These proposals for federal action do not obviate the necessity for the people themselves to act, of course. An Administration of good faith can be strengthened immeasurably by determined popular action. This is the great value of the non-violent direct-action movement that has engulfed the South. On the one hand, it gives large numbers of people a method of securing moral ends through moral means. On the other hand, it gives support and stimulation to all those agencies which have the power to bring about meaningful change. Thousands of courageous students, sitting peacefully at lunch counters, can do more to arouse the Administration to positive action than all of the verbal and written commentaries on governmental laxity put together.

WHEN our government determines to ally itself with those of its citizens who are crusading for their freedom within our borders, and lends the might of its resources creatively and unhesitatingly to the struggle, the blight of discrimination will begin rapidly to fade.

History has thrust upon the present Administration an indescribably important destiny—to complete a process of democratization which our nation has taken far too long to develop, but which is our most powerful weapon for earning world respect and emulation. How we deal with this crucial problem of racial discrimination will determine our moral health as individuals, our political health as a nation, our prestige as a leader of the free world. I can think of few better words for the guidance of the new Administration than those which concluded the 1946 report of the President's Commission on Civil Rights: "The United States is not so strong, the final triumph of the democratic ideal not so inevitable that we can ignore what the world thinks of us or our record." These words are even more apt today than on the day they were written.

WE ALL SHARED in the surge of pride which coursed from Albany, Ga., to the Justice Department in Washington when that rich and pleasant little city weathered demonstrations and arrests of more than 700 Negroes with impeccable policing and no blood in the streets.

Here was the first Negro uprising, an unique one of resolute Negroes of all ages and classes welcoming jail by the hundreds, in the dread deeps of South Georgia. The week-long demonstrations were appeased and halted without mob violence, police brutality or the long-predicted flow of blood in the streets. Indeed, the spacious and sunny streets of Albany, festooned with silver for Christmas business, remained quite unspattered by gore and unlittered with dead bodies. The proud relief of one and all over this happy circumstance moved Robert Kennedy to congratulate the Mayor of Albany and inspired the able young Police Chief Laurie Pritchett to observe that while his roots are deep in the South, he knows that times are changing and he proposes to meet them with law and order.

Only one white drunk raised a hostile fist over kneeling Negroes around the city hall, sang Dixie and was promptly popped into the pokey for exercising this ancient right of a Dixie drunk. One city jail guard hit a Negro prisoner and was immediately fired.

Still, as happy as we all are that Albany refrained from drawing blood, I think perhaps our pride may be excessive. I suggest that the Attorney-General nearly insults South Georgia with his congratulations to the city and disregard of appeals from jailed Negroes of the Albany movement.

I think we can expect better of Love, Law and Civil Disobedience

By Martin Luther King, Jr.

(A transcript of Dr. King's address to the annual meeting of the Fellowship of the Concerned, November 16 in Atlanta.)

MEMBERS of the Fellowship of the Concerned, of the Southern Regional Council, I need not pause to say how very delighted I am to be here today, and to have the opportunity of being a little part of this very significant gathering. I certainly want to express my personal appreciation to Mrs. Tilly and the members of the Committee, for giving me this opportunity. I would also like to express just a personal word of thanks and appreciation for your vital witness in this period of transition which we are facing in our Southland, and in the nation, and I am sure that as a result of this genuine concern, and your significant work in communities all across the South, we have a better South today and I am sure will have a better South tomorrow with your continued endeavor and I do want to express my personal gratitude and appreciation to you of the Fellowship of the Concerned for your significant work and for your forthright witness.

Now, I have been asked to talk about the philosophy behind the student movement. There can be no gainsaying of the fact that we confront a crisis in race relations in the United States. This crisis has been precipitated on the one hand by the determined resistance of reactionary forces in the South to the Supreme Court's decision in 1954 outlawing segregation in the public schools. And we know that at times this resistance has risen to ominous proportions. At times we find the legislative halls of the South ringing loud with such words as interposition and nullification. And all of these forces have developed into massive resistance. But we must also say that the crisis has been precipitated on the other hand by the determination of hundreds and thousands and millions of Negro people to achieve freedom and human dignity. If the Negro stayed in his place and accepted discrimination and segregation, there would be no crisis. But the Negro has a new sense of dignity, a new self respect, and new determination. He has re-evaluated his own intrinsic worth. Now this new sense of dignity on the part of the Negro grows out of the same longing for freedom and human dignity on the part of the oppressed people all over the world; for we see it in Africa, we see it in Asia, and we see it all over the world. Now we must say that this struggle for freedom will not come to an automatic halt, for history reveals to us that once oppressed people rise up against that oppression, there is no stopping point short of full freedom. On the other hand, history reveals to us that those who oppose the movement for freedom are those who are in privileged positions who very seldom give up their privileges without strong resistance. And they very seldom do it voluntarily. So the sense of struggle will continue. The question is how will the struggle be waged.

Now there are three ways that oppressed people have generally dealt with their oppression. One way is the method of acquiescence, the method of surrender; that is, the individuals will somehow adjust themselves to oppression, they adjust themselves to discrimination or to segregation or colonialism or what have you. The other method that has been used in history is that of rising up against the oppressor with corroding hatred and physical violence. Now of course we know about this method in western civilization, because in a sense it has been the hallmark of its grandeur, and the inseparable twin of western materialism. But there is a weakness in this method because it ends up creating many more social problems than it solves. And I am convinced that if the Negro succumbs to the temptation of using violence in his struggle for freedom and justice, unborn generations will be the recipients of a long and desolate night of bitterness. And our chief legacy to the future will be an endless reign of meaningless chaos.

But there is another way, namely the way of non-violent resistance. This method was popularized in our generation by a little man from India, whose name was Mohandas K. Gandhi. He used this method in a magnificent way to free his people from the economic exploitation and the political domination inflicted upon them by a foreign power.

This has been the method used by the student movement in the South and all over the United States. And naturally whenever I talk about the student movement I cannot be totally objective. I have to be somewhat subjective because of my great admiration for what the students have done. For in a real sense they have taken our deep groans and passionate yearnings for freedom, and filtered them in their own tender souls, and fashioned them into a creative protest which is an epic known all over our nation. As a result of their disciplined, non-violent, yet courageous struggle, they have been able to do wonders in the South, and in our nation. But this movement does have an underlying philosophy, it has certain ideas that are attached to it, it has certain philosophical precepts. These are the things that I would like to discuss for the few moments left.

I would say that the first point or the first principle in the movement is the idea that means must be as pure as the end. This movement is based on the philosophy that ends and means must cohere. Now this has been one of the long struggles in history, the whole idea of means and ends. Great philosophers have grappled with it, and sometimes they have emerged with the idea, from Machiavelli on down, that the end justifies the means. There is a great system of thought in our world today, known as Communism. And I think that with all of the weaknesses and tragedies of Communism, we find its greatest tragedy right here, that it goes under the philosophy that the end justifies the means that are used in the process. So we can read or we can hear the Lenins say that lying, deceit, or violence, that many of these things justify the ends of the classless society.

This is where the student movement and the non-violent movement that is taking place in our nation would break with Communism and any other system that would argue that the end justifies the means. For in the long run, we must see that the end represents the means in process and the ideal in the making. In other words, we cannot believe, or we cannot go with the idea that the end justifies the means because the end is pre-existent in the means. So the idea of non-violent resistance, the philosophy of non-violent resistance, is the philosophy which says that the means must be as pure as the end, that in the long run of history, immoral destructive means cannot bring about moral and constructive ends.

There is another thing about this philosophy, this method of non-violence which is followed by the student movement. It says that those who adhere to or follow this philosophy must follow a consistent principle of non-injury. They must consistently refuse to inflict injury upon another. Sometimes you will read the literature of the student movement and see that, as they are getting ready for the sit-in or stand-in, they will read something like this, "if you are hit do not hit back, if you are cursed do not curse back." This is the whole idea, that the individual who is engaged in a non-violent struggle must never inflict injury upon another. Now this has an external aspect and it has an internal one. From the external point of view it means that the individuals involved must avoid external physical violence. So they don't have guns, they don't retaliate with physical violence. If they are hit in the process, they avoid external physical violence at every point. But it also means that they avoid internal violence of spirit. This is why the love ethic stands so high in the student movement. We have a great deal of talk about love and non-violence in this whole thrust.

Now when the students talk about love, certainly they are not talking about emotional bosh, they are not talking about merely a sentimental outpouring; they're talking something much deeper, and I always have to stop and try to define the meaning of love in this context. The Greek language comes to our aid in trying to deal with this. There are three words in the Greek language for love, one is the word Eros. This is a beautiful type of love, it is an aesthetic love. Plato talks about it a great deal in his dialogue, the yearning of the soul for the realm of the divine. It has come to us to be a sort of romantic love, and so in a sense we have read about it and experienced it. We've read about it in all the beauties of literature. I guess in a sense Edgar Allan Poe was talking about Eros when he talked about his beautiful Annabelle Lee, with the love surrounded by the halo of eternity. In a sense Shakespeare was talking about Eros when he said "Love is not love which alters when alteration finds, or bends with the remover to remove; O, no! it is an ever fixed mark that looks on tempest and is never shaken, it is the star to every wandering bark." (You know, I remember that because I used to quote it to this little lady when we were courting; that's Eros.) The Greek language talks about Philia which was another level of love. It is an intimate affection between personal friends, it is a reciprocal love. On this level you love because you are loved. It is friendship.

Then the Greek language comes out with another word which is called the Agape. Agape is more than romantic love, agape is more than friendship. Agape is understanding, creative, redemptive, good will to all men. It is an overflowing love which seeks nothing in return. Theologians would say that it is the love of God operating in the human heart. So that when one rises to love on this level, he loves men not because he likes them, not because their ways appeal to him, but he loves every man because God loves him. And he rises to the point of loving the person who does an evil deed while hating the deed that the person does. I think this is what Jesus meant when he said "love your enemies." I'm very happy that he didn't say like your enemies, because it is pretty difficult to like some people. Like is sentimental, and it is pretty difficult to like someone bombing your home; it is pretty difficult to like somebody threatening your children; it is difficult to like congressmen who spend all of their time trying to defeat civil rights. But Jesus says love them, and love is greater than like. Love is understanding, redemptive, creative, good will for all men. And it is this idea, it is this whole ethic of love which is the idea standing at the basis of the student movement.

There is something else: that one seeks to defeat the unjust system, rather than individuals who are caught in that system. And that one goes on believing that somehow this is the important thing, to get rid of the evil system and not the individual who happens to be misguided, who happens to be misled, who was taught wrong. The thing to do is to get rid of the system and thereby create a moral balance within society.

Another thing that stands at the center of this movement is another idea: that suffering can be a most creative and powerful social force. Suffering has certain moral attributes involved, but it can be a powerful and creative social force. Now, it is very interesting at this point to notice that both violence and non-violence agree that suffering can be a very powerful social force. But there is this difference: violence says that suffering can be a powerful social force by inflicting the suffering on somebody else; so this is what we do in war, this is what we do in the whole violent thrust of the violent movement. It believes that you achieve some end by inflicting suffering on another. The non-violent say that suffering becomes a powerful social force when you willingly accept that violence on yourself, so that self-suffering stands at the center of the non-violent movement and the individuals involved are able to suffer in a creative manner, feeling that unearned suffering is redemptive, and that suffering may serve to transform the social situation.

Another thing in this movement is the idea that there is within human nature an amazing potential for goodness. There is within human nature something that can respond to goodness. I know somebody's liable to say that this is an unrealistic movement if it goes on believing that all people are good. Well, I didn't say that. I think the students are realistic enough to believe that there is a strange dichotomy of disturbing dualism within human nature. Many of the great philosophers and thinkers through the ages have seen this. It caused Ovid the Latin poet to say, "I see and approve the better things of life, but the evil things I do." It caused even St. Augustine to say "Lord, make me pure, but not yet." So that that is in human nature. Plato, centuries ago said that the human personality is like a charioteer with two headstrong horses, each wanting to go in different directions, so that within our own individual lives we see this conflict and certainly when we come to the collective life of man, we see a strange badness. But in spite of this there is something in human nature that can respond to goodness. So that man is neither innately good nor is he innately bad; he has potentialities for both. So in this sense, Carlyle was right when he said, that "there are depths in man which go down to the lowest hell, and heights which reach the highest heaven, for are not both heaven and hell made out of him, everlasting miracle and mystery that he is?" Man has the capacity to be good, man has the capacity to be evil.

And so the non-violent resister never lets this idea go, that there is something within human nature that can respond to goodness. So that a Jesus of Nazareth or a Mohandas Ghandi, can appeal to human beings and appeal to that element of goodness within them, and a Hitler can appeal to the element of evil within them. But we must never forget that there is something within human nature that can respond to goodness, that man is not totally depraved, to put it in theological terms, the image of God is never totally gone. And so the individuals who believe in this movement and who believe in non-violence and our struggle in the South, somehow believe that even the worst segregationist can become an integrationist. Now sometimes it is hard to believe that this is what this movement says, and it believes it firmly, that there is something within human nature that can be changed, and this stands at the top of the whole philosophy of the student movement and the philosophy of non-violence.

It says something else. It says that it is as much a moral obligation to refuse to cooperate with evil as it is to cooperate with good. Non-cooperation with evil is as much a moral obligation as the cooperation with good. So that the student movement is willing to stand up courageously on the idea of civil disobedience. Now I think this is the part of the student movement that is probably misunderstood more than anything else. And it is a difficult aspect, because on the one hand the students would say, and I would say, and all the people who believe in civil rights would say, obey the Supreme Court's decision of 1954 and at the same time, we would disobey certain laws that exist on the statutes of the South today.

This brings in the whole question of how can you be logically consistent when you advocate obeying some laws and disobeying other laws. Well, I think one would have to see the whole meaning of this movement at this point by seeing that the students recognize that there are two types of laws. There are just laws and there are unjust laws. And they would be the first to say obey the just laws, they would be the first to say that men and women have a moral obligation to obey just and right laws. And they would go on to say that we must see that there are unjust laws. Now the question comes into being, what is the difference, and who determines the difference, what is the difference between a just and an unjust law?

Well, a just law is a law that squares with a moral law. It is a law that squares with that which is right, so that any law that uplifts human personality is a just law. Whereas that law which is out of harmony with the moral is a law which does not square with the moral law of the universe. It does not square with the law of God, so for that reason it is unjust and any law that degrades the human personality is an unjust law.

Of course. Trust all Jews agree too

Well, somebody says that that does not mean anything to me; first, I don't believe in these abstract things called moral laws and I'm not too religious, so I don't believe in the law of God; you have to get a little more concrete, and more practical. What do you mean when you say that a law is unjust, and a law is just? Well, I would go on to say in more concrete terms that an unjust law is a code that the majority inflicts on the minority that is not binding on itself. So that this becomes difference made legal. Another thing that we can say is that an unjust law is a code which the majority inflicts upon the minority, which that minority had no part in enacting or creating, because that minority had no right to vote in many instances, so that the legislative bodies that made these laws were not democratically elected. Who could ever say that the legislative body of Mississippi was democratically elected, or the legislative body of Alabama was democratically elected, or the legislative body even of Georgia has been democratically elected, when there are people in Terrell County and in other counties because of the color of their skin who cannot vote? They confront reprisals and threats and all of that; so that an unjust law is a law that individuals did not have a part in creating or enacting because they were denied the right to vote.

Now the same token of just law would be just the opposite. A just law becomes saneness made legal. It is a code that the majority, who happen to believe in that code, compel the minority, who don't believe in it, to follow, because they are willing to follow it themselves, so it is saneness made legal. Therefore the individuals who stand up on the basis of civil disobedience realize that they are following something that says that there are just laws and there are unjust laws. Now, they are not anarchists. They believe that there are laws which must be followed; they do not seek to defy the law, they do not seek to evade the law. For many individuals who would call themselves segregationists and who would hold on to segregation at any cost seek to defy the law, they seek to evade the law, and their process can lead on into anarchy. They seek in the final analysis to follow a way of uncivil disobedience, not civil disobedience. And I submit that the individual who disobeys the law, whose conscience tells him it is unjust and who is willing to accept the penalty by staying in jail until that law is altered, is expressing at the moment the very highest respect for law.

This is what the students have followed in their movement. Of course there is nothing new about this, they feel that they are in good company and rightly so. We go back and read the Apology and the Crito, and you see Socrates practicing civil disobedience. And to a degree academic freedom is a reality today because Socrates practiced civil disobedience. The early Christians practiced civil disobedience in a superb manner, to a point where they were willing to be thrown to the lions. They were willing to face all kinds of suffering in order to stand up for what they knew was right even though they knew it was against the laws of the Roman Empire.

We could come up to our own day and we see it in many instances. We must never forget that everything that Hitler did in Germany was "legal." It was illegal to aid and comfort a Jew, in the days of Hitler's Germany. But I believe that if I had the same attitude then as I have now I would publicly aid and comfort my Jewish brothers in Germany if Hitler were alive today calling this an illegal process. If I lived in South Africa today in the midst of the white supremacy law in South Africa, I would join Chief Luthuli and others in saying break these unjust laws. And even let us come up to America. Our nation in a sense came into being through a massive act of civil disobedience, for the Boston Tea Party was nothing but a massive act of civil disobedience. Those who stood up against the slave laws, the abolitionists, by and large practiced civil disobedience. So I think these students are in good company, and they feel that by practicing civil disobedience they are in line with men and women through the ages who have stood up for something that is morally right.

Now there are one or two other things that I want to say about this student movement, moving out of the philosophy of non-violence, something about what it is a revolt against. On the one hand it is a revolt against the negative peace that has encompassed the South for many years. I remember when I was in Montgomery, Ala., one of the white citizens came to me one day and said—and I think he was very sincere about this—that in Montgomery for all of these years we have been such a peaceful community, we have had so much harmony in race relations and then you people have started this movement and boycott, and it has done so much to disturb race relations, and we just don't love the Negro like we used to love them, because you have destroyed the harmony and the peace that we once had in race relations. And I said to him, in the best way I could say and I tried to say it in non-violent terms, we have never had peace in Montgomery, Ala., we have never had peace in the South. We have had a negative peace, which is merely the absence of tension; we've had a negative peace in which the Negro patiently accepted his situation and his plight, but we've never had true peace, we've never had positive peace, and what we're seeking now is to develop this positive peace. For we must come to see that peace is not merely the absence of some negative force, it is the presence of a positive force. True peace is not merely the absence of tension, but it is the presence of justice and brotherhood. I think this is what Jesus meant when he said, I come not to bring peace but a sword. Now Jesus didn't mean he came to start war, to bring a physical sword, and he didn't mean, I come not to bring positive peace. But I think what Jesus was saying in substance was this, that I come not to bring an old negative peace, which makes for stagnant passivity and deadening complacency, I come to bring something different, and whenever I come, a conflict is precipitated, between the old and the new, whenever I come a struggle takes place between justice and injustice, between the forces of light and the forces of darkness. I come not to bring a negative peace, but a positive peace, which is brotherhood, which is justice, which is the Kingdom of God. Utopian without Xp.

And I think this is what we are seeking to do today, and this movement is a revolt against a negative peace and a struggle to bring into being a positive peace, which makes for true brotherhood, true integration, true person-to-person relationships. This movement is also revolt against what is often called tokenism. Here again many people do not understand this, they feel that in this struggle the Negro will be satisfied with tokens of integration, just a few students and a few schools here and there and a few doors open here and there. But this isn't the meaning of the movement and I think that honesty impels me to admit it everywhere I have an opportunity, that the Negro's aim is to bring about complete integration in American life. And he has come to see that token integration is little more than token democracy, which ends up with many new evasive schemes and it ends up with new discrimination, covered up with such niceties of complexity. It is very interesting to discover that the movement has thrived in many communities that had token integration. So this reveals that the movement is based on a principle that integration must become real and complete, not just token integration.

It is also a revolt against what I often call the myth of time. We hear this quite often, that only time can solve this problem. That if we will only be patient, and only pray—which we must do, we must be patient and we must pray—but there are those who say just do these things and wait for time, and time will solve this problem. Well, the people who argue this do not themselves realize that time is neutral, that it can be used constructively or destructively. At points the people of ill will, the segregationists, have used time much more effectively than the people of good will. So individuals in the struggle must come to realize that it is necessary to aid time, that without this kind of aid, time itself will become an ally of the insurgent and primitive forces of social stagnation. Therefore, this movement is a revolt against the myth of time.

There is a final thing that I would like to say to you, this movement is a movement based on faith in the future. It is a movement based on a philosophy, the possibility of the future bringing into being something real and meaningful. It is a movement based on hope. I think this is very important. The students have developed a theme song for their movement, maybe you've heard it. It goes something like this, "we shall overcome, deep in my heart, I do believe, we shall overcome," and then they go on to say another verse, "we are not afraid, we are not afraid today, deep in my heart I do believe, we shall overcome." So it is out of this deep faith in the future that they are able to move out and adjourn the councils of despair, and to bring new light in the dark chambers of pessimism. I can remember the times that we've been together, I remember that night in Montgomery, Ala., when we had stayed up all night, discussing the Freedom Rides, and that morning came to see that it was necessary to go on with the Freedom Rides, that we would not in all good conscience call an end to the Freedom Rides at that point. And I remember the first group got ready to leave, to take a bus for Jackson, Miss., we all joined hands and started singing together. "We shall overcome, we shall overcome." And something within me said, now how is it that these students can sing this, they are going down to Mississippi, they are going to face hostile and jeering mobs, and yet they could sing," We shall overcome." They may even face physical death, and yet they could sing, "We shall overcome." Most of them realized that they would be thrown into jail, and yet they could sing, "We shall overcome, we are not afraid." Then something caused me to see at that moment the real meaning of the movement. That students had faith in the future. That the movement was based on hope, that this movement had something within it that says somehow even though the arc of the moral universe is long, it bends toward justice. And I think this should be a challenge to all others who are struggling to transform the dangling discords of our Southland into a beautiful symphony of brotherhood. There is something in this student movement which says to us, that we shall overcome. Before the victory is won some may have to get scarred up, but we shall overcome. Before the victory of brotherhood is achieved, some will maybe face physical death, but we shall overcome. Before the victory is won, some will lose jobs, some will be called Communists, and reds, merely because they believe in brotherhood, some will be dismissed as dangerous rabblerousers and agitators merely because they're standing up for what is right, but we shall overcome. That is the basis of this movement, and as I like to say, there is something in this universe that justifies Carlyle in saying no lie can live forever. We shall overcome because there is something in this universe which justifies William Cullen Bryant in saying truth crushed to earth shall rise again. We shall overcome because there is something in this universe that justifies James Russell Lowell in saying, truth forever on the scaffold, wrong forever on the throne. Yet that scaffold sways the future, and behind the dim unknown standeth God within the shadows, keeping watch above His own. With this faith in the future, with this determined struggle, we will be able to emerge from the bleak and desolate midnight of man's inhumanity to man, into the bright and glittering daybreak of freedom and justice. Thank you.

South Georgia, which is, to be sure, burdened with many deprived and ignorant Negroes and many deprived, ignorant and race-proud whites. But in every community there are ministers preaching that all humans are equal children of God, business men jealous of their prosperity, literally Christian churchwomen, lonely thinkers on the rights of man and plain people pondering the revolution which occupies us.

Albany is the very gem of Southwest Georgia, a city so handsome, prosperous and progressive with industry and military payrolls, surrounding rich farms and retail and wholesale trade, and the rationality and humanity which attends these blessings, that on reflection it seems the city failed rather than triumphed in its lawful and unjust punishment of its gently demanding and self-sacrificing Negroes.

Can we really cherish pride that 737 Negroes, representing what they say is 90 per cent of their people and 43 per cent of Albany's citizenry, were jailed for peaceably, mildly and prayerfully walking their own streets to protest arrest of Freedom Riders testing a "desegregated" railroad waiting room, and refusal of their elected officials to hear them?

Albany has the prettiest and widest streets in South Georgia, maybe in the United States, ample to accommodate a march of Negroes, two by two, or hundreds kneeling or singing before the city hall. Is there not room here for such assembly to remain peaceful, with careful policing? Isn't there room for citizens to walk on such streets without civic and business paralysis? Apparently white bystanders of Albany and from long-dreaded nearby counties—the so-called "violent" element which has intimidated the decent South—apparently these allegedly brutal racists thought there was room. At least they were not moved by the "explosive" spectacles to race rioting.

So, it seems that Albany maintained the peace at needless expense to brave and respectable men, women and children clapped into jail for free assembly, peaceful demonstration and natural demands on arrogant, if law-abiding, white officials.

I think Albany, and its neighboring counties, can do better than the leadership of its cynical newspaper, The

A Virginia View of "Race and Reason"

By Benjamin Muse

SOME OF THE misinformation and scientific error which we have to combat in Virginia and the South I find gathered together in handy form in a book which descended upon us last summer entitled Race and Reason. This book is written in a scholarly style; it is redolent with erudition and crowded with impressive allusions. But in substance it is like the exhortation of a Ku Klux Kleagle who has exchanged his bed sheet for an academic cap and gown. If the reader has abundant patience and a strong stomach, it can serve a useful purpose as a compendium of current misinformation on the subject of race.

A casual reader who is new to the subject, or whose reading has been confined to the Citizens Council type of commentary, might guess from the text that the author had devoted a long career to scientific studies related to the races of man. But the author is Mr. Carleton Putnam, a former airlines executive, who retired six years ago and turned first to writing biography — a biography of Theodore Roosevelt. His career as an anthropologist started three years ago, and that more or less by accident.

Mr. Putnam is a Northerner, a "Yankee,' as the cover of his book proclaims—which lends a flavor of generous comradeship and dramatic emphasis to his message. He was seized with a feeling that the segregationists of the South were getting the runaround in the national controversy, and he resolved to bring his superior talents to their rescue. "I could not but believe," he explained in his book, "that so far as it lay within my powers my purpose should be to embolden their anthropologists and relieve their consciences."

It was an article by our own Virginius Dabney and an editorial rebuttal, which appeared in Life Magazine in September, 1958, which kindled the flame in Mr. Putnam's bosom. He rallied to the segregationist cause in a letter to Life, then a longer one to President Eisenhower and one to Attorney General Rogers. The first two of these letters received only perfunctory acknowledgment and the third was not acknowledged. But copies of the so-called "Putnam letters" were widely circulated and published in the South. A committee in Birmingham, Alabama, raised upwards of $40,000 and had the letter to the President reprinted as advertising in various Northern newspapers. Though the letters and their author were thunderously ignored in the rest of the nation, Carleton Putnam was hailed in the South as a "Daniel come to judgment." He was "overwhelmed," to use his own words, "with courtly expressions of gratitude."

The demand for a more extensive expression of Mr. Putnam's views was obvious; hence Race and Reason. The author worked with a celerity which was remarkable. By the following August the book was practically written; on August 3 he addressed a manuscript to various persons, among whom I had the honor of being included, for possible comment. Where lesser men had spent a lifetime in laborious pursuit of anthropological truth, Mr. Putnam in ten months had exhausted the accumulation of pertinent scientific knowledge and found the answers. He came down from the mountain with the final peremptory truth locked in his handsome brief case.

I met the author at a dinner while the book was incubating, and let me say that Mr. Putnam is a gentleman of distinguished presence and impeccable courtesy. He is sincere, I think, in his belief that he has uncovered a transcendental truth that others who have dabbled in anthropology have been unable to grasp. I was surprised, however, when he asked me to recommend some books on the race problem, as he hadn't read much in this field.

In our brief conversation, Mr. Putnam was obsessed with what he calls "equalitarianism." He argued from the unshakable premise that the opponents of segregation are trying to make all men equal.

In a brief correspondence which we had, I wrote to Mr. Putnam:

"I might go farther than you in advocating discrimination, in the sense of selectivity, in education. I submit that your basic error lies in using race as a criterion."

It seems as simple as that. But the "equalitarianism" confusion runs all the way through Race and Reason, and its segregationist readers are given a long new word to apply to their opponents. "Equalitarians" are denounced with monotonous redundancy.

I don't know any equalitarians; none of us seeks to make all men equal in personal attainment, or imagines that such a thing would be possible. But, though "equalitarianism" may be a new word to some, the idea which it vaguely suggests is familiar to all of us, and it is one of the major stumbling blocks on the road to interracial understanding. Mr. Putnam's confusion is the confusion of thousands of even well-meaning Southerners. Integration is envisioned as a process of bringing poor, ignorant and uncouth Negroes in to have dinner with educated white people, or into the Country Club. Many a white person is afraid that his expensive restaurant will be invaded by Negro janitors; it never seems to occur to him that white share-croppers never visit his restaurant.

All of us believe in deference to intellect and ability. No one wants to see an unskilled laborer, whether white or colored, accorded the same respect, rewards and privileges as the president of Harvard University, for instance — or the president of Howard University. The monstrous error lies, of course, in judging any individual by his race.

Mr. Putnam is apparently prepared to stand or fall on the proposition that Negroes are inferior in innate ability to whites, but he has gathered together in Race and Reason a few odds and ends not directly related to his anthropological thesis. He doesn't raise this unpleasant subject himself, but when a correspondent asks the question, he says: "The Communists have made the integration movement a part of their conspiracy."

We have heard that smear ad nauseum, and we have found that those who throw it around are rarely capable of rational cogitation. But one comment occurs to me in passing. The Communists do pose as enemies of race discrimination, and, by the apparent rule-of-thumb, we should be against anything the Communists are for and for anything the Communists are against. Now I read that the Communists are taking measures against alcoholism and that they are sternly in favor of sexual morality. It seems obvious that those who are completely hostile to Communism should go on an alcoholic binge. And, if sexual morality is a part of the Communist conspiracy, where does that leave the red-blooded superpatriot?

Another one of the simple-minded people who provided Mr. Putnam with questions asked:

"It makes my blood boil every time I see a Southerner bully, humiliate or exploit a Negro. How can anyone take sides with such people?"

The thought doesn't make Mr. Putnam's blood boil. His answer:

"Two wrongs don't make a right. The fact that it is wrong to bully, humiliate or exploit a Negro does not make it right to integrate him. . . ."

It is obvious that the white man who bullies a Negro is not on the point of integrating him, and we are left with the essential answer: "Two wrongs don't make a right."

That would not be the Ku Klux Klan answer; it is a cut above that. The Klansman views bullying Negroes as a wholly righteous exercise and, if the Negro doesn't resist, he sees no wrong on either side. The two-wrongs comment is an apt illustration of the attitude of the more decorous Citizens Councils and of a shockingly large element of the white public. It is evidenced in the common practice of arresting Negro victims and allowing white bullies to go free. After interracial violence, however orderly and passive and irreproachable the behavior of the Negro victims may have been in the face of white aggression, we hear the unctuous comment: "There are two sides to the question." — or: "Both sides were at fault."

When a white man bullies a Negro, it is not one wrong but two. The Negro is also wrong. He is wrong just by being a Negro, and, when he is unhappy with segregation his sin is compounded.

Mr. Putnam probably didn't mean to be as blunt as that. A strain of lofty benevolence runs through most of his book. Following a familiar practice of racist propagandists, he calls great and good men to the witness stand however remote in time or place their range of vision may have been from the situation to which his argument is addressed. The author quotes voluminously from Lincoln's reflections on the situation which he observed over a century ago, and to be perfectly fair he quotes also from Lincoln's debating contemporary, Stephen A. Douglas; he cites the comment of Lord Bryce on conditions existing in 1880; he brings in observations of the saintly Albert Schweitzer on the savages of Lambaréné as if that great humanitarian were talking about the Negro American; he even invokes the noble eloquence of William Ewart Gladstone. The English statesman made no reference whatever to the subject of race, but it was nice to have him associated with Mr. Putnam and his book.

At the same time other famous names are withered with the Putnam frown. Arnold Toynbee is demolished with a wisecrack. Franz Boas is browbeaten without mercy; the world had a high opinion of Boas as an authority on the races of man, but the retired airlines executive met him in his own field and laid him low.

The thesis which Mr. Putnam pursues with such devastating vigor is the notion, once widely held among scholars; that the Negro is limited by his racial origin and is innately inferior to the white man. That notion is still widely held, admittedly or subconsciously, by an enormous element of the white public. It is the very essence of race prejudice in so far as race prejudice has a rational basis. In recent years that theory has been blasted in many quarters by the sheer demonstration of Negro capability, and I think in not many more years the weight of such evidence against the theory of Negro inferiority will be overwhelming. As educational and employment opportunities are opened to him, the Negro American is rushing forward in intellectual, cultural and economic achievement.

In the entire 19th Century fewer than 2,500 Negroes graduated from college in the United States. In 1930, 27,141 Negro Americans were in college, and in 1956, 196,000. With increasing integration, accurate estimates are no longer available but the number must now have gone over 200,000. The image of the Negro American is changing all the time and it will change mightily with each new class of Negro college graduates which enters the stream of our national life.

Scientists have long since repudiated the theory of innate inferiority. Dr. Oscar Handlin, Pulitzer Prize-winning historian and Harvard professor, who traced the rise and collapse of the racist theory in his Race and Nationality in American Life, said: "By 1940 it was difficult to find a serious, reputable exponent of the racist views once so widely held."

That, of course, was written in 1957, before Mr. Putnam turned his attention to anthropology. Other reputable exponents seem to have come forward. Dr. Wesley Critz George, a retired professor of zoology, anatomy, etc. at the University of North Carolina, 73 years of age, spent last summer in a study of "what science has revealed with regard to racial differences," and will shortly publish his report. What science revealed to Dr. George has not been publicly stated, but, as he was paid $3,000 for the undertaking from the emergency fund of Governor John Patterson of Alabama, there is little doubt as to the kind of revelations which were ordered.

Mr. Putnam recommended a reading of an article by Dr. Frank C. J. McGurk, which appeared in United States News and World Report in 1956. But he neglected to recommend the reading of a public statement from eighteen of the nation's leading anthropologists and psychologists which followed the McGurk article. In the latter statement it was noted that the American Anthropological Association and the division of the American Psychological Association concerned with social issues, among others, had placed themselves on record as opposed to the conclusion that race was a determiner of innate psychological characteristics. Then these 18 scientists from the nation's leading universities stated flatly that "any decision to use differences in the average achievement of the two racial groups as a basis for classifying in advance any individual child, Negro or white, is scientifically unjustified."

Mr. Putnam states that Southerners "talk of states' rights when they should be talking anthropology." Perhaps he is right. Ten days ago the anthropologists of the United States issued a resounding statement. It is pertinent to note that this was not the expression of a few eccentrics, of a "leftist" faction, or any faction. The resolution was adopted by the American Anthropological Association by a vote of 192 to 0, and it read:

"The American Anthropological Association repudiates statements now appearing in the United States that Negroes are biologically and in innate mental ability inferior to whites, and reaffirms the fact that there is no scientifically established evidence to justify the exclusion of any race from the rights guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States.

"The basic principles of equality of opportunity and equality before the law are compatible with all that is known about human biology. All races possess the abilities needed to participate fully in the democratic way of life and in modern technological civilization."

Bearing witness to the truth is basic to all that we do in the movement for equality of all Southerners and Americans. All that we do to eliminate discrimination in its practical manifestations is an expression of the truth, a reconciliation of the American ideal with truth, in the matter of race. And just as widespread error has clouded the controversy and produced a degree of intellectual debasement in many quarters, it is the truth which ultimately will make us free.

Dear Leslie:

This is just a note to thank you for such an enjoyable evening on Saturday. The fellowship was rich indeed, and the discussion was most stimulating. Be sure to tell Dan Pollitt that we were not offended in the least by his role of devil's advocate. We enjoyed the prodding.

I will look forward to hearing from you on developments on the Voter Registration situation.

Dear Martin:

I understand that you have received a speaking invitation from the student chapter of the Virginia Council on Human Relations. I know that you are overwhelmed by requests and cannot possibly accept many of them, but I do wish to recommend this one to you if you can possibly make it.

About two years ago some students at the University of Virginia formed the first and still the only student chapter of a human relations council anywhere in the South. After a year or more hard fighting they received a charter from the University and are now an officially recognized campus group. I met with them once and they are a fine group of young people. I am sure that if you could accept this invitation they would bring out a large crowd and I think it would be tremendously good for the University of Virginia to have you as a speaker on its campus.

Martin, I have deeply admired the way you have carried on the Albany leadership. I don't know what tangible gains may be won in the immediate future but whether they are great or small they will not affect the quality of the challenge which you, Ralph, and others have put forward there.

With best wishes,

Sincerely yours,

MEMO

TO:

John Feild, Director, President's Committee on Equal Employment
Hunts Food Industries, Blue Plate Division
Lyndon B. Johnson, Vice-President of the United States
National Human Relations Agencies

FROM: SCLC (Southern Christian Leadership Conference)
334 Auburn Avenue, N. E.
Atlanta, Georgia

I. MEMO HISTORY

On October 29th, fifteen employees of Hunts Food Industries, Blue Plate Division, Atlanta, Georgia, met with Wyatt Tee Walker, executive assistant to Dr. King. This meeting was arranged following the lodging of several complaints via telephone that had been prompted by a similar action instituted by this office against Kraft Foods and reported in the public press. It has been established that Hunts Food Industries holds government contracts. The following catalogue of complaints evidences violation of the non-discrimination clauses.

II. SPECIFIC COMPLAINTS

1. Separate facilities exists for Negro personnel for the following and is most instances are so marked, "White" and "Colored".

   a. Rest rooms
   b. Dining room
   c. Time clocks

2. Job advancement for non-white workers beyond the maxium wage scale of the "General Labor Group" (the not-so-subtle grouping of all Negro personnel) is virtually impossible.

   a. Application for job advancement into "Maintenance" and "Operating" labor groups (white personnel only) which embrace the higher paying jobs, have been flatly denied. Application forms cannot even be secured.

   b. Job sections that become vacant outside the "General Labor" group are posted only on the "white" Dining Room bulletin board.

c. Job classification for non-white personnel is so restrictive that im many instances a Negro can work for as long as five years and still be receiving the maximum pay for one year's tenure. Meanwhile, employees of considerably less tenure move up the wage scale at an accelerated pace after one year because so many more variegated job classifications are available.

3. Job descriptions are vague or meaningless.

a. In one instance a worker whose job category is obstenbily a "stacker", also serves as a part-time janitor.

b. A woman whose job description is "maid" keeps records of absenteeism, fills in all records of physical exams, issues uniforms and administers first-aid in addition to making coffee, sterilizing equipment and keeping the dining rooms clean.

c. Glaring discrepancies exist as far as job assignment. Though a Negro is automatically included as a member of the "General Labor" group, his records may be carried in "Maintenance" or "Operating". Through his immediate supervisor of department heads, his time is authenticated and the O.K. for payment of wages is made. This is aimed obviously at convincing the California headquaters that racial discrimination is at an end while actually, it is as entrenched as ever.

4. Almost any device is used to degrade the non-white worker.

a. Explicit instructions have been given to Negro personnel that they must not use water fountain in Production Department.

b. When coffee is served, white workers draw coffee directly from urn while Negro workers must accept their coffee from a pitcher that is drawn previously from the urn.

c. Soft drink machines, pastry venders and the public telephone are in the "white" dining room ONLY! If Negro workers are not to enter, they are then deprived of 'break' privileges.

III. SUMMARY

There are 30 Negro and 88 white workers at Blue Plate. In all fairness, it must be said that this seems to be in balance, numerically. Generally, the wages are good for the jobs describes and an acceptable union contract is presently in force (AFL-CIO). However, there is a great evidence here of gross injustice in job discrimination that directly affects the total life of the non-white worker at Hunts Food Industries, Blue Plate Division.

Special Message From Mr. Jackie Robinson
Executive Vice-President, Chock Full-O Nuts
National Chairman, SCLC Church Rebuilding
Fund, Received via Wire February 2, 1963

Dear Friends:

Today is an historic occasion. I am personally grateful that I have had the privilege to participate in some useful way. My chief regret is that I am unable to be with you and that there is not more to show for my efforts. You people assembled here today are the "salt of the earth" and are the major investors in the American experiment of democracy. Many of us will someday be the chief benefactors because of your faith, determination and patience.

What we do here today is significant because it serves notice on the forces that oppose us in our quest for full citizenship, that nothing can stop us, church burnings or anything else. We were born to be free and free we shall be.

I wish to say publicly that no venture in my life, not even breaking the color barrier in the major leagues, has given me the sense of fulfillment and satisfaction that has come serving as SCLC's Fund Chairman for rebuilding these churches' I shall be eternally grateful to the many friends across the nation who have made their concern known tangibly and especially the newspapers in many of our cities who have given such great support. This has been a team job, not yet fully accomplished. I pledge to you my re-commitment today to see this project through to its completion.

Thank you very much.

Sincerely
JACKIE ROBINSON

Dear Martin:

As you know, there has been a vacancy on the U. S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit for about nine months, since the death of Judge Cameron of Mississippi. A second vacancy has recently been created by the retirement of Judge Hutcheson of Texas. To these existing vacancies, four more are in prospect, because the Judicial Conference has recommended four additional judgeships for the Fifth. I need not remind you how crucial these appointments will be.

I am enclosing some documents which show action SRC has been taking. It would be most helpful, I think, if you could find an early opportunity to say, even more emphatically than does John Wheeler in his letter to the President, that no segregationist should be appointed or promoted to any vacancy. With a probable six places to fill, I think the pressure on President Johnson to give one to a designee of Senator Eastland and Stennis will increase, and should be strongly counteracted.

All good wishes,

Sincerely yours,

Leslie W. Dunbar

MEMORANDUM

TO: DR. KING

FROM: HARRY BOYTE

SUBJECT: PROPOSED REVIEW OF ORGANIZATIONAL STRUCTURE AND BUDGET CONTROL

In this memorandum, I am submitting specific recommendations which I believe will enable us to move constructively toward correcting a number of problems about which you have recently expressed deep concern.

This seems to be an especially appropriate time to undertake the proposed review; we face the necessity of establishing new methods of handling incoming mail with the installing of a new and enlarged telephone service, and also in view of the changes which will occur following Mr. Walker's departure.

Currently, we are experiencing increasing difficulty in keeping abreast of the work now being channeled through the Finance Office.

DEPARTMENTAL FUNCTIONS

1. I recommend that a thorough and intensive examination of every phase of our activities be undertaken in depth, with recommendations forthcoming from such a study to be submitted to the President.

2. Following this survey, which would include job descriptions for all staff personnel, an organizational chart should be prepared and submitted to the President for his disposition.

XERO COPY XERO COPY XERO COPY XERO COPY XERO COPY XERO COPY XERO COPY XERO COPY

FISCAL CONTROL

1. A detailed, approved budget with rigid control should be maintained for each department. This budget should be proposed and prepared by each department head and submitted through channels established by the President for final determination. After the budget is approved, I recommend that a policy be established which will prevent excess expenditures unless some emergent event occurs and prior approval is obtained by procedures determined by the President.

2. A monthly budget control report to be prepared by the Finance office for each department. Such a report would provide a detailed breakdown of expenditures for each department, relating such expenditures to the budget approved for the month. The monthly report would also include the cumulative expenditures for the year compared with the cumulative budget for the same period, and the balance budgeted for the remainder of the year.

3. A monthly budget control report consolidated for all departments, with the consolidated information containing the same cumulative information as outlined Paragraph 2 for each department.

XERO COPY XERO COPY XERO XERO

4. I consider it essential for the opening of Appeal letters and the receipt of contributions to be separated from the Finance office where funds are disbursed. Recommendations designed to accomplish this should be developed following the overall survey.

GENERAL SUMMARY

I think it should be recognized that the SCLC is blazing a new trail in administrative experience. An entirely new approach must be followed in administering such an organization, with flexibility needed to meet shifting needs and emergent and unanticipated events; yet it is essential that control be exercised in numerous areas, such as meticulous attention to the expenditure of funds.

In my opinion, such a proposed study would reveal ways in which we possibly could reduce staff needs somewhat, and save funds in some other areas.

To carry out such a study, it will be essential that each staff member understand that it is being undertaken at the specific request of the President, and that it has his intense personal interest. Time of the various staff members will be required for the necessary interviews in determining the various job functions and responsibilities.

Although I feel that I am qualified by training and experience to undertake such an assignment, I recognize that you may choose to have some one else carry this out. I assure you that whatever your decision may be, I will be happy to cooperate in any manner you designate.

I have discussed at length the planned budget control and reports which I have in mind with Mr. Francis Covington and he has advised me that he is in complete accord with the recommendations I have tentatively drawn up for the Finance office and for the monthly reports.

July, 1964

Dear Friend:

Each year as Negroes pursue their goal of first class citizenship, new barbarities are devised to block their efforts with raw terror. The bombings and electric cattle prods of last year are still widely employed, but in St. Augustine, pistols spraying acid have been added, while in Mississippi, violence and lawless attempts at intimidation have reached new levels of depravity.

It takes heroism to endure and persist against such terrifying odds. Yet brave Negro and White allies are not faltering. They gain some of their strength from the knowledge that they are revealing to America the reality of segregation and discrimination; they are showing why the Negro must move forward to change - why America must move forward to change.

They also know that in the past year approximately one-half million Negroes were registered to vote. The savagery of the Southern segregationist is his desperate answer to the effective drive of Negroes to gain their rightful citizenship.

Our organization, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, out of experience gained in Birmingham is currently directing the struggle in St. Augustine; is a participant in Mississippi and is about to embark on widespread action in Alabama to test the Civil Rights Law.

At the same time, we are occupied seven days a week carrying on vitally important activities not reflected in headlines. Our salaried staff people are in over twenty Southern cities. We service hundreds of communities from Atlanta. We conduct hundreds of permanently established citizenship training classes to remedy the faulty education Negroes have received and provide literacy education for the wholly uneducated - penetrating the deepest backwaters of the South with a type of Negro self-help unique in our movement.

The heroic people doing this work are committing their lives. We ask you to be a part of this moral crusade by expressing your deeply felt sympathy in the most meaningful way possible - help towards insuring the continuation and enlargement of all the projects to dimensions which will blunt and nullify all forms of terror.

You can invest in a democratic America by contributing to this vital work. In so doing you are aiding a struggling people and a democratic ideal. You will aid one part of the population and yet all of the nation.

With warmest good wishes,

Martin Luther King Jr.

Dear Martin:

From Montgomery to Oslo is a long way, and the miracle you have brought about is that you made the journey so rapidly.

We are all so awkward and reserved in the way that we speak to each other, and so sometimes it happens that strangers from abroad have to say what your friends don't say or don't know how to say. You so graciously insisted that the Nobel Peace Prize came to you only because you represented many other good people and an idea of goodness. This is, of course, true, but the people and the idea would have been lost and stumbling without you.

All good wishes, and I am sure that all members of the Southern Regional Council and all of its staff join me in sending you heartfelt thanks for the leadership you have given our minds and spirits, and our country.

Dear Les:

May I express my deep and sincere gratitude to you for your very warm message on the announcement of my being chosen as the recipient of the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize. Your encouraging words and your genuine expressions of confidence give me new determination to carry on the struggle to make the brotherhood of man a reality. Certainly I was moved, honored and gratified to learn of my being chosen for such a significant honor. But as I said on receiving word of the Nobel Peace Prize, I cannot accept this as an honor to me personally; it is rather a tribute to the discipline, dignity, courage and calm reasonableness with which Negro and white persons of good will have struggled to establish a reign of justice and a rule of love across this nation of ours. In short, the Nobel Peace Prize of 1964 is an award to the whole civil rights movement and its dedicated leaders. It is for this reason that I have decided to give every dollar accompanying the award to the civil rights movement.

This award should inspire all of us to work a little harder and with more determination to make the American Dream a reality. It should also challenge us to work passionately and unrelentingly to discover the international implications of nonviolence; for in a real sense, there can be no justice without peace and there can be no peace without justice. If mankind is survive, we must come to see that war is obsolete and must be cast into unending limbo.

Thank you again for your kind expressions. May God continue to bless you and yours as we work for a better distribution of wealth, for a warless world and for a brotherhood that transcends race or color.

Yours for the cause of peace and brotherhood,

Dear Martin:

I am pleased to submit to you a copy of our audit for 1964; also a copy of my annual report for the same year. You will find pertinent information on the Voter Education Project throughout the audit, but particularly in Schedules 3 and 4; VEP is discussed in the early pages of my program report.

We are at the point of concluding a contract with one of the leading publishers to bring out the book planned for under VEP, dealing with Negro voting and its growth during these last few years.

I know that I speak for all the officers and members of the Council in saying that VEP has been, in our estimation, a fine success and that much of this success is owed to SCLC.

I am sure that you know that Wiley has been appointed Executive Secretary to the President's Council on Equal Opportunity. We have all had great service from him as director of the Voter Education Project, and it is good to know that a man of his ability and strength will be in this new and key job.

All the best.

Dear Dr. King:

As you can see from the enclosed complimentary copy, NEW SOUTH has recently changed format and focus, hoping to capture a broader base of Southern thought and opinion. The piece on page 27 by Vincent Harding about non-violence and redemptive love will, I think, be of particular interest to you. Accordingly, I would like to invite you to write an article for our Spring issue on what you feel is the future of non-violence in the Movement. This could run as much as 2,500-4,000 words. We would like very much to have your views represented, Dr. King, and hope that your time and workload will permit you to undertake this.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Anthony:

This is to acknowledge receipt of your letter of recent date inviting me to write an article for NEW SOUTH sometime in the near future.

First, let me say how deeply grateful I am to you for asking me to write an article for this very significant publication. Unfortunately, however, because of my commitment in Chicago for the next few months, and our intensive work in getting ready for the primary in the South, every minute of my time is already allocated for the next three or four months. But for this I would be more than happy to write an article for you. I do hope that my schedule will soon ease up so that I can do some writing for NEW SOUTH. Please do not hesitate to call on me.

Dear Mr. Anthony,

I have chosen your name along with 199 others as the 200 persons most genuinely concerned about human rights.

In any revolution, communication has proven to be a primary factor. Due to the fact that none of the news medias are able to carry the day-by-day account of this struggle for human dignity at the grass roots level, I am taking upon myself as an official of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, a two hundred piece bi-monthly mailing of information.

This is not a fund raising effort, but due to the grave financial problems of the civil rights movement, we would appreciate any help--even stamps or stamped envelopes. We also welcome your criticisms and comments of the material you receive on the activities we are carrying on.

Enclosed you will find our first mailing.

If we have your address incorrect, please notify us.

'Property Pride' Need Spurs Drive for Negro-Owned Stores

By SARAH DUNBAR

ATLANTA.—To instill in Negroes the pride, appreciation and value of property ownership has been the driving force back of Hosea Williams, Southern director of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. It led him to the idea of opening Negro-owned supermarkets designed to put money back into the Negro's pocket.

"The Negro had gained the right to vote . . . the Negro people have privileges of public accommodations . . . We had accomplished much, but we still had not found a way to get money into our people's pockets . . . that is, until I stumbled on the idea of a grocery business . . . here we think we have found success," declared Mr. Williams.

The "grocery business" has great promise, but is still having growing pains. Today there is a successful 1-year old store in Selma, Ala., two under construction in Mississippi, a not-too-successful store in Birmingham, and a small one in Marion, Ala., not far from Selma.

The SCLC does not own, nor does it finance the supermarkets. Financing comes from the pockets of the Negro people . . . "We try to organize the business and professional people in various communities to raise enough money to build and equip a store, or enough finance to get the supermarket on the road, then supplement the sum with a loan, either through the Small Business Administration, or an authorized lending agency," related Mr. Williams.

The stores are kept a local major supermarkets both in merchandising and labels. We are not going to hire all Negroes . . . we will have integrated help," said Mr. Williams.

"The white supermarket refuses to employ Negroes on equal basis with whites — thus we came up with this idea," he added.

In a movement now going on in Grenada, Miss., some $54,000 has been raised by surrounding counties to construct a supermarket.

"Each store has absolutely no relation to the other. Each store is an individual corporation, formed, owned and designed to benefit the Negro," continued Mr. Williams.

Plans include supermarkets in North Carolina, South Carolina and Alabama. Mr. Williams pointed out that the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. had become extremely interested in the progress and growth of such stores, and it is expected that in the future many will be opened.

While SCLC has majored in helping get supermarkets started, SCLC has also helped open a silk screen plant in Crawfordsville, Ga. in Telfair County, Fairchild News Service® was told.

"We frown on and refuse the money when some donor wants to contribute large sums of money. This gives him the controlling interest, and we do not want that," said Mr. Williams. "We are trying to find the means of developing our people economically, and not have the operation dominated by one or a few persons."

The SCLC role in opening supermarkets is to "guide them until the cutting of the ribbon. Our job is the mobilization and organization in different communities and providing them with the professional help they need."

Mr. Williams is an enthusiastic advocate of the drive for economic development. He is a graduate of Morris Brown College, and by profession is a research chemist. He has long fought for the Negroes' rights and has been a leading organizer of civil rights efforts of SCLC in Georgia.

"We try to organize the business and professional people in various communities to raise enough money to build and equip a store, or enough finance to get the supermarket on the road, then supplement the sum with a loan, either through the Small Business Administration, or an authorized lending agency," related Mr. Williams.

The stores are kept a local matter so the people in any given community can own it and benefit from it.

"SCLC takes the responsibility of organizing and mobilizing the Negro people to support our movement. We point out the potential sources to find loans, the architects to advise on planning a structure, contractors to advise on construction, lawyers to advise on the legality of a corporation operating a business, accountants on how the books should be set up and how money should be handled.

Each supermarket is a corporation made up of a number of Negro stockholders. No one person has controlling interest.

In the Selma, Ala., store there was an initial investment of $150,000 — this sum built the building, equipped the store, stocked it and bought the land.

The Selma unit was set up a year ago with a prospective gross of $17,000 per week, soon it is expected to gross about $30,000 per week. It is not located in an all-Negro district, but in an area which can serve both races, although it is predominantly patronized by the Negroes.

The Selma store has 6,000 square feet of space with four checkouts. No private labels are carried — mostly national brands, said Mark Thomas, the manager. The total sales area has about 5,000 square feet of space. Parking area can accommodate between 50 and 60 cars. The store is known as B&P Supermarket.

Staples are bought from a local food jobber; vegetables are bought from wholesalers and local truckers.

The successful unit in Selma employs some 23 workers, 17 of whom are regular employes. Only Negroes work there, 'although we would hire white and colored," related the manager.

"Out of 11 supermarkets in Selma, last year B&P Supermarket ranked third in sales," Mr. Thomas declared.

"We want to compete with major supermarkets both in merchandising and labels. We are not going to hire all Negroes . . . we will have integrated help," said Mr. Williams.

"The white supermarket refuses to employ Negroes on equal basis with whites — thus we came up with this idea," he added.

In a movement now going on in Grenada, Miss., some $54,000 has been raised by surrounding counties to construct a supermarket.

THE OBSERVER FORUM

Our Reaction Points Nation's Future

The writer is chairman of the executive committee of the Southern Regional Council.

On Saturday, the executive committee of the Southern Regional Council, meeting in Atlanta, adopted the following resolution which should have great meaning for every American.

RESOLUTION

The assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. once again reveals the psychosis of violence and the cancer of racism in American society. Once again, America is stained with the blood of a courageous and noble leader, with the tragedy of a husband and father senselessly destroyed. His murder violates the ideals for which he stood, ideals which express the great tradition of America.

This is not the time for bitter and and unrestrained recriminations against the society which killed Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., but rather the time for all of us to pay heed at least to all that has already been said to the conscience of the nation in the grim, ghastly past—at the murders of John F. Kennedy, Medgar Evers, the four little children in a Birmingham Sunday school, and so many others.

THIS IS THE TIME for white America to forego lecturing black Americans against violating the nonviolent philosophy to which Dr. King's life will stand as a memorial for all time. Let white America for once concede to black America strength and dignity sufficient to make that decision without advice or admonishment. Let white America acknowledge that black Americans, as Dr. King has proved, have equal moral personality as human beings and have the qualities of leadership and courage and dignity which all Americans need.

The life of Dr. King transcends the violence done through his career to the American ideals for which he stood and the final obscene violence to him. His leadership during his life and the pangs of conscience white America feels in his death give all Americans the chance — perhaps the last chance—to make the choice between the kind of society for which Dr. King lived and died, and the kind of society which denies equal opportunity and relies on force above justice and equity. If America cannot produce leadership toward the society that Dr. King saw in his dream for America, then America is finished.

Let white America look into its own heart.

Letters to The Forum should be brief, legible and written on one side of the paper. Each letter must include the writer's signature and full address. Names will be withheld only when the editors judge the reason to be sufficient. All letters are subject to condensation.

Visit Other Churches

At memorial services last weekend, there was a real sense of fellowship between members of white and black races. Perhaps by worshipping together more often, people can come to understand and appreciate each other better.

Therefore, I suggest that on this Easter Sunday all white people who wish to do so visit a black church anl all black people who wish to do so visit a white church and that all who remain in their own churches extend the hand of welcome to their visitors.

A STATEMENT ON THE DEATH OF DR. MARTIN LUTHER KING

Issued by the Executive Committee of the Southern Regional Council, Inc., meeting in Atlanta, Georgia, April 6, 1968

The assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., once again reveals the psychosis of violence and the cancer of racism in American society. Once again, America is stained with the blood of a courageous and noble leader, with the tragedy of a husband and father senselessly destroyed. His murder violates the ideals for which he stood, ideals which express the great tradition of America.

This is not the time for bitter and unrestrained recriminations against the society which killed Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., but rather the time for all of us to pay heed at last to all that has already been said to the conscience of the nation in the grim, ghastly past — at the murders of John F. Kennedy, Medgar Evers, of the four little children in a Birmingham Sunday School, and so many others.

This is the time for white America to forego lecturing black Americans against violating the non-violent philosophy to which Dr. King's life will stand as a memorial for all time. Let white America for once concede to black America strength and dignity sufficient to make that decision without advice or admonishment. Let white America acknowledge that black Americans, as Dr. King has proved, have equal moral personality as human beings and have the qualities of leadership and courage and dignity which all Americans need.

The life of Dr. King transcends the violence done throughout his career to the American ideals for which he stood and the final obscene violence to him. His leadership during his life and the pangs of conscience white America feels in his death give all Americans the chance — and perhaps the last chance — to make the choice between the kind of society for which Dr. King lived and died, and the kind of society which denies equal opportunity and relies on force above justice and equity. If America cannot produce leadership toward the society that Dr. King saw in his dream for America, then America is finished.

Let white America look into its own heart.

Dear Mr. Anderson:

Thank you for taking the time to write at length about the statement issued by our Executive Committee which appeared in the New York Times.

In essence, I think, what the Committee was attempting to say was that it does not behoove whites to continue lecturing Negro Americans about non-violence because as Dr. King and others like him have so eloquently proved Negroes are perfectly capable of addressing themselves to that question. And, I believe, the Committee was trying to say further that this tragedy was one final proof of the urgency with which the majority of the people of this country must move with real determination to correct longstanding evils and to create, once and for all, a unified and democratic society.

Never have I seen a group of sincere and concerned people look more deeply into their souls than did the members of this committee at the meeting at which they wrote the statement.

Let me hasten to assure you that none of us here are happy with what we have so far accomplished, and we are more than aware that we do not have all the answers.

Gentlemen:

I saw your spread in the NY Times and I don't know very much about you except for the columnist Ralph McGill; the other names are unfamiliar to me.

Let me say only this, that your first two paragraphs, in my opinion, contradict one another. You speak of "psychosis" and "cancer" and then go on in the next paragraph reminding us against bitter recriminations. The loose and undiscriminating use of words like "cancer" and psychosis" are, in themselves, instances of unrestrained recrimination!

Worse, terrible and vulgar is your next assertion contending that it was "society" that killed Dr ML King. How does a whole society pull the trigger? Only a single, isolated individual (not "society") can do that.

The collective indictment of a society or race for the actions of the individual members that make it up is an example of the extreme use that some people will make of the notion of collective guilt.

Yes, looking in at the conscience of my white heart (a tiny drop of White American) I feel very bad, most distraught that this happened as I would feel in the assassination of Lincoln, McKinley, Czar Alexander, Ghandi, Archduke Rudolph or JFK.

Sometimes one just has to reply to things he feels are unfair as I think your assertions are.

Before you toss this aside you might forward this to the liberal and fair Ralph McGill who I miss these days as we in Detroit have been without papers for a long time now. I meant to write him sometime ago but never got around to it; I still may, but in the meantime you may forward if you will or care.

Sincerely,

Robert Anderson

Gentlemen:

On this very sad day I read your advertisement in the New York Times and I appreciated your tribute to Dr. King and above all I agreed that "this is not the time for bitter and unrestrained recriminations..."

But I was saddened by the feeling of recrimination in your statement at a moment when words and deeds are important only to the degree that they advance the aims for which Dr. King was striving.

I think it is terribly late in our history, but I don't think you bring progress quicker by suggesting that this is our "last chance." Only God is in a position to know what the last chance is and there was a slight feeling of omniscience in your statement, an omniscience which only God can have.

Perhaps I was saddened above all by the categories into which you placed Americans, as though all blacks, or all whites, or all of our society, or all America can be labeled as you did, can be placed in categories, as you placed them, can be judged, as you judged them. "Brother, judge not thine brother..." is still a good comment of a good book.

It may not seem important to you at such a solemn moment, but even on this day I think the important things are matters about which we can do something-- like helping the sanitation strikers of Memphis and supporting their just cause for union recognition; the important thing is urging passage in the House of the civil rights measure that was passed in the Senate; the important thing is to use this moment to get momentum for housing, and job and education measures that are so vital if we are to move toward fulfillment of Dr. King's dream. And this is surely the moment when Americans ~~but~~ must deplore and reject, both the murderous racism that felled Dr. King and the same murderous racism or just plain criminality that brought some 28 dead, and robbery and arson and women and children struck down by wanton men and women who brought shame to the memory of Dr. King.

Not the most exalted among us should play at being God. As human beings we can do right or wrong; help us to do right as Dr. King sought to do.

Sincerely yours,
Joseph Clark

Gentlemen:

It seems to this writer that your April 6th advertisement in the "N.Y.Times" illustrates the ambivalent position taken by many organizations where the ultimate aims are not sufficiently clarified nor the method of solution generally acceptable.

Society did not kill Dr. King but an individual representing only a small segment of that society and I would propose that small segments everywhere advocating violence be brought under law which is strictly enforced irrespective of skin color. Interestingly enough, you admonish "white America" to forego lecturing "black America" and yet you, yourselves, admonish what should be done. Couched in diplomatic terms, I think your point that America in general relies on force to create a second-class citizen society, is poorly taken. Individual instances of course, individual prejudices of course, and we will always have them and we should try to sublimate and ultimately eliminate them, but force as a general policy, NO.

I would rather stress the common characteristics that unite all Americans rather than the differences, great though they may be, and it is these differences that have made America great. I am no more ready to admit that "white" society killed a black American than I am ready to admit that "black" society should be condemned in general because of the militancy of a minority group.

Could you not do America a tremendous service by policing those groups which are using your organization for the furtherence of a cause in which you too do not agree?

The situation is not very clear is it? It is so easy to lay blame on others and this is especially done by those who want the economic rewards of hard work without contributing that work and this seems to be the policy of the militants. If the end result of a peaceful demonstration continually produces violence, looting, killing, should the peaceful demonstrators be held accountable? If your answer is in the negative, then please do not condemn "white society" for the results produced by an equally miniscule minority. If, to achieve their own ultimate gain, the peaceful demonstrators flaunt law and order irrespective of whether they agree with those laws and that order, are the peaceful demonstrators operating within the type of society they wish, or are they in fact a positive contributory cause of the anarchy that is sweeping our United States?

I am not sure what the answers to many questions are, but I am sure that there is no clear cut picture and no clear cut method, no clear cut ultimate results. I am positive that for all of us....flaunting of the law can only create a situation which will progressively deteriorate until we all have less than what we have now.

As a responsible organization, have you examined your own souls as introspectively as you ask others to examine theirs. I am not very happy with mine; are you?

Dear Paul:

I have noted the excellent statement issued by the Southern Regional Council in regard to the death of Martin Luther King, Jr.

We believe that his voice should not be stilled and as one way of seeing to it that there will be others to carry on in behalf of justice and peace in the world, we are creating a $1,000 scholarship in his name to be presented to a student who has special financial difficulties. In the meantime, Texas AFL-CIO will continue to press for equal opportunities for all men.

It is a privilege to be associated with the Southern Regional Council and the fine work it is doing.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

The Texas AFL-CIO plans to set up a $1,000 Scholarship in memory of Dr. Martin Luther King, H. S. Hank Brown, President of the Texas AFL-CIO, said today.

He and Roy Evans, Secretary-Treasurer, will recommend to the State AFL-CIO's Executive Board that the scholarship be added to the scholarship program established this year by the Texas AFL-CIO.

"We in Texas labor, like most other Americans, were deeply saddened by the death of Dr. King," Brown said.

"The labor movement feels a special loss because Dr. King died fighting with us in our cause--a strike of garbage collectors who were seeking recognition of their union.

"To remind us over the years of the debt we all owe Dr. King and to remind us of his greatness, Roy Evans and I will recommend that this scholarship be established.

"We want to designate this Martin Luther King Scholarship for a student with a special financial need.

"We will recommend that the scholarship become an annual part of our scholarship program which, with the help of 10 union organizations in Texas, amounted to $6,000 this year."

April 12 1968

Dear Sirs.

I am writing to you as a result of your statement which appeared in the New York Times on April 9th I am a student at a private boarding school in the wilds of Vermont. Our community is integrated - 8 black students out of about 300 people - but nevertheless integrated. We had always considered ourselves far removed from the "real world" or where it was really at. As far as the majority opinion goes, being an opinion of white people, we all thought we felt very secure in our liberalism and "race doesn't matter" attitude, and when last week Martin Luther King was murdered, we were all stunned. But what we were really stunned by was the discovery that the major repercussions of this events was our own racial crisis. Where because of the reaction of the black students here and because of their willingness to give it to us straight, we were forced, and shocked into examining ourselves, into a very painful introspection that has left this school with an awareness and a thoughtfulness that cannot be shaken off or forgotten. And then we read in all the press, all of white America rising up in indignation at the violence in the cities, making grave statements about following in the footsteps of the slain symbol of non-violence. For me, these undoubtedly well-intentioned phrases fell flat. The blind refusal to stop, look around you carefully and say "what have we done" was the most tragic reaction to this tragic event that I could imagine.

Yours was the only statement I have read in all this time that really rings true, thoughtful and responsible. My main purpose in writing is to thank you for it and to endorse it myself, but also because of my feeling of tremendous helplessness at this time, I feel a need to express my feelings of intense concern in some direction other than back into myself. Thank you once again for your beautiful honesty.

Sincerely

As I See It

Fragments of mortar had torn his flesh in a dozen places. Sgt. Block lay there on the wet, Pacific sands, too weak to crawl. My efforts to drag him to safety were hampered by a sniper's fire just over the sand dunes.

Lying on my wet lap with his life ebbing away he asked, "Chaplain, since I'm going to die, tell me, is there anything on the other side? The other side of death . . . anything?"

There was no use in trying to offer him the pale hope that he wasn't going to die, or that all he had to do was to buck up, grit his teeth and pull hard in order to pull through. He was dying and he knew it. So did I.

"Yes, Sergeant, there is something on the other side," I told him without any quiver of uncertainty. With no disposition to preach him a sermon, I told him about those direct, wonderful words of Jesus: "I go to prepare a place for you . . . in my Father's house are many mansions . . . if it were not so I would have told you."

That seemed to do it. I felt a tense, throbbing body relax and yield to the escort of death. Twenty-one years old . . . and dead on the bloody sands of Ie Shima.

A FEW days later, in a stone's throw of that same spot, another American lay dying. Ernie Pyle, that man of the foxhole outlook, dying from a single Japanese bullet. Oddly enough, the previous night we had talked together about the business of living, dying, and the prospects of life continuing beyond death.

To many, immortality is nothing more than living on in the lives of their children. As a son resembles his father, only in that sense is the father immortal. Still others define immortality as one's influence to be felt in human society long after the death of the individual. Noble words or deeds live long after the decease of the author.

To millions, life ends at the grave—at least in their thinking. Like any other animal at death life ceases to be. And that's all.

Then for other millions, life beyond the grave is not a personalized immortality but, as rain falls to earth and finds its way back to the sea, then is drawn up by the rays of the sun, continuing the two-way journey, so life, is reabsorbed into the vast reservior of all life.

As a drop of water becomes part of the oceans, so a life becomes part of the whole of life. There is little comfort in this belief; it isn't as noble as it sounds.

At this time of year when there are a thousand intimations of immortality, springtime bids us anew to the life of new resurrection. Easter is more than one weekend! It is the assurance that "because He lives we too shall live."

Yes, there is more beyond—there is something on the other side.

Drama Presented April 20

A religious drama entitled "No More Darkness" will be presented on April 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the old social hall by the drama department of the First Baptist Church of Merritt Island, Fla.

This three-act play was written by Charles Wellborn and is a vivid presentation of college life and the temptations youth face. The April 20 presentation is part of a tour series the Merritt Island players are currently conducting.

Teenagers, young people and adults are invited. A fellowship period will follow the play.

Dear Beloved:

In writing let me express to you my heartfelt gratitude for allowing me these days "to labor among you in revival effort." To your pastor, Roy O. McClain, I am most indebted. In his words "This Way Please," I express my love for him in inviting me to come this way for these days. He and you plus everyone should I leave out someone, have shown an acceptance of the preaching of the cross. Paul said it best: "For the preaching of the cross is foolishness to them that are perishing, but to us who are being saved it is the power of God unto salvation."

Until we cross Jordon, together with Jesus, God keep you.

In Him whose resurrection is ours
by grace through faith,

NOTICE

The ordinances of baptism and the Lord's Supper will be observed in the evening service, April 21.

How To Make Revival Real

The word "revival" means a living again. Obviously the word is better applied to the renewal of church members than to evangelistic services designed to win the lost to Christ.

We have had in our church what we called a revival. The results in terms of numbers won to Christ were small. But if somehow our church membership could translate into attitude and action the resolves made and the emotions experienced as a result of the services, the revival would continue for months to come.

One of the results of the revival should be more love in our hearts for one another and for all men.

The need for more love in the hearts of church people was brought home to us in the latter days of our revival by the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. I know that the hearts of many white Baptists were softened by that brutal killing and the outpouring of grief from the thousands at the funeral services seen and heard on television by millions all over America.

But there are yet many professing Christians, some of them members of our church, whose hearts should be softened to the point where they no longer have prejudice against Negroes. I could wish that our revival would stimulate in those who are prejudiced greater love that would enable them to cleanse their hearts of prejudice.

The eyes of the whole world were turned through television on Atlanta during Dr. King's funeral as they have never before been turned on any other city to witness a funeral, with one exception, the funeral of John F. Kennedy.

The man whose funeral they witnessed by television was a Negro Baptist preacher whose grandfather was a slave. He and many other Negroes today are Baptists because many of our slave-owning Baptist forebears encouraged their slaves to receive the gospel. Negro Baptists are our brothers and sisters in Christ, as well as our fellow Baptists. For this reason, if for no other, we should overcome our prejudice against them. But we should have prejudice against no person, whatever his race may be, because prejudice is un-Christian.

Let us be sufficiently revived to thank God for the efforts of Martin Luther King, Jr. to win justice for his people by non-violence, and to pray that his death will be redemptive in that it will help all Americans to overcome prejudice, renounce violence and riots, and work for justice for all people.

70 Baptist Pastors Gather at Ebenezer

First Interracial Meeting Here Maps Ways to Work Together

By DIANE STEPP
Constitution Religion Editor

Ebenezer Baptist Church where the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. often preached for better understanding and among peoples of all races was the site Tuesday of the first official interracial meeting between Atlanta's white and Negro Baptist pastors.

The two groups — the white Atlanta Baptist Pastors Conference and the Negro Baptist Ministers Union — met to explore ways the two groups can work together and to have their respective interracial committees draw up a plan for regular monthly meetings between them.

Note the meeting was planned before Dr. King's death.

The first meeting was originally scheduled for last Tuesday but postponed because of Dr. King's funeral.

FATHER IS PRESENT

Present at the meeting was Dr. Martin Luther King Sr., father of the slain civil rights leader, who encouraged further meetings of the two Baptist associations. "A lot of things can happen with togetherness. I hope we do not get bogged down in non-essentials."

Dr. King told the pastors that "we should get a place to meet and eat together."

About 70 pastors attended the first interracial meeting. The group was about equally divided between white and Negro.

The initial planning meeting was primarily one of organization and discussion on how the two groups can work together.

Dr. E. A. McDowell, minister of teaching at Atlanta's First Baptist Church, offered a motion that the interracial committees of both conferences be authorized to meet and work out details for holding regular monthly meetings of the two groups. The motion was adopted.

As the meeting drew to a close, Dr. William Holmes Borders, pastor of the Wheat Street Baptist Church, told the pastors that "we in Atlanta ought to see to it in every way possible that we will work for better education, better housing, more job opportunities, better rehabilitation programs for people in prison and do everything possible to make this community better."

GOT TO BE WISE

The Negro Baptist minister asserted, "We can make Atlanta the headquarters of the world. We preachers have the primary responsibility in this cause. Religion is the mother of human culture. We've got to be wise, but we also have got to perform. If we don't we had better turn in our ministerial credentials."

Dr. Borders mentioned the late Dr. King briefly saying, "He gave his last measure of devotion. If we don't give ourselves to the divine task of obtaining democracy for the common man, monuments and words will be of no effect."

The interracial meeting grew out of a theological seminar conducted by Dr. McDowell at the Atlanta First Baptist Church for the past two years. The meetings have been attended by both Negro and white pastors in the Atlanta area.

MEMORANDUM

APR 22 1968

The attached refers to a subject in which you are interested, and is, therefore, referred for your information.

Yours very truly

Walter F. Mondale

and the members of the United States Congress passed a resolution in 1964 by a vote of 504 to 2, authorizing the President of the United States to take all necessary steps, including the use of armed forces, to assist any member or protocol state of the Southeast Asia Collective Defense Treaty requesting assistance in defense of its freedom; and

Whereas, the Communist aggression in Southeast Asia against the South Vietnamese government is an immediate threat to the people and security of the United States of America and the free world; and

Whereas, the South Vietnamese government has requested the United States for assistance in the preservation of its security and freedom; and

Whereas, the United States of America has sent its fighting men in South Vietnam to provide this assistance; and

Whereas, any withdrawal of the United States from South Vietnam will amount to an admitted defeat on the part of the United States and a significant retraction of its moral commitment to a country in need due to our participation in SEATO; now, therefore,

Be it resolved by the Young Democrats of Hawaii, assembled in Honolulu, Hawaii, this 30th day of March, 1968, that it does hereby respectfully request the United States of America, through its President, to continue its commitment in Vietnam until such time that peaceful negotiations can be formulated and agreed upon by the North Vietnamese government and the United States of America in the best interest of both the South Vietnamese government and the rest of the free world; and

Be it further resolved that certified copies of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States, to the members of the U.S. Senate from Hawaii, to the members of the U.S. House of Representatives from Hawaii, to the Governor of the State of Hawaii, and to the members of the Legislature of the State of Hawaii.

The Passing of Ralph K. Rahn Sadly Noted

HON. G. ELLIOTT HAGAN

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 11, 1968

Mr. HAGAN. Mr. Speaker, I have lost a good and dear friend—the passing of Ralph K. Rahn was sadly noted in Effingham County and the First District of Georgia. Ralph was an outstanding individual, unique in his simplicity and most distinguishing characteristic was his unswerving loyalty and devotion to his friends. And I had the great privilege of being counted among his friends.

Ralph Rahn came "into my corner" early in my political career, and he remained one of my most steadfast supporters and friends throughout the ensuing years—he was content to support his Congressman—and never exacted any promises or demanded any favors for himself. And he understood when an unusually busy schedule kept me from getting by to see him as often as I would have liked. They often told me down there: "If Ralph Rahn is for you, you have no worries in Effingham County."

Ralph Rahn, the politician, epitomized the kind of politics that has held this great country of ours together; individual citizens backing people they believe in. I am sure that Ralph did not wholeheartedly approve of every action of mine, but he used to tell me that he did approve of my sincerity, so I never heard any complaints from him.

On those occasions when Ralph did ask some favor, it was always for the good people of Effingham County, never for himself. He was a completely unselfish man, who thought always of others. His passing is lightened somewhat when I think back over the innumerable people he helped and he never refused a worthy individual, be he rich or poor, black or white. His many friends will tell you that a man about to lose his farm did not have too much trouble getting a helping hand from Ralph Rahn, and the many youngsters he helped through school have gone on to responsible and productive adulthood.

Although he had a heart as big as all outdoors, you would never hear about it from Ralph Rahn.

As a child in Sunday school, I well remember being taught that Jesus "went about doing good" and if, indeed, He does choose from among us to help Him "going about doing good," Ralph Rahn was certainly an excellent choice.

I have been blessed with an abundance of good friends during my lifetime, but men like Ralph are so rare as to leave an aching void by their passing.

I will miss Ralph Rahn and I will cherish our friendship always.

A Statement on the Death of Dr. Martin Luther King

HON. WILLIAM F. RYAN

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 11, 1968

Mr. RYAN. Mr. Speaker, the executive committee of the Southern Regional Council has issued a statement on the death of Dr. Martin Luther King. The statement is a most moving comment on the tragedy which has befallen the Nation, and I urge my colleagues to give it the reflection it deserves. It was published in the New York Times on April 9, 1968.

The statement follows:

A STATEMENT ON THE DEATH OF DR. MARTIN LUTHER KING

(Issued by the Executive Committee of the Southern Regional Council, Inc., meeting in Atlanta, Georgia, April 6, 1968)

The assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., once again reveals the psychosis of violence and the cancer of racism in American society. Once again, America is stained with the blood of a courageous and noble leader, with the tragedy of a husband and father senselessly destroyed. His murder violates the ideals for which he stood, ideals which express the great tradition of America.

This is not the time for bitter and unrestrained recriminations against the society which killed Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., but rather the time for all of us to pay heed at last to all that has already been said to the conscience of the nation in the grim, ghastly past—at the murders of John F. Kennedy, Medgar Evers, of the four little children in a Birmingham Sunday School, and so many others.

This is the time for white America to forego lecturing black Americans against violating the nonviolent philosophy to which Dr. King's life will stand as a memorial for all time. Let white America for once concede to black America strength and dignity sufficient to make that decision without advice or admonishment. Let white America acknowledge that black Americans, as Dr. King has proved, have equal moral personality as human beings and have the qualities of leadership and courage and dignity which all Americans need.

The life of Dr. King transcends the violence done throughout his career to the American ideals for which he stood and the final obscene violence to him. His leadership during his life and the pangs of conscience white America feels in his death give all Americans the chance—and perhaps the last chance—to make the choice between the kind of society for which Dr. King lived and died, and the kind of society which denies equal opportunity and relies on force above justice and equity. If America cannot produce leadership toward the society that Dr. King saw in his dream for America, then America is finished.

Let white America look into its own heart.

The War: A Field Commander's View

HON. JOHN O. MARSH, JR.

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, April 11, 1968

Mr. MARSH. Mr. Speaker, as we continue to hope for an honorable resolution of the conflict in Vietnam, military operations continue. Within the limitations of current national policy, our forces pursue the objective of security for South Vietnam.

The situation changes, but the basic problems remain. It is useful, therefore, for us at home to have the benefit of a variety of observations by qualified military and civilian leaders of our effort. In this connection, I should like to share with colleagues here remarks made a while ago by an Army commander who served with distinction in the field prior to his returning to the United States to become deputy commanding general of the U.S. Continental Army Command.

Lt. Gen. Stanley R. Larsen spoke as follows at a luncheon meeting of the Reserve Officers Association in Washington, D.C., on February 23, 1968:

Having returned from Vietnam more than six months ago, I am indeed flattered that this gathering of many of our most dedicated citizens should invite me to address you on that subject. Since your invitation dates back to long before the NVA/VC Tet offensive I was a little apprehensive lest the events of the past two or three weeks might make my observations patently outdated.

The summary, analysis, and conclusions to be drawn from the events of the past few weeks are still too premature to lend credence to much of the hasty observations that have been publicized to date. We can say, however, that in some respects the enemy did catch us by surprise; in other respects, our forces were well prepared. Certainly there has been much destruction in some cities, with thousands made homeless. The Vietnamese and U.S. Forces suffered their highest personnel losses of the war for any given period of time. We also know that the enemy, the Viet Cong and North Vietnam forces, suffered by far the heaviest casualties they have ever experienced in the war.

Many initial reports and commentaries express a dubious reaction, if not downright pessimism, over the initiative that the NVA/VC were able to achieve with apparent surprise and with apparent assistance from some Vietnamese living in the cities.

Much of our press and some responsible citizens with some popular following have concluded that our three years in Vietnam have resulted in failure. Failure to win the war. Failure to protect the people. Failure to root out the VC political infrastructure. Failure to keep roads open. Failure to get the Vietnamese to contribute more toward their own salvation.

Vociferous tongues have tried to use this latest flare-up as conclusive evidence that their past criticisms were correct and that we should now seek ways to pull out and, in effect, admit defeat. Such inflammatory insinuations make nail-biting reading. The nail-biting is intended for the public at home. In contrast, however, for the troops in the field about whom these reports are written, there is order, not chaos, as they see it on the ground.

There seems to be built into our current national make-up a sinister element which, dedicated and determined to get us out of Vietnam, will exploit any apparent evidence which makes America's presence, or efforts, in that struggling country look bad.

No one objects to man speaking his piece—expressing his opinions publicly. This is a right we all defend. Surely, however, by now those who persist in looking for every possible item of criticism to write about but who, avoid reporting honest progress when it occurs, must know that the seeds they are sowing are seeds of malice toward their own country. In my humble judgment, as a soldier, those who pursue a course of derogating our efforts in Vietnam might as well be

Fee
M. L. King, Jr.

'A right to a job or an income'

"Twelve years ago in Montgomery, Alabama, we started out with a bus protest, trying to get a seat, the right to sit down on the bus in any seat that was available. We moved through that period on to the period of desegregating public accommodations and on to voting rights so that we can have political power. Now we are at the point where we must have economic power.

"He was concerned about the least of these—the garbage collectors, the sanitation workers in Memphis. He was concerned that you have a decent income and protection that was due you. And this is why he came back to Memphis to give his aid.

"We are concerned about not only the Negro poor but the poor all over America and all over the world. Every man deserves a right to a job or an income so that he can pursue liberty, life and happiness."

Mrs. Martin Luther King, Jr., Speaking in Memphis

'It is time...to repent'

"The Memphis officials must bear some of the guilt for Martin Luther King's assassination. The [garbage] strike should have been settled several weeks ago.

"The lowest paid man in our society should not have to strike to get a decent wage, a century after Emancipation; and after the enactment of the 13th, 14th, and 15th Amendments, it should not have been necessary for Martin Luther King, Jr. to stage marches in Montgomery, Birmingham, Selma and go to jail 30 times trying to achieve for his people those rights which people of lighter hue get by virtue of the fact that they are born white.

"We, too, are guilty of murder. It is time for the American people to repent and make democracy equally applicable to all Americans."

Dr. Benjamin Mays, retired president of Morehouse College, Atlanta, Ga.

'Let white America look into its own heart'

"This is the time for white America to forgo lecturing black Americans against violating the non-violent philosophy to which Dr. King's life will stand as a memorial for all time.

"Let white America for once concede to black America strength and dignity sufficient to make that decision without advice or admonishment. Let white America acknowledge that black Americans, as Dr. King has proved, have equal moral personality as human beings and have the qualities of leadership and courage and dignity which all Americans need. . . .

"If America cannot produce leadership toward the society that Dr. King saw in his dream for America, then America is finished. Let white America look into its own heart."

PERSONNEL POLICIES

SOUTHERN CHRISTIAN LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE

The Administrative Committee of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference has approved the policies outlined in the following pages of this document, with the knowledge that effective staff performance is dependent upon sound employer-employee relationships and a high degree of motivation in the struggle for justice for all mankind. This manual is available to all staff members at all times, and any changes in the manual must be approved by the Administrative Committee and stated in writing and properly publicized among the staff. All staff members should become thoroughly familiar with the contents of this manual.

I. PERSONNEL ADMINISTRATION

The Office of the President has been given the responsibility and authority by the Administrative Committee to administer the personnel practices of the SCLC. Final authority and execution of these policies rests with the President, subject to the discretion of the Administrative Committee.

II. CLASSIFICATION PLANS

The Office of the President is responsible for defining all positions within the Conference, classifying them on the basis of kind and degree of responsibility so that each employee has a clear understanding of his duties. Payroll titles shown at the end of this booklet are in effect at the present time in the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. Machinery is set up in this organization for the careful, periodic review of the job performance of each employee. Such review must be made at least once annually by each employee's supervisor and must be shared with the employee concerned. Each employee must either sign the evaluation of his job performance or put in writing the reasons for his refusal to sign such evaluation. This material then is incorporated in the personnel file of such employee. Job descriptions for each position within the organization shall be completed and prepared anew at the discretion of the Office of the President.

III. PAY PLAN

The Southern Christian Leadership Conference has a pay plan made up of salary schedules for each class of position based upon a comprehensive, carefully developed study and approved by the Administrative Committee.

There is a provision for a minimum salary for each position and a series of intermediate steps within the schedules which shall be considered annually on the basis of job performance. The following factors have been considered in establishing salary schedules for the various positions:

1. The value of the service to the organization.

2. The degree of responsibility of the employee for exercising judgment affecting others, both in number of persons affected and the extent to which affected.

3. The skill required to perform adequately.

4. The rate of pay for comparable service in other agencies and services in the community and the nation.

5. The ability of the organization to pay the worker a salary which will afford basic economic security and allow him to participate in professional and cultural activities in the community, and to develop and maintain his professional skills.

IV. SELECTION AND APPOINTMENT OF PERSONNEL

(a) Applications for a position in the Southern Christian Leadership Conference should be submitted in writing and an initial interview held with the applicant during which the applicant is given information concerning the job description including a complete review of the position open, the skills needed and the performance expected, the salary schedule and increases within this schedule, the opportunities for advancement, personnel practices, emergency duties and other duties expected to be carried out by the staff, and an explanation of the development of personnel file. It is the policy of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference to bear the expenses of an applicant incident to this initial interview when such applicant is from out of town and has been invited by the organization to the interview.

(b) Prior to a final decision regarding the employment of an applicant, the personnel file must contain at least three written references which have been checked only with the applicant's permission. An initial interview containing the interviewer's impressions must be recorded, and the staff member who will be the supervisor of the applicant must have been consulted regarding the employment of such applicant. Authority for final decision regarding the employment of any applicant is reserved by the Office of the President.

SELECTION AND APPOINTMENT OF PERSONNEL (Continued)

(c) Notification to an applicant may be made by telephone. A follow-up letter, however, confirming the position, hours of work, salary, and other duties, must be sent to the applicant over the signature of the authorized person and must be accepted in writing by the applicant.

(d) Employees have the right to apply for open positions on the staff and will be notified of openings by memo when in the judgment of the Office of the President there are persons within the organization who may be qualified for such openings.

(e) All new professional employees must first pass a physical examination by a medical doctor and the cost of such examination up to $10.00 will be borne by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. The passing of this physical examination shall be a condition of employment.

V. WORK ASSIGNMENT

Assignment of responsibilities and duties and the areas in which an employee is expected to use his personal discretion should be delineated insofar as practicable.

VI. ORIENTATION

A training committee from the staff shall be charged with the responsibility for developing orientation classes for all new employees. Such classes must be held at regular intervals and shall be divided into three parts:

1. Orientation to the historic aspects of racial injustice in America.

2. Orientation to the various SCLC services.

3. Relationships and general policies and programs of other selected civil rights national organizations. (Detailed orientation to the particular service to which the employee will be assigned shall be the responsibility of the employee's immediate supervisor).

VII. STAFF DEVELOPMENT

In the interest of rendering the highest possible service, each employee shall have an opportunity for the development of his skills. To carry out such a program the following media shall be used:

1. Regular and planned supervisory conferences. The Southern Christian Leadership Conference recognizes that this is the medium of the most significant learning.

2. General staff meetings. These are held for the purpose of increasing understanding of the various services and activities, and for better integration of services.

3. Regular meetings of Service Directors with the President for a discussion of common problems, discrimination of knowledge, and discussion of new policies and procedures.

4. Institutes and seminars for increasing knowledge and skill in a specific area. These are not intended to take the place of supervision or professional training, but rather to supplement when necessary and when it is felt that the group method of learning is more effective.

5. The time of attendance may be part of the regular working day whenever feasible. However, the staff member should understand that the Southern Christian Leadership Conference reserves the right to require such staff members to attend institutes and seminars beyond the regularly scheduled working hours, and that attendance at such meetings shall be considered a part of their routine job assignments.

6. Scholarships for professional training with selection based on capabilities and potentialities for development are considered part of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference personnel practices when such a program is within the ability of the SCLC to finance.

7. Summer seminars and courses at institutes of learning, where such courses would increase the value of the worker to the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. Workers with professional degrees generally shall bear the entire expense for such attendance. The Southern Christian Leadership Conference may consider granting leave with pay if the Worker has been with the organization for number of years.

VIII. STAFF PARTICIPATION IN POLICY-MAKING AND PROGRAM

The Southern Christian Leadership Conference recognizes and encourages use of the experience and resources of its staff in the formulation and revision of procedures and programs. A committee shall be selected by the staff which will accept suggestions from the staff and serve in a consultative capacity to Management. A Management representative shall meet with this committee no less than once monthly.

IX. PERSONNEL RECORDS, MEASUREMENT OF PERFORMANCE

(a) The organization will maintain a personnel record of each employee containing application, references, contracts of agreements, work assignments, evaluations, and service ratings and correspondence relating to that employee. This material will be carefully protected against review or use by unauthorized persons and shall be available for use to authorized persons only after approval of the President's office.

see attachment

(b) A written evaluation of job performance shall be given to each employee at regular intervals and at any other time when evaluations are indicated. The following generally is the plan for the use of evaluations in the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

1. On the yearly anniversary of the employee's appointment to the staff.

2. When an employee is reclassified from one position to another.

3. When an employee leaves the staff.

4. At any time the employee requests an evaluation of his performance.

5. At any time in an employee's development where, in the opinion of the supervisor, an evaluation seems indicated in regard to helping the employee in more effective planning for his job performance

X. TENURE, CHANGE OF STATUS, AND TERMINATION OF EMPLOYMENT

(a) PROBATION

All employees are appointed originally for a probation period of six months to permit the employee to demonstrate his capacity for performance, and to determine whether or not the employee or the organization desires to continue the association on a more permanent basis. An evaluation must be submitted upon completion of the probationary period. The employee will be told in advance of this probation period and any specific expectations for this period. There shall be official notification in writing of the termination of the probation period. If there is to be a separation from the staff, initiated either by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference or the employee at the end of such period, two weeks notice of such intention must be given in writing.

(b) TEMPORARY EMPLOYMENT

Temporary employment shall be subject to the same conditions which apply to the permanent staff, with the exception that leave and other employee benefits will not be available to the temporary employee.

(c) TENURE

The continuation of employment in a position will be based upon employee's continuing satisfactory performance as indicated by continuous and periodic evaluations, with the sole exception of the reasons outlined in Paragraph F below.

(d) SENIORITY

In taking personnel action seniority shall be considered only in conjunction with the evaluation of performance. Where an employee has been with the Southern Christian Leadership Conference over a period of years, however, and the work has been satisfactory, this factor may be taken into consideration.

(f) LAY-OFF

When reductions in force are indicated such action shall be applied on the basis of performance rating with consideration for seniority. A minimum of two weeks' notice shall be given of such action, and at the discretion of the Office of the President, one month's surplus pay may be considered.

(g) DISMISSAL

An employee may be dismissed because of inability to perform assigned duties, negligence, or inefficiency, or for misconduct. It is understood that the interpretation of the word "misconduct" embraces insubordination on the part of a staff member. An employee may be demoted on the basis of inability to perform assigned duties. Dismissal for misconduct may be without prior notice.

(h) RESIGNATIONS

Employees who resign shall give two weeks' notice in writing before date of resignation. If such written notice is not submitted, his accumulated leave may be forfeited.

XI. HOURS OF WORK

It is recognized by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference that the average work week ideally should not exceed 40 hours, but by the nature of our assignments, it is frequently necessary, to carry out the needs of a program, that staff members will be required to work longer hours.

XII. LEAVE

(a) ANNUAL

Each permanent employee accumulates one working day a month annual leave. When absences on annual leave bracket a weekend, only the normal working days will be charged against the accumulated leave. The maximum annual leave any employee can take at any one time consecutively is ten working days. The other two days of accumulated annual leave may be taken at other seasons of the year. Annual leave must be recommended by the employee's immediate supervisor and must be given final approval in advance by the Office of the President. Unused annual leave is considered an earned dividend, and in the event the employee leaves the service of this organization, and a minimum of two weeks' notice is given, the unused annual leave will be returned to the employee as payment. In the absence of a minimum of two weeks' notice, the organization reserves the right to deduct from the annual leave payment, sufficient time to cover the two weeks' period which properly should have been given as notice of intention to resign. Whenever convenient, however, the organization will not require an employee to work the two full weeks of notice if a replacement is readily available and the employee wishes to leave earlier. No annual leave will be granted any permanent employee until he has served continuously for a minimum of three months. Upon completion of the three months' period, the employee will automatically be credited with three days annual. In the event the employee leaves the organization before the three months period is completed, no credit for annual leave will be granted. Permanent employees who work on a half-time basis will be granted half of the regular amount of annual leave. A maximum of six days annual leave may be carried over into a subsequent calendar year unless additional annual leave is not taken during the current calendar year at the specific request of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

It is recognized that our annual leave policy of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference is considerably more liberal than the annual leave policies in effect in industry-at-large, the reason being that our professional staff members do not receive overtime compensation, although they may be called upon at any time to serve beyond their normal working hours in the interest of effectively meeting the needs of a given services.

(b) SICK LEAVE

Sick leave will accumulate on a basis of one working day per month. When sick leave absences bracket a weekend, the weekend absences are not charged against the sick leave. When sick leave absences extend beyond a two-day period, they should be supported by a doctor's statement when in the opinion of the Office of the President such is desirable. Accumulated sick leave at the time of separation from the staff will not be considered as an accumulated earning of an employee and will not be reimbursed. No accumulated sick leave will be carried over into the following calendar year, unless it is approved in writing by the Office of the President.

(c) EMERGENCY LEAVE

Emergency leave will be granted only in instances where a member of the employee's immediate family is concerned. Illness of in-laws and cousins for example, and for moving from one house to another, as a rule will not justify the granting of emergency leave. Absences resulting from such personal problems will be charged to annual leave. A maximum of three days emergency leave will be allowed in cases of death or serious illness in the employee's immediate family.

(d) LEAVE WITHOUT PAY

Leave without pay may be granted an employee only when he has exhausted all accumulated annual leave. Leave without pay which brackets a weekend will include the weekend absence in the computation of the deduction to be made from the employee's salary. A maximum of one month's leave without pay may be granted in any one year to any permanent employee. Leaves of absence beyond that time, as a general rule, will require separation from the staff, subject to the discretion of the President.

(e) ANTICIPATED LEAVE

Any staff member who has been with the Southern Christian Leadership Conference for a minimum of six months may anticipate either sick or annual leave through the period of the calendar year. In the event such staff member leaves the employment of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference prior to the end of such calendar year, and has anticipated leave beyond the amount he actually earned, the excess leave he has anticipated will be deducted from his final pay check.

(f) APPROVAL AND PREPARATION OF LEAVE CARDS

The following policy shall apply in regard to the preparation and approval of leave cards.

1. Routine leaves, including annual leave and sick leave

   a. The employee should submit signed leave cards to the director of his service.

   b. The Service Director should then consult with the Accounting Office to determine the amount of leave for which the employee is eligible.

   c. If the leave is in order and meets with his approval, he should affix his signature. His approval constitutes his recommendation and final approval must be obtained by the Office of the President.

2. Unusual leave application, such as anticipated annual leave, leave without pay, or emergency leave, should follow the routine listed above.

   Suitable explanation of request for unusual leave should accompany leave card submitted to the Office of the President.

3. Leave cards shall be made out in ink, or on typewriter, and will not be accepted if corrections or erasures have been made unless the employee applying for such leave has initialed such changes.

XIII. HOLIDAYS

The following holidays will be observed:

New Year's Day
Labor Day
July Fourth
Thanksgiving Day
Christmas Day
Christmas Eve or New Year's Eve
(choice of employee with proper approval through channels.)

When any of the above mentioned holidays fall on Sunday, the following Monday will be observed as a holiday.

XIV. INSURANCE

(a) GROUP HOSPITAL

(b)GROUP LIFE INSURANCE

(c) WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

(d) SOCIAL SECURITY

All employees are required to participate in the Old Age and Survivors Insurance Program of the Social Security Act.

XV. PHYSICAL WORKING FACILITIES

The Southern Christian Leadership Conference recognizes that satisfactory physical working conditions are essential for efficient performance on the job. There should be adequate light, heat, ventilation, and fire protection. Sanitary and rest facilities should be adequate. Furniture and equipment should provide space and privacy and should be adapted to the need for such items. Provision should be made of adequate telephone and clerical service. Adequate supplies in both kind and amount are essential if satisfactory service is to be given. A pleasant and attractive office is essential to the well being and proper functioning of the staff. These conditions will be met to the extent of the organization's ability to finance such a program.

XVI. APPEAL

Any employee may take an appeal against the violation of these practices, or in the event of disagreement of an evaluation submitted by the employee's supervisor. This appeal should be first submitted to the Director of the service. In the event such disagreement continues the employee then has the right to take his appeal up directly with the Office of the President.

WORK PERFORMANCE REVIEW GUIDE
SOUTHERN CHRISTIAN LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE

1. Who is evaluated? Each staff member of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

2. Who evaluates the staff member? The immediate supervisor.

3. Who is the reviewing official? The immediate supervisor of the evaluator.

4. When are Work Performance Reviews to be completed?

   (a) For newly employed staff members, 6 months after date of original employment.

   (b) On the anniversary date of employment when it has not been changed by promotion, transfer, etc. A new anniversary date is established by promotion, transfer, etc., only when promotion, transfer, etc., is accompanied by a salary adjustment of at least one full step. The President's office maintains a record of all anniversary dates and forwards proper forms to the immediate supervisor through recognized channels 10 working days before the anniversary date. The completed form should be returned by the immediate supervisor within 20 working days after the anniversary date. (This allows approximately six weeks for the completion of the form).

   (c) When a salary increase is recommended.

   (d) Prior to any action that severs relationship between supervisor and staff member, e.g., promotion, transfer, demotion, separation, etc.

   (e) At other times considered appropriate by the staff member and/or the immediate supervisor.

5. SECTION I

   Part A should be completed for every staff member.

   Part B should be completed if the staff member being evaluated supervises one or more individuals.

   Part C should be completed if the staff member being evaluated has specific administrative or executive responsibilities.

6. SECTION II - Narrative Statement

The narrative part of the evaluation should be completed for every staff member. The narrative is the supporting document for the scale summation and provides source material for recommendations. The narrative also serves as a guide to the President in the construction of reference statements for present or former staff members. As many supplements as are necessary may be used.

September, 1964

Dear Friend of Civil Rights:

One of the most exciting grass roots movements in the South is taking place in Halifax County, North Carolina, described in the enclosed reprint, "An Upsurge in Carolina".

The Halifax County project, sponsored by the Southern Conference Educational Fund, Inc. (SCEF), has led to registration of some 2,000 new Negro voters. Other SCEF activities and needs are outlined in the enclosed folder.

The SCEF, oldest civil rights organization in the South with a program directed especially to white Southerners, is now fighting the most serious battle in its 25-year history.

On October 4, 1963, in a storm-trooper type operation, state police raided the offices and homes of SCEF officials in New Orleans. All of the corporation's records were seized. Two of the Fund's officers were indicted for violation of the Louisiana Subversive Activities and Communist Control Law and face possible sentences of from 10 to 30 years in prison.

SCEF is fighting back vigorously. A staff of distinguished lawyers, headed by William Kunstler and Arthur Kinoy have been retained. The Fund's attack on the constitutionality of the State statutes will be heard by the United States Supreme Court in November.

On October 4, 1964, SCEF will have demonstrated its determination not to be destroyed by surviving for one year under what an editorial by WDSU-TV station in New Orleans called "police-state" tactics.

More is at stake than the fate of SCEF and the freedom of its officers. This mockery of legal process by the State of Louisiana represents a last-ditch, desperate groping to destroy the civil rights movement under the guise of fighting subversion. If the segregationists can "get" the SCEF this way, other organizations and other individuals will assuredly be next all over the South.

We ask you, in this present crisis, to send us a generous contribution.

Sincerely,

Rev F. L. Shuttlesworth

Fred L. Shuttlesworth,
President

James A. Dombrowski,
Executive Director

P.S.: If you have already made your contribution to SCEF this year, please pass this on to a friend.

An Upsurge in Carolina

(By Staff Correspondent)

ENFIELD, N.C.—As yet very little noticed by the outside world, a remarkable grass-roots program of voter registration and political action is developing here.

In reaction, a resurgence of Ku Klux Klan activity is also developing in this area. It too is largely unnoticed by the outside world and could spell real danger unless the spotlight of decent public opinion is turned on it.

Enfield is in Halifax County, which lies in the heart of North Carolina's "Black Belt"—country similar to rural areas of the Deep South. This area lies in the northeastern part of the state—a section very different from the industrial and academic centers of North Carolina, where a measure of progress has given this state a "liberal" reputation.

This is farming and plantation country—cotton, tobacco, and peanuts—with virtually no industry. The Black Belt area covers roughly seven counties. Segregation is total and rigid, poverty rampant, and job and educational opportunities almost nonexistent for Negroes.

In the area as a whole, Negroes comprise about two thirds of the population, but relatively few are registered. Attempts to register have traditionally been met by many of the same tactics that prevail in the Deep South—various devices by registrars to refuse registration and physical and economic intimidations.

Yet in Halifax County in a few weeks time this spring more than 2000 Negro voters were added to the rolls; a Federal court order was won which prohibits registrars from blocking Negro registration and sets important precedents for the entire state and the South in general; 11 Negroes ran for local office, and one is in the race for Congress.

Most important, the group which did all these things, the Halifax Voters Movement, built itself into a strong grass-roots organization with workers in every precinct in the county and a democratic TROY LASSITER (left), co-chairman of the Halifax Voters Movement, talks with John Salter of the SCEF staff and a farmer from Tillery, N.C., during vote drive. Lassiter is a long-time veteran of civil-rights efforts; ten years ago he helped organize hundreds of Negro students who attempted to desegregate the schools in this section. That movement was crushed but Lassiter and others continued to work.

A SEVEN-COUNTY AREA in Northeastern North Carolina, shaded on this map, is the heart of what is known as that state's Black Belt—a farming area very much like the Deep South where segregation is rigid and repression is the pattern. The more darkly shaded area is Halifax County, where new upsurge of civil-rights activity centers. The lightly shaded surrounding counties, into which activity will soon spread, are Warren, Northhampton, Hertford, Bertie, Martin, and Edgecombe. Parts of the Black Belt pattern and ways also extend into other surrounding areas. The counties with heavy black lines to the west and south are industrial areas which have given the state its liberal reputation.

structure run from the bottom up.

Commenting on the nature and growth of the group, John Salter, SCEF field organizer who has worked closely with it, says:

"Few developments have ever made me quite as optimistic about the future of grass-roots democracy as has the healthy way this movement has developed."

Although the new upsurge is limited now to Halifax County, it is almost certain to spread to the other Black Belt Counties; it has significance for the entire state because this area—due to disproportionate representation — has traditionally exerted great control in the State Legislature.

Efforts at Negro registration in Halifax County actually date back many years, with a few pioneers carrying the burden of the struggle. The new upsurge, however, started last winter.

Last summer there were nonviolent direct action attempts to integrate some of the public facilities of Enfield, and these were met with mass arrests and clubbings and fire-hosing by police and vigilantes. This convinced many people of the need to build Negro voting strength.

In February, grass-roots leaders from all over the county came together and mapped their campaign. The representation cut across all class and economic lines—the very poorest farmers working alongside professional people.

By summer every community in the county had been touched and many of the rural areas; more than 100 mass meetings had been held, and about 100,000 pieces of literature distributed.

Total population of Halifax County is 58,000, of whom 32,000 or about 55 per cent are Negroes. Before the recent registration drive, 1600 were voters. In the brief two-week registration period in May, this was increased to 3,600.

On the first registration day, Negroes were met with widespread police harassment and stalling tactics by registrars. That's when they went into Federal court. Attorneys Arthur Kinoy and William Kunstler of New York, Morton Stavis of New Jersey, and Samuel Mitchell of North Carolina won a sweeping injunction laying down certain rules to insure that registrars could not deny Negroes the right to vote.

For example, the ruling held that no registrar could spend more time registering Negroes than whites, must try to register each person in a five-minute period, that he must register three people at a time when lines began to form, must hire extra clerical help, etc. The ruling also required that registration be held on every week day during the registration period, instead of just on Saturdays as previously.

Observers said this ruling probably means that no county in this state will ever again try a massive effort to block Negro attempts to register and vote.

After the registration period, the Halifax Movement concentrated on getting out the vote in the primary election. Movement poll watchers estimated that 3,000 Negroes voted—an unusually high percentage.

The 11 Negro candidates didn't win, of course,—not this time, but many people caught a glimpse of what can be done as more people register. The candidates ran on a broad platform of "Food, Freedom, and Good Government."

The large Negro turnout happened despite great tension in the air, large numbers of hostile police and segregationists in evidence, and the increased Ku Klux Klan activity in the area.

With the elimination of the Negro candidates from the primary one Negro remains in a race this year — A. C. Cofield, long-time leader in this area and chairman of the Halifax Voters Movement, who is running as a write-in candidate for Congress in the November election.

Meantime, the Halifax Voters Movement is turning its attention to long-range goals. It is tightening up its precinct organization and extending its work more intensively into the rural areas of the country; and a massive registration campaign is being planned for the next registration period, which comes in October.

It has sent 31 local persons to be trained as teachers in the Southern Christian Leadership Conference citizenship schools, and they are setting up literacy and citizenship classes. There will also be classes in America government and social problems. Food and clothing are being collected by the Movement for poverty-stricken families.

The movement is backing a school integration effort too, and 18 Negro children have applied for transfers to segregated schools this fall. Testing of the new federal civil rights bill started as soon as it went into effect and some barriers fell. Economic boycotts are in the planning stage to support demands for fair hiring policies.

The counter-pressures have been tremendous. A state leader of the White Citizens Council affiliate has spent a great deal of time here, crosses have been burned and, in late June, armed Klansmen, some wearing masks in violation of state law, traveled to Enfield, held a rally and drove through the Negro section. Death threats have been made against civil rights workers.

There has been an intensive campaign of red-baiting—charges of communism against the civil-rights movement in ads and letters in the newspaper. The John Birch Society is strong here and it is a stronghold of the Wallace-for-President campaign in North Carolina.

None of this has frightened the Halifax Movement people; if anything, their determination has increased. However, they are concerned because the press in the rest of the state seems to be ignoring the upsurge of Klan activity and they fear it will grow and turn more and more to open terror unless there is widespread protest.

The Halifax Movement is pushing an important court test as a counterattack against economic pressure applied to civil-right workers. This is the case of Mrs. Willa Johnson, wife of Reed Johnson, who was a candidate for office; Mrs. Johnson herself is also a movement leader. She is a school teacher and her contract was not renewed for next year.

Attorneys Kunstler and Kinoy, Martin Bradley of Buffalo, N.Y., and Samuel Mitchell filed suit in Federal Court asking reinstatement and damages for her. It is a class action so that a victory will insure the rights of other teachers who want to become active.

In addition to the assistance of John Salter of SCEF, the Halifax Voters Movement has had the help of two field secretaries of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee, J. V. Henry and Doug Harris, both native North Carolinians, and also of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, of which it has become an affiliate. Groups such as the League of Women Voters and AFL-CIO COPE have given aid.

The great bulk of the credit for what has been done, here, however, belongs to the local people of Halifax County themselves.

Klan on March

DURHAM, N.C.—The Carolina Times, a statewide Negro newspaper, ran an editorial recently entitled, "The Ku Klux Klan Takes Over in Enfield." In it the editor said: ". . . In Enfield and other sections of Halifax County, the law is glad to take a holiday while the Ku Klux Klan or any other group of white persons who wishes to do so, exercises the liberty of heaping insults and abuses on Negroes."

ITS PLANNED ACTIVITIES AND FINANCIAL REQUIREMENTS 1964

THE SOUTHERN CONFERENCE EDUCATIONAL FUND, INC.

ITS PLANNED ACTIVIT

THE BUDGET: SCEF's annual budget is about $110,000, about 25% of this goes for administrative and general office expense; and about 75% for publications and special projects. The administrative and general office expense is a fairly stable, fixed sum, but the publications and special projects budget is adjustable. Only those projects are undertaken for which money has been raised or which appears to be in sight.

WHERE THE MONEY COMES FROM: All of SCEF's budget comes from voluntary, individual contributions. We have about 300 friends who contribute $100 or more, but most of the annual gifts are from "little people", from $10 to $25. A special effort is being made to secure $12 a-year-gifts ($1.00 per month).

HOW THE MONEY IS SPENT: SCEF is in regular contact with about 100 grass roots civil rights organizations in the South, lending them encouragement, and making available a staff of professionally trained, experienced technicians, especially skilled in public relations and community organizations.

SCEF's STAFF: SCEF's field staff includes Carl and Anne Braden, who have worked as reporters and editors on some of the South's largest newspapers; John R. Salter, Jr., formerly professor of social studies at Tougaloo College, Mississippi, and advisor to the Jackson, Mississippi, NAACP Youth Committee which did such a remarkably fine job of organizing the Jackson Freedom Movement; the Rev. William Howard Melish, an ordained Episcopal Minister, and chairman of the Religious Freedom Committee; Mrs. Ella J. Baker, formerly national Director of Branches for the NAACP, and former executive director of Dr. Martin Luther King's organization, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference; Adult Advisor of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee; Coordinator Washington office, Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party.

EDUCATION FOR GRASS ROOTS LEADERS: SCEF conducts workshops on a local and regional basis for the leadership of grass-roots civil rights groups for the discussion of basic issues, policies, and directions. In the past 3 years special attention has been given to the relationship of civil rights and civil liberties.

WHO DIRECTS SCEF's POLICIES: SCEF's board of directors of 80 and its advisory committee of 100, divided about equally between whites and Negroes, all live in the South. The Rev. Fred L. Shuttlesworth, noted civil rights leader of Birmingham and Cincinnati, is president of SCEF.

SCEF's UNIQUE CONTRIBUTION—ENLISTING WHITE ALLIES: While all SCEF projects and activities are integrated, SCEF regards its unique contribution to the civil rights struggle to be the seeking out, and encouragement of Southern white liberals. For 25 years SCEF has provided a rallying point for those Southerners who wanted to take an uncompromising stand against all forms of discrimination and segregation. As our field staff travels about the South, they try to find these isolated liberals and help them to feel they are not alone.

BUILDING LINES OF COMMUNICATION—THE SOUTHERN PATRIOT: SCEF helps to maintain lines of communication between all integrationists in the South by means of a monthly newspaper the Southern Patriot, now in its 22nd year of continuous publication. It collects, and interprets the news of the Southern integration struggle, publishes profiles of its leaders, etc. Almost all of this material is written by the Patriot's own staff of correspondents, and is not available from any other source. The Patriot is not a SCEF house organ. It publishes news of all integrationist organizations active in the South. It can be found in the libraries of many of the country's leading colleges and universities. The Patriot is sent automatically to all contributors to the Fund.

NEWS BUREAU: SCEF maintains a news bureau servicing about 300 newspapers, magazines, TV and radio stations.

WHITE STUDENT PROJECT WITH "SNICK": For the past 3 years SCEF has given a grant to the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC-"SNICK") to pay the salary and expenses of a fulltime field secretary to visit "white" college campuses in the South with the aim of involving more white students in the freedom movement. For the first two years "SNICK" selected Bob Zellner to work under this grant.

This school year it is Sam Shirah. For the first 2 years the grant was $5,000. This year, because of the financial crisis precipitated by the raids, the grant has been reduced to $3,600 or $300 per month. We would like to restore this grant to its original amount.

TWO NEW PUBLICATIONS: SCEF is distributing a new publication by Anne Braden, published by the National Committee to abolish HUAC, under the title of "HUAC-BULWARK OF SEGREGATION", and plans to distribute another pamphlet by the same author. It is a basic document, still to be named, on the SCEF raids & arrests. We need $7,500 for this publishing project: $2,500 for the HUAC pamphlet, and $5,000 for the pamphlet on the SCEF cases.

SCEF is interested in two projects that are close to the hearts of two of its associates:

(1) HALIFAX COUNTY, N. C.—John R. Salter, Jr. has laid out an ambitious plan for the development of a grass-roots community campaign for the Tidewater region, beginning with a Voter-Education project in the largest county in North Carolina (Halifax County —60% Negro). They need food, clothing, books of all kinds, and money. $4,200 would finance the project in its initial stages. (Telephone, postage, mimeo supplies, gas, etc.) This project could be just as significant for the Tidewater region as Fayette County has been for Tennessee and the Delta.

(2) APPALACHIA: Sam Shirah, a SNCC staff member, working under a SCEF grant, has had a dream concerned with the problem of how to convert the Southern Negro student protest movement into a real black and white movement of people against injustice. To put it more positively and concretely, how to unite the dispossessed in a program for "Jobs and Freedom". He wants to start in the Southern Mountain region. We would like to be able to help finance an office and skeleton staff for one year. $5,000 would do it.

SCHOLARSHIP AID FOR YOUNG FREEDOM FIGHTERS: SCEF has raised more than $5,000 to provide scholarship aid for the children of the Rev. Fred L. Shuttlesworth, 3 of whom are now students at the University of Cincinnati. A few other young people have been helped. This is one of the areas where more funds are needed urgently.

COOPERATION WITH OPERATION FREEDOM & AID FOR VICTIMS OF ECONOMIC REPRISALS: SCEF helped to set up Operation Freedom which is doing such a marvelous job with loans and grants to the Freedom fighters in Fayette and Haywood Counties and in the Mississippi Delta, to help the victims of economic reprisals to make a crop and stay alive. Where Operation Freedom has been unable to help, SCEF has stepped in to assist some special cases:

(1) SCEF raised $19,000 in loans to refinance the business of a Negro business man in Mississippi, in order to give him an economic base from which to carry on his activities as a leader in the freedom movement.

(2) SCEF has raised $21,000 in loans to finance another key Negro business man in Tennessee. The money was used to complete and equip a multipurpose building when white merchants refused to sell to Negroes, when they began to register to vote. The Small Business Administration has agreed to take over the mortgage upon completion.

(3) SCEF has raised $45,000 in bail bonds for young freedom fighters, almost all of them SNCC field workers and members.

SCEF's LEGAL DEFENSE, OUR MOST URGENT IMMEDIATE NEED: We have listed some of the typical projects of SCEF which will indicate how our funds are spent, and I have mentioned a few projects for which we need funds now in order to maintain our regular program. However, the raids and arrests on October 4, 1963, placed a heavy financial burden upon the Fund for legal defense.

In addition to the criminal prosecutions of 2 SCEF officials by the State of Louisiana, SCEF has two cases on appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court, one for a half million dollars in damages, and one, which is the key case, testing the constitutionality of the Louisiana Statutes. SCEF desperately needs immediate financial aid for legal defense. We are trying to raise $25,000 for legal defense in 1964, in addition to the regular budget of $110,000 or a total of $135,000.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF THE SCEF COURT CASES: Much more is involved in SCEF's legal defense than the survival of the Fund, for if Louisiana is successful in its efforts to destroy SCEF, it is certain that Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and other Southern states will move quickly against all civil rights organizations and their leaders.

The significance of the SCEF case was stated by Circuit Judge John Minor Wisdom at the beginning of his forthright dissent:

> "The main issue in this case (Dombrowski v. Pfister) is whether the State is abusing its legislative power and criminal processes: whether the State, under the pretext of protecting itself against subversion, has harassed and humiliated the plaintiffs and is about to prosecute them solely because their activities in promoting civil rights for Negroes conflict with the State's steel-hard policy of segregation. They ask the federal court to defend their federally protected rights."

It is not stretching the truth to say that the police state tactics used against SCEF, if permitted to stand, are a threat to all organizations working for peace and for social justice, as well as all agencies that challenge the status quo.

* * * *

The Washington Post

. . . A three-judge Federal court now has under consideration a suit by the SCEF attacking the constitutionality of the Louisiana Subversive Activities and Communist Control Law. In the manner of its enforcement in Louisiana, the law seems to be a plain infringement on the advocacy of ideas—and as such in violation of the First Amendment. It seems obvious that it is being used against the SCEF for the sole reason that that organization is engaged in advocating civil rights for Negroes in the South. If it succeeds in this case, it will be used in other Southern states to tag the civil rights movement as "subversive" and Communist. This amounts to rule by intimidation. It is the antithesis of the democratic process.

ELLAVILLE, Ga.--A 14-year-old boy is scheduled to go on trial for his life on Feb. 14 because he killed a policeman who was hitting his brother with a club.

Charlie Hunter shot Night Policeman John A. Hardin to death last Nov. 13 on a dirt road about a mile outside the Ellaville city limits. The boy said he feared that Hardin was about to kill his brother Willie, 19.

Judge T.O. Marshall, sitting as judge of Juvenile Court, turned the boy over to Superior Court for trial on a charge of first-degree murder. Marshall is also judge of Schley County Superior Court.

He was to preside at the trial of Charlie and Willie Hunter, who is also charged with murder. The state was expected to ask that the brothers be electrocuted.

Attorneys for the Hunters are challenging the system of jury selection in Schley County. They say that it results in the exclusion of Negroes, who make up 56 per cent of the population of the county.

Concerned citizens in Southwest Georgia have formed the Hunter Defense Committee to try to free the youths. Slater King, president of the Albany Movement, is chairman. He said the committee hopes to include persons in other parts of the nation who have voiced concern about the case.

King pointed out that Officer Hardin and another man stopped the Hunter brothers on the road outside Ellaville, although the policeman's authority did not extend beyond the city limits.

The man with Hardin was identified as Kermit O. Green, a foreman with the Georgia Highway Department who also acts as county jailer. Sheriff William Marcene Ellis testified at a preliminary hearing that Green had no authority to arrest anybody anywhere. The sheriff said that Green should have been feeding prisoners at the jail about the time that he and Hardin stopped the Hunters.

The Hunter brothers said that Willie Hunter, who was driving their car, was slow in getting out of the vehicle after it was stopped. They said the policeman then hit Willie Hunter with a club while Green held a pistol and an automatic rifle.

Charlie Hunter said that he yelled to Hardin, "Don't hit him anymore," and tried to get out of the car. The boy charged that Green pushed him back into the car while Hardin hit his brother with the club again.

The Hunters related that Willie was lying on the ground half-conscious, and Hardin was preparing to hit him again, when Charlie grabbed the pistol from Green and shot the policeman.

The brothers were taken to the Sumter County Jail in Americus, where they have been held without bond. Their family employed C. B. King, an Albany attorney, to defend the youths.

The Hunter trial recalls a similar case in Ellaville which became quite celebrated almost 20 years ago. At that time Mrs. Rosa Lee Ingram, a sharecropper with 12 children, was attacked in a field by a white neighbor. One of her sons struck the man and he fell dead from the blow.

Mrs. Ingram and two of her sons, 13 and 15, were sentenced to die in the electric chair but world-wide protests resulted in their sentences being commuted. All are now free after serving sentences of varying lengths.

The Hunter Defense Committee is at P.O. Box 1641, Albany, Georgia. Funds are needed to help in the defense of the youths.

Dear Mr. Anthony,

When I visited you during the summer you mentioned that SRC has a good many surveys and studies of various aspects of Southern life available, which I might get copies of. I wonder if I may take up your offer, for help in documenting an article for the Southern Patriot on dual justice in rape cases. Mr. John Boone touched on this during the workshop on dual justice in the courts here last month, and I've addressed my letter to him. I've enclosed a copy of that letter. If he is out of town, would it be possible for you to have someone else forward the material to me? Can you suggest any reports published by other groups, which might be relevant?

Thank you very much.

Mr. John Boone,
Southern Regional Council,
5 Forsythe SW,
Atlanta, Georgia.

Dear Mr. Boone,

As I mentioned last month, when I met you in Louisville at the workshop on dual justice, the Southern Patriot is compiling statistics for an article on dual justice in rape cases. You said then that the SRC has several reports and studies which would be useful to document the article. I wonder if we could have copies of anything you have available. If you have any reports which would be useful for my article, but which have not yet been published in quantity, could we borrow a copy for a few days, and return it? Or could you have it xeroxed? Any reports or studies published by other groups which you could suggest would be helpful.

One other request: Mrs. Braden was talking to you about a study of Arkansas prisons, and you mentioned you had an extra copy of that. Would it be possible for us to have it?

Our deadline is much too soon, as usual, so in case you're out of town at another of these workshops and won't be back to deal with all these requests in the immediate future, I'm sending a copy of the letter to Mr. Anthony. I hope to hear from one of you. Many thanks for your help.

Peace,

Texas Rangers Break Farm Workers' Strike

By ROBERT ANALAVAGE
(Assistant Editor)

La Huelga — the strike in the Rio Grande Valley of Texas—has been broken by the Texas Rangers. For 1967 it is over. But the efforts of the Rangers and the ranchers have not broken the spirit of the 2,000 Spanish-speaking Americans who have been striking for 16 months in an effort to gain recognition for their union, the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee (UFWOC), and to better the conditions under which they live.

Starr County, where the strike is taking place, is 98 per cent Mexican-American. Most of the people work the huge Anglo-owned ranches for wages ranging from 40 to 80 cents an hour.

In June of 1966, organizers from the National Farm Workers Association (NFWA), headed by Cesar Chavez, came in from Delano, Calif. Soon the cry of La Huelga was heard in the valley.

But the struggle did not develop along ethnic lines—Mexican-American against Anglo—for the local power structure is solidly Mexican-American. This latter group lined up with the large Anglo ranches mostly owned by out-of-state interests.

Scabs vs. Pickets

The ranchers immediately refused to recognize the UFWOC (which the NFWA soon became) and began to bring "green cards," strike breakers, from across the border to work the idle fields. The strikers set up roving picket lines on the International Bridge, and on one occasion staged a sit-in on the bridge itself, only to be hauled to jail by border police.

The pickets continued to patrol the ranches, shouting for their people to leave the fields and join La Huelga.

On one occasion the gates on the International Bridge were padlocked and traffic between the two countries was stopped for an entire day. A trainload of bell peppers was held up when a railroad bridge was mysteriously blown up one night.

Arrests totalled over 100. Then, just recently, the melons were ready to be harvested. Strikebreakers from all over were recruited and the power structure called on the Texas Rangers to "preserve the peace."

(The Rangers traditionally have been hated fiercely in the Spanish-speaking community. Not unlike the Ku Klux Klan, they were formed in the old days of the Texas Republic to keep the Mexicans "in line". They merged with the Confederate Army during the Civil War to fight to preserve slavery, and in the Twentieth Century they have been used repeatedly as strike breakers.)

The Rangers pushed pickets around and intimidated strikebreakers who might have left the fields. The strikers said the Rangers used "Gestapo

Farmers Build Co-Op

A Black Belt Revolution

(By Staff Correspondent)

"A man at Orrville told me that if it wasn't for the co-op starting up this year, he would have given up farming. He couldn't see any way to continue. The white man was just closing in on him; told him he'd have to leave his farm. He hadn't been making any kind of living from it, anyhow . . . .

"As soon as the young people graduate or drop out of school, they're gone. There just isn't anything for them to do here. I feel like the co-op has just got to work. Without it, the farmer's back is really to the wall."

—Mrs. Clara Walker,
Dallas County, Alabama

SELMA, Ala.—The co-op is SWAFCA—the South West Alabama Farmers' Co-operative Association—which recently won a $400,000 grant from the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO).

The man from Orrville is just one of some 15,000 black farmers who live in a ten-county area in the rich, Black Belt country of southwest Alabama. Five thousand of them support families on less than $500 a year—half of these, on less than $250. Only 5,266 make more than $1,500 a year. (These figures don't include people who know only farming, but have no land.)

Their poverty becomes more overwhelming year after year, as white landlords steadily mechanize their plantations, and cotton allotments grow smaller and smaller. Year by year, families have been moving away. Between 1959 and 1964, 18 per cent of the farm population in these ten counties left the land.

The Early Movement

The co-op is not the first attempt people here have made to solve their problems. "We first started coming together during the Movement," Mrs. Walker says, "trying to register to vote and having such a hard time. I guess that kind of pulled us together."

They worked hard to build an anti-poverty program a year and a half ago, and the power structure "snatched the rug out from under it. We thought we had it. We did all the hard work and set it up. Then they took it over and turned it into whatever the ditch-digging program is now."

Last fall, more than two years after the Selma-Montgomery march, they could see that "things were no better than they had been. They were worse." And many of the farmers felt they were approaching a crisis.

Credit was tightening up and more people were being thrown off the land. The white landowners had taken the crop subsidy checks from their black tenants by a legal maneuver which still has people puzzled. "We saw that if we didn't do something right away, there wouldn't be any farmers left to organize," one man said.

At first, they thought of banding together to sell their cotton so they could get a better price. Then they decided they could also buy supplies more cheaply through a co-op.

This is SWAFCA country

People went from farm to farm, talking to their neighbors and finding out what they wanted to do. By January, 800 farmers had agreed to take part. They decided to stop growing so much cotton and corn—the two traditional crops in this area—and to start growing more vegetables like cucumbers, peas and okra, which would show a much higher profit.

Ten-county Area

They included farmers from ten counties, rather than setting up a separate co-op in each county, so the buyers would not be able to play one group off against the other. And they met with representatives of all the government and private and public agencies who could possibly be of help. They soon realized that the help

Judgment Day

An Editorial

For years people active in the civil-rights movement have warned this country that there would be uprisings among the poor people unless our society met their needs. It was stressed that the poor themselves must organize so as to have control over their life situation and to insure that they kept such control.

It was obvious and stated over and over that the black poor would be the first to rebel because they live under the worst conditions.

This summer, as cities across America caught fire symbolically and literally, it seemed to some of us as if a judgment day had come. But there was no satisfaction in being able to say "I told you so." There was only a sense of tragedy, of failure that we had not made our voices heard.

Patriot* readers and editors are not the general public. Most of us feel we have never done enough, but by and large our readers black and white are among the people who have worked long and hard to change conditions. It is to these people that we now speak:

First and foremost, now is a time when we must not despair —those of us who have hoped for mass movements that could remake this society by peaceful means and that these movements could join the efforts of black and white.

Unless such movements can yet be built there is little hope for this country and perhaps for the world. And if we despair now, we will miss a crucial new opportunity to analyze why they have not been built in the past and how they might be built in the future.

Second, we must hold tight to our perspective and not fall prey—as we don't think many Patriot readers will—to those who say the turmoil could be avoided if a few "agitators" were got out of the way. Scapegoating is an ancient human sickness —and one of the worst.

Third, we must realize that we are probably in for a wave of repression and must resist it everywhere. Panicky police in cities not yet hit by uprisings do not understand the basic problems and turn to harsher police methods. Thus the rights of many people get trampled on.

(For example, recently in Louisville four innocent black men were held under $20,000 bond each after some fires were set, and city officials refused to let a public building be used for a ghetto community meeting. For documentation of new wave of terror sweeping the South, see the "news in review" on page 3.)

And finally, most urgently, we must each of us begin working today to organize the people around us for a national program, on a scale not yet dreamed of, to end injustice and poverty and make this country fit for all its people to live in.

Past movements for peaceful social change have failed partly because people in power have not wanted change and have used every device and every form of terror to crush such movements. (One such device is discussed on page 7, but there have been many others.)

The Ghetto Revolts

But movements have also failed, as has been noted in recent Patriot articles, because they have not been radical enough—radical in the sense of going to the root of what is wrong in our society and dealing with people's vital needs. They have failed too because sometimes people in these movements have lost their nerve at crucial moments. These are problems we can do something about.

And the concept of black-white unity has thus far failed because not enough white people have been organizing other white people around goals that coincide with those of black people. Yet, programs that can change the lives of black people

Book Notes

King's Program for the Future

A few years ago, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., confided to friends that a great frustration of his life was a lack of time and tranquility to read and think. It is a common dilemma among people on the front lines of social struggle.

Sometime since then, however, King apparently has managed to find the time, for it is evident in his new book, Where Do We Go From Here: Chaos or Community? (Harper & Row, 49 East 33rd St., New York, N.Y. 10016, $4.95). This book deals with hard economic and political realities in a way his earlier works did not.

King takes a long look at the situation of black people in America today and candidly acknowledges that their revolution has "established a foothold, no more." But he refuses to write off the struggles of the past decade. "He (the Negro)," he writes, "came out of his struggle integrated only slightly in the external society but powerfully integrated within. . . . He gained manhood in the nation that had always called him 'boy.'"

One chapter is King's personal account of the development of the "black power" slogan during the Mississippi march of 1966. (He deplores the choice of the slogan, but goes on to define the realities of power which he says black people must forge.)

Another chapter demolishes the myth of the "white backlash" (which he calls the "surfacing of old prejudices, hostilities and future, he declares, demands "far-flung, workmanlike and experienced organizations. . . ."

A New Morality

Despite its emphasis on practical economics and politics, there is much of the "old" King in this book too—the ringing calls for a new morality, a new man, a new world. For this reason perhaps, some will write it off as impractical and vague. To this reviewer, however, it seems that King is working his way to a new stage of thought that combines high-minded vision with down-to-earth program, a combination that is sorely needed in many quarters today.—A.B.

How Race Concept Was Invented

Earl Conrad's ninth book, "The Invention of the Negro," has been made even more valuable by recent outbreaks in cities across the nation.

Conrad shows how the concept of race and the myths which support it were invented and kept alive over the last 500 years. First used to justify the slave trade and slavery, these myths now help many white people to avoid caring what happens to black people. In Nazi Germany, they helped so-called Aryans to blot from their minds the horrors heaped upon the Jews.

Myths Strengthen Control

The myths also keep black and white apart so that the employer group, whether urban or rural, can keep political and economic

Langston Hughes' Last Book

When Langston Hughes died last spring, SCEF and other civil-rights groups lost a faithful friend, America's black people lost a ringing voice, and the entire nation lost a great talent that turned pain and suffering into beautiful poetry.

Hughes' last book, "The Panther and the Lash" (Alfred A. Knopf, 501 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y., hardcover $4.50, paperback $1.95), makes the reader acutely aware of this loss all over again.

Forty-four of the 70 poems in the volume are new; 26 are from Hughes' earlier books. But all are timely comments on the world and the nation and people today—from Alabama to Harlem, from despair to bitterness to persistent faith in life.

SCEF Couple Is Charged With Sedition

Alan and Margaret McSurely, field organizers and writers for SCEF, were arrested in Pikeville, Ky., on Aug. 11 on charges of sedition. They were still in jail at press time. Joseph Mulloy, a field director for Appalachian Volunteers, an OEO agency, was also arrested. Some of the recent action around Pikeville is described on Page 4.

"This'll keep them agitators from comin' in and causin' trouble."

movements. (One such device is discussed on page 7, but there have been many others.)

But movements have also failed, as has been noted in recent Patriot articles, because they have not been radical enough—radical in the sense of going to the root of what is wrong in our society and dealing with people's vital needs. They have failed too because sometimes people in these movements have lost their nerve at crucial moments. These are problems we can do something about.

And the concept of black-white unity has thus far failed because not enough white people have been organizing other white people around goals that coincide with those of black people. Yet, programs that can change the lives of black people—that can make our cities livable and eliminate human need—will also benefit the great majority of this country's white people. Here lies the possibility of meaningful black-white coalition.

We need, for example, a vast public-works program to give jobs to millions slowly starving in the slums of our cities and in the South's mountain and farming regions. We need in every community great numbers of houses, schools, hospitals, libraries, cultural and recreational centers—every kind of building needed for a civilized society.

Meantime, as an emergency measure, we need permanent unemployment pay of at least $60 a week for every jobless person willing to work—until government or industry finds him a job. Retired people and students should also be entitled to such benefits.

Many intelligent Americans are making proposals of this kind. There is absolutely no reason why a nation that plans to put a man on the moon cannot rebuild its cities and make its industrial genius serve the needs of man.

But it won't happen with a system of values that allows our government to spend $24 billion a year on a war in Vietnam that is making us hated all across the world, plus $50 billion more for war materials—while devoting $2 billion a year to a so-called war on poverty.

It won't happen while there are congressmen in Washington like those who ridiculed and hooted down a modest $40-million bill to kill the billions of rats in our slums. It won't happen with a House of Representatives that makes its contribution to deep social problems by passing a bill to prosecute so-called agitators who cross state lines.

It won't happen, in short, until we organize all across the country and put people in power who will respond to the needs of those who put them there. None of us can do much about this alone, but for each of us—wherever we live—there are things we can do to organize and must begin to do now.

Movement Leader Dies

AUSTIN, Tex.—George Vizard, a leader in the peace and civil-rights movement here, was shot and killed July 23 at the grocery store where he worked.

Vizard, 23, was active in SDS, the Du Bois Club, the Texas Farm Strike, and had been involved in civil-rights work ever since it began here. This summer he was co-ordinating Vietnam Summer work.

He was well known as an activist, and his life was threatened several times. Recently, he was arrested for peace activity and beaten by Austin police.

The police are now investigating the shooting. Money is reported to have been taken from the safe of the store. Individuals and organizations across the country have sent telegrams to the U.S. Attorney general and others asking for a full investigation.

Book Notes

King's Program for the Future

A few years ago, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., confided to friends that a great frustration of his life was a lack of time and tranquility to read and think. It is a common dilemma among people on the front lines of social struggle.

Sometime since then, however, King apparently has managed to find the time, for it is evident in his new book, Where Do We Go From Here: Chaos or Community? (Harper & Row, 49 East 33rd St., New York, N.Y. 10016, $4.95). This book deals with hard economic and political realities in a way his earlier works did not.

King takes a long look at the situation of black people in America today and candidly acknowledges that their revolution has "established a foothold, no more." But he refuses to write off the struggles of the past decade. "He (the Negro)," he writes, "came out of his struggle integrated only slightly in the external society but powerfully integrated within. . . . He gained manhood in the nation that had always called him 'boy.'"

One chapter is King's personal account of the development of the "black power" slogan during the Mississippi march of 1966. (He deplores the choice of the slogan, but goes on to define the realities of power which he says black people must forge.)

Another chapter demolishes the myth of the "white backlash" (which he calls the "surfacing of old prejudices, hostilities and ambivalences") and takes on those white liberals who have retreated as the struggle became more complex and who are "more devoted to 'order' than to justice."

A Vast Mobilization

The rest of the book develops King's program for the future. At the risk of over-simplification, what it amounts to is a vast mobilization of this nation's resources to meet the needs of man.

He sees this as being achieved by a combination of mass nonviolent direct action and political action. The former concept is under attack from two separate directions today—from those who are turning to violence and also from those who say the time for all street action is past and that more "sophisticated" forms of action are needed. King, however, holds steadfastly to his belief that nothing can replace the power of thousands of marching feet and the creative upheavals of nonviolent direct action.

Political Organizing

But he calls for undergirding mass action with the "tortuous job" of solid political organization "in a thousand places." In a self-critical passage, he states that the failure of the civil-rights movement to do this has been one of its basic weaknesses:

". . . . It was not necessary to build a widespread organization to win legislative victories. Sound effort in a single city such as Birmingham and Selma produced situations that symbolized the evil everywhere. . . . We made easy gains and built the kind of organizations that expect easy victories and rest upon them. . . ." The future, he declares, demands "far-flung, workmanlike and experienced organizations. . . ."

A New Morality

Despite its emphasis on practical economics and politics, there is much of the "old" King in this book too—the ringing calls for a new morality, a new man, a new world. For this reason perhaps, some will write it off as impractical and vague. To this reviewer, however, it seems that King is working his way to a new stage of thought that combines high-minded vision with down-to-earth program, a combination that is sorely needed in many quarters today.—A.B.

How Race Concept Was Invented

Earl Conrad's ninth book, "The Invention of the Negro," has been made even more valuable by recent outbreaks in cities across the nation.

Conrad shows how the concept of race and the myths which support it were invented and kept alive over the last 500 years. First used to justify the slave trade and slavery, these myths now help many white people to avoid caring what happens to black people. In Nazi Germany, they helped so-called Aryans to blot from their minds the horrors heaped upon the Jews.

Myths Strengthen Control

The myths also keep black and white apart so that the employer group, whether urban or rural, can keep political and economic control. Conrad has done a tremendous amount of research to show how we got where we are, and perhaps to help find a way out. His book has 231 pages, plus a bibliography and index. Publisher is Paul S. Erikson, 119 West 57 St., New York, N.Y. 10019; $5.95.

Langston Hughes' Last Book

When Langston Hughes died last spring, SCEF and other civil-rights groups lost a faithful friend, America's black people lost a ringing voice, and the entire nation lost a great talent that turned pain and suffering into beautiful poetry.

Hughes' last book, "The Panther and the Lash" (Alfred A. Knopf, 501 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y., hardcover $4.50, paperback $1.95), makes the reader acutely aware of this loss all over again.

Forty-four of the 70 poems in the volume are new; 26 are from Hughes' earlier books. But all are timely comments on the world and the nation and people today—from Alabama to Harlem, from despair to bitterness to persistent faith in life.

SCEF Couple Is Charged With Sedition

Alan and Margaret McSurely, field organizers and writers for SCEF, were arrested in Pikeville, Ky., on Aug. 11 on charges of sedition. They were still in jail at press time. Joseph Mulloy, a field director for Appalachian Volunteers, an OEO agency, was also arrested. Some of the recent action around Pikeville is described on Page 4. Further details in next month's Patriot. Meantime, protests are needed to Governor Edward Breathitt, State Capitol, Frankfort, Ky.

Breaking Down Barriers In Southwest Alabama

In Wilcox County, members of the Freedom Quilting Bee are earning up to $300 a year by sewing quilts, sunbonnets, potholders. Their average family income before the Bee started was $800.

In the small, all-Negro farming community of Gees Bend, groups of white Alabamians have learned about the problems of rural life by spending the weekend with families there. It was the first time most had visited in black homes.

Starvation: Mississippi's Final Solution

The Abuses of White Power

By ROBERT ANALAVAGE

"The only Negroes I've seen are so fat they shine."
—Paul Johnson, Mississippi Governor

Hitler had one method of ridding the German state of "undesirable" political elements; Mississippi has another. And sometimes it is difficult to distinguish between the two "solutions," for they both fall under the heading of genocide.

Dr. Cyril Wheeler of Yazoo City, Miss., medical adviser to Friends of the Children of Mississippi (see June Patriot) said there is an "unwritten but generally accepted policy on the part of those who control the state to eliminate the Negro Mississippian either by driving him out of the state or by starving him to death."

Doctor's Report

To back up Dr. Wheeler's charges, a team of physicians recently toured Mississippi and examined hundreds of children. The physicians said, "Malnutrition is not quite what we found; the boys and girls we saw were hungry—weak, in pain, sick . . . they are suffering from disease and hunger and directly or indirectly they are dying from them—which is exactly what starvation means."

They reported "diseases of the heart and lungs which require surgery; severe kidney ailments that warrant immediate hospitalization; eye and ear diseases and unattended bone diseases secondary to poor food conditions; chronic diarrhea; wasting of muscles; enlarged hearts; abdominal edema (commonly known as bloated belly); a weakness of the foods free—foods such as powdered eggs and milk, molasses, bread, spam, bacon, etc., which were only meant to supplement a diet, not to be a diet. Under this program, inadequate as it was, at least people had something.

But the old American myth about so-called self-reliance and individual responsibility cropped up and it was felt by some well-fed rugged individualists that the poor should "not receive something for nothing." Thus, the food-stamp program was started.

It sounded good enough on the surface. Families would pay $12 for food stamps that could be traded at local stores for $70 in food. But for a poor family $12 is an enormous amount of money to raise in a lump sum, and for an unemployed man it is an impossibility. In one area alone, when the new program came in, 38,000 fewer people were receiving food, and across the state fully one-third fewer people participated in food stamps than got commodities. What is happening to these people?

Miss Laura Engle of the NAACP Legal Defense Fund said that "several groups such as the Delta Ministry and private citizens have collected and distributed food. This is all that can be done, in the face of the federal government's inaction, to keep these people from starving."

Senators' Reaction

Several senators toured Mississippi and they tried to describe the situation.

Joseph Clark of Pennsylvania called it "shocking and terrible." Robert Kennedy said "it is a reflection on all of us." George Murphy of California said he didn't know "poverty such as this existed in America," and Jacob Javits of New York said "what we saw were not poor people but starving people."

All the good senators are right. It is all of these things. But it is more. It is just one more of the abuses of White Power. It is Mississippi's version of the final solution.

Breaking Down Barriers Iu Southwest Alabama

In the small, all-Negro farming community of Gees Bend, groups of white Alabamians have learned about the problems of rural life by spending the weekend with families there. It was the first time most had visited in black homes.

Twenty low-income families in another community are building their own homes, with the help of an OEO grant and FHA loans.

These are all small projects but they are helping to erode the pattern of life in southwest Alabama—breaking down the poverty that grips black people here, and walls that keep people apart.

They are projects of the Rev. Francis Walter, a young Episcopal priest who is head of the Selma Inter-Religious Project. SIP grew out of the Selma March. The different denominations that had come together decided to build something permanent.

Father Walter and his wife, Betty, are both natives of Alabama. They were forced to leave their first parish, in George Wallace's Barbour County, because of their stand against segregation. They moved to Tuscaloosa two years ago, when SIP was set up.

He is fighting to end the massive "deportation" of Negroes from the Black Belt. "They still have a majority in many of these counties," Mr. Walter says, "and while that's so, there's still a possibility for a social and political revolution here."

He helps by lobbying for support when organizations like the South West Alabama Farmers' Co-operative Association (see story page 1) come under attack; integrating poverty boards; providing emergency aid for local groups that spring up to meet special needs; developing programs to enable people to stay here; and most important, he feels, communicating with whites in Alabama who will lobby for and support Black Belt Negro enterprises.

He has also provided a way for movement supporters to give very concrete help to Negroes in the Black Belt—by contributing to SIP, and sending letters and telegrams to Washington when they are needed.

The Freedom Quilting Bee produces beautiful quilts for $25. Help for SIP and the Bee can be sent to Mr. Walter at 810 29th Avenue, Tuscaloosa, Ala. 35401.

They reported "diseases of the heart and lungs which require surgery; severe kidney ailments that warrant immediate hospitalization; eye and ear diseases and unattended bone diseases secondary to poor food conditions; chronic diarrhea; wasting of muscles; enlarged hearts; abdominal edema (commonly known as bloated belly); a weakness of the bone structure; and, finally, from chronic hunger — "fatigue, exhaustion and weakness."

The doctors said it was not surprising that in Mississippi the infant mortality rate among Negroes is more than twice that of whites, and while the rate for whites is dropping, the rate for Negroes is rising.

These conditions have always existed among black Mississippians but surprisingly, in an age of food surpluses, they have actually grown worse. One reason is that in the last two years, the farms have been rapidly mechanizing, throwing as many as 80 per cent of the black people out of work in some areas.

But there is a more sinister explantation: These conditions are a result of the federal government's food-stamp program and the control that Southern congressmen wield over the committees that control the program.

Commodities vs Food Stamps

Under an older program called Commodities (a surplus food program) poor people at a certain income level received some basic foods free—foods such as powdered eggs and milk, molasses, bread, spam, bacon, etc., which were only meant to supplement a diet, not to be a diet. Under this program, inadequate as it was, at least people had something.

But the old American myth about so-called self-reliance and individual responsibility cropped up and it was felt by some well-fed rugged individualists that the poor should "not receive something for nothing." Thus, the food-stamp program was started.

The News in Review

Violence, Repression Sweep the South

While Northern ghettos exploded into nation-wide headlines, a wave of repression and terror was sweeping the South. In Texas, an attempt to crush the movement was seen in the prosecution of five Texas Southern University students (see page 8) for first degree murder, and the shooting of George Vizard (see page 2) raised questions.

The body of Rodell Williamson, one of the first Negro poll watchers in Wilcox County, Ala., was found in the Alabama River. In Nashville, Tenn., police shot and killed a young Negro man; they said he was running from the scene of a break-in. A Negro policeman in Clarksdale, Miss., was suspended for a month after he killed Joe Lee Hale, 18, while trying to arrest him. The county judge said the killing was "justifiable".

The Baton Rouge, La. homes of a labor leader (Victor Bussie, state head of the AFL-CIO, who had asked the state legislature to investigate Klan bombings) and a movement leader (Mrs. Viola Logan) were bombed in one night.

In Mobile, Ala., a bomb destroyed the home of movement leader J. L. Leflore. Four Negro homes and a large church have been destroyed by fires in West Tennessee this summer.

There has been a large-scale resurgence of Klan activity in North Carolina. The homes of four Anson County School officials who had been working to integrate the high school, and the office of another, were bombed late in June. Three weeks later, the FBI arrested 12 men accused of shooting into homes, dynamiting businesses, burning churches, residences and poverty program property, in an attempt to stop school integration in two other counties—Rowan and Carrabus—over the last 21 months.

The Rev. Frank Williams, a young black minister who moved into a white neighborhood in Greensboro, has been harassed constantly: one crossburning touched off violence in the nearby black ghetto. And a growing number of North Carolina areas find themselves labelled "Klan Country" on billboards.

Judge J. Skelly Wright of the U.S. Court of Appeals, sitting as a district judge, struck at de facto segregation of Washington, D.C. schools in a decision handed down July 19.

He ruled that segregation that results from neighborhood residential patterns is just as unconstitutional as that which comes about through administrative decree. It was the first time a court had ruled that discrimination against people who are poor is also unconstitutional.

The People vs. Bulldozers

A Victory in the War against Strip Mining

By SUZANNE CROWELL
(Staff Correspondent)

ISLAND CREEK, Ky. — The people of this Eastern Kentucky community stood up to bulldozers and won a decisive victory in the fight against strip-mining last month. The fight centered around the property of Jink Ray, which was threatened by the 150-foot augers of Fon Johnson's Puritan Coal Company.

Nonviolence?

On June 29, when the bulldozers approached the property line, friends and neighbors stood in the way. "If we have to let blood, then we'll let blood," said one resident. Governor Breathitt visited the site and urged nonviolence, while promising support to the landowners. Breathitt had asked strippers to halt their activities until a case pending in the Court of Appeals is decided this fall.

A county judge enjoined the landowners from interfering with mining operations on July 17. A crowd again gathered at the property line, and again stood off an earthmover which nearly killed two people as it pushed a boulder weighing several tons part way down the hill.

Jink Ray wired Breathitt: "Bulldozers are working. If you intend to help us, please do it now." Recognizing the strength of the movement, the Governor suspended Puritan's operating permit and ordered a full investigation into whether the stripping would endanger lives and homes.

The investigation lasted two weeks, and on August 1 the State Reclamation Division announced that Puritan's permit to mine Jink Ray's property had been permanently revoked. Although the legal slope limit of 33 degrees for stripping had not been exceeded, it was ruled that the operation would endanger homes in the hollow.

During the period between June 29 and August 2, the Island Creek community had literally been up in arms. Fon Johnson, the coal operator, had reportedly "gone gunning" several times for local citizens. The people vowed to defend their homes with guns, if necessary. Involved in many unionization struggles, the people of Eastern Kentucky do not scare easily.

The landowners are organized into the Appalachian Group to Save the Land and People, which advocates abolishing strip mining, providing damages to landowners, and imposing a severance tax on coal. The Group has been aided by the Appalachian Volunteers, an OEO-funded program.

Despite the fighting tradition of the region, the coal operators insist on believing the "outside agitator" theory. The head of the Pike County Chamber of Commerce, Robert Holcomb (who, incidentally, is also head of the Independent Coal Operators Association) has had federal officials investigate the role of the AVs in teaching "open resistance to law and order."

"The law sure seems against us," says Jink Ray. Indeed, the coal operators usually have a very sympathetic ear in the State Reclamation Division, and the courts have ruled consistently in their favor—that is, since the first appeal challenging the right to strip mine.

In April, 1964, a Magoffin County Court Judge ruled that the broad-form deed which conveyed the rights to coal companies allowed strip mining. But if the company destroyed the surface rights retained by the owner, he said, the company must pay damages.

Damages Reversed

The Court of Appeals reversed the damages decision. Accepting the argument that strip mining existed in 1903 when the deed was signed, the high court said no payment was in order. It is true that surface mining of the pick-and-shovel variety existed, but equating it with modern auger methods is ridiculous.

Unfortunately the lawyers for the landowners filed only a two-page brief with the Appeals Court, referring back to their petition for a rehearing. Undoubtedly that affected the judges, since the claim that strip mining existed at the time of the deed signing was never attacked.

The fight against strip mining is far from over. Resistance by the coal operators is strong. During a recent tour of strip mines led by the Appalachian Group, which included federal officials, the entrances to several mining areas were blocked by bulldozed ditches and deputy sheriffs.

Support for Jink Ray has come from all over the country, but as long as each case is considered separately, the odds are stacked in the companies' favor. Only a blanket court rule or a state law against stripping will mean real victory.

"Something is Wrong"

The Court and the Miners

(By Staff Correspondent)

HAZARD, Ky.—The U.S. Supreme Court, just before it went home for the summer, refused to review the convictions of four Eastern Kentucky miners who tried to organize their own war on poverty five years ago.

The four are Bige Hensley, Charles Engle, Clayton Turner, and Herb Stacey. They were leaders of the roving picket movement that swept the Kentucky mountains in 1962.

They face five year prison sentences. The charge against them was conspiring to blow up a railroad bridge that was never blown up. Their convictions were based on confessions they made under extreme pressure (see May Patriot).

Their attorneys have asked the Supreme Court to reconsider its refusal to review their case. This request will come before the court in the fall. If they are turned down again, they must go to prison.

(Their attorneys, Leonard B. Boudin, I. Philip Sipser, Paul O'Dwyer, and Dan Jack Combs, are giving their services without charge.)

A Tragic Example

Supporters of the men here and elsewhere in the country are already planning a clemency campaign if they have to go to prison. They see the case as a tragic example of all that is wrong in the mountains.

The roving picket movement of 1962-63 was an effort by Kentucky miners to win decent pay and a decent life. At that time the mines were cutting wages and stopping payments to the union welfare fund that supported hospitals in the area. The miners' hospital benefits were cut off.

The men struck at some mines and set up pickets that moved from mine to mine—thus the name, roving pickets. They also began to organize for political action to elect their own people to office and replace the local officials who were closely tied to the mine operators.

All of the forces of the coal operators and of the local, state, and federal government joined in a drive to break the movement. State and federal court injunctions were issued; the leaders were arrested. The final blow was the arrest of the men accused of conspiring to blow up the railroad bridge in June, 1963. Time and money had to be diverted from organization into defense of this case, and the movement died.

Even the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, which refused to set aside the conviction of the four miners, recognized the unusual nature of the case. In its opinion, it said:

"From the beginning this court has been aware that this was no ordinary criminal trial and that these men are no ordinary criminals. . . . they were pictured as driven to desperation by the harsh facts of the declining coal industry and by abandonment of their own union. . . ."

The roving-picket movement was an effort by the poor in Eastern Kentucky to organize on their own to exert some control over their own lives. After it was crushed, the federal government began to pour money into the area in its so-called war on poverty. This gave a few people high-paying jobs and stifled the discontent—but the poor are still poor and the powerless still powerless.

In a recent pamphlet on the miners' case, the Southern Conference Educational Fund (SCEF) says:

"Today the federal government is pouring millions of dollars into Appalachia in a so-called war on poverty. But most of the money is going to a high-paid new middle class, and the poor people are still hungry and destitute.

"Five years ago, the poor people tried to organize their own war on poverty through the roving picket movement, and their movement was crushed by the coal operators with the help of the federal government. Now this same government is sending four leaders of that movement to jail. Something is wrong."

(Copies of this pamphlet are available from SCEF, 3210 W. Broadway, Louisville, Ky. 40211.)

Supporters of the four miners believe that if these men, who had the courage and the imagination to try to organize for themselves, are allowed to go to prison without widespread protest, it will be a long time before there will be new movements for change that really represent the poor in the mountains.

Southern Activists Invited To Meeting

(By Staff Correspondent)

Southern civil-rights organizations, both regional and local, are among 200 groups invited to send delegates to a national convention called by the National Conference for New Politics (NCNP) in Chicago, August 31-September 4.

NCNP, which was organized in 1966, describes itself as an effort to "unify into a strong political force" individuals and organizations committed to common goals, namely, ending the Cold War, establishing racial equality, encouraging disarmament and "constructive relations with people undertaking revolutionary change," and using the nation's resources to solve its problems at home.

Georgia State Rep. Julian Bond, a member of the board of SCEF, is co-chairman of NCNP. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., will give the keynote address at Chicago.

A Third Ticket?

There has been considerable talk of NCNP running a 'third ticket" in the 1968 national elections, headed by King and Dr. Benjamin Spock, the pediatrician. In midsummer, however, King was saying that he would not run.

The convention was also expected to discuss widespread local independent and issue-oriented candidacies. Over the past year, NCNP has supported such candidates in California, Mississippi, and elsewhere.

In the official call to the Chicago convention, the signers state: "We will not be trapped inside the old parties; and we will not be trapped outside of them. And if we should build a party, it will be not merely a party, but a movement."

"We do not Govern our Government"

The call also states: "We do not feel that we can now govern our government. We do not feel that we can even govern our own private institutions . . . . Who decided that our schools would be dreary, ugly prisons of body and mind. . . .? We didn't.

"Who decided that strip mining should wipe out towns in Appalachia? We didn't. Who decided to put a man on the moon, to give $80 billion a year to the military establishment, instead of making our country a healthy and creative place to live and raise children? We didn't.

"Whoever runs America, it is not the American people . . . We intend to end poverty, fear and despair at home. . . . We intend to make our government accountable to us. . . ."

In addition to Judian Bond, Southern signers of the convention call include Chet Briggs, Austin, Tex.; Ivanhoe Donaldson, Washington D.C.; Victoria Gray, Hattiesburg, Miss., also a member of the SCEF board; Myles Horton, Knoxville, Tenn.; John Hulett, Lowndes County, Ala.; Sue Thrasher, Nashville, Tenn.; and the Rev. Andrew Young, Atlanta, Ga.

The Drift Toward Fascism

In I. F. Stone's words: this country has crossed the line between where a solution is possible for America's Negroes living in the ghettos, and where inevitably we are progressing toward revolutionary civil insurrection. Neither integration nor complete civil rights are the issues any longer: for the Negro it is either now, the "now" standing for immediate equality de facto, rights, jobs, enjoyment of what is available to white citizens, or a destroying rampage of that which they cannot possess or enjoy. The lines have been drawn, and polarization has crystallized.

What occurred in Newark in July, the violence of which outstripped Watts two years ago, is only the beginning. And the behavior of the white ruling powers, treating the Negro ghetto and its inhabitants as if they were occupied enemy territory, with the police totally indifferent to the people—this will be more and more the rule as we go further into 1967 and toward 1968.

Today, in Detroit, L.B.J. has called out federal troops, and as Stone said: the revolts are not any longer in Vietnam and the Congo, but at home, and what we are witnessing is an incipient civil war. The opportunities to alleviate the injustice, inhumanity and unlivability of American Negro life, are gone.

What is to be expected now? The prospects are very dark, if not hopeless. The lines having been frozen as they have, will polarize the population into two separate camps: the Negro minority and the white majority. White backlash will envelop congress, and supression laws will be passed and implemented. Federal troops will become the principal tool of supression, and eventually oppression.

The fascization of the white attitude toward American Negroes will steadily spill over into the fabric of life in general, and in the not too distant future we will one morning live with the fact that this country is fascist.

At that point, the L.B.J.'s and other mouthers of inanities will be swept up into the historical trash-cans, just like the Bruenings and Von Papens in Germany; the military or their puppets will take over; dissent or even discussion will be supressed; and opponents will be eliminated. It is then also that total blind jingoism will take over foreign policy, and nuclear war will become an accepted form of behavior.

It seems that inevitably we are going toward that abyss. We will have the choice: either run, and remove ourselves bodily to foreign soil, where humanity will still be allowed; or prepare ourselves to

UNION MILITANCY

The June Patriot had some statements about dues checkoff which I wish to question. The article about Cone Mills in North Carolina states that automatic deduction of union dues from workers' pay checks "is at the base of any strong union. Without checkoff, a union couldn't posibly collect enough dues to fight a rich company like Cone. . ."

Dues collection is surely an important part of keeping a union in fighting trim, but I doubt that the purpose is served by having the company deduct the dues automatically.

In the early days of the C.I.O., many opposed the checkoff on the ground that union officials tend to become fat and lazy when dues come in without any effort on their part. History has proved this to be correct in most instances. If you doubt this, look about you in the trade-union moveday of today.

Strong and militant union officials, fighting for the rights of the workers, have no trouble getting dues paid. The workers want to pay when they see that the union is serving their interests. So, if the union really fights a rich

Yet it may be the better choice, to resist, and be consumed as humans.

In order for this to work, there must also be a program for keeping union members fully informed. The dues payers must know what the union is doing and what it stands for.

Union newspapers and pamphlets must be geared to telling the workers' story and not become puff sheets for union officials. In other words there is no substitute for an informed and militant membership with dedicated, disciplined, and articulate leadership. Surely a forced dues checkoff is no substitute.

terror tactics": keeping people under surveillance, arresting people in the middle of the night, beatings.

One girl, Kathy Baber, a student who has been working with the strikers, was grabbed by one Ranger and shoved from Ranger to Ranger. She was finally smashed into a pole. Miss Baber is a small girl; the incident caused one Huelgista to remark, "they need 1,000 pounds of Ranger to handle 100 pounds of girl."

Ranger Brutality

But the most serious incident came when several Rangers, led by Captain A. Y. Allee, broke into the home of a strike organizer, Magdaleno Dimas. Smashing down the door, the Rangers attacked Dimas and another organizer.

Captain Allee shouted: "Kill the bastard! Kill the bastard!" Dimas received several stitches, his spine was injured, and he developed blood clots as a result of the beating.

Another time one picket was beaten, handcuffed, and his head was held a few inches from a moving train.

The Rangers rode shotgun as the growers moved their crops to the railroad yard. When the railroad workers abandoned the train to honor the strike, the train was operated by railroad agents and Rangers. Indeed, the Rangers even went to the trouble of setting up a machine gun on a flat car.

The "Strikebreakers"

Gilbert Padilla, vice-president of UFWOC, refuses to call the Rangers law-enforcement officers. He simply refers to them as "strikebreakers".

The melons—the crucial crop the Huelgistas had to stop—got to market. It will be another year before the next harvest. Meanwhile, the organizers continue to talk to the workers and prepare for next year.

And the Rangers, who all have the initials "RKK" as the first three letters on their license plates, are referred to as "Ranger Klux Klan" by the people. Everywhere, the black Aztec eagle, the symbol of La Huelga, is visible.

The SCEF Suits:

Supreme Court Gives the Go-Ahead

(By Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Southern Conference Educational Fund (SCEF) is preparing for trial of its charges that the staff of Senator James Eastland's Internal Security Subcommittee plotted with Louisiana officials to raid SCEF's offices and steal its records in 1963.

The way was cleared for the trial when U.S. Supreme Court ruled that SCEF may proceed with a $250,000 damage suit against J. G. Sourwine, general counsel for the Eastland Committee.

The Supreme Court decision has been hailed as a major victory for civil rights and civil liberties. It means that for the first time a representative of a witch-hunting committee of Congress must come into court as defendant instead of prosecutor and answer charges that he violated the rights of citizens.

A SCEF statement at the time of the decision said: ". . . . The Supreme Court decision vindicates SCEF's position that high officials are not above the law. This means that it is possible for citizens to fight back against the witch hunt—and if people are willing to fight back the sad days of the McCarthyite 1950's need not be repeated in the 1960's."

The raids involved in the suit took place when SCEF's main offices were in New Orleans. Three SCEF officials were arrested by Louisiana officials and charged with violating that state's law against so-called subversive activity.

SCEF challenged these charges in the U.S. Courts and won. In a landmark decision in 1965, the Supreme Court upheld SCEF's charge that it was being harassed for its civil-rights activity. The court, in effect, told the State of Louisiana to leave the organization alone.

After this victory, SCEF moved its main offices to Louisville because its long-time director, Jim Dombrowski, retired, and its new directors were long-time Louisville residents. However, it has maintained an active program in Louisiana and now has six staff members working there.

SCEF had filed suit for damages against Eastland and Sourwine in U.S. District Court in Washington. The lower court dismissed the suit and SCEF appealed. It was on this appeal that the Supreme Court ruled before it adjourned for the summer.

At the time of this appeal, SCEF took testimony from Louisiana officials and Sourwine. During these proceedings, it was learned that Louisiana officials had devised a plan called "Operation Tip-Top" in the summer of 1963 to obtain SCEF records by raiding its office. State officials met with Sourwine and discussed SCEF both before and after the meeting at which they planned "Operation Tip-Top."

SCEF attorneys Morton Stavis and Harriet Van Tassel are taking additional pre-trial testimony this summer. In July, they questioned Sourwine again. In mid-August they were to take testimony from Senator Eastland.

A similar SCEF suit for $750,000 against Louisiana officials is also being prepared for trial in U.S. District Court in New Orleans.

How Injunctions Crush Peaceful Protest

By ANNE BRADEN
(Patriot Editor)

The June 12 decision of the U.S. Supreme Court upholding contempt convictions from the 1963 demonstrations in Birmingham brings into focus some very important issues — issues that may have been lost sight of in this tumultuous summer.

In the Birmingham case, just when demonstrations were beginning to build, city officials obtained an injunction against them —a court order saying the people must not demonstrate in violation of a parade-permit law.

The Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker, the Rev. Fred Shuttlesworth, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., and five other leaders of the Birmingham movement called for and led mass violations of the injunction on Easter Week End. They were cited for contempt of court and convicted. They appealed their sentences on the ground that the injunction they had violated was clearly unconstitutional in that it denied their right to free speech.

The Supreme Court, in upholding their convictions by a vote of 5 to 4, said that whether the injunction was unconstitutional or not, the eight leaders should have obeyed it until it was attacked in the courts. The court majority declared that the eight were trying to act as judges in their own case.

Recently, as unorganized, spontaneous and violent rebellion has broken out in the nation's cities, many people have asked whatever happened to that other kind of mass use and some victories, it has been at least three years since there were widespread demonstrations that leaped from city to city and shook the nation.

What happened to the NVDA movement in the South?

One thing that happened was injunctions—like the one used in Birmingham.

This is not the entire answer, of course. The decline of the NVDA movement is a complex matter; there were many factors, such as the growing disillusion of those who took part when they found, even where there was seeming victory, that so little basic change was made in their lives.

But those who write off NVDA as ineffective often overlook the fury with which such movements were attacked and often destroyed before they ever had a chance to develop their potential power. For every local movement which had some degree of success in achieving admittedly limited goals, there were many more which died a-borning under the crushing weight of intimidation, arrests, and court action. Recently, as unorganized, spontaneous and violent rebellion has broken out in the nation's cities, many people have asked whatever happened to that other kind of protest—the organized and nonviolent kind, the demonstrations where hundreds and sometimes thousands marched or picketed to call for the changes they sought.

There have not been any significant demonstrations of that kind this summer. Their absence cannot be entirely explained by a reluctance on the part of those who might have organized them because they could not be sure they would stay nonviolent.

This is undoubtedly one factor. But it is also true that nonviolent direct action (NVDA) as a movement was essentially dead long before the violent explosions of this long hot summer. Even in the South, where NVDA had its greatest mass use and some victories, it has been at least three years since there were widespread demonstrations that leaped from city to city and shook the nation.

What happened to the NVDA movement in the South?

One thing that happened was injunctions—like the one used in Birmingham.

This is not the entire answer, of course. The decline of the NVDA movement is a complex matter; there were many factors, such as the growing disillusion of those who took part when they found, even where there was seeming victory, that so little basic change was made in their lives.

But those who write off NVDA as ineffective often overlook the fury with which such movements were attacked and often destroyed before they ever had a chance to develop their potential power. One of the main weapons used to crush them was the injunction.

One movement that was not crushed was the Birmingham movement. An essential reason was that on the Easter Week End, when the movement was beginning to build, its leaders chose to violate an injunction. Had they not done this at this point, that movement too might well have died.

There is a tragic irony in the fact that it was in the summer of 1967, at the moment when thousands of desperate and hopeless people in the nation's cities were turning to violence to make their voices heard, that the U.S. Supreme Court should condemn as wrong the people who made the nation listen by nonviolent action in 1963 in Birmingham.

* * * *

Southern officials have always used injunctions to cripple labor unions. As early as 1962, they began to find out what an effective weapon the injunction could be against the nonviolent freedom movement.

In that year, officials obtained a court order barring demonstrations in Talladega, Ala., and demonstrations ceased. Long litigation in the courts followed, and the case finally died. It didn't really matter by then—the movement in Talladega had died long before.

The same pattern was followed in community after community—Danville, Va., Gadsden, Ala., Baton Rouge, La., to name just a few. The most recent instance is Louisville, Ky., where the one mass nonviolent movement so far in 1967 gained real strength in a drive for open housing last spring. It was effectively crushed by a state-court injunction.

People willing to demonstrate and get arrested in violation of clearly unconstitutional laws have often stopped demonstrating in the face of an injunction. This is partly because injunctions are issued by a seemingly respectable state court and carry an aura that laws enforced in the city Police Court don't quite have.

It is also because of a very practical consideration: while convictions for violations of unconstitutional laws are often later reversed by the higher courts, those who violate injunctions are cited for contempt. Contempt convictions are usually upheld. Furthermore, in some states the law allows almost unlimited sentences for contempt.

The Supreme Court justices who dissented in the Birmingham case pointed up what is so basically destructive in this rule by injunction.

Commenting on the contention that the civil-rights leaders in Birmingham should have obeyed the injunction while they challenged it in the courts, Justice Brennan said:

"Critical to the plain exercise of the right of protest was the timing of that exercise . . . A cessation of these activities, even for a short period, might deal a crippling blow to petitioners' efforts . . ."

Justice Douglas, in a separate dissent, noted that "the right to defy an unconstitutional statute is basic in our scheme. . ." Thus, the courts have repeatedly held that a person who believes a law is unconstitutional may violate this law and take his chances—submitting the matter to the courts to decide whether he should be punished.

Douglas and the other dissenters insist that this same principle should apply to an injunction; if a citizen believes it violates his right of free speech, he should have the right to take his chances, violate the order, and submit to the higher courts the matter of its constitutionality.

If he is denied that right—if the courts continue to hold as they did in the Birmingham case that no matter how wrong an injunction is a person cannot test it by violating it—the result is what Justice Warren in still a third dissent declared happened in Birmingham.

There, he said, Birmingham officials knew they couldn't get by with arresting the demonstrators for violating a clearly unconstitutional parade-permit law, so they just got a judge to put a judicial signature on an order saying virtually the same thing that the unconstitutional law said and punished them for contempt.

Thus, as Justice Brennan wrote, the Supreme Court "let loose a devastatingly destructive weapon for suppression of cherished freedoms. . . ."

* * * *

The Legal Defense and Education Fund, which represented the Birmingham leaders, has filed a petition for rehearing in the Supreme Court. This will be considered in the fall. The petition notes that the sentences in this case are only five-day ones and therefore "not intolerable." But it says the issue is so important to the country that a reconsideration is imperative.

"The peaceful protest movement—no matter how dissonant it may have become," the petition for rehearing states, "has channeled dissatisfaction with deeply ingrained injustices into constructive social change . . . By this decision the Court devastates the peaceful protest movement and leaves the field to capture by those violent elements who do not stop to read injunctions."

In the late 1920's and early 1930's, the use of injunctions against labor unions became so unjust and destructive that public opinion turned against them. Congress finally passed the Norris-LaGuardia Act barring their use against unions.

A serious and detailed study is now needed of how injunctions have been used in the same way to break civil-rights movements. Action to stop this, as it was stopped in the labor movement, is a necessity if there is ever to be hope again of a new and effective nonviolent protest movement.

LOUISVILLE OPEN-HOUSING SUPPORTERS demonstrated in the face of an injunction; leaders eventually served 30-hour sentences for violating it. The injunction finally destroyed the movement, as it has in other cities. (Courier-Journal Photo)

SWAFCA Creates Economic Strength

would probably be minimal, but by now they were determined to go ahead with or without it.

During these months, the application to OEO was being worked out. By May, when a $400,000 grant was approved, they had developed a two-stage program which "may provide solutions for the problems of underdeveloped areas everywhere."

SWAFCA is trying to prove that small farmers can break out of the cycle of poverty and make a decent living in the Black Belt.

They will buy tractors and other equipment, as well as seeds and fertilizer, through the co-op. None of this is included in the OEO grant, but indirectly the grant may help with these purchases because it includes $60,000 to be used as "loan insurance". SWAFCA wants to see if it can multiply this fairly minimal amount five or ten times by borrowing. The grant will also pay the salaries of specialists to teach them modern farming methods.

The co-op will be run democratically: the people will make their own decisions about what they want to do. And, if it is successful, it should become self-sustaining within three years. Members may double their incomes this year.

The Second Phase

This is the first phase of the plan OEO accepted. The second phase is to "build an economic and social base" for the entire low-income population of the area.

This can include everything from health, self-help housing and educational programs, to credit unions, small co-operative businesses and industry — to process their own fertilizer and their own produce—which would provide employment for town dwellers, and for farmers during the off-season.

Long before the grant was approved last May, the farmers had put in their

While the application was still being processed, Selma Mayor Joe Smitherman had led a twelve-man delegation to Washington. They charged — among other things — that SWAFCA is a "black power" group and that it duplicates services which are already being offered. When, in spite of this, the grant was announced, the opposition became hysterical.

The Alabama Senate asked the state's congressional delegation to "use every available means to have the grant investigated and rescinded" on the ground that it would further civil-rights activity in the Black Belt.

All of Alabama's representatives and senators, except for one man who was in Vietnam and another whose district is far to the north of the co-op, duly met with OEO officials to voice their objections.

Gov. Lurleen Wallace vetoed the grant. Smitherman considered seeking an injunction to block it; he decided this was not feasible.

Finally, after it became clear OEO was determined to make the grant, city and county officials in nine of the ten counties began to set up machinery to prevent the same thing from happening again. They are considering forming a "development council" to channel OEO funds in the future.

No one really knows why OEO stood firm. Shirley Mesher, an unpaid volunteer who works as one of three SWAFCA coordinators, points out that a wide coalition of national religious, labor and civil-rights organizations and individuals swung their support behind the co-op as soon as the fight started. Also, there was no corresponding power unit in the ten-county area to oppose it. "If we'd set up the co-op county by county, they could have picked us off."

Most of the farmers who went to Washington a week after Smitherman's delegation think that OEO had been persuaded to cancel the grant. "I guess seeing that we were determined to go ahead helped to change their minds."

"I told our senator, 'It's going to work if I have to stand on the corner with a cup,'" Mrs. Walker says. "I thought he'd make me eat my words. He said, 'Ma'am, I admire your determination.'"

"We went this far without help," says Joe Johnson, the co-op's chairman. "Surely we can continue, even if we don't get any more funds."

Boycotts

They have already overcome boycotts—first, when local producers refused to sell them fertilizer at the beginning of the planting season, later when a buyer accused them of trying to sell pickles that were under contract to him. Other companies cancelled their orders, and the co-op lost thousands of dollars in produce and labor while they proved the pickles were theirs to sell.

Once SWAFCA is established, they expect white members to join. There are not many poor white farmers in the area, but there are already a few white members. Mr. Johnson says, "At every opportunity we extend a welcome to them."

SWAFCA has already gone a long way toward solving its members' problems. Last year, for example, the buyer who has a monopoly in Alabama paid only one and a half cents a pound for okra. Now they earn between three and five cents a pound from out-of-state buyers.

They have stopped growing as much cotton, which earns at the very most only $50 an acre. Even without irrigation, they expect to make $650 per acre of cucumbers, $500 for greens. Farm specialists think the average SWAFCA member will be able to earn three times as much as he did last year.

If they succeed, farmers may stop leaving the Black Belt and many people may return. This would reverse the present trend of farmers being forced into city ghettos. It would thwart the efforts of white politicians and land-would probably be minimal, but by now they were determined to go ahead with or without it.

During these months, the application to OEO was being worked out. By May, when a $400,000 grant was approved, they had developed a two-stage program which "may provide solutions for the problems of underdeveloped areas everywhere."

SWAFCA is trying to prove that small farmers can break out of the cycle of poverty and make a decent living in the Black Belt.

They will buy tractors and other equipment, as well as seeds and fertilizer, through the co-op. None of this is included in the OEO grant, but indirectly the grant may help with these purchases because it includes $60,000 to be used as "loan insurance". SWAFCA wants to see if it can multiply this fairly minimal amount five or ten times by borrowing. The grant will also pay the salaries of specialists to teach them modern farming methods.

The co-op will be run democratically: the people will make their own decisions about what they want to do. And, if it is successful, it should become self-sustaining within three years. Members may double their incomes this year.

The Second Phase

This is the first phase of the plan OEO accepted. The second phase is to "build an economic and social base" for the entire low-income population of the area.

This can include everything from health, self-help housing and educational programs, to credit unions, small co-operative businesses and industry — to process their own fertilizer and their own produce—which would provide employment for town dwellers, and for farmers during the off-season.

Long before the grant was approved last May, the farmers had put in their first crop and the co-op was an accomplished fact. They borrowed money from private sources to buy seeds and fertilizer.

Opposition

OEO's announcement sparked an immediate protest, in the best—or worst—tradition of Southern power structures.

While the application was still being processed, Selma Mayor Joe Smitherman had led a twelve-man delegation to Washington. They charged — among other things — that SWAFCA is a "black power" group and that it duplicates services which are already being offered. When, in spite of this, the grant was announced, the opposition became hysterical.

The Alabama Senate asked the state's congressional delegation to "use every available means to have the grant investigated and rescinded" on the ground that it would further civil-rights activity in the Black Belt.

All of Alabama's representatives and senators, except for one man who was in Vietnam and another whose district is far to the north of the co-op, duly met with OEO officials to voice their objections.

Gov. Lurleen Wallace vetoed the grant. Smitherman considered seeking an injunction to block it; he decided this was not feasible.

Finally, after it became clear OEO was determined to make the grant, city and county officials in nine of the ten counties began to set up machinery to prevent the same thing from happening again. They are considering forming a "development council" to channel OEO funds in the future.

No one really knows why OEO stood firm. Shirley Mesher, an unpaid volunteer who works as one of three SWAFCA coordinators, points out that a wide coalition of national religious, labor and civil-rights organizations and individuals swung their support behind the co-op as soon as the fight started. Also, there was no corresponding power unit in the ten-county area to oppose it. "If we'd set up the co-op county by county, they could have picked us off."

Most of the farmers who went to Washington a week after Smitherman's delegation think that OEO had been persuaded to cancel the grant. "I guess seeing that we were determined to go ahead helped to change their minds."

"I told our senator, 'It's going to work if I have to stand on the corner with a cup,'" Mrs. Walker says. "I thought he'd make me eat my words. He said, 'Ma'am, I admire your determination.'"

"We went this far without help," says Joe Johnson, the co-op's chairman. "Surely we can continue, even if we don't get any more funds."

Boycotts

They have already overcome boycotts—first, when local producers refused to sell them fertilizer at the beginning of the planting season, later when a buyer accused them of trying to sell pickles that were under contract to him. Other companies cancelled their orders, and the co-op lost thousands of dollars in produce and labor while they proved the pickles were theirs to sell.

Once SWAFCA is established, they expect white members to join. There are not many poor white farmers in the area, but there are already a few white members. Mr. Johnson says, "At every opportunity we extend a welcome to them."

SWAFCA has already gone a long way toward solving its members' problems. Last year, for example, the buyer who has a monopoly in Alabama paid only one and a half cents a pound for okra. Now they earn between three and five cents a pound from out-of-state buyers.

If they succeed, farmers may stop leaving the Black Belt and many people may return. This would reverse the present trend of farmers being forced into city ghettos. It would thwart the efforts of white politicians and landowners to reduce Negro voting strength in the Black Belt.

In fact, SWAFCA is making a small revolution in Southwest Alabama. "It looks like the power structure don't realize they're living in a changing world," says Mr. Johnson. "They think it's still 50 years ago. And those times is gone. They won't come back again."

Vietnam Summer

Projects Strengthen Southern Peace Movement

By NANCY HODES
(Staff Correspondent)

Vietnam Summer projects are bringing large numbers of new people into the Southern peace movement, and helping to build a base for continuing projects all year.

"This summer has seen the largest broad-based community organizing effort against the war that has ever taken place in the South," says Tom Gardner. He is chairman of the Southern Student Organizing Committee (SSOC) and Southern field secretary for Vietnam Summer.

The organizing is taking many different forms: leafletting (at beaches, churches, laundromats); vigils and teach-ins; draft counselling; door-to-door canvassing; organizers' institutes.

Some are new projects, in places where the peace movement never had a foothold before. Others are sponsored by established groups—SSOC, SNCC, SCEF, etc. —in co-operation with Vietnam Summer.

Three regional training institutes, in Florida, North Carolina and Virginia, showed how many new people have become involved as a result of the Summer. About half of the some 2000 people attending the institutes were new contacts.

Vietnam Summer people in Greensboro, N.C., organized their first vigil on July 5, and about ten of the 30 people there were unknown to the organizers.

In Morgantown, W. Va., because of the work of Vietnam Summer, one of the town's most highly-respected ministers called a meeting to hear a report from a professor who had just returned from Vietnam. The minister secured the county courthouse for the meeting. Sixty people heard the speech, and 40 of them agreed to participate in anti-war work.

* * * *

Vietnam Summer projects have not only involved new people, but have been set up in new areas of the South which had previously been silent in regard to the war and U.S. foreign policy.

The meeting in West Virginia was called "the first middleclass peace activity in the area." In Knoxville, where opposition to peace work has been traditionally ruthless, Vietnam Summer workers are circulating a Negotiations Now petition and plan to hold a "Vietnam Week" in the middle of August. After a public meeting on August 14, they will hold small discussions every evening for the rest of that week, and then demonstrate on the mall in Knoxville on August 19.

Greensboro, N.C. recently had its first vigil ("from which other good things arise" says a N.C. peace organizer). A Vietnam Summer staff member in Jacksonville, Fla., set up a meeting on "Ghetto Problems and the War" (in doing research for the conference he found that of the 24 casualties from his county, 20 were black and four were white).

* * * *

Much of the organizational work in projects is related to the draft. People in Morgantown, Dallas, Louisville, Nashville, and a number of cities in Florida have set up draft counselling and information centers .

The draft-information center in Dallas is well on its way with the first set of training classes. Dallas peace workers are serious about their center—they plan to raise enough funds in the next six months for a budget of $10,000 per year.

Others in various Southern cities have been leafletting induction centers, either regularly or when friends have gone for physicals or for induction. These demonstrations have received extensive press coverage in places such as Nashville and Miami.

* * * *

Some projects saw Hiroshima Day as a target date for demonstrations. The Atlanta Alliance for Peace in Vietnam held a southwide rally in Atlanta August 6 (see next Patriot for details.) Many local projects demonstrated the same day.

* * * *

Vietnam Summer has helped to stimulate and strengthen some of this activity in the South, but when the national office closes in the fall, local groups will be on their own. Some of the Southern groups are already preparing for the fall, thinking in terms of peace candidates, more campus and high-school work, and continuation of present programs.

Proposed state-wide co-ordinating committees came out of each of the three Southern training institutes. These committees plan to organize state-wide rallies, speakers' bureaus, newspapers, draft resistance networks, and vigils, to strengthen communication between local groups, and to dispel the feeling of isolation so commonly felt among peace workers, especially in the South.

Texas Students Face Murder Charge

HOUSTON, Tex.—The District Attorney is expected to ask for the death penalty when five Texas Southern University students are tried this fall for the death of policeman Louis Kuba, during an outbreak last May.

A grand jury indicted them for Kuba's death, although it was shown no weapon taken from a student which could have fired the shot. Kuba may have been killed by one of the 5,000 rounds of shot police fired at student dormitories.

One of the five students was in jail at the time of the shooting—but under Texas law, anyone who is considered responsible for starting a riot may be charged with any crime that results from it.

Meantime, the local mayor has agreed to dismiss police charges against the more than 400 students arrested during the outbreak.

Dear Dorcas:

Last week I had an inquiry from a New York foundation about the financial situation of SCEF, its funds, its resources and its needs. I suggested to the foundation that it simply call you, as treasurer, and make this inquiry. It indicated that it would rather not since it would be premature to raise any hopes of it being a potential source of support, and asked if I would do so without mentioning the name of the foundation. This is to request such information if you wish to share it.

Should you be willing, I think the foundation would find it particularly helpful to have the last audit, the current budget, and any projected needs that are readily available. Again, if you wish to share this information,

I would suggest you provide only what is readily available and not invest an undue amount of time in it.

I look forward to seeing you in November.

Sincerely,

Paul Anthony

Mr. Paul Anthony,
Executive Director
Southern Regional Council
5 Forsyth St., N.W.
Atlanta, Ga. 30303

Dear Paul:

Thank you for letting us know about the inquiry regarding SCEF from the New York foundation. I am enclosing material that was readily available to give a general picture of our financial situation, funds, resources, and needs.

Our auditor has had much illness among his staff this year, and so has not completed the audit for 1966. However, my unaudited report was put together with his assistance and I am sure it will prove to be a correct assessment of our situation as of the end of 1966.

Since this report was made, we have spent an additional $37,214 from our investment fund as we expanded our work among the poor--black and white--in an effort to give them more voice in the democratic processes. This means that our Investment Fund now stands at $17,441.

If we are to continue the work which we consider vital for the South, we will need substantial aid soon, either through increased funds from individuals or through a source such as you describe.

If there are further questions about our finances, information can be obtained from our auditor, Mr. Earle B. Fowler, C.P.A., Marion E. Taylor Bldg., Louisville, Ky., who is on retainer to keep a running audit of our books and to provide annual audits.

Mrs. Anne Braden, our associate executive director, will be in New York on SCEF business from Sept. 27 to Oct. 10 and would be available for discussion of our finances and aims. She can be reached at our New York office, Room 412, 799 Broadway; 475-8775.

Also, Dunn & Bradstreet can provide a full report on our status and our credit rating. If you have further questions, please do not hesitate to write.

I look forward to seeing you in November.

INTRODUCTION

This is a proposed budget for SCEF for 1967. It has been prepared by the executive directors, Carl and Anne Braden, and is being presented to the board of directors of SCEF for approval. It provides for work in six special project areas, as well as general program and field work. It also provides for special one-time projects. A detailed budget, attached hereto, shows a break-down of expenses in each field of work. Following the detailed budget, there are descriptions of each field of work.

The proposed total budget for the year is $165,052. In recent past years, SCEF has raised an approximate annual budget of $100,000. Last year (1966), it did not raise that much, but we believe this was due to special circumstances---the fact that during 1966 SCEF experienced a very difficult change in staff leadership and was involved in moving its office from New Orleans to Louisville. Thus the new executive directors could not spend the proper amount of time in fund-raising efforts. There is no reason to think that SCEF's fund-raising potential has decreased from the years when it raised $100,000.

Even at that, what we are proposing for 1967 represents an increase of more than half again as much as we have raised in recent years. This is still a small budget as compared with other civil rights groups. But it is without doubt an ambitious undertaking.

We want to attempt it for a very important reason: SCEF's role has always been to reach the white Southerner and bring him into action in coalition with the black Southerner. Never has this been so necessary as it is today; in fact, the future of our nation may depend on it. Furthermore, we believe that never has it been as possible as it is today. It has been made possible because the strength of the movement of black people has cracked open "the closed society." Therefore, history today seems to be challenging SCEF to do a job that must be done. We do not want to fail that challenge. We believe that the programs of work here outlined are realistic and possible ones---ones that will produce results and in fact are already doing so.

Also, SCEF has another very unique role. It is becoming more and more customary for social action organizations to be financed by federal funds or grants from big foundations. Some things can be done this way, but there are limitations; it remains true that the only way for an organization to be completely free is to get its financing as SCEF does---from many concerned individuals. In a way, SCEF's existence today is proof that this can be done. SCEF survived as an independent, militant, and non-conforming organization during the very difficult years of McCarthyism and the "silent 50's." Its survival was possible because of the loyal support of many individuals, who believed in its importance as a free organization. We believe it is even more important today that SCEF continue to survive and expand, free to blaze widening paths of action. We have faith that many people, who believe with us in the importance of such independence, will help us to make it financially possible.

BUDGET SUMMARY

MONTHLY BUDGET, 1967:

Southern Mountain Project	$ 2,427
Grass-Roots Organizing Work (GROW)	1,344
The Southern Patriot	2,100
Operation Open Debate (Peace Education)	619
The Louisiana Project	479
Anti-HUAC Project	454
General Program, Field Work, Administration	2,452
General Offices, Headquarters Operation, (Louisville)	1,781
Eastern Office (New York City)	1,140
Miscellaneous (average monthly cost of insurance on SCEF cars)	125
Total budget, regular monthly expenses		$ 12,921

ANNUAL BUDGET, 1967:

Total expense of regular projects and program (total of above items multiplied by 12)	$ 155,052
Special Projects	10,000
	$ 165,052

(The $10,000 added to the annual budget for special projects is for single-time projects that may be undertaken---for example, a conference or a campaign around a particular case.)

The total annual expense of the separate projects is as follows:

Southern Mountain Project	$ 29,124
Grass-Roots Organizing Work (GROW)	16,128
The Southern Patriot	25,200
Operation Open Debate (Peace Education)	7,428
Louisiana Project	5,748

DESCRIPTIONS OF WORK

SOUTHERN MOUNTAIN PROJECT (Budget on page 3):

The Southern Mountain Project is designed to help the poor white and black people of Appalachia organize themselves in ways that can solve their economic problems, bring them political strength, and dignity. In the short run, this means such forms as community unions, regional alliances, cooperatives, credit unions---and pressure to get permanent unemployment pay and such government programs as vast public works to build the schools, hospitals, and community facilities the area needs. Ultimately, it means people really controlling their own lives and their region through democratic forms and a new economic program for the area.

SCEF has undertaken the Mountain Project for two basic reasons: (1) Appalachia is the home of 10 million people, which is one-third of all the people who live in the South; it reaches into nine Southern and Border states. More than one million of these people are unemployed, and this is one of the most poverty-stricken areas in America. Thus the need for organization is great, for here people have not yet found ways to create the democratic forms that can improve their lives. And (2) this is an area where the racist tradition is not as strong as in some parts of the South; it is therefore the area where it is most possible to build the alliances of black and white people that are so desperately needed in the South and in the nation.

As of early 1967, the Mountain Project had five field workers---three in West Virginia and two in Kentucky, working intensively in small areas and traveling over a wide area.

As a subsidiary of the Mountain Project, we are in the process of developing the Mountain Education Program. The purpose of this is to do research on the area, prepare material analyzing the problems, and proposing programs to solve them---material written basically for the people within the area. At the beginning of 1967, the Education Program had only one worker; another was to be added in April, and a third in the summer.

Workers on both the Mountain Project and the Mountain Education Program cooperate with organizations of professional people now forming to attack the problems of Appalachia. But our own work is aimed mainly at helping poor people to organize. Our people also cooperate with people working on government programs in the area---Vistas, Appalachian Volunteers---while constantly pushing toward more far-reaching and meaningful programs.

The Appalachian Associates to which SCEF gives some support as a part of its mountain work is a project being established by noted Southern poet Don West. It is a program for educational, cultural, and organizational work in the mountains. A part of this project is already under way in the form of a quarterly magazine, Appalachian South. The next stage, which Don is working on now, is development of a school at Pipestem, W. Va. The school will be geared toward mountain young people, especially high school drop-outs. Don and and his co-workers will help them learn trades and will also give them an appreciation of the strengths and culture of the mountain areas. They will also encourage them to go back into their communities and help people organize for social justice. Appalachian Associates receives support from several sources. SCEF contributes a monthly grant to help with the expense of getting the school started. Don West also serves as a consultant to our Mountain Project staff; he is one of the most knowledgeable people in the country in regard to the Southern mountains.

GRASS-ROOTS ORGANIZING WORK (GROW) (Budget on page 3)

GROW is a new project being launched by Bob and Dottie Zellner. It is in keeping with SCEF's long-time objectives and SCEF is incorporating it into its program.

The purpose of GROW is to stimulate as widely as possible throughout the South the organization of white people for social action and to bring them as quickly as possible into coalitions with movements of black people on a local, state and regional level. Although GROW will be concerned with all white Southerners, its special emphasis will be to reach the poor white Southerner---those people who have been so long neglected by healthy social movements and have thus been left prey to false calls of the Ku Klux Klan and other racist groups. GROW's prospectus states: "We want to begin the serious long-range effort to organize the white people in the South into a force equal in strength and similar in commitment to the movement now flourishing in the black community, so that interracial coalitions, based on common interests, can be formed."

Many people recognize that this is the need of the hour. The Zellners are peculiarly fitted to take on this tremendous challenge. Bob is a native white Alabaman, son of a Methodist minister (who is a member of the SCEF board). Immediately after finishing college in 1961, he became the first white field secretary of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC). He worked at that time on SNCC's "white student project," which was an effort, subsidized by SCEF, to reach the white students in the South and bring them into the civil rights movement. This project had profound effects, both directly and indirectly, throughout the South. In this period also, Bob became deeply involved in SNCC's total program, worked long and hard on the dangerous front lines of the Southern movement. He won the wide respect of people in the white communities as well as in the black---even of white people who did not agree with him. His wife, Dottie, is from the North but worked for a long period as one of the key people on the SNCC staff in both Atlanta and Mississippi. The two of them bring to their new project unique knowledge of the South and of the movement and an unusual degree of experience in organizing.

Bob and Dottie, along with their young daughter, will live in New Orleans. Dottie will coordinate their project from there, and Bob will travel throughout the South. He sees the first stages of the project as work in contacting people in all parts of the South to stimulate as many persons as possible to grass-roots organizing in their own communities. One of his primary objectives will be to encourage young white Southerners to work in their own home areas.

The Zellners also plan to develop an educational center in New Orleans, which will become a center for workshops, conferences, etc.---giving people an opportunity to exchange ideas and contribute to each other's strength. (Details on this will be supplied later.)

If GROW is successful, much of its work will be done by volunteers or by people developing their own organizing projects in their own communities. At the present time, a staff of only three is envisioned---Bob and Dottie, and one person in the North building support for the work and keeping contact with interested persons outside the South.

Bob and Dottie have joined the SCEF staff. They are also still members of the SNCC staff---this joint staff arrangement being one that SCEF and SNCC have worked out successfully in other situations. SCEF has adopted the GROW project, and the Zellners are seeking similar sponsorship from SNCC---the hope being that it can be a joint SNCC-SCEF project. For the time being at least, however, SCEF is attempting to raise the entire budget needed to get the project started.

THE SOUTHERN PATRIOT (Budget on pages 3 & 4):

The Southern Patriot is SCEF's monthly newspaper, now eight pages tabloid. It is not a SCEF house-organ but attempts to cover activities of many groups working in the South and also the activities of people working in their own communities to change their lives.

It attempts to report the news of the South that too often does not get reported in the daily press---the work that is going on to make the South a better place to live. It also reports the injustices in the South that might otherwise go unnoticed except by their direct victims---and thus tries to mobilize action to stop injustice. It also includes articles on the various people who are part of movements for change in the South, and articles of interpretation analyzing what is happening in the South's social movements. A page for letters provides a forum for readers, and there is a picture page.

Anne Braden, who formerly did all the editorial work on the Patriot and is now associate director of SCEF, continues to serve as nominal editor and does some work on it. However, most of the work of producing the Patriot is now done by three young people---one writer, one photographer, and one combination writer-photographer-editor. Rather than add more staff at this time, we are developing a list of correspondents who occasionally contribute articles for nominal payment. The main Patriot office is in the Louisville SCEF building. It also maintains a Deep South office, where one staff member lives and work.

The Patriot is part of SCEF's over-all effort to build an informed public in the South and thus make change possible.

Operation Open Debate is a peace education project, designed to stimulate thought and action on this issue throughout the South.

SCEF has undertaken this project because it believes one of the most evil effects of segregation in the South was that it forced a "closed society" on the region---an atmosphere where controversial issues could not be discussed. Now because of the work of the civil rights movement, the atmosphere has opened up. It is important that we move quickly to open up discussion of the life-and-death issues that face mankind, so that elections may be meaningful and the democratic processes may have a chance to work. The peace issue is also one which holds out the possibility of a real unity between black and white Southerners, because it is an issue that affects all mankind, regardless of color.

Operation Open Debate maintains its own office in Nashville, with little overhead, as it is in the home of a volunteer. The project is manned by two staff members, both of whom are volunteers although one receives a nominal salary in order to qualify for hospital group insurance. One of these workers is basically a traveler and visits throughout the South---contacting people, bringing them information and sources of literature, putting them in touch with each other, helping in other ways as asked. The other staff worker coordinates from Nashville---following up with mail contact, helping to provide speakers, literature, and information. A newsletter is published and sent to contacts throughout the South. The Speakers' Bureau of Operation Open Debate, mentioned in the budget, brings informed speakers into the South; local groups usually pay at least part of this expense, but Operation Open Debate sometimes provides some funds to help small groups in isolated areas get speakers who are touring the South.

This project is based on the premise, which SCEF has found effective through the years, that if people are given information and put in touch with others of like mind (so they know they are not alone) they will move in creative ways and find the organizational forms best suited to their community.

THE LOUISIANA PROJECT (Budget on page 4):

This is an educational project designed to bring black and white people together around common need.

It is staffed by two subsistence workers, one black and one white. They work together in both urgan and rural areas of Louisiana. They set up workshops and discussion groups where people can come together and discuss their problems and possible solutions.

The ultimate aim is community organization through which people can create their own democratic forms that can give them some control over their lives. It is education in the most profound sense---based on the general SCEF philosophy that if people have information and opportunity to come together they will create the forms of organization best suited to their needs.

The project cooperates with the programs of other civil rights groups, such as the citizenship education program of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC).

THE ANTI-HUAC PROJECT (Budget on Pages 4 & 5):

This project is carried out with the cooperation of the National Committee to Abolish the House Un-American Activities Committee. The National committee contributes $150 a month to the support of the project. It is staffed by one full-time worker, a volunteer who works for expenses, plus a nominal salary to qualify her for SCEF's hospital insurance plan. In addition to helping finance expenses of the project, SCEF contributes space in its Louisville building which serves as an office for the project and also as living quarters for the staff worker when she is in Louisville.

The purpose of this project is to bring information about HUAC to as wide a circle of people in the South as possible and to help them organize to work for the abolition of the committee. Along with information on HUAC, information is also distributed on similar committees---the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, headed by James Eastland of Mississippi, and the numerous Southern state legislative committees modeled after these. It is our belief that such commitees, spreading as they do the idea that work for social change is subversive, have been one of the main forces stifling democracy in the South. We feel, as with the peace issue, that now is the time that Southerners can move on this issue which it was almost impossible to discuss widely a few years ago. By helping people to organize against HUAC, we believe we are creating a new understanding of the whole concept of civil liberties---something that is essential if we are really to have a new South and a democratic society.

The field worker on this project travels the South, meeting with various groups, distributing information, putting people in touch with each other, organizing Southwide efforts such as the petition in early 1967 that protested HUAC's plan to investigate ghetto uprisings. The project also issues a regular newsletter and helps people form committees against HUAC in their areas.

GENERAL PROGRAM, FIELD WORK, ADMINISTRATION (Budget on page 5):

In addition to the six specific projects described above, SCEF continues to carry on a broad program aimed at ending all forms of discrimination and segregation in the South, interpreting these efforts and seeking support for them outside the South, and relating them to similar efforts in other parts of the country. This work is just as important as it ever was, because contrary to some opinion the battle against racism is not won in the South. What has been accomplished so far is that we now have the opportunity to work more effectively toward our goals. The atmosphere is more free, and certain laws are on the books. Now we must bring the laws to life by community organization throughout the region. Where the vote has been won, we must make it meaningful by grass-roots political organization. A number of organizations are working at these tasks. SCEF makes its contribution through a broad program of public information so that people may have the facts, a steady program of assistance to local groups which need the support of a regional organization, and a wide contact program---building up a network of people who can draw strength from each other and feel themselves a part of a movement. It is SCEF's belief that this is the way healthy movements for social change are built---and that the job of a regional or national organization is to give people the help they need without creating rigid organizational forms that box them in.

This general program of SCEF is carried on by all of its staff to a certain extent, even as they work on special projects. But it is the particular responsibility of SCEF's administrative and field staff, and of its main office operation in Louisville and its Eastern office in New York City.

The field and administrative staff of SCEF consists of five persons: Carl and Anne Braden, the executive director and associate director; the Rev. William Howard Melish and Miss Miriam Nicholas, assistant directors; and Miss Ella Baker, consultant.

The Bradens are in charge of the general program of the organization and supervise the staff; they also do considerable field work, both South and North. One of their primary responsibilities is to raise money for the organization, but all of SCEF's fund-raising is tied to educational and informational work. Melish now works mainly as a field worker along the Eastern Seaboard, both North and South---one of his main assignments being the interpretation of activity in the South to people in the North. Miriam Nicholas is in charge of the Louisville office and building and directs the program and educational work that centers there. Ella Baker works in the field, moving back and forth between South and North, working with many groups in the North and especially with such grass-roots efforts in the South as the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party.

SCEF's main headquarters is in a building which it owns in Louisville. The building is actually a house, and in addition to the office it has four apartments and one extra room which serve as living quarters for staff when they are at home base and also provide housing for the many movement visitors who come and go. A kitchen in the apartment which houses the office provides hospitality for movement visitors. Each apartment also has its own kitchen. In the basement, we have our own printing equipment; this is not big enough to print the Patriot, which is printed commercially, but we print much of our other material. We also have a darkroom with photographic equipment.

The work of this Louisville office involves much more than the bookkeeping operation of the organization. It is the source of much of our educational work---the production point of publications designed to inform the public, North and South. It is also the nerve center of our contact with people working in many communities. For example, one thing we do is issue action memos to key people across the South and the rest of the country as situations develop in various communities or states where local people need wide help in some effort they are making. The Louisville office is also the base of the Southern Patriot News Service, which issues regular material on Southern developments to more than 300 newspapers and magazines in the U.S. and Canada.

EASTERN OFFICE (NEW YORK CITY) (Budget on Page 5):

SCEF's New York office is basically a fund-raising operation, but it is also an educational center. In addition to raising funds for the organization, its job is to get information about developments in the South to interested persons in the North, so that they may take various actions to be helpful. It also seeks to help local groups along the northeastern seaboard organize to take a continuing interest in the South and, in some cases, to develop programs geared to their own locality that do work similar to efforts we are encouraging in the South.

The office serves not only the immediate New York area, but also New England and the Northeast generally. It is staffed by two full-time workers, Sandra Rosenblum and Carol Hanisch, and has the help of one of our assistant directors, the Rev. Howard Melish, who works in its educational program.

GRASS-ROOTS ORGANIZING WORK (GROW)

A Project of
The Southern Conference Educational Fund (SCEF)

This is an organizing project being established in the Deep South by Bob and Dottie Zellner, young veterans of the Southern student movement. Its purpose is to set in motion forms of organization that can win white people away from the destructive and dead-end philosophy of racism and help them organize for the building of a democratic South. It is especially, although not exclusively, aimed at the poor and disinherited white people of the South who have been so long misled by racists and neglected by the whites working in the civil rights movement.

The GROW project is in line with the long-standing purpose of the Southern Conference. When this organization was established in 1938, its purpose was to mobilize the South's people, white and black, to oppose their real enemies---poverty and the concentration of political power in the hands of a tiny minority. As the black people of the South began to shake the power structures of the South and to form their own militant organizations in the 1950's, SCEF concentrated more and more on the great unmet challenge of the nation---reaching white Southerners and stimulating them to support democratic goals. In this period of great repression, it worked mainly among middle-class white Southerners---intellectuals and professional people---and with some success. By 1964, the work of the freedom movement had made it both possible and imperative that this work be extended into poor white communities, and so SCEF broadened its program. It set up the Southern Mountain Project to help disinherited white people in the hill country of the South organize around their own needs---needs which are so similar to those of poor black people.

With the GROW project, SCEF extends this work into what have been considered the bastions of racism in the Deep South.

The Zellners, who set up GROW, are a husband-wife team, both in their late 20's. They combine the best that both the South and the North contributed to recent Southern student movements. Bob is the son of a Methodist minister, grew up in Alabama, graduated from Huntingdon College in Montgomery, Ala. In 1961, he joined the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee (SNCC) on a special SCEF-financed project to reach Southern white students. For the next several years, he was an organizer in all the Deep South states and was arrested several times. Dottie grew up in New York City and was educated at Queens College. She came South in 1961 to work for the Southern Regional Council. In 1962, she joined the SNCC staff and worked in its public relations department. Bob and Dottie were married in 1963 and have one daughter. They later lived in New England where Bob did graduate work at Brandeis University in political science, and in 1966 he was campaign manager for Bob Cook, an independent peace candidate for Congress in Connecticut. They have now returned South for a long-term commitment and are living in New Orleans. A budget and their plan of work for Grow are attached.

A PROSPECTUS FOR ORGANIZING IN THE WHITE COMMUNITY

Grass Roots Organizing Work (GROW)

Historically, the poor and working whites of the Deep South have constituted the bulwark of racism and terror against the black community. The white power structure has systematically miseducated the poor so they would not be able to see their common interest with poor and working blacks, and has thereby kept from them the truth of who, indeed, reaps the benefits of this society. Except for fleeting moments during Reconstruction, Populism, and the New Deal, poor and working whites have perpetuated the Southern political, social and economic structure; for as long as they saw their black counterparts as objects of fear and competition, the power structure was sure that no serious, long-range challenge to the status quo would arise.

We have therefore organized a pilot project, Grass Roots Organizing Work (GROW), to explore the possibilities of rekindling the light of common efforts which flickered so briefly. This is, we believe, the only way that a black-white coalition can become a reality. Black organizers cannot do it for us. We whites must take the responsibility for the job.

We are initiating a program of extensive travel through the white communities in the Deep South to investigate promising organizing situations. By this we mean local situations which have in them the seeds of the Movement---such as a union drive at a factory; the question of academic freedom on a white campus; a food stamp drive; the building of a road in a farm community, and so on.

Out of this travel should come a number of people who will be interested not only in becoming organizers---and then training others but who will begin to see their problems in relations to those in the black community, the South, and the nation. Once organizers are located, it will be possible to send them into other areas to develop the movement there, and thus create a chain of organizers in much the same way as has been done in the black community. In addition, as promising situations develop, use can be made of talented white workers who have scattered to various parts of the country in lieu of any program in which they felt they could take part.

We are setting up an educational center in New Orleans which will have library, education, recreation and discussion facilities to help train these organizers, and provide a center for the poor and working white community here as well. The center, located in a poor white section of New Orleans known as the "Irish Channel," will also have space to hold Southwide workshops and meetings.

Since very little work has been done in Deep South poor white communities---as opposed to that being done in Appalachia, for example---we feel it necessary not to impose a rigid time or organizing schedule on the project. It is very important to have the time and freedom to explore and experiment. Our experience in the Movement has taught us that much of this kind of organizing grows out of the needs of a particular community, which affects another community in turn, and grows into different local and regional programs.

Throughout all of this we hope to be able at least to make a start in creating the conditions in the poor and working white community for a just and rational common effort with the black community---one based not only on the estimable ideals of brotherhood and equality, but also based on the hard truth that only a united community of the dispossessed can make the necessary changes for a new society.

THE SOUTHERN MOUNTAIN PROJECT

A Statement of Purpose and Program

The purpose of SCEF's Southern Mountain Project is to help the jobless and underpaid people of Southern Appalachia organize for economic and political action to improve the conditions of their lives.

The immediate concentration point is in Eastern Kentucky. Here the main issue is the need for jobs. This is an area where thousands of people have been thrown out of work by the increasing use of machinery in the coal mines. An especially acute problem exists among the young people---the war babies of World War II and the immediate postwar years. Most of these young people have never had real jobs and have no hope of ever getting them. They have nothing to look forward to except going overseas to fight another war.

So far the only answers the government has come up with are make-work ("weed-cutting") programs that have no meaning, shipping people off to low-paying city jobs, or sending them to Vietnam.

SCEF is helping the mountain people raise the demand for "Good Jobs Now---at Home." This is a demand that the poverty war cannot meet, because it would require a vast public-works program to build what this area needs in schools, hospitals, community buildings, and area development. The courthouse gangs don't want such a program since it would destroy their stranglehold, and the federal government is not prepared to spend the money anyway. If such a program is to come, the people must organize and demand it through their own political and economic action. Finally they must get rid of the courthouse gangs and elect their own people to office---both at home and in Washington. SCEF will help them organize around these demands:

1. That the people make the decisions from now on.

2. That the people design and run their own programs.

3. That wealth stolen from the mountains be paid back to build houses, roads, libraries, schools, hospitals, old folks' homes, bridges, transportation systems, flood controls, recreation areas, and cultural centers.

4. That the people do this work themselves---at union wages.

5. That the war in Vietnam---which is taking the lives of mountain boys and the money that could be used at home---be stopped.

6. That the government stop moving mountain people into big cities to knock their black brothers out of the few low-paying jobs available.

7. That the United States government start paying attention to people, not profits.

Although SCEF is now concentrating its mountain organizing work in Eastern Kentucky, it will eventually extend this program throughout Southern Appalachia. Nine Southern and border states lie partly in Appalachia: Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland. Ten million people live in this area; between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000 of them are totally out of work; many more are below the poverty line.

This program is in line with SCEF's long-standing purpose. That purpose, since the beginning of the organization 30 years ago, has been to bring true democracy to the South---to help take control of the region out of the hands of the ruling few and distribute it among the many. In the past, the greatest progress toward bringing democracy to the South has been made by the freedom movements among black Southerners. SCEF has cooperated with these movements and, as an interracial organization, has placed special emphasis on encouraging more white Southerners to support them.

With the growing strength of the black movement in the 1960's, similar movements among white people became both more necessary and more possible. In 1964, SCEF turned its attention to organizing movements among the white poor, recognizing that this is a necessary step needed to change the lives of both black and white. This work is being pursued in the Deep South as well as in the mountain areas, but in the mountains the progress can be much faster because the region is not plagued by the racist traditions of the Deep South. Most of the poor people in the hills are white, so the emphasis is on helping them organize. But wherever black people live, black and white are being organized together. The ultimate goal is state and regional black-white coalitions.

In helping the poor and powerless people of the South to organize, SCEF has a special and valuable role to play. It is run by a board of 60 private citizens from all the Southern states, and its financial support comes from thousands of concerned individuals. Thus it is an independent organization. Various government poverty agencies are also working to help the poor organize, and SCEF respects the work of many of them. For example, the Appalachian Volunteers, under heavy attack from the courthouse gangs and Kentucky politicians, are doing good work. But the AV's and other government-funded programs are subject to the pressure of politicians both at home and in Washington, and cannot engage in political action. SCEF is free to deal with the real problems that exist without facing such limitations. And it is free to suggest and encourage political action, which holds a hope that the poor people of the South can find a peaceful way to solve their problems and create a new kind of life.

Because of the freedom it offers for creative work, SCEF is now attracting to its staff some of the nation's most talented young people. Many of them previously worked in the black freedom movement and now want to use their energies to build unity of white and black people. They thus bring to this effort the organizing skills, the courage and the dedication that can be acquired only in struggle and which were produced in abundance in the Southern movements of the early 1960s.

3 Pike Poverty Workers Charged With Sedition

The Courier-Journal

SUNDAY, AUGUST 13, 1967.

By KYLE VANCE
Courier-Journal Staff Writer

PIKEVILLE, Ky. — A midnight raid on the rural mountain homes of three antipoverty workers resulted yesterday in sedition charges against the three and confiscation of a truckload of books and papers.

Commonwealth's Attorney Thomas Ratliff said the seized material included what he called a "communistic library out of this world."

Arrested and held for examining trial were Al McSurely and his wife, Margaret, both staff representatives of the Southern Conference Education Fund (SCEF), and Joe Mulloy, field representative for the Appalachian Volunteers.

Mulloy was released after posting $5,000 bail. Mr. and Mrs. McSurely were held in jail in lieu of $5,000 and $2,000 bond respectively.

Carl Braden of Louisville, head of SCEF, said the McSurelys chose to remain in jail to test the law on habeas corpus motions.

Mulloy also posted $250 bond on a charge of flourishing a dangerous weapon. He said he had carried a pistol when he answered a knock at his door because he did not know who was there. When the callers identified themselves as officers, he handed the gun to them, he said.

Dan Jack Combs, attorney for the three, said he will go either to a state or federal court tomorrow with habeas corpus motions to free the McSurelys.

SCEF, whose headquarters are in Louisville, has been active in civil rights movements in the South and recently has turned its attention to organizing both Negro and white poor.

Appalachian Volunteers works with the poor of the mountains to inform them of their rights and to organize them into community action groups. They also train VISTA volunteers, the domestic version of the Peace Corps.

Landlord Complained

Ratliff and Sheriff Perry A. Justice led the raids on the complaint of James M. Compton, of Collins, former landlord of the McSurelys.

Ratliff said Compton evicted the McSurelys after examining their collection of books and papers and seeing "a parade of strange looking visitors at their house."

He said the material taken from McSurely included a "white paper" on how to "take over Pike County from the power structure and put in the hands of the poor."

"The paper also included a narrative on ways to get into the government's antipoverty programs and take advantage of the money available through the programs," Ratliff said.

"Every piece of evidence we have points to just one objective, to stir up dissension and create turmoil among our poor."

He said the confiscated material will be made available to Washington, including congressional investigators, and that it will be used to try and convince the Office of Economic Opportunity that federal funds should be withdrawn from the Appalachian Volunteers and VISTA.

"We have good evidence that government funds are being used to promote causes aimed at downgrading and maybe overthrowing the government," Ratliff said.

He said his investigation will continue and that it will include interviews with local young people who have been "indoctrinated" by McSurely and Mulloy.

Works by and about Lenin, Marx, Mao Tse-tung, Castro and other Communist leaders were among the books seized, Ratliff said. Others dealt with Russian short stories, Socialist thought and the so-called Berkeley student revolt at the University of California. These were paperbacks and are available at some bookstores.

Ratliff said he also found instructions on how to use weapons and how to fight guerrilla wars. Correspondence taken included letters in which certain teachers were favored for the Pike County school system.

"They have been getting real close to our young people," Ratliff said. "They have what they call the Marrowbone Folk School out in the county which I understand is an indoctrination school."

"They have helped get boys into the Neighborhood Youth Corps and they have taken some young people to civil rights meetings in Chicago and other places."

Convicted in 1954 Case

The habeas corpus motions to free the McSurelys will attack the validity of the sedition charges in view of decisions holding that states cannot enforce sedition laws. One such decision dealt with a sedition conviction in Kentucky against Braden, head of SCEF, who called the state sedition statute "unconstitutional, invalid and void."

Braden was convicted in 1954 on charges of advocating sedition after the bombing of a Negro home in a previously all-white neighborhood in Louisville. Braden had sold the home to the Negro. The conviction was later set aside by the state Court of Appeals after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in a Pennsylvania case that the states do not have the authority to bring such charges.

The SCEF headquarters was moved to Louisville in 1966 from New Orleans. In 1963, police raided the New Orleans headquarters and claimed to have found subversive literature. The U.S. Supreme Court overturned prosecution arising from the Louisiana raid.

Ratliff said the prosecution may base its case on the theory that states can punish violators of state sedition laws.

'Exaggeration,' Braden Says

Ratliff said the Smith Act, which pre-empted states from enforcing state sedition laws, was found unconstitutional by the Supreme Court and, because of this, the state can now enforce state sedition statutes.

"That is an exaggeration," Braden said. "The Smith Act is still on the books, in case Mr. Ratliff is not up on his law."

Mulloy made a statement on his release deploring "this travesty of justice." He said Ratliff, the Republican nominee for lieutenant-governor, was trying to gain politically on the issue.

Tom Bethel, information officer for the Appalachian Volunteers, said the organization is dedicated to building, not overthrowing, the government.

"We are interested in working with local, county, state and federal officials to improve living conditions in Appalacia," he said.

"We do not always agree with the elected officials in the area, but we do respect the fact that they are elected. In return, we hope they will respect our constitutional right of dissent. Dissent and sedition are two very different things, and we hope this will be recognized in Pike County."

Kentucky's Law On Sedition Due U.S. Court Test

By FRED W. LUIGART JR.
Courier-Journal Staff Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky.—U.S. District Judge Bernard T. Moynahan yesterday set the stage for a federal court test of a Kentucky sedition law.

He granted a request of three anti-poverty workers, arrested last week in Pike County, to let a three-judge federal court of appeals rule on the constitutionality of the law.

However, Judge Moynahan refused to hold up current state legal proceedings against the trio: Mr. and Mrs. Alan McSurely, field workers for the Southern Conference Educational Fund (SCEF), and Joseph Mulloy, a staff member of Appalachian Volunteers.

Hearing May Be Canceled

They were charged with sedition after raids at their homes on the night of Aug. 11-12 by Pike County Commonwealth's Atty. Thomas Ratliff. Ratliff said "Communist literature and films" were confiscated.

A preliminary hearing on the state sedition charge against the three is set in Pikeville for today, but may be canceled in light of the federal action announced yesterday — which is to try the statute, not the anti-poverty workers.

It is possible that disposition of the cases of the three individuals will be put off altogether until after the constitutionality of the sedition law has been decided in the federal courts.

Whatever decision is handed down by the federal appellate judges on the constitutionality issue will be appealable directly to the Supreme Court.

See SEDITION LAW
Col. 1, back page, this section

The next step in the federal proceedings will be arranging a time for the three-judge court to meet. That will be determined by the chief judge of the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at Cincinnati, which will hear the case.

Yesterday Judge Moynahan denied appeals by the accused trio for temporary restraining orders that would have:

- Prevented Pike County officials from proceeding with their prosecution of the McSurelys and Mulloy.
- Impounded, in the hands of a U.S. marshal, literature seized in the raid on the McSurely and Mulloy residences.

No 'Irreparable Damage'

On these latter two points, Judge Moynahan noted that it is the policy of the federal courts not to interfere with the processes of the state courts and that there was no evidence submitted to indicate the plaintiffs would suffer "irreparable damage" if the restraining orders were denied.

The McSurelys sued in U.S. District Court Wednesday for an injunction against enforcement of the Kentucky sedition statute. Mulloy was permitted to intervene in the case yesterday.

With them, the plaintiffs also include the SCEF; the National Conference for New Politics, of which Alan McSurely is a field organizer; and Vietnam Summer, a peace group. In addition, the Kentucky Civil Liberties Union (KCLU) has requested admission to the case as a friend of the court.

Conflict of Statutes?

The KCLU is seeking to enter the case, its attorney, Robert A. Sedler, told the court yesterday, because the suit "presents constitutional questions of the utmost magnitude."

The defendants are Commonwealth's Atty. Ratliff, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor; Perry A. Justice, Pike County sheriff; and Grover Atkins, Pike County jailer. State Atty. General Robert Matthews is a nominal party to the defense because the suit involves a federal test of a state statute.

In granting the request for the three-judge court, Judge Moynahan in effect accepted arguments advanced by the McSurelys' and Mulloy's attorneys, Dan Jack Combs, of Pikeville, and William M. Kunstler, a New York constitutional lawyer, that the suit raises the question of a possible conflict in federal and state statutes.

Kunstler argued that sedition is a federal offense and that any statutes dealing with sedition are therefore null and void.

"There is just no such thing as sedition against a state," Kunstler told the court. He termed the arrest of the McSurelys and Mulloy a "disgraceful episode in jurisprudence."

Ratliff, representing the defendants, argued that the state statute is constitutional because, he said, it applies to persons seeking to overthrow the government of Kentucky and its subdivisions.

The arrested trio were sent to Pike County to "subvert and forcibly overthrow the government . . .," he said.

The confiscated books and papers, Ratliff said, included works by Lenin, Karl Marx and Mao Tse-tung.

"It's a ridiculous concept," replied Kunstler, referring to Ratliff's remark that the McSurelys planned to overthrow the government of Pike County.

'Karl Marx Also at UK'

"I submit you can go to the University of Kentucky where you'll find Karl Marx's works also," Kunstler added.

The ownership and distribution of Socialist and Communist literature, Kunstler continued, has "never been a crime in the United States.

Combs told the court that books not confiscated during the raids included the Bible, two books about former senator and presidential candidate Barry Goldwater, and the publication, "None Dare Call It Treason," a scathing attack on President Johnson published during the past presidential campaign.

"They (the arresting officers) were very selective," Combs added, noting that the books impounded were about communism and socialism.

Combs also told the court that since their arrests, the McSurelys' mail has been censored by the Pike County jailer. The couple has remained in jail since their arrest.

There also were charges that the arrest of the three was provoked by Ratliff's political aspirations, and suggestions that the three were arrested for their opposition to strip mining.

"I suspect that the real reason has a lot more to do with coal than with communism," Kunstler said.

Ratliff said he and other officials involved in the raid were only carrying out duties required of them by Kentucky statutes.

The warrants, he said, were issued after several Pike County persons protested the activities of the McSurelys and Mulloy.

Sedition Charges

Pike Jury Indicts Five, Including Braden, Wife

From AP and Special Dispatches

PIKEVILLE, Ky.—The Pike County grand jury yesterday indicted a Louisville couple and three anti-poverty workers on charges of advocating or teaching sedition in violation of state law.

The jury also charged in its final report that a "well-organized and well-financed effort is being made to promote and spread the communistic theory . . . to overthrow the government of Pike County."

Named in the indictments were Carl and Anne Braden of Louisville, Alan and Margaret McSurely, and Joseph Mulloy. The McSurelys and Mulloy were arrested recently after raids in August on their homes produced what the commonwealth called "subversive literature."

Braden is executive director of the Southern Conference Educational Fund (SCEF), a privately financed organization formed to aid racial-equality efforts and to assist in the organization of the poor. His wife works with him.

The McSurelys are field workers of the SCEF. Mulloy has been a summer field worker for the Appalachian Volunteers, financed in part by the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity.

All five are due to be arraigned today in Pike Circuit Court.

The McSurelys and Mulloy were released on bond after the August raids and a panel of three federal judges is considering their argument that the state sedition law is unconstitutional.

Late last night, Justice Bert T. Combs of the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati, chief of the three-judge federal panel, set a hearing for 10 a.m. tomorrow in U.S. District Court in Lexington on a motion for a restraining order to bar the state's prosecution of all five indicted yesterday, pending the federal panel's ruling on the constitutionality of the state sedition law.

'Have Sufficient Evidence'

The motion was filed by William Kunstler, attorney for the SCEF and for the five persons indicted.

In its report yesterday, the Pike County grand jury said it has studied the sedition law and as a result "of our investigation, we have sufficient and competent evidence to support an indictment requiring that those indicted stand trial for the crime of advocating or teaching sedition in violation of the Kentucky state statute."

The jury said that Communist organizers have been sent to Pike County by "racial organizations which have paid and supported them . . ." It added:

"Some employes of the Appalachian Volunteers and other federally financed anti-poverty programs have collaborated and cooperated with known Communist organizers."

The jury further stated: "Local officials of the Appalachian Volunteers have cooperated with known Communist organizers by allowing them to conduct training among the VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America) workers, Peace Corps trainees and local citizens."

Braden replied, "I have been indicted by better people than these and on even phonier charges," referring to a 1954 indictment aganist him under the sedition statutes. He added:

"The law has been found unconstitutional by the highest court in the state and the United States. This is for pure harrassment and for political advancement.

'Disrespectful to U.S. Court'

"It is also disrespectful to the U.S. court which has the case under its eye."

Dan Jack Combs, attorney for the McSurelys and Mulloy, said he was surprised that the Bradens were included in the indictment.

"Carl was only here to execute bond," Combs said.

Alan McSurely said: "Ratliff holds the people of Pike County in as much contempt as he does the federal court and each of his illegal acts are losing votes for him."

McSurely referred to Commonwealth's Atty. Thomas Ratliff of Pikeville, who is running for lieutenant governor on the Republican ticket.

Ratliff participated in the investigation leading to the arrests of the McSurelys and Mulloy.

Later, when the panel of three federal judges met to hear testimony on the constitutionality issue, Ratliff said he would not prosecute in the case until the federal court issued a ruling on the validity of the state's sedition law. The judges have not announced a decision.

Pike Circuit Judge James B. Stephenson ordered the grand jury to proceed with its investigation of the charges, despite Ratliff's agreement with the federal panel.

In Louisville, Mrs. Braden later issued this statement:

"We were indicted for sedition 13 years ago because we helped a black family seek their right to a decent home. We are indicted for sedition now because we lead an organization that is trying to help poor people of all colors win their rights.

Seven Accused in 1954 Case

"We believe today, as we did then, that the principles our country was founded on mean what they say—that all people have the same rights whether they are black or white, rich or poor.

"When they charged us with sedition in 1954 it only multiplied our efforts to make these principles real in our society. It will do the same thing this time."

Her statement referred to the fact that Carl Braden and four other persons, including Mrs. Braden, were indicted in 1954 on a charge of advocating sedition in connection with an explosion at the home of Andrew E. Wade IV, a Negro electrical contractor, near Shively. Braden had purchased the home and transferred ownership to Wade and his wife in May 1954. The explosion occurred a month later.

Two other persons were indicted on related charges.

Braden was convicted in Criminal Court in Louisville that year and sentenced to a 15-year prison term and a $5,000 fine after a 13-day trial. He was the only one of the five tried.

The Kentucky Court of Appeals threw out the conviction on June 22, 1956, after the U. S. Supreme Court had ruled that the states have no jurisdiction over sedition against the federal government.

Braden served almost six months of his term at the Kentucky Reformatory near LaGrange before being freed on a $40,000 appeal bond. The state Court of Appeals ruling finally freed him completely.

LOUISVILLE, FRIDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 15, 1967

5 Defendants Freed

Kentucky Sedition Law Ruled Unconstitutional

By FRED W. LUIGART JR.
Courier-Journal Staff Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky.—Kentucky's 47-year-old sedition statute, a law enacted in response to the so-called Bolshevik "red menace" of the early 1920s, was ruled unconstitutional in U.S. District Court here yesterday.

The federal government, the court held in a 2-1 decision, preempted the state legislation with enactment of the Smith Act, the federal sedition law.

"We do not think the government of Pike County or the government of Kentucky can be overthrown without in part overthrowing the government of the United States," the majority said.

Judge Bert Combs, of the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, and Judge James Gordon, of the U.S. District Court for Western Kentucky, constituted the majority. Judge Bernard Moynahan dissented, saying the federal court did not have jurisdiction in the suit.

Five Laud Court's Decision

The three Pike County anti-poverty workers who filed the suit and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Braden, director and associate director of the Southern Conference Education Fund (SCEF), hailed the court's decision as a triumph for civil liberties in Kentucky.

The Bradens were indicted Monday on sedition charges in Pike County. Plaintiffs in the federal court action, Mr. and Mrs. Alan McSurely, SCEF field workers, and Joe Mulloy, a field worker for the Appalachian Volunteers, were arrested on the same charge by Pike County officials after raids on their homes the night of Aug. 11-12.

The federal court enjoined the state courts from taking any further action against the McSurelys, Bradens and Mulloy and ordered that the Bradens be released from Pike County Jail. The McSurelys and Mulloy have been free on bail, while the Bradens had refused to post bond.

"It was an act of great courage by the federal court," McSurely said. He and his wife, he said, will return within a month to Pike County to resume their work among the poor.

"This is the greatest victory for civil liberties since Dombrowski vs. Pfister," Braden said, referring to a similar case decided by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1965.

It improves the climate, Mrs. Braden said, for "peaceful" efforts at correcting social abuses.

Attorney Robert Sedler, representing the Kentucky Civil Liberties Union (KCLU), also hailed the decision.

"While this is a victory for these people who have been indicted under the law," he said, "the real victors are all the people of Kentucky, because a law which could be used to suppress free expression was declared unconstitutional."

The KCLU intervened in the case as a friend of the court.

Commonwealth attorney Thomas Ratliff, of Pikeville, a defendant in the suit, indicated he will review the court's ruling before deciding on whether to appeal.

He said that if the statute is not constitutional, the 1968 General Assembly will have to deal with the "problem of radical groups that are trying to infiltrate anti-poverty programs in Kentucky" and . . . "that are trying to overthrow the governments of Kentucky and the United States."

Conviction of Braden Overturned

The court's ruling was handed down, much to the surprise of all parties, at the close of a day-long hearing into a motion by the plaintiffs calling for the court to enjoin Pike County officials from any further criminal proceedings against the McSurelys and Mulloy.

The specific statute struck down was KRS 432.040, a law that prohibits the teaching, publishing, suggesting and circulating of "seditious" material. It carries a maximum penalty upon conviction of 21 years in prison and a fine of $10,000.

Braden was convicted under the statute in a Louisville case in the early 1950s but the conviction was overturned by the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

The federal court did not rule on two companion laws, KRS 432.020 and KRS 432.030. But both, said an attorney for the plaintiffs, for all practical purposes, were set aside by the court's ruling.

Runs Afoul of Constitution

Of the statute struck down, the court said it was "upon its face, overbroad, so vague and of such sweeping application as to run afoul of the provisions of the U.S. Constitution, which requires narrow and specific regulation in the field of protected activity."

It also held, rejecting an argument advanced by the defendants, that the federal court did have jurisdiction and, in effect, said proceedings had not commenced in the state courts against the McSurelys and Mulloy until the three were indicted by the Pike Couty Grand Jury.

In other key rulings handed down in connection with the suit, the court also:

Denied a plaintiffs' motion calling for federal contempt proceedings to be initiated against Ratliff for his alleged role in the indictment of the three anti-poverty workers.

The indictment was returned after Ratliff had indicated in federal court that the charges against the three would not be submitted to the grand jury until the federal court had had the opportunity to decide whether it could take jurisdiction in the case and decide on the constitutionality of the law.

Placed in Own Recognizance

The Bradens, McSurelys and Mulloy were placed under a $5,000 bond by the federal court on their own recognizance, pending further orders of the court and a decision by the defendants on whether they will appeal.

The court further ruled that books, papers and documents seized by officers in the raiding parties be held by Ratliff pending any appeal.

The court's ruling stemmed from a controversy that erupted in Pike County early last month when "10 to 12" Pike County officials, armed with arrest and search warrants, raided the homes of the three anti-poverty workers. They went to the McSurely's house about a mile from the city around 7:30 p.m. and to Mulloy's house, 14 miles away, around midnight.

Confiscated during the raids were materials which Ratliff described as "communistic."

The warrants were obtained as a result of statements and affidavits made before Pike County officials by local residents, Ratliff testified.

Most of Ratliff's questioning of the McSurelys yesterday was intended to associate them with "communism." He also questioned Mulloy on his knowledge of the McSurelys activities.

The McSurelys denied under oath that they had written or circulated material in the county advocating the "violent overthrow of" any government.

Ratliff, testifying as a defendant, told the court he had been told the "seditious" material would include "Russian" wall posters, anti-Vietnam war literature, and articles supporting the riots in the ghettos.

There are 40 million white people in the South

WHO
THEM ?

THE KU KLUX KLAN?

GEORGE WALLACE?

OR THE FREEDOM MOVEMENT?

The answer to these questions may decide the fate of this country and perhaps the world. The Southern Conference Educational Fund (SCEF) has an expanded program which we believe will help answer the questions in the right way. We ask you to read about it — and join us in our efforts.

An Old Problem....

Eleven million, or more than one fourth, of the 40 million white people in the South are poor—that is, existing on incomes below the government poverty figure of $3,000 a year. Seven million, or almost two thirds, of the South's 11 million black people are poor. They all stay poor because they have not been able to organize effectively to take control of the South out of the hands of the few and distribute power among the many.

Except for a powerful few, even those Southerners above the poverty level have little or no influence in the decisions that affect their lives. The South has never had real democracy, for it has always been controlled by a small minority.

In recent years, Southern black people have begun to organize to win political power. But the majority of the South's white people remain powerless because they have not yet united with black people to gain strength. Instead, many still listen to the false call of those who say they are better than black people because of the color of their skin.

A SCEF organizer (right) ta
Eastern

.... A New Hope

But today there are new signs of hope.

In North Carolina, white mill workers join black workers to build a stronger union. ("That's a black power picket line, you don't want to get on that," one worker says to another. "Black power — white power — who cares?" replies the other. "We need power. I'm going to join that picket line.") . . . In Louisiana, white parents join black parents to keep racists from closing their schools . . .

In the Mississippi Delta, poor white farmers seek out the Negro liberation movement looking for opportunity for their children to attend Headstart centers . . . In Appalachia, poor white people organize and study the way black people in Lowndes County, Ala., organized to seek county political power . . .

There is a new factor operating in the South today . . . the strength of the new black movements. Here and there, powerless white people are coming to see that they need the black man more than they need their age-old prejudices.

The Southern Conference Educational Fund (SCEF) has developed a program to seize on this new awareness — and out of it to build a movement that can unite white Southerners with black ones to build a new South.

It brings to this moment of opportunity the experience of almost 30 years of work in the South. The Southern Conference was organized in 1938 after the New Deal government issued a report calling the South the "nation's No. 1 economic problem." Its purpose was to organize the South's powerless people so they would have the strength to effect change. But it was three decades ahead of its time.

What SCEF Is Today....

In its early years, the Southern Conference organized around the South's economic problems — supporting union efforts, helping poor farmers find a voice. But it soon became apparent that there was a fatal road block to change in the South. This road block was racial segregation enforced by law.

So, for 20 years after World War II, SCEF along with other militant organizations worked at a single task — the ending of segregation. It spread information, held interracial conferences, broke the silence, enlisted white people in freedom movements.

New mass movements arose, court decisions came, new laws were passed. By 1964, the legal back of segregation was broken. Racism still poisoned the region, but the South's closed atmosphere was cracked open and now there was new freedom to organize. The Southern Conference then decided to concentrate again on its original objective — organization of the South's people, white as well as black, to tackle economic problems and distribute political power.

lks with a miner's family in Kentucky.

Community of Organizers

This effort received new impetus in 1966. Important groups in the black community (like the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee) declared that black people would have to organize themselves and that white people should reach and organize other white people.

Suddenly many young white people realized that, while they were organizing black people, white Southerners were hearing mainly the voices of the Ku Klux Klan and the White Citizens Council. The most able and talented of these young people turned for a rallying point to SCEF, the organization that had long been working at the task of reaching the white community.

Thus, SCEF has changed from being a lonely voice crying in the wilderness to a new community of young organizers. Today we have a staff of 26 people, over half in the field. Our organizing efforts center in three major projects:

The Southern Mountain Project, in Appalachia, where our organizers are helping some of the poorest people in America build on the experiences of the Southern freedom movement to organize for political and economic power.

The GROW Project (Grass Roots Organizing Work), in the Deep South, where Bob and Dottie Zellner, young veterans of the Southern student movement, are helping white people find common cause with black people.

The Southern Peace Education Program, through which our Southwide travelers stimulate discussion of our foreign policy and help local groups organize action for peace. Our objective is to build a Southern anti-war movement that unites black and white.

We believe we are beginning a massive new organizing effort that can shake the South and the country. We invite you to help us now — when we need you most.

It's Your Future

The Southern power structure still controls this country through the stranglehold of Southern senators and representatives on Congress. These men cripple laws to improve social security and medicare, to raise minimum wages, and to help small farmers, labor unions, cooperatives, and credit unions — and they are a roadblock to world peace. Southern racism also threatens the nation with a mass base for American fascism, and George Wallace is carrying this campaign northward.

Wherever you live, your future may depend on whether the racists or the freedom movement can organize more effectively among Southern whites.

SCEF does not claim it can organize all of those 40 million white Southerners, but we are making a beginning — and as people in small areas organize effectively, new movements will spread.

Whether you live in the South or elsewhere, we need your time and talent to help us — and your financial support. $250 pays salary and expenses, including travel, for one field organizer for one month; some groups are raising that amount to "adopt" a worker. $25 pays a month's rent for a cabin for one mountain organizer. A contribution of $20 will print 3,000 copies of one issue of a magazine-size community newspaper. (We use our own press.)

SCEF is an entirely independent organization, receiving no support from the government or big foundations. Our money comes from concerned individuals who believe that democracy means people organizing for themselves. Write us for more information and send contributions to:

Dear Mr. Anthony and Mr. Dunbar:

On behalf of all of us at Southern Consumers' I want to thank all of you from Soutern Regional Council, for your tremendous support and encouragement. We are deeply indebted to you for the grant which made the leadership course possible. We are still working hard at the follow up and determined to work even harder at the possibilty of getting government aid and push our programs now. I think you would agree fully that we must and will succeed only if we get outside help. The power-structure on state level are almost impossible to break through. Therefore we count heavily on groups such as yours, and again thank you for your interest and contribution. We assure you we shall keep in touch with the progress and plans of our cooperative.

This booklet gives you some details of the actual week-end as well as reports and evaluation that have come out of the course discussion. We have another meeting set for December 17th, in another attempt to get government aid. Thanking all of you from Southern Regional Council and looking forward to working closely with you, I am gratefully,

Yours Sincerely,

EVALUATION OF SOCIAL LEADERSHIP COURSE HELD OCT. 25-27th, 1963

I.
Dr. Williams listed the two basic needs of our area as:
1. unemployment and education; 2. rural deterioration.
We must motivate our people to recognize their particular needs and act upon them. The cooperative approach - economic betterment through continous education can be the answer to our rural problems and needs.

II.
Dr. Rennie sessions dealt with social leadership as well as the basic economics of cooperation. He stressed the quality of understanding people, their similarities and differences, as basic to a good leader. The new ideas on leadership now emphasize persuasion, satisfaction and reward. If we are going to learn to lead in a new way, we are going to have to change our ideas about leadership. We cannot look at ourselves as people who do not require change. An ability to change denotes maturity and wisdom.

III.
Dr. Gloster classes were on the basic principles and ideas for begining a finance company. He stressed the need for dedicated organizers to make it succeed. Since Southern Consumers' Cooperative has agreed to plan to begin a Finance Company as the first type of business; Dr. Gloster spent some time in detailed classes on needs and techniques of manager and board of directors for a finance company.

IV.
Evaluation session - Where do we go from here?
We felt strongly the need for an all day session of the board of directors to think through the short term and long term objectives of the cooperative. A meeting was set for Dec.1st. to work out these objectives. More communication between the board and the membership seems to be our key problem at the moment. It was suggested that in order to improve communication and rekindle interest and loyalty to the cooperative movement the board of directors should visit each of the local 16 councils, and bring them up to date, in communication and dialogue.

We gained many new insights into the modern concept of leadership but it will take time to apply and work out these new insights into terms which our membership will understand and apply.

The educational committee has assumed the task of attempting to translate these concepts of leadership into an educational program fitted to our needs.

We have become firmly convinced that we need generous transfusions of governmental, financial assistance, and the technical and business know-how of private business if we are to overcome our economic back - wardness.

Perhaps the biggest contribution of the week-end was a renewed determination that continous education was to key to successful and effective cooperative endeavors. Our people come first, before plans and programs. All must work hand in hand remembering our goals and objectives.

SOCIAL LEADERSHIP COURSE THIS WEEKEND OCT 25, 26, 27

The success of any cooperative is its educational program. Here is an opportunity for all Co-op leaders - a workshop especially for you.

This past summer some of the members received study grants to learn more of the cocperative principles and techniques.

Carol Prejean, our editor, attended a course held at the University of Wisconsin for editors of Co-op news papers.

Susan Lies and Una Mae Hargrave attended a five week course on social leadership in cooperatives at an International center in Canada. They will help to broaden our educational program, and they will participate and assist at the weekend workshop.

This workshop is being subsidized by a grant from the Southern Regional Council. We are grateful for their assistance.

We urge each area to send at least 3 representatives. Enclose fee with application and send immediately to Central Office.

Three experts are coming to lead the workshop:

Dr. R. A. Rennie	Vice President of Research for Nationwide Insurance Company. "Social Leadership"
Dr. J. Gloster	Economist from Texas Southern University, Houston, Texas; Board Member of The Riverside National Bank in Houston. "Beginning a Finance Company"
Dr. T.T. Williams	Agricultural Economist at Southern University in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. "Keynote Address"

YOU CAN BE A FIRST CLASS CITIZEN

REGISTER AND VOTE

Deadline — November 6

To register in Louisiana, you must appear in person before the Registrar of Voters of your parish and establish your identity. (Any identification, such as a drivers license, will do.) You must be a citizen of the United States by birth or naturalization (if naturalized, bring naturalization paper with you,) and you must be at least 21 years of age. In addition, you must be a resident of Louisiana for one year, of the parish for six months, of your precinct for three months, and of your municipality for four months.

You will be required to:

1. Read and write a portion of the preamble to the Constitution of the United States. (A printed copy is shown on the registration form.)

2. Choose one of ten face-down cards and correctly answer at least four of the six multiple-choice questions shown on your card.

3. Choose at random one of the 5 application cards and correctly fill in all of the blanks

4. Mark through the word "have" or "have not" as the case may be on 6 statements dealing with morals and good character.

Voting is a privilege and a responsibility of everyone. If you would like further information before registering, contact Central Office in Lafayette, Ph. Ce 21165.

Lafayette site of Finance Company

Lafayette was chosen at the last Congressional meeting as the location for the Finance Company, the first proposed business of Southern Consumers' Co-op.

The Lafayette area can provide a rent-free building and a part-time manager for the loan company. The personnel in mind is qualified in accounting and business management.

Since Lafayette is the home of the Central Office of the Co-op, the personnel there can work jointly with the Finance Company.

Central Office Nears Completion

The office building for the Southern Consumers' Cooperative is nearly completed. More volunteer workers are needed on week ends.

The Co-op is a growing organization, which means the wouk is increasing while the working space remains the same. The present housing of the Co-op business and management is the private home of the Grail.

The Central Office personnel are anxious to move into the new office building in order to provide more efficient service.

Come and give your help, so we can move in soon.

CO-OP Adopts By-Laws

Southern Consumers' Cooperative discussed and adopted the by-laws proposed by the Board of Directors at the last Congressional meeting, Sunday, Oct. 13th.

The Co-op will continue as the Central Body functioning under these newly adopted laws. Its main purpose will be to solicit new members, continue education among members, and to collect capital for business investments.

According to these by-laws, the cooperative principles will be maintained in any chosen business of Southern Consumers'.

The by-laws of Congress are relevant only to Southern Consumers' Cooperative, the non-profit organization. Any chartered business of the Co-op will adopt its separate by-laws upon organization.

Members may obtain copies of the by-laws by writing to the Central Office, 127 Cherry St., Lafayette Louisiana.

New Subscriptions

Many of of our friends expressed preference to wait for signing subscription contracts until we had our first business. Now we are ready to begin the first business. This is an appeal to all who are interested in large investments in this business. We now have contracts to be signed for investments over $1,000. We need many large investments in order to accumulate needed goal for the Finance Co. Contact the Board of Directors or write to the Central Office for subscription blanks.

Editor's Note...

This article is an excerpt from, "My Last Will And Testament," by the late Mary McLeod Bethune. From Ebony, September -- 1963.

I leave you the challenge of developing confidence in one another. As long as Negroes are hemmed into racial blocs by prejudice and pressure, it will be necessary for them to band together for economic betterment. Negro banks, insurance companies and other businesses are examples of successful, economic enterprises. These institutions are made possible by vison and mutual aid. Confidence is vital in getting them started and keeping them going. Negroes have got to demonstrate still more confidence in each other in business. This kind of confidence will aid the economic rise of the race by bringing together the pennies and dollars of the people and ploughing them into useful channels. Economic separatism cannot be tolerated in this enlightened age, and is not practicable. We must spread out as far as we can, but we must also help each other as we go.

I leave you a thrist for education. Knowledge is the prime need of the hour. More and more, Negroes are taking advantage of hard-won opportunities for learning, and the educational level of the Negro is at its highest point in history. We are making greater use of the priveleges inherent in living in a democracy. If we continue in this trend, we will be able to rear increasing numbers of strong purposeful men and women, equipped with vision, mental clarity, health and education.

I leave you faith. Faith is the first factor in a life devoted to service. Without faith, nothing is possible. With it, nothing is impossible.

"Millions of people in many countries around the world today are organized to provide them - selves with goods and services in a cooperative way....."

We are forming a cooperative because we are a people faced with a common need. This need embraces wonership in business, job opportunities, means of saving money.

In cooperatives there must be democracy. Laws or principles must be set up to promote this. Here's where our Co-op principles come in.

Membership: Anyone who can use its services may join the Co-op. Membership is open to any one regardless of race or creed.

Democratic Control : One person, one vote. Regardless of the volume of business or the amount of capital invested every member of the Co-op will abide by this.

Limited returns on capital: This limits the rate for dividends which may be paid on shares, and leaves the surplus for patronage refunds payments.

Patronage Refunds: Savings returned to the members or patrons on the basis of the amount of business they have done with the Co-op.

If these principles are properly developed then joint planning and management will come easily by the members, Board of Directors, and staff.

The principles of cooperation also embrace the duties of the members. In order to be loyal members and patrons of their co-op, the corporators must supply the finances necessary for its operation. They must know as much as they can about their Co-op. This can be done by attending their area and Congressional meetings, and participating in the special educational programs sponsored by the Co-op.

"Co-ops are people organized to serve themselves." If we abide by our principles, our Co-op will serve us by raising our economic standards as a people; give us more real buying power; provide better jobs; build our community prosperity and encourage participation in commnnity life.

Co-op dollars are the best guaantee in reaching our goals.

SOCIAL LEADERSHIP COURSE -- OCTOBER 25, 26, 27.

Leaders Air Farm, Employment Problems

By Peggy Siegmund

Baton Rouge — "Leaders of today face the frustration of a rapidly changing world," began Dr. T. T. Williams, agricultural economist at Southern university, Baton Rouge, in his keynote address at the Social Leadership course, Oct. 25-27, sponsored by Southern Consumers cooperative.

At Leadership Course

Looking over national co-op literature at a recent social leadership course are (left to right) Dr. Robert A. Rennie, vice president of research for Nationwide Insurance company; Lester Scurlock, New Iberia, board of directors member of Southern Consumers co-operative; Una Mae Hargrave, Lafayette, educational committee of SCC; Ocie Smith, Sr., field representative for National Sharecroppers Fund, Inc.

Dr. Williams cited the two major problems to economic progress in our time as unemployment and rural deterioration.

Part of the unemployment problem stems from change in the labor market, Dr. Williams said, with automation requiring more and more skilled laborers. He explained that 5½ per cent of the working population was unemployed according to general averages of the past five years. The trend of school dropouts Dr. Williams traced to lack of motivation because of the unemployment problem among young people.

"One out of ten people on the farms will stay there," he explained, referring to the second major economic problem of rural deterioration. "Farm employment dropped a half million last year," he continued. "Four million people in the rural areas are unemployed all or part of the year. The cooperative approach can help to revitalize our rural areas."

Held at Southern university, the social leadership course was sponsored by the Southern Consumers cooperative, and aimed at developing leadership and helping members acquire a basic knowledge of economics as related to cooperatives. Southern Consumers co-op is a statewide cooperative movement to help Negro families raise their economic standard of living.

Over twenty leaders in the co-op attended the weekend, including board of director members and chairmen from various towns throughout Louisiana.

Besides Dr. Williams, speakers for the weekend course included Dr. Jessie Gloster, economics professor, Texas Southern university, Houston, and Dr. Robert A. Rennie, vice president of research for Nationwide Insurance company.

Dr. Rennie conducted several sessions on social leadership as well as the basic economics of cooperation. He stressed the quality of understanding people, their similarities and differences, as basic to a good leader.

"The old concept of authority and leadership," Dr. Rennie said, "involved fear, force and authority. The new ideas on leadership now emphasize persuasion, satisfaction and reward."

In the old concept, Dr. Rennie explained, the leader said "I have a right to lead," while the new leader says, "I have a responsibility to guide."

Since Southern Consumers co-op plans to begin a finance company in the near future, as their first cooperative venture, Dr. Gloster spoke on basic principles and ideas for beginning a finance company. He stressed the need for dedicated organizers to make it succeed.

Southern Regional Council, Inc., awarded a $700 grant to help finance the cost of the leadership course.

Southern Consumers cooperative traces its source back to 1950 when Father Albert J. McKnight, C.S.Sp., assistant at Our Lady of Lourdes, Abbeville, organized a credit union in the mission parish in Kaplan.

Once established, Father began to reach out for other ways of making an impact on raising the economic level of the Negro. It had been proved that "little business" was not the answer. "Big business" had to be the goal, with many people pooling their resources.

Thus, in 1961, through ideas from an already existing Investment club and study courses in the Antigonish (Nova Scotia) cooperative movement, Father McKnight began plans for forming some kind of cooperative business. In September, 1961, the first meeting of the Southern Consumers cooperative was held to lay the groundwork for this cooperative effort.

Executive, educational, membership and by-laws committees were formed. A monthly congressional meeting was formulated to keep members informed so that each could take active part in the work of the co-op.

In the following months, the co-op took on a more definitive shape. Leaders came forward; the cooperative spread to surrounding areas until, at present, it has expanded to 20 towns in Louisiana with 850 members.

For the past few summers, leaders in the co-op have studied cooperative principles at Coady International institute in Antigonish, Nova Scotia, as well as visiting national cooperative headquarters in the United States.

The social leadership course held at Baton Rouge was the first weekend attempt at holding local courses to enable a larger number of people to attend and benefit from national experts in the field of cooperatives and economics.

Co-Op Plans Leadership Course

Baton Rouge -- Southern Consumers Co-op is planning a three-day course on social leadership to be held at Southern university, Baton Rouge, October 25-27.

Southern Consumers Co-op is a cooperative movement to assist Negro families in Louisiana. Father Albert McKnight, C.S.Sp. assistant at Our Lady of Lourdes, Abbeville, was instrumental in the formation of the organization and has guided the education of members. He studied at St. Xavier university, Antigonish, Nova Scotia.

Dr. Jessie Gloster, professor of economics, Texas Southern university, Houston; Dr. Robert A. Rennie, vice president of research for Nationwide Insurance Co.; and Dr. T. T. Williams, agricultural economics professor of Southern university will be the speakers for the weekend.

Dr. Gloster will hold sessions on finance and savings and loan companies, since this is the immediate goal of Southern Consumers Co-op.

Dr. Rennie will conduct an intensive leadership training course and present the basic economics of cooperation.

Dr. Williams will be the general consultant.

The main objectives of the course are to develop leadership, to disseminate knowledge concerning finance and savings and loan companies, and to help the members acquire a basic knowledge of economics as related to cooperatives.

Southern Consumers received a $700 grant from Southern Regional Council, Inc. This will finance the cost of the speakers and subsidies will cover other expenses.

PURPOSE AND HISTORY OF SOUTHERN CONSUMERS' COOPERATIVE

CENTRAL OFFICE: SOUTHERN CONSUMERS' COOPERATIVE
127 CHERRY STREET
LAFAYETTE, LOUISIANA Phone: CE 2-1165

BASIC PRINCIPLES: A cooperative is a corporation of a group of people who have organized to provide themselves with goods or services, and it is run completly by and for its members. All adhere to the following principles:

1) one member, one vote.
2) membership open to all.
3) political, religious, racial and social neutrality shall be observed.

OBJECTIVES: To help Negroes become owners of BIG BUSINESS, such as:

Financial Institutions	Retail Chain Stores
Credit Unions	Food Stores
Finance Companies	Supermarkets
Savings and Loans	Appliances
Banks	Discount Stores
Industry	Others
Sugar Mills	Mechanic Shops
Cannery	Funeral Homes
Factories	Housing Projects

CAPITOL WILL AND MUST BE RAISED COOPERATIVELY.

LONG RANGE OBJECTIVES: Ownership of big business will result in more economic independence which lays the foundation for social, political, educational and religious improvements.

Economic independence results in greater security, growth of self respect; and allows people to exercise civil rights without the fear of reprisal. Ownership brings about interest in all business, wise use of money power of money, as well as teach people to save, invest and sacrifice immediate consumption for future gains. Ownership will help make more jobs available. The success of this cooperative will have significant consquences on any type of venture among Negroes. in the South.

BRIEF HISTORY:

1959 - Father McKnight, with leaders in the area began to search for ways and means for economic betterment. Credit Unions were the first step.

1961 - Plans were made for a Cooperative to be formed with six towns in rural area of Lafayette. Realization that this must expand if right leadership was to be found and effort to pool resources became a necessity.

1961 - September - Southern Consumers' Cooperative was begun. Committees formed as follows: Membership, Educational, Board of Directors and By-laws.

1961 - October-- Board of Directors were elected, by-laws presented to members. Agreed that Congressional Meetings would be held monthly; Each town would elect and send delegates to this monthly Congressional Meeting. Education programs serve the Congressional meetings and in turn delegates serve on educational program for local towns.

1962 - August -- Members signed Stock Subscriptions Contracts, in order to accumalate capitol.

1963 - Total membership is now 550 members, capitol is $13,000.00. Functioning groups in 16 towns in Louisiana.

1963 - Congress voted to begin a Finance Co. as the first step to many other types of business. This was done after an attempt to get one common credit union charter to make large loans was refused on grounds of common ground. We are now in the process of getting first business - Finance Company - underway. We are still working at begining credtt unions in each of the 16 towns. Other types of cooperative business are still in the planning stages.

REPORT ON THE PURPOSE AND NEEDS OF SOUTHERN CONSUMERS' COOPERATIVE

Southern Consumers' cooperative is:

A service organization set up to carry on continous educational programs, with the purpose of initiating and setting up self-help projects in needy areas of Louisiana. These projects will lead to cooperatively owned and controlled business enterprises by the people and bring about economic independence among Negroes in needy rural areas of Louisiana.

I. Long-range planning

Objectives: Business ownership will result in more economic independence which will lay the foundation for social, political, educational and religious improvements in Louisiana and throughout the South.

Economic independence will instill greater security and growth of self-respect among the members and will allow people to exercise their civil rights without fear of reprisal. Ownership will bring about interest in all businesses, more understanding and better use of money, as well as teach people to save, invest and sacrifice immediate consumption for future gains. Ownership will help make more jobs available to Negroes. The success of this cooperative program will have significant consequences on any type of venture among Negroes in the South.

The above plan is important in terms of the following statistics available in census reports for the state of Louisiana:

1. The average income per Negro family is $1,900.
2. The median of high school years compleded in Southwest La. for persons 25 years and older --- Whites 10.6, Negroes 8.4, total population 9.0.

II. Immediate planning

Objectives: To help Negroes primarily become economically independent through: credit unions, research, techincal assistance, and business ownership.

Credit unions are the easiest and most effective self-help programs with which to begin. This type of cooperative teaches members the value of cooperation, savings, and lays a foundation for more complicated enterprises.

The Southern Consumers' Cooperative, founded in 1961, is active in 16 rural communities in Southwest Louisiana. Plans are to extend this service to other communities in the state and surrounding areas.

We are limited because of finances, but with help from R.A.D. and other groups we feel confident that within a year we could reach many more communities.

Membership now numbers 550. The cooperative has saved and pooled $13,000.00 to begin a Finance Company within the next three months which will serve all sixteen towns. This Finance Company will be owned and controlled by and for the members, based on cooperative principles of: 1) democratic control, one member, one vote; 2) voluntary membership, open to all; 3) political, religious, racial, and social neutrality observed by all.

Organizational set-up consists of: Board of Directors, educational committee, chairman of each local group, and monthly congressional meetings consisting of delegates representing each of the sixteen towns.

III. Needs

A grant for two full-time field representatives to assist and intitiate credit unions among Negroes in needy rural areas of Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama in cooperation with National Sharecroppers Foundation and Southern Regional Council.

In order to accomplish the above programs, personnel and office equipment are essential. It has become evident that a full time person must be employed to coordinate educational programs throughout the area, and manage the central office located at 127 Cherry St., Lafayette, La.

Research: In order to determine what type of industry would best fit in with the agricultural condition, a research gurvey, conducted by an agricultural economist, will be needed. A report is being prepared by Dr. T.T. Williams of Southern University, Baton Rouge, as to the required grant.

A survey of economic and unemployment problems in also needed.

Technical assistance: With regrads to a survey of unemployment problems and the fessibility of financial institutions, technical assistance in this area will be needed, as well as immediate assistance to work out details of specific programs which pertain to A.r.A and Job Retraining Acts. We have obtained as many O.E.D.P. programs as are available in this area in order to work out possible industrial projects.

A grant to subsidize a monthly Co-op Newsletter which informs all members of events and programs; it also serves as an educational media.

VOLUME II, NUMBER 6 DECEMBER 1963 LAFAYETTE, LA.

Here We Stand

Here we stand - and may we help our selves!

Such were my thoughts after Dr. T. T. Williams delivered his keynote address in the opening session of the Social Leadership week end held at Southern University in Baton Rouge.

Dr. Williams' talk dealt with the responsibilities of the good leader. He said that a leader must have the desire to be productive. To be productive - here is the essence of all our efforts. This is probably the only torch that stays lit when everything goes wrong, and defeat and despair bang on our doors. We want to be productive. (So maybe we are on the right track after all.)

According to Dr. Williams the most important task of responsible leadership is promoting economic growth. Now our desire for productivity must be put to practical use. Just how do we go about promoting economic growth? This means facing the needs of the people in the area.

Dr. Williams lists these needs under two basic headings; 1. unemployment and education; 2.rural deterioration.

Co-ops are People

Cooperatives cannot exist without cooperators. Cooperatives must be important to people before they can be useful. They must be made concrete before people will respond.

This response will not come until cooperatives meet or stand for a definite need - a need that is felt by the people.

Dr. Rennie pointed this out in his talk at the Leadership Course, "People are the most important ingredients of cooperatives."

People can make cooperatives successful if they recognize their needs - if they just admit that there is one.

Dr. Rennie said that cooperative spirit comes not so much from leaders recognizing the need and then getting the members to fulfill them or provide for them - instead, the members must acknowledge the needs and then work towards their betterment.

This issue carries highlights of the talks given at the Social Leadership Course held in Baton Rouge, October 25 - 27.

Responsible leaders cannot leave rural America to solve its own problems alone. Dr. Williams explained that cooperatives can be the salvation of rural America. Through cooperative effort farmers can get jobs, and useless cropland can be put to other uses.

Leaders must motivate their followers to recognize their particular needs and act upon them.

We need to be motivated toward higher education, cooperative efforts, and joint capital.

Here is where we stand and may we promote ourselves to economic growth.

CONGRESSIONAL MEETING

DECEMBER 8, 1963

PAUL BREAUX SCHOOL
SOUTH MAGNOLIA STREET
LAFAYETTE, LOUISIANA

2 P.M. Committees meet
3 P.M. General session

Since the meeting of the board of directors, changes have been made concerning the work of the custodians. Please plan to attend.

Fr. A. J. McKnight, president of the board of directors has been named Credit Union Director for the diocese of Lafayette.

Bishop Maurice Schexnayder has recently made the appointment.

"In a statement issued Monday, November 25, on behalf of the Cooperative League, Jerry Voorhis, excutive director, expressed "grief and shame" over the death of the late President John F. Kennedy.He pledged loyalty and support to President Lyndon B. Johnson, and asserted the strong support of the Cooperative League for unity in the nation."

We have taken a few excerpts from our late Presidents inaugural address which express his strength and his determination to build a better world.

"The world is very different now. For man holds in his mortal hands the power to abolish all forms of human life. And yet the same revolutionary beliels for which our forebears fought are still at issue around the globe--the belief that the rights of man come not from the generosity of the state, but from the hand of God.

" We dare not forget today that we are the heirs of that first revolution. Let the word go forth from this time and place, to friend and foe alike, that the torch has been passed to a new generation of Americans-- born in this century, tempered by war, disciplined by a hard and bitter peace,proud of our heritage--and unwilling to witness or permit the slow undoing of those human rights to which this nation has always been committed, and to which we are committed today at home and around the world."

We hope all Americans will take to heart the message of President Johnson "to continue" what President Kennedy has begun.

Where Do We Go From Here?

The evaluation session following the weekend social leadership course was entitled "Where do we go from here?" We felt strongly the need for an all day session of the board of directors to think through the short term and long term objectives of the cooperative. A meeting has been planned with the board of directors for Sunday, December 1st, in Kaplan.

More communication between the Board and the membership is necessary. It was suggested that in order to improve communication and to rekindle interest in the Co-op, the Board should visit the local councils. This suggestion was adopted by the Board. After December the members of the Board will be available to attend the local council meetings and carry on a dialogue with the membership.

We gained many new insights into the modern concept of leadership but it will take time to apply these insights to our needs.

The educational committee has assumed the task of attempting to translate these concepts of leadership into an educational program fitted to our needs.

We have become firmly convinced that we need generous transfusions of governmental, financial assistance, and the technical and business know-how of private business if we are to overcome our economic back wardness.

In the words of Whitney Young, executive secretary of the Urban League:

..."For nearly four hundred years the Negro has been consciously and deliberately excluded (from the American mainstream). During this time he has been denied even the barest minimum in health, education housing, and cultural outlets.

For him to catch up will require a few years of deliberate inclusion and special programming within the integrated framework to offset the scars which were inevitable under the kind of environment which America subjected him to. There is no way for the back wheels of a car to catch up with the front wheels even though they are going at the same rate of speed unless something special happens."

by Fr. A. J. McKnight

Watch for the Progress Chart

$25,000 is the financial goal of Southern Consumer's Cooperative.

The chart below will appear in each following issue, indicating our progress in attaining this goal.

Machines have replaced many able-bodied men. Tomarrow there will be even more machines doing jobs that men did 20 or 30 years before. What will our youth do? "To live in a world of this nature, requires ability," said Dr. Williams,"And as leaders we must concern ourselves with the trainingof our youth for gainful employment in this dynamic world."

He pointed out that unemployment averaged 5½ percent during the past five years. Also during this time we had the highest number of workers in our history.

Much of our unemployment today stems from lack of higher training. The responsible leader can come to the aid of unemployment by instilling in the youth today the necessity for this higher education.

Many employers today are now requiring at least a high school training for most jobs once held by the unskilled and untrained worker.

Through higher education of our youth we can decrease this high rate of unemployment and promote our economic growth.

"As leaders, we must constantly search for means and opportunities in our community for developing this precious resource."

Dr. Williams address stated that rural America has provided more job opportunities than many major industries combined. "But today new fertilizers, insecticides, research and machines have all contributed to the declining importance of rural America agriculture wise."

There are millions of people living in urual areas who are unemployed all or part of the year.

Many of those are small farmers who cannot acquire sufficient capital to farm successfully under modern conditions. How do we get people to realize that co-ops can make an economic difference to them? How can we make them take a stand for raising their own economic standards?

Some have held back for fear of losing their jobs, or because they have been "taken" before.

We must get people to understand that they will have to undergo hard ships and reprisals.

"Reprisals are often reasons for success," stated Dr. Rennie.

The South is open to just about any project. We have a need - we have lots of needs.

The Southern Negro has no major voice in government or in his own community. A reason for this is that he has no ownership. There is no big business among the Negro.

Negroes are people. We are people with needs. Let us be people facing our needs. Let us be people acting to meet our needs. Let us be cooperators - in Southern Consumers Cooperative.

Board Meets Washington Official

Elmer J. Moore, research agricultural economist from Washington, D.C. attended a board meeting, Thursday, November 14.
The board brought Mr. Moore up to date on Southern Consumers Co-op. They also discussed possibilities of obtaining federal aid for the Co-op.
A second meeting was scheduled for December 17.

What Makes Leadership Difficult

Few people ever become completely adequate as leaders. Why is this so? What makes leadership so difficult. In one of his discussions, Dr. Rennie outlined the answer to this.

"Leadership is difficult because there is so much to it," said Dr. Rennie. "The leader must devote himself to his new responsibility with perserverance,with initiative, loyalty and understanding."

A leader must give more of himself. He must work harder and longer.

He must learn a good deal about other people and about human nature.

Good leadership is difficult because often it is not what we think it is. Many are led to think of a leader as a "Knight in shinny armor". A leader today does not rush to the rescue on a milky white horse with sword in hand.

Dr. Rennie brought out that the modern leader must find modern ways of motivating action and enlisting enthusiastic participation from his people.

The leader is only human. Like everyone else there is a minor of war going on inside him continually. The sides of the battle are labeled dependence and independence.

The leader too, wants to experience a sense of belonging, of being loved. This is the thing that has led all of us to be like those upon whom we have depended. From this we get a comfortable feeling of security and competence.

The battle of independence comes with the need to possess a unique personality, "We want to be somebody."

Therefore, the leader too, has this independent side that has to be reckoned with. The products of his feelings are felt not only within himself but are impressed on other people.

Dr. Rennie said if we are going to learn to lead in a new way, we are going to have to change our ideas about what leadership is, 1.what is required of the leader, 2. and what the leader does.

We cannot look at ourselves as people who do not require change. If so, this will hinder good leader ship. An ability to change denotes maturity and wisdom.

Dear Mr. Anthony and Mr. Dunbar:

Thank you so much for your letter of November 12th. We fully understand that you were unable to make the November 14th workshop, and are grateful for your best wishes and immediate response. We feel this was only a prilminary step to many more meetings to discuss the details with them, and so another date has been set; December 17th, to get advice from one of the R.A.D. technicans. Enclosed program for details. We feel confident that we will be able to get assistance -- but only for specialized projects, and it will take time.

In the meantime we have made the decision to keep pushing our needs and feel it is urgent that we get help now! It has been suggested that we appeal to foundations and insurance companies for immediate help with grants. Any suggestions or experience in this type of an appeal would be greatly appreciated from your office.

Grateful for your continued support and interest, I am,

Sincerely,

Rev. A.J. McKnight

Here We Stand

Here we stand - and may we help our selves!

Such were my thoughts after Dr. T. T. Williams delivered his keynote address in the opening session of the Social Leadership week end held at Southern University in Baton Rouge.

Dr. Williams' talk dealt with the responsibilities of the good leader. He said that a leader must have the desire to be productive. To be productive - here is the essence of all our efforts. This is probably the only torch that stays lit when everything goes wrong, and defeat and despair bang on our doors. We want to be productive. (So maybe we are on the right track after all.)

According to Dr. Williams the most important task of responsible leadership is promoting economic growth. Now our desire for productivity must be put to practical use. Just how do we go about promoting economic growth? This means facing the needs of the people in the area.

Dr. Williams lists these needs under two basic headings; 1. unemployment and education; 2.rural deterioration.

Co-ops are People

Cooperatives cannot exist without cooperators. Cooperatives must be important to people before they can be useful. They must be made concrete before people will respond.

This response will not come until cooperatives meet or stand for a definite need - a need that is felt by the people.

Dr. Rennie pointed this out in his talk at the Leadership Course, "People are the most important ingredients of cooperatives."

People can make cooperatives successful if they recognize their needs - if they just admit that there is one.

Dr. Rennie said that cooperative spirit comes not so much from leaders recognizing the need and then getting the members to fulfill them or provide for them - instead, the members must acknowledge the needs and then work towards their betterment.

This issue carries highlights of the talks given at the Social Leadership Course held in Baton Rouge, October 25 - 27.

Responsible leaders cannot leave rural America to solve its own problems alone. Dr. Williams explained that cooperatives can be the salvation of rural America. Through cooperative effort farmers can get jobs, and useless cropland can be put to other uses.

Leaders must motivate their followers to recognize their particular needs and act upon them.

We need to be motivated toward higher education, cooperative efforts, and joint capital.

Here is where we stand and may we promote ourselves to economic growth.

CONGRESSIONAL MEETING

DECEMBER 8, 1963

PAUL BREAUX SCHOOL
SOUTH MAGNOLIA STREET
LAFAYETTE, LOUISIANA

2 P.M. Committees meet
3 P.M. General session

Since the meeting of the board of directors, changes have been made concerning the work of the custodians. Please plan to attend.

Fr. A. J. McKnight, president of the board of directors has been named Credit Union Director for the diocese of Lafayette.

Bishop Maurice Schexnayder has recently made the appointment.

"In a statement issued Monday, November 25, on behalf of the Cooperative League, Jerry Voorhis, excutive director, expressed "grief and shame" over the death of the late President John F. Kennedy.He pledged loyalty and support to President Lyndon B. Johnson, and asserted the strong support of the Cooperative League for unity in the nation."

We have taken a few excerpts from our late Presidents inaugural address which express his strength and his determination to build a better world.

"The world is very different now. For man holds in his mortal hands the power to abolish all forms of human life. And yet the same revolutionary beliels for which our forebears fought are still at issue around the globe--the belief that the rights of man come not from the generosity of the state, but from the hand of God.

" We dare not forget today that we are the heirs of that first revolution. Let the word go forth from this time and place, to friend and foe alike, that the torch has been passed to a new generation of Americans-- born in this century, tempered by war, disciplined by a hard and bitter peace,proud of our heritage--and unwilling to witness or permit the slow undoing of those human rights to which this nation has always been committed, and to which we are committed today at home and around the world."

We hope all Americans will take to heart the message of President Johnson "to continue" what President Kennedy has begun.

Where Do We Go From Here?

The evaluation session following the weekend social leadership course was entitled "Where do we go from here?" We felt strongly the need for an all day session of the board of directors to think through the short term and long term objectives of the cooperative. A meeting has been planned with the board of directors for Sunday, December 1st, in Kaplan.

More communication between the Board and the membership is necessary. It was suggested that in order to improve communication and to rekindle interest in the Co-op, the Board should visit the local councils. This suggestion was adopted by the Board. After December the members of the Board will be available to attend the local council meetings and carry on a dialogue with the membership.

We gained many new insights into the modern concept of leadership but it will take time to apply these insights to our needs.

The educational committee has assumed the task of attempting to translate these concepts of leadership into an educational program fitted to our needs.

We have become firmly convinced that we need generous transfusions of governmental, financial assistance, and the technical and business know-how of private business if we are to overcome our economic back wardness.

In the words of Whitney Young, executive secretary of the Urban League:

..."For nearly four hundred years the Negro has been consciously and deliberately excluded (from the American mainstream). During this time he has been denied even the barest minimum in health, education housing, and cultural outlets.

For him to catch up will require a few years of deliberate inclusion and special programming within the integrated framework to offset the scars which were inevitable under the kind of environment which America subjected him to. There is no way for the back wheels of a car to catch up with the front wheels even though they are going at the same rate of speed unless something special happens."

by Fr. A. J. McKnight

Watch for the Progress Chart

$25,000 is the financial goal of Southern Consumer's Cooperative.

The chart below will appear in each following issue, indicating our progress in attaining this goal.

Machines have replaced many able-bodied men. Tomarrow there will be even more machines doing jobs that men did 20 or 30 years before. What will our youth do? "To live in a world of this nature, requires ability," said Dr. Williams,"And as leaders we must concern ourselves with the trainingof our youth for gainful employment in this dynamic world."

He pointed out that unemployment averaged 5½ percent during the past five years. Also during this time we had the highest number of workers in our history.

Much of our unemployment today stems from lack of higher training. The responsible leader can come to the aid of unemployment by instilling in the youth today the necessity for this higher education.

Many employers today are now requiring at least a high school training for most jobs once held by the unskilled and untrained worker.

Through higher education of our youth we can decrease this high rate of unemployment and promote our economic growth.

"As leaders, we must constantly search for means and opportunities in our community for developing this precious resource."

Dr. Williams address stated that rural America has provided more job opportunities than many major industries combined. "But today new fertilizers, insecticides, research and machines have all contributed to the declining importance of rural America agriculture wise."

There are millions of people living in urual areas who are unemployed all or part of the year.

Many of these are small farmers who cannot acquire sufficient capital to farm successfully under modern conditions. How do we get people to realize that co-ops can make an economic difference to them? How can we make them take a stand for raising their own economic standards?

Some have held back for fear of losing their jobs, or because they have been "taken" before.

We must get people to understand that they will have to undergo hard ships and reprisals.

"Reprisals are often reasons for success," stated Dr. Rennie.

The South is open to just about any project. We have a need - we have lots of needs.

The Southern Negro has no major voice in government or in his own community. A reason for this is that he has no ownership. There is no big business among the Negro.

Negroes are people. We are people with needs. Let us be people facing our needs. Let us be people acting to meet our needs. Let us be cooperators - in Southern Consumers Cooperative.

Board Meets Washington Official

Elmer J. Moore, research agricultural economist from Washington, D.C. attended a board meeting, Thursday, November 14.
The board brought Mr. Moore up to date on Southern Consumers Co-op. They also discussed possibilities of obtaining federal aid for the Co-op.
A second meeting was scheduled for December 17.

What Makes Leadership Difficult

Few people ever become completely adequate as leaders. Why is this so? What makes leadership so difficult. In one of his discussions, Dr. Rennie outlined the answer to this.

"Leadership is difficult because there is so much to it," said Dr. Rennie. "The leader must devote himself to his new responsibility with perserverance,with initiative, loyalty and understanding."

A leader must give more of himself. He must work harder and longer.

He must learn a good deal about other people and about human nature.

Good leadership is difficult because often it is not what we think it is. Many are led to think of a leader as a "Knight in shinny armor". A leader today does not rush to the rescue on a milky white horse with sword in hand.

Dr. Rennie brought out that the modern leader must find modern ways of motivating action and enlisting enthusiastic participation from his people.

The leader is only human. Like everyone else there is a minor of war going on inside him continually. The sides of the battle are labeled dependence and independence.

The leader too, wants to experience a sense of belonging, of being loved. This is the thing that has led all of us to be like those upon whom we have depended. From this we get a comfortable feeling of security and competence.

The battle of independence comes with the need to possess a unique personality, "We want to be somebody."

Therefore, the leader too, has this independent side that has to be reckoned with. The products of his feelings are felt not only within himself but are impressed on other people.

Dr. Rennie said if we are going to learn to lead in a new way, we are going to have to change our ideas about what leadership is, 1.what is required of the leader, 2. and what the leader does.

We cannot look at ourselves as people who do not require change. If so, this will hinder good leader ship. An ability to change denotes maturity and wisdom.

VOLUME III, NUMBER 1 JANUARY 1964 LAFAYETTE, LA.

Editor's Note
The following excerpt is taken from a speech given by Dr. Martin L. King Jr. at a famous conference on on Race and Religion in Chicago.

Segregation is morally wrong because it deprives man of freedom, that quality which makes him man. The very character of the life of man demands freedom.

What is freedom? It is, first, the capacity to deliberate or weigh alternatives. "Shall I be a doctor or a lawyer? Shall I vote for this candidate or the other candidate?" Moment by moment we go through life engaged in this strange conversation with ourselves.

Second, freedom expresses itself in decision. When I make a decision I cut off alternatives and make a choice.

The third expression of freedom is responsibility. This is the obligation of the person to respond if he is questioned about his decisions.

The absence of freedom imposes restraint on my delibrations as to what I shall do, where I shall live, or the kind of task I shall pursue. I am robbed of the basic quality of manness.

COOPERATIVES AND EDUCATION

A cooperative is a business of people. People cannot be separated from education therefore you cannot separate education from business.

Often we tend to think of this as business and that as education. They are not separate compartments. A co-op may sell soap and fertilizers, grow corn and beans, or arrange loans and credit, and we say that is business.

Then this co-op may have a meeting, conduct a week end course and we say this is education.

But in truth the selling of soap and fertilizers, the growing of corn and beans, and lending money is educational. Education in cooperatives becomes effective in the realities of trade and commerce and other economy raising ventures.

A second point to bring out about cooperatives and education is involvement. In order to be educated in cooperative thinking, you must get involved.

The opportunities for involvement in good cooperative education are endless. But with this there must be a great number of voluntary workers.

In the cooperative system, voluntary work is the only means thru which a larger membership can be reached and in turn get involved in the everlasting educational process which is an important part of cooperative growth and development.

CENTRAL OFFICE - STILL UNFINISHED

The staff members of the Co-op News and the office personnel for Southern Consumers' had hoped to move into a new spacious office building before the new year began.

But apparently we are disappointed. The Central Office of the Co-op is still not completed.

There is very little to be done, yet, the least little things will never get finished unless there is some one to do them.

We are still asking for and depending on volunteer help and of course on money.

CONGRESSIONAL MEETING

January 12, 1964

PAUL BREAUX SCHOOL
SOUTH MAGNOLIA STREET
LAFAYETTE, LOUISIANA

2 p.m. Committees meet
3 p.m. General session

''Willingness to increase one's knowledge and to contribute one's thoughts, as well as the ability to work with others, are three qualities of a good cooperator.''

When I cannot chose what I shall do or where I shall live it means in fact that someone or some system has already made these decision for me, and I am reduced to an animal.

Nothing can be more diabolical than a deliberate attempt to destroy in any man his will to be a man and to withhold from him that something that constitutes his true essence.

PROGRESS CHART

The chart below was introduced in our last issue. It's the progress chart which indicates the amount of money we have now and the amount we need.

$25,000 is the present financial goal of Southern Consumers' Co-op. At present we only have $ 14,000.

BOARD VISITS AREAS

Southern Consumers' Board of Directors has invited itself to visit each area group on a date designated by the particular area.

The purpose of these meetings will be to stimulate coordination between the Board and the different localities, according to Father Albert McKnight, board president. Fr. McKnight said by these visits they hope to reactivate and rededicate the groups.

Below is a tentative schedule of the places and dates of the Board's visits.

The areas not listed may call or write Central Office and propose a date convenient to them.

January-----	Lake Charles Lafayette
Febuary-----	Abbeville Kaplan
March-------	Rayne New Iberia
April-------	Jennings Gueydan
May---------	Simmesport Mansura
June--------	Sulphur

BOARD MEMBER ELECTED

Mrs. Herman Spikes, Lake Charles, has relinquished her membership on the Board of Directors. Her husband, Mr. Herman Spikes, will take her position. He was elected by the Board at the last meeting, Monday, Dec 30.

COOPERATIVES AND COOPERATION

The following quesions and answers were provided as a servide by the CO-OP NEWS staff to the members of Southern Consumers'.

These are just reminders of what this business of cooperatives is all about.

Q. How can an individual be guided to improve his economic conditions?

A. This can be done by enkindling the hope that something can be done and by showing him the steps which we think can be taken - by forming a cooperative.

Q. What is a Cooperative?

A. A cooperative is a group of people faced with a common need, who decide that the best or only way to meet that need is by organizing a new business and to supply directly t themselves. This they do by joining voluntarily to pool their resources and thus own, control and patronize their own enterprize.

Q. What are the common needs of our people today?
A. The common needs today are:
1. Ownership in business
2. Job opportunities
3. Means of saving money

Q. Why is ownership a common need of our people today?
A. Ownership is a common need because it gives:
1. A feeling of independence
2. A means of security
3. A way to progress
4. Allows people to exercise the right to vote without fear or reprisal.
5. Creates an interest in business.

Q. Why is cooperation necessary to gain ownership in business?
A. In the economic situation as it is today, it is almost impossible for an indivual to succeed in business on a large scale because of lack of capital. Therefore by working in groups more capital can be pooled.

Q. What are the most important factors necessary for the success of a cooperative?
A. Good cooperators, sufficient capital, and good management.

Q. What is sufficient capital?
A. Sufficient capital is the amount of money necessary for us to obtain our goal.

Q. How is sufficient capital obtained?
A. Sufficient capital is obtained by many people of little means putting their money together, thus accumulating the large sums necessary.

Dear Cooperators:
As 1964 slips in we, the staff of the CO-OP NEWS wish to bring Holiday Greetings and a sincere "thank you" for your cooperation throughout the year.

A GREETING

I salute you: There is nothing I can give you which you have not; but there is much, while I cannot give you, you can take.....

No heaven can come to us unless our hearts find rest in it today. Take Heaven.....

No peace lies in the future which is not hidden in the present. Take Peace.....

The gloom of the world is but a shadow; behind it yet within our reach is joy. Take Joy.....

FOUNDING OF CREDIT CO-OPS

Alphonse Desjardins, 1854 to 1920, founded the first credit cooperative in North America, in 1900.

This Co-op set the example for all America, and soon farmers, fishermen, and poeple in all walks of life were able to get short term loans at reasonable rates from their own credit co-ops.

Support your credit co-op.

NEW INSTRUCTIONS FOR CUSTODIANS

At the last Congressional meeting, the Board members announced that beginning Dec. 5 the custodians will be given 4% on money collected, providing the report is in the Central Office by the 5th of the month.

Only 2% will be given if the report is delinquent.

20% will be given on any "new membership" fee.

Custodians must meet monthly. If they miss two consecutive meetings, they are subject to removal by the Board.

This is on a trial basis of three months.

FR. O'ROURKE MEETS THE CO-OP

Southern Consumers' Cooperative will meet with Father Edward W. O'Rourke, director of the National Catholic Rural Life Conference, Sunday, Jan. 12 at the Congressional meeting. Father O'Rourke will give the keynote address.

The purpose of the meeting with Father O'Rourke will be for information and ideas in acquiring necessary information for federal assistance for Southern Consumers' through the Rural Areas Development program.

Father O'Rourke will be in the Diocese from Jan. 5-12.

COPY OF LETTER SENT BY Mr. Voorhis
(NATIONAL DIRECTOR OF THE CO-OP LEAGUE)

March 25, 1964

Mr. Sargent Shriver
Director of Economic Opportunity
The White House
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Shriver:

This time I am writing you in your new capacity of Director of the drive against poverty rather than as I have done before as Director of the Peace Corps. I only hope that you will be able to continue in both these jobs since I feel both of them need so very much your special talents.

I am writing this letter to make a specific proposal with respect to the War on Poverty. It is my firm conviction, as I am pretty sure it will be yours, that a demonstration of a succesful attack on poverty in a selected area and a specific group of poor people, will do more to dramatize and gain acceptance for this program than any other single action could possibly do.

In this connection I want to propose that the membership of the Southern Consumers' Cooperative in Southwestern Louisiana together with the communities where this organzzation is at work be selected as d demonstration area. I should not be at all surprised if you have already heard about the work of the Southern Consumers' Cooperative. For Monsignor Edward W. O'Rourke, Executive Director of the National Catholic Rural Life Conference, has interested himself and that outstanding organization very deeply in the work of the Southern Consumers' Co-op, and has in fact written to Mr. L.A. Potts of the Office of Rural Area Development in the Department of Agriculture on the subject.

Southern Consumers' Cooperative has its principal headquarters at 127 Cherry St., Lafayette, Louisiana, and the virtually unpaid secretary of their work is Miss Una Mae Hargrave of the Grail. Miss Hargrave has visited us here in our office and we have talked to her at great length. There is no finer person of our acquaintance. The leading spirit and organizer of the Southern Consumers' Cooperative is Father Albert J. McKnight. The membership of Southern Consumers' Cooperative is largely, though not entirely Negro. The average yearly family income of these members is less than $2000 per year. Despite these facts, the 540 present members oftthis cooperative association have raised a tatal capital of $17,300.

This capital they are endeavoring to build up still further and they have had the rare wisdom not to start some business venture until they have adequate capital to succeed. This group has been working with the Rural Areas Development committees in the various parishes where it has membership. They have organized a number of credit unions in several of the parishes in the area. But because of this poverty of the people it is difficult, indeed, to build up the capital of these credit unions to a point where they can be of signicicant help.

One of the first projects which the group would like to carry out would be a canning factory which would employ local people, and provide a far better income for the farmers who now sell their vegetables at distressed prices.

The sort of assistance which is needed to enable this fine, already organized group of people to make real progress toward overcoming their poverty and other problems includes the following:

.. a grant for office supplies and equipment of perhaps $3000.
.. a grant for $5000. to enable their secretary and education director to work full time.
.. a grant for other necessary operationg expenses of a really efficient headquarters, amounting to proably another $7000.

.. and of critical importance -- avvery low interest loan which should be made to a central agency, either Southern Consumers' Cooperative or a subsidiary thereof, which could in turn make loans to sound credit unions; and also loans to supplement the capital already raised by this organization so that they could go forward with their canning project.

Such loans would certainly be entirely in line with the President's stated purposes in the War Against Poverty. For one of his own proposals was " loans for grants to cooperatives to provide services not otherwide available."

Here is a chance to fight poverty by enabling a group of highly deserving people to combat their problems through the responsibilities of ownership.

I enclose herewith a brief history of the Southern Consumers' Co-op and a list of their advisors.

I might add that the Cooperative League itself has rendered some financial assistance to this group already. But the amount of it, because of our other commitments, was woefully small.

Any advice or assistance whcch the Cooperative League can give to this matter will be very, very glad to do.

Sincerely,

Jerry Voorhis, Executive Director.

Board Urges Local Attendance

The Board of Directors as announced previously is in the process of visiting all the local councils. The purpose of these visits is to revitalize and effect a rededication of the members on the local level. To devote ourselves to a cause demands knowledge. We must know and understand the why, the what, and the how. Becoming convinced of the worthwhileness and necessity of our goals will generate the devotion and perseverance necessary to achieve these goals.

So far the Board of Directors has visited three local groups, Lake Charles, Lafayette, and Kaplan. These meetings have been stimulating and instructive for those who have attended but sad to say only a handful have been present.

Much more groundwork in preparing for these meetings must be done on the local level to get the membership out. We have a Board member traveling two hundred miles and more to attend these meetings while those at home are indifferent to take the extra trouble to attend.

We do hope that the local leaders will make a greater effort to get the members to turn out in those places which we have yet to visit.

Editor Writes...

THE ART OF PEACE

"Lord make me an instrument of Thy peace...," begins the prayer said at every meeting of Southern Consumers' Cooperative. We say these words together,but do we live them? Only people can bring about peace. Peace in the world of the home and family, school, office, industry, community and world-wide peace, depends upon each one of us putting into action the "art of peace."

What is the art of peace? It is "putting God on both sides of the table in a conference."

We practice the art of peace when we put to work the power of goodwill. Peace comes through using common sense in human relationships. When we are open-minded, willing to listen as well as speak,and able to veiw the situation objectively, we insure peace in our dealings with other people.

Peace comes through practicing self control, especially when it comes to patience. With a little effort in keeping our tempers and rising above petty irritations, we can bring about pleasant living for many.

It may seem rediculous to count to ten in the middle of a heated argument, but this may be the device necessary to avoid hasty and impulsive decisions. And too, it may spare another many unkind words.

Peace comes with straight thinking. We must be able to break through the barriers within ourselves in reaching others. This means recognizing these "iron curtains" as woven objects of fear, prejudices and mistrust.

Now let us live together the prayer we say together. For peace "is a quality of the heart..., a magnetism that reaches out and draws people together in understanding and love. It is a mighty faith in the goodness of God and the potential greatness of man."

NOTICE

The basic purpose of Southern Consumers' CO-OP NEWS LETTER is to keep the people in the different areas informed on what's happening in their organization.

The editor and staff would like to have each area represented in the NEWS LETTER.

This would be much easier for us to do if the area groups would send in their local news. We suggest they send us a copy of the minutes from their monthly meetings.

The area chairman or secretary can send the minutes to the CO-OP NEWS Editor, Central Office, 127 Cherry St., Lafayette.

PROGRESS CHART

New Iberia is the next area the Board of Directors will meet with. Mr. Scurlock informed us that the date is Sunday, March 15. The time and place will be announced later.

CONGRESSIONAL MEETING-March 8, 1964-

CENTRAL OFFICE GETS BOOKKEEPING HINTS

Dr. Bernard Bienvenu, professor of Management at the University of Southwestern Louisiana, was guest speaker at the last custodians' meeting, Sunday, Feb. 9.

Dr. Bienvenu said that there are too many mistakes in the reports sent to the Central Office by the custodians. He said this is because the report forms are too complicated.

"Less complicated reports mean fewer mistakes," he commented. He also brought out that in our present system of bookkeeping, the custodians duplicate much of the work done by the Central Office staff.

Rex Houser, also of USL, was sent in by Dr. Bienvenu to assist the staff in re-arranging and simplifying the books.

WASSERMAN VISITS AREA FARMERS

Jac Wasserman, National Sharecroppers Fund, visited tenant farmers in several communities in Southern Louisiana.

Wasserman said that farmers should supplement their income by growing vegetables, small truck crops. "There is plenty of money in this type of farming," he said.

The National Sharecroppers Fund with the United States Department of Labor is responsible for instituting programs for re-educating unemployed people. Such programs are being instituted in six southern states including Louisiana.

Wasserman was in this area at the invitation of Southern Consumers' Cooperative.

SMALL BUSINESS TO BIG BUSINESS

Our experience over the past year in following various leads on what sort of interprise to begin has crystalized into definite guidelines.

The business must be small enough so that we would have the managerial know-how and yet it must have growth potentialities so that we can grow with it. It should be a specialty involving three or more articles where the competition is not too keen. It would not involve too much fixed capitol.

With these guidelines we gathered ten experts in various fields at Southern University last month for a brain storming session. There were many ideas and suggestions made by the group. Dr. Robinson of Southern University who is in horticulture volunteered to study the various proposals and see whether he could put three or four of them together into a workable project.

A second meeting is scheduled for Tuesday March tenth at Southern to receive Dr. Robinson's report and make a detailed study on the economic feasibility of his report.

Fr. McKnight

Editor's Note....
The following excerpt is taken from, "The Negro Revolution To Date," TIME: Aug. 30, 1963.

"If there is no struggle, there is no progress. Those who profess to favor freedom, and yet deprecate agitations, are men who want crops without plowing up the ground. They want the ocean without the awful roar of its waters."

-Abolitionist Negro
Frederic Douglas, 1857

Negroes helped blaze the trails in America, sometimes as slaves but often as scouts and valued aids to many of the famed explorers. They were with Columbus, Balboa, Ponce de Leon, Cortez, Pizarro, De Soto.

Free Negroes were among the first pioneers to settle in the Mississippi Valley in the 17th century. In Virginia, Negroe colonists knew no inferiority of status, owned land, voted, mingled with whites. Some 5,000 Negroes fought the British as troops in Washington's army.

Many of the first slaves in America were in fact, Indians. In bondage however, the Indian proved sickly, often died. Indentured white servants were used for a time, but too often they broke away and easily lost their slave identity among white colonists.

Only after such failures did the white man begin large scale enslavement of the Negro, who possessed two ideal qualities- he was strong, and if he fled, his face stood out in a crowd.

Contrary to the notion that his revolution is of relatively recent origin, the Negro has always fought against his servitude.

In 1905, Dr. William E. B. Du Bois, one of the founders of the American Negro Academy, declared, "We claim for ourselves every right that belongs to a freeborn American - political, civil and social - and until we get these rights, we will never cease to protest and assail the ears of America with the story of its shameful deeds toward us."

Lord, make me an instrument of Your Peace where there is hatred, let me sow love;
Where ther is injury, pardon;
Where there is doubt, faith;
Where there is despair, hope;
Where there is darkness, light;
Where there is sadness, joy.

O Divine Master,
grant that I may seek not so much to be consoled as to console;

Dear Mr. Dunbar and Mr. Anthony:

I wish to thank you for all your help and kindness, and most of all for your deep concern and interest in our work. Thanks for making it possible for me to be in New York and for all your advice and suggestions. We of Southern Consumers' are greatly indebted to your office and especially to the two of you for the many steps forward, for the assistance you have given us has allowed us to advance. For all we are most grateful.

We shall keep you informed as you hear from the foundations in New York. Please, assure Mr. Watters that we shall sent him information he needs very soon.

For all we are most grateful and we shall keep you informed of the steps and progress. I do hope to see you soon and looking forward to that time. Much success in your work.

Sincerely,

Fr. A. J. McKnight

REPORT ON THE PURPOSE AND NEEDS OF SOUTHERN CONSUMERS' EDUCATION FOUNDATION .....

Southern Consumers' Education Foundation is:

A non-profit organization set up to carry on continous educational programs with the purpose of initiating and organizing self help projects in the needy areas of La. These projects will lead to cooperatively owned and controlled business enterprises by the people and bring about economic independence among low-income groups.

Basic principles: A cooperative is a corporation of a group of people who have organized themeselves to provide goods or services for themselves. It is run completely by and for its members. All adhere to the following principles:

1) one member, one vote.
2) membership open to all.
3) political,religious, racial and social neutrality shall be observed.

I. Long-range planning

Objectives: Business ownership will result in more economic independence which will lay the foundation for social, political, educational and religious improvements in Louisiana and throughout the South.

Economic independence will instill greater security and growth of self-respect among the members and will allow people to exercise their civil rights without fear of reprisal. True integration can best occur by Negroes and Whites working toward the solution of a common felt need, economics.

Ownership will bring about interest in all businesses, more understanding and better use of money, as well as teach people to save, invest and sacrifice immediate consumption for future gains. Ownership will help make more jobs available to Negroes. The success of this cooperative program will have significant consequences on any type of venture among Negroes in the South.

II. Immediate Planning

Objectives: To help Negroes and other low income groups become economically independent through: credit unions, research, technical assistance, and business ownership.

Credit unions are the easiest and most effective self-help programs with which to begin. This type of co-operative teaches members the value of cooperation, savings, and lays a foundation for more complicated enterprises.

The Southern Consumers' Cooperative founded in 1961, is active in 16 rural communities in Southwest La. Plans are to extend this service to other communities in the state and surrounding area.

We are limited because of finances, but with help, we feel confident that within a few years we could reach many more communities.

Membership now numbers 550. The cooperative has saved and pooled $19,000. to begin a loaning service which will be available to all members.

III. Needs:

1) Southern Consumers' Cooperative has reached the point when a full time education director is urgently needed to co-ordinate the work and programs of education, through the central office which is located at 127 Cherry St. For one year--$5,000.

2) A grant for two full-time field representatives to assist and initiate credit unions among Negroes and low-income groups in needy rural areas of Louisiana. Salary and travel expenses -- $17,000.

3) A grant for office equipment and supplies, for more effective co-ordination and operation...$3,000.

4) A grant to subsidize a monthly Co-op newsletter which informs all members of events and progress; it also serves as an educational media. $1,000.

5) A grant or a loan to Southern Consumers' Cooperative which could, in turn, make loans to small, sound credit unions; and also loans to supplement the capital already raised by this organization so that we could go forward with other projects.

Mr. Edgar L. Fontaine
Managing Director
Louisiana Credit Union League
702 Baronne Bldg.
New Orleans, Louisiana 70112

Dear Mr. Fontaine and Staff of the League Office:

Another year and another state convention is passed, yet the theme Take Another Step Forward remains only as a false front to many of us. We, the Negroes of the small credit unions from the rural areas, have many comments, complaints and suggestions and would, therefore, like to call your attention to a few facts. Much of this will be as well known to you as it is to me, but for the sake of an accurate overall picture, please bear with me as I list them.

As you well know, early in April you called me asking that I call a meeting of a few of the leaders from our Negro credit unions around Lafayette. And so you and I met with your entire staff, chapter officers from Lafayette and our local leaders. At that meeting you asked our advise on a number of important decisions which had to be made before the state convention convened. You went to great lengths to assure us that you wanted to discuss this with us before making any decisions or taking any steps. Because of this meeting, we thought we had a working relationship with each other.

The first issue that evening was housing. We explained that Lafayette has no integrated hotels or motels; but certainly this is the fault of the Lafayette Negroes and the Lafayette community, not the fault of the Credit Union League. We understood your problem and volunteered in the name of Miss Hollier and Miss Hargrave to house any Negroes who might attend the convention in private homes.

Your next point was the social events which are usually connected with the convention. You stressed this was a chapter sponsored event not sponsored by the League. Friday night was to be a social of free boiled crawfish for everyone and open house, a taste of Lafayette Hospitality. Saturday night was a banquet dinner-dance. The whole point of Saturday was a benefit to pay for Friday's free social which would cost about $900.

Mr. Bill Flowers went to great detail explaining why Saturday night could not be integrated, but that Saturday night allowed us to have Friday night. I think you remember the majority of us there said that we were not happy with the compromise but we would go along with it, under this condition: If Friday night were cancelled, then Saturday night would either be cancelled or integrated. If I remember correctly we stated that condition at least three times and your entire staff and chapter officers seemed to agree that it was a fair agreement.

You well know the story. Friday night was cancelled with out a word said to any of us. We should have brought this up at the chapter meeting, but I was out of town on urgent business and Mr. Coco did not bring it up since he thought, perhaps, the chapter wanted to keep Friday night quiet. But Friday night there was no social. The dinner-dance on Saturday therefore should have been integrated, but was not.

Our members and some Negroe members from the credit unions in New Orleans tried to get tickets and were told that it was segregated. Two of our outstanding members did get tickets and attempted to attend Saturday night, but were turned down at the door by Mr. Flowers and another officer. There are many who may feel (we have heard rumors) that we were pushing our way, or demonstrating; but frankly Mr. Fontaine they had every qualification and right to attend that dinner.

Somehow once an agreement is broken it becomes even more serious. We don't like demonstrations; we don't like outside interference. But it is events like this which leave us no choice except to use the most drastic means to be heard. If a working agreement cannot be kept, then we are left no other choice than to turn to other means for our rights.

True, this was a chapter sponsored event and I'm sure you will assure us that this was a chapter decision. But, Mr. Fontaine, I don't hold the chapter responsible, I hold you and your staff responsible, for you called this meeting at our office, you asked for our advise, heard our terms and politely agreed to all the decisions, then you let this weekend go on completely against our terms with out a word to us. Even a phone call from your office or some acknowledgment would have been a more workable solution, at least a beginning, to our agreement. I hope you understand why we feel you are responsible, for you called this meeting, not the chapter.

Let me point out one other thing. During the entire convention, announcements concerning the Saturday night social were given. "All delegates and guests, are urged to get tickets for the Saturday dinner-dance, the entertainment is for everyone." Certainly, this was the tone of the announcements, if not the exact words. Yet all it did was give a lovely front to all the members, guest from C.U.N.A. and the Federal Credit Union people.

Some will say, and I agree, that we should have made a fuss right then and there, not now that the convention is over. But sometimes one holds back hoping beyond hope that perhaps you will keep your agreement; perhaps they will let us in tonight. And one keeps hoping beyond hope that for once we will keep our promises, and that we must trust one another for a good working relationship. One keeps hoping beyond hope that the spirit and aims of the credit union movement will be kept.

For once we thought that the hopes and aspirations which we have long anticipated and waited for would become a reality; since you and your staff seemed to understand that evening. We had great hopes of working together.

Yet we have not given up. We still want that working relationship, but believe me, it will be harder to achieve now after the effects of the past week. But we are willing to try again.

Many other events have been held at the Muncipal Auditorium and have been integrated, so that certainly could not be the reason for your hesitation. We have much more to achieve, but we have great hopes for the future in this area.

I'm sure you are concerned that the credit unions in North Louisiana will disagree and not allow integration. You pointed out at that first evening meeting, that there are more credit unions in North Louisiana and we must be careful. But isn't there something wrong when we let North Louisiana influence us, and control us? Surely, there is something we can do.

I frankly disagree with your approach that credit unions are primarily a money-making institution, and, therefore, we must be careful not to offend North Louisiana. If that were so, then we should let our credit unions become small banks, and not carry the name of credit union.

Credit unions are a means of education, a spirit, a powerful tool which can unite and change human beings into a powerful force working together for the good of every man no matter how small. We have never given the little man of little means a chance to prove himself. Working with the low-income group is no small task, but certainly if we fail to do it we are not being true to the spirit and ideals of the movement.

Unless the state league begins to get concerned and interested in the great pockets of low-income within our state, you will leave us no alternative but to work outside your structure. This would indeed be a great pity, but we are determined to do something for our people and are begging you to reconsider the whole approach and structure of the league office. Let's stop letting the large, industrial credit unions guide and control us, since they, too, must be educated to the true spirit and approach of the credit union movement.

Your job is not an easy task, and I fully appreciate the number of problems and complications which such a responsibility carries with it. But realize that a working relationship entails respect and consideration on both sides, and not a series of fronts to pacify one group in hopes that things will work out.

We are sending our complaints to you, the National Office and the Federal Investigators, in a hope that we can come to some understanding of the needs and problems of the small credit unions here. I do feel you should know that we are getting tired, discouraged and irritated by the lack of understanding of our needs in the league office. This may seem like a little thing to you, compared to the so-called progress you will point out, such as integrated meetings, and integrated lunch counters. These are our God-given rights and, to us, they are something which we want and need, and we must be heard now. There is no time for little steps or little compromise. This is indeed a time to Take Another Step Forward, but let those steps be true and real steps, not a front or cover up.

We are willing to discuss this with you. We are always open for discussion, but it must be a fair and open working relationship. Hoping to hear from you.

Sincerely,

Rev. A. J. McKnight

JULY CONGRESS MEETS AT WAR MEMORIAL BUILDING

The Lafayette War Memorial and Civic Building will be the next site for the July 12 Congressional meeting, announced the SCC Board of Directors.

At this meeting the stock certificates will be issued to all members of Southern Consumers' who have invested at least $50 in the co-op.

Every member who has $50 invested will receive a class A stock subscription, which is the voting stock.

After a member has bought his $50 voting stock, he will then receive a class B stock subscription for every additional $12.50 he has invested. He will receive a certificate listing the number of Class B stocks he has bought. The Class B stock is the non-voting stock.

Now that Southern Consumers' is incorporated, members will be required to buy a Class A voting stock before they can exercise their power to vote in the cooperative.

All members who have not invested at least $50 are asked to do so during the month of June so that they may receive their certificates at the July meeting.

SPOTLIGHT ON MANSURA LEADER

"I want to keep up with the co-o and keep the Mansura group infor ed," was the quick reply of Rev. Charles Guillory when I asked hi why he comes to the Congressiona meetings. "My area depends on m to tell them what the co-op is doing," continued Rev. Guillory.

Rev. Charles Guillory of Mansura who will celebrate his 65 birthday July 29 is one of the oldest active members of Southern Consumers'.

He attended his first co-op meeting in Cottonport. This meeting was led by Fr. August Thompson o Ferriday and Fr. A.J. McKnight n of Lake Charles. "From there a meeting was called in Marksville which I attended," said Rev. Guillory. "I then called togeth a group in Mansura." At this meeting he was elected local cha man and custodian.

Since then he has attended every Congressional meeting.

Rev. Guillory is a retired schoo bus driver, and he is owner of 90 acres of farmland in Hessmer, which he rents out to tenant farmers.

6. If the payments are collected by the custodian after 15 days deliquent, 20% more than the regular payment will be paid to the custodian.

DEBATE SCHEDULED FOR NEXT CONGRESS

At the last Congressional meeting in May, a question arose from the floor concerning whether Peoples' Enterprise, the new discount company, would lend money to persons who did not belong to Southern Consumers' Co-op.

A Board member suggested that the cooperators be allowed to express their views on the matter.

A debate team of voluntary members was formed. The team that will argue for lending money to non-members consist of Stanley Beverly, Franklin; Peter Davis, Jennings; Coley Bellamy, Rayne; and Carol Prejean, Lafayette. The team members who will argue against lending money to non-members are Luscius Guillory, Lake Charles; Lester Schurlock, New Iberia; and Rita Joseph, Lafayette.

DR. WILLIAMS RECEIVES STUDY GRANT

Dr. T.T. Williams, agricultural economist at Southern University, Baton Rouge, received a grant from ARA, area redevelopment association, to study and survey the underemployment and unemployment in six Southern states.

This grant will allow him to take a 14 month leave from his university.

Dr. Williams said he hopes to work closely with Southern Consumers' during this time, since our organization is pursueing a definite means to combat these problems.

CO-OP RECEIVES CHARTER

Southern Consumers' Co-op has received three state charters which now authorizes us to begin operation of our first business.

The first charter is under the name of Southern Consumers' Educational Foundation. Such a charter enables us to receive grants and other financial aids. The Educational Foundation is a non-profit organization responsible for the education of all SCC members.

The second in under Southern Consumers' Cooperative. This organizes us as a cooperative. It give the official "O.K." to go into business.

The third is the business permit for the discount company, Peoples Enterprise. Each individual business of Southern Consumers' Co-op will have a separate charater. This is necessary, because if one business fails it will not affect any of the others. Peoples' Enterprise is ready to begin lending money. Members may contact their custodians for application forms.

JULY CONGRESS CONTINUED

This meeting at the War Memorial Building will also be an open house for the co-op. There will be displays to reinform old members and interest new ones.

The Board of Directors for Southern Consumers' will be officially installed. The ceremony will be similar to the one used for the installation of the Congressional officers.

CO-OP SENDS MEMBERS TO STUDY

With the help of a second grant o: $700 from Southern Regional Counc: three co-op members are able to take cooperative courses this summer. Una Mae Hargrave and Cly Coco will attend a two-week course from July 19-31, sponsored by CUNA Credit Union National Association.

This course will include studies : sociology, psychology, communications, economics, consumer credit and personal finance. The course is held in Madison, Wisconsin.

Carol Prejean will attend the Social Leadership course offered by the Coady International Institute of St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish, Nova Scotia.

This five-week course will be designed to give an understanding of the history, principles, techniques, and application of the Antigonish Movement - a program of self help and mutual help.

In 1938 he entered Leland College to study to become a Baptiste minister. He was ordained in 1945 amd made pastor of New Jerusalem Baptiste Church which then had 11 members. He now has 80.

Rev. Guillory was the first Negro to cast a vote in Avoyelles Parish. He was also the first to qualify as a candidate for public office. In 1963 he was a candidate for the Democratic-State Central Committee..

He has made his wife and his son, who attends Southern University, paying members of the co-op.

Rev. Guillory is a true cooperator. He puts forth time, efforts, and money. His time is coming to all the Congressional meetings; his efforts - the distance he drives to attend these meetings and the information he brings back to his area; his money - $300.

SCC NOW HAS "COOL CENTRAL OFFICE

George LeBlanc, owner of J.A. LeBlanc's Commercial Refrigeration Co., has donated an air conditioning unit to Southern Consumers' Central Office.

The staff members now enjoy cool working conditions.

LeBlanc is also active in Family Life work along with Una Mae Hargrave and Fr. A.J. McKnight.

MSGR EDWARD O'ROURKE AND MR. ED COLLINS VISI SCC

Another wonderful experience was shared by all who attended the last co-op Congress in May.

Msgr. Edward O'Rourke, national director of Catholic rural life and Ed Collins , RAD department spoke to the members and urged all to rally together and push for SCC. Msgr. O'Rourke said that in his estimation SCC is one of finest economic organizations serving the small person the South. He said it could be a most important local instrument for implementing the coming war on poverty.

Since their visit to Lafayette, we have heard from both stating that they have heard from two different sources that SCC would be considered for some part in the War on Poverty program, either under the Title II in Community Action Programs or under Title III which entitles cooperatives to receive help.

We have been urged to begin preparing now to meet this challenge if and when it comes. The next two months may be the most eventful in the entire history of our organization.

Dear Father McKnight:

We are very pleased to be enabled to forward to you at this time our check in the amount of $1,000 in support of the educational program of the Southern Consumers' Cooperative. This contribution is made possible by a grant to us from the Aaron E. Norman Fund. From the many conversations we have had with you and from the numerous reports and other communications you have sent to us, we are convinced that no better use of these funds could be made than through supporting the work you and your associates are engaged in.

We ask that you continue to keep us regularly informed, not only as to the use made of this particular contribution, but also as to your general program.

With every good wish,

Sincerely yours,

FRUIT CAKES READY

Orders are now being taken for fruit cakes made by Southern Consumers' fruit cake and pastry shop.

This fruit cake production is a Louisiana project, and Southern Consumers' is making a special effort to utilize some of the resources of this area.

Some of the ingredients used are: glazed fruits, nuts (local pecans), hydrogented shortening, sugar, flour, leavening agents, preservatives, whole eggs and flavor.

These cakes may be purchased by contacting central office at P.O. Box 3005, Lafayette, or phoning, CE-50567.

WE NEED PECANS

We need pecans for the fruit cake project in Lake Charles. This is one of the chief ingredients for the fruit cakes, and an insufficient supply is presently holding up production.

We would like to buy shelled or unshelled pecans.

If anyone has pecans to sell, or can arrange with someone to sell pecans to Southern Consumers', please contact central office immediately at the following address or phone:

Mr. Brown and Mr. Smith are consumers. They buy for themselves in small quantities and pay high prices.

One day Mr. Brown and Mr. Smith, along with others, get together and discuss this problem.

They pool their resources and form a co-op enterprise of their own.

Through this co-op they are able to pool their buying power, get quantity discounts, and save money.

Working cooperatively, they also gain ownership and control of their own business.

Their co-op gives them real buying power. It creates greater economic stability, and makes them more efficient businesswise.

In addition it help raise their standard of living; builds their community prosperity and encourages participation in community life.

Three co-op films were ordered for rental by Southern Consumers' Educational Foundation.

One film, "Men of Rochdale," tells the story of how 28 weavers open their store in England in 1844 and struggle to make it succeed.

Another film, "The People of Kolevu" shows how credit unions bring economic betterment to Fiji fishing villages.

The third film, Help Yourself To Ownership," is about two families and how they experience the savings of cooperatives and mutual business. It emphasizes democratic ownership and discusses co-op taxes.

These films will be shown at the bi-monthly Congressional meetings.

AUDITING JOB

Southern Consumers' is planning a general auditing of its books. Volunteers are needed to help with this.

Their job will be to prepare forms which will be sent to all members. The forms will include the amount of money the member has invested in the co-op, and how much he still owes in fulfilling his contract of $300.

The purpose of this is to make sure that the central office records coincide with the member's receipt book.

SCC now has over 600 members. It will take a long time to prepare a personal form for each member. For this reasn the central office staff ask the members to give a little of their time and efforts. Just one hour's work makes a great difference.

Editor's Note....

The following is an excerpt from a speech given by Msgr. O'Rourke at a seminar at the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. Oct. 22, 1964.

"The Southern Consumers' Cooperative is prepared to make a substantial contribution to the war on poverty in Louisiana and may indirectly influence programs in other parts of the South.

The leadership and professional counsel enjoyed by SCC are outstanding. Several officers have received training at the Coady International Institute, Antigonish, Nova Scotia; at the Credit Union National Association, Madison, Wis., and at the University of Wisconsin.

Valuable counsel and assistance has been contributed by agencies of USDA and other governmental departments.

SCC qualifies for participation in the Economic Opportunity Program. Many of its members are poor. Its leaders are competent. During three years of education and organizing they have proven their preseverence and their acceptance by members of the cooperative.

SCC is now seeking a Community Action Program loan to finance a manufacturing operation which will complement the seasonality of their fruit cake operation. I am confident that, if this loan is granted, it will help strengthen SCC and enable them to serve their members better.

Many leaders of Southern Negroes have studied SCC organization and programs. The successes or failures of SCC will indirectly affect the failure of the poor in many parts of the South.

SOUTHERN CONSUMERS' COOPERATIVE

in NEWS stories like these:

Rev. Albert McKnight, President of Southern Consumers' Co-op receives check from Congressman T.A. Thompson of Lake Charles, marking the first of its kind in La. under the War against Poverty. Mr. Harold Galloway from Washington, D.C. looks on.

First Help in Poverty War to Lafayette Firm

LAKE CHARLES (AP)—The first salvo in President Johnson's highly publicized war on poverty was fired here Tuesday in the form of $10,000 check to the Southern Consumers' Cooperative, Inc. of Lafayette.

The check, representing the first of several totaling $25,000, was secured through the Small Business Administration and will be used to purchase a building and buy equipment to expand the cooperative's baking operations. The firm makes fruit cakes.

Presenting the check to the Rev. Albert J. McKnight, SCC president, was Rep. T. A. Thompson, D-La. The SBA was represented by Harold Galloway, assistant deputy administrator, and Samuel Klein, director of trade, both of Washington.

It was announced that subsequent funds will be used to develop new operations to include the shelling and marketing of pecans and the baking of Louisiana pralines.

20 New Jobs

Father McKnight, who founded the cooperative in 1959, said it is anticipated that 20 new jobs will be created when the new plant is completed. Baking operations now provide employment for eight persons.

The two SBA officials here for the ceremonies said they will review the cooperative's operations and will make recommendations to assist in expanding operations into export markets.

SBA funds are scheduled to be used to purchase a pecan sheller, a walk in freezer, a cooking stove, a marble slab for pralines and a strip packaging machine.

Father McKnight and a group of area leaders formed the cooperative when the priest was serving as an assistant pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Parish in Abbeville.

In 1961, the first board of directors was selected and bylaws were drawn up. Monthly congregational meetings were held for all members and a continuous education program was begun.

Since that time, SCC membership has increased to its present 650 families with capital now totaling more than $19,000.

The cooperative became a holding company in 1963 when it began its first business venture with the formation of the People's Enterprise, a discount loan company which enables members to borrow money at low interest rates over a long period.

Fruit cake production was begun in 1964 at the present site in Lake Charles.

Other presentations made during the ceremonies included gifts of fruit cakes to President Johnson and to Sargent Shriver, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity. A cash presentation was made to the John F. Kennedy Memorial Library fund by Alvin Biagas Jr., a local high school student.

America -- Sept.,1964

Grass-Roots War on Poverty

John Jones is a resident of Evangeline Parish (county) in Louisiana. His average annual income is $1,399—less than half the figure set by the U. S. Census Bureau as a minimum adequate family income. To that extent he is a statistic. Fr. Albert J. McKnight, C.S.Sp., also a Negro, felt the human indignity and pain behind this statistic and went to work to do something about it.

He organized 600 small farmers and workers in the area into a Southern Consumers' Co-operative, which he had started as a small credit union. A group of concerned citizens raised $25,000 in capital, and after three years of hard ground-breaking the S.C.C. has been chartered as a holding company. It can now lend up to $300 to co-op members at low interest rates, and is doing a great deal about employment and education in an area with one of the lowest literacy rates in the nation.

The S.C.C. is being studied by leaders all over the South. It has been helped by the National Co-operative League, the Credit Union National Association and the Southern Regional Council. Its aim rises above politics: it is to help people help themselves to secure a life of equality and true freedom—people who have never been able to experience the American dream, indeed the human dream. (Address: P. O. Box 3005, Lafayette, La.)

AMERICA December 1, 1964

Although it may seem invidious to single out any one private group, nobody should mind too much if we hail the achievement of Southern Consumers Co-Operative, Inc., in southwest Louisiana. Founded in 1961 by Fr. Albert McKnight, C.S.Sp., a Negro, SCC has brought new hope and improved material conditions to over 600 poverty-stricken families. Its fruit cake factory badly needed funds for expansion. From the Small Business Administration, under the direction of OEO, it received a loan of $25,000. Now the co-op can expand its line, adding doughnuts, pralines and sweet potato products. In many cases, with a little help, the poor themselves can become the most effective troops in the antipoverty army.

TIME, DECEMBER 18, 1964

Self-Help in Louisiana

Sir: The fruit-cake manufacturer you mentioned in regard to the Poverty Program [Dec. 4] is the Southern Consumers' Cooperative. A majority of its members and officers are Negroes. For five years, S.C.C. has carried out an intensive program of education in cooperation and economic matters among the extremely poor people, colored and white, of southwestern Louisiana. Eight hundred S.C.C. members have recently raised from their meager incomes the capital to finance a small fruit-cake factory at Lake Charles, La. Since this is a seasonal operation, S.C.C. sought from the Office of Economic Opportunity a $25,000 loan with which it is purchasing equipment for the production of other confections during the off-season. The valiant effort, against great odds, by officers and members of S.C.C. to help themselves out of poverty may be among the standards that prompted Sargent Shriver and his staff to approve the $25,000 loan.

Gentlemen:

Mr. Shriver has asked me to thank you for your letter of thanks for the assistance which we were able to grant you. I am glad too that the press coverage was so inclusive and pleasing to you

Our aim in this program is to eliminate poverty by helping the disadvantaged people to help themselves If the grant has succeeded in giving them hope, we are glad, as this is a beginning. We are confident that you and the other members of the Southern Consumers' Cooperative will develop a comprehensive, far reaching program.

We wish you success in your efforts and hope to hear of your progress in the near future.

Mr. Christopher Edley

New York, New York

Dear Mr. Edley:

Mr. Leslie Dunbar from Southern Regional Council in Atlanta, Georgia gave me your name and address in reference to your interest in our type of work for the low-income.

I am a Catholic Negro priest working in Southwest Louisiana and for the past four years I have been working with self-help projects of cooperatives and credit unions for my people.

Those of us involved in Southern Consumers' Cooperative are very much aware of its potential in helping with the economic development of a substantial fraction of our population. However, it is our opinion that additional benefits can accrue if we can advance at a faster and more effective program of group action towards solving the economic and social conditions of our area. We feel that true integration can best occur by Negroes and whites working jointly towards the solution of a common problem, one which is an urgent and felt need - economics.

As you may have heard, our cooperative received a loan from the Office of Economic Opportunity to expand our production plant in Lake Charles. This, however, is not answering our educational program - a most vital part of our work. We still need help with this phase of our work.

I would greatly appreciate having some time with you to discuss our present aims and objective and needs. I will be in New York on February 1st through the 4th and would appreciate it if I could have an appointment with you on either of those four days. Until January 28th I can be reached at the above address. After that time I can be reached at the following address:

Dear Mr. Hahn:

Much time has passed since I last corresponded with you. At that time you stated that The Field Foundation could not consider giving assistance to Southern Consumers' Cooperative until we obtained a tax-exemption from the United States Treasury Department.

After many months of filling out forms and details we now have the tax-exemption, as shown in enclosed letter from the Treasury Department. Needless to say, we are most grateful for our needs continue to number.

I suppose you have heard the good news - that we have received a loan through the War on Poverty Program. This, however, is not answering our educational program needs. We still need help and leads on this angle.

Once more I find that I must be in New York. I will be there February 1st through 4th and would appreciate an appointment with you at that time. Until January 28th I can be reached at the above address. After that time:

In response to your request of Leslie Dunbar, we are enclosing the board list of the Council and the names and addresses of the executive directors of our State Councils on Human Relations.

The SRC board is certainly informed of the good work of the Southern Consumers' Cooperative and many of them, we think, will be delighted to respond to your funds campaign.

We suggest that you request of each state council director the names and addresses of his board members. On the state council boards and the SRC board are some of the finest people in the South. We cannot think of a better starting point for you than these persons.

If we may be of further help, please call on us.

Dear Mr. Dunbar:

Once more I turn to you for help. Trying to get a mailing list we find is most difficult thing to do. Here is our plan, we are trying to capitalize on all the publicity and news which Southern Consumers' Co-op has received. We plan to mail out within the next week, to wealthier Negroes and others who might be willing to donate to the educational program, and if they don't want to donate then we are asking them to invest in our cooperative. Would you know where I can get such a mailing list, any names and addresses you can send will be greatly appreciated.

Thanking you again for your help and looking forward to hearing from you. There is some possiblity that I will stop in to see you briefly on Feb. 5th, I will be returning from New York (short visit) and if time permits I will stop in. Thanking you again for all.

Dear Mr. Dunbar:

My trip to New York was most encouraging and promising. I am certain that Norman Fund and Field will come through. They suggested that we send in our formal request, especially now that we have our tax-exemption papers.

So the enclosed is our formal request as sent to: Field, New World, Stern, Taconic, and Norman Fund. We will also be sending this with a cover letter to individuals and other groups, stating that whatever contribution they can make towards this goal will be greatly appreciated.

Do thank Mr. Vernon E. Jordan for sending me list of councils and his response. We will write to all the councils and begin working this out.

If you have time, do look over the request and give us your comments. not included

My visit with Mr. Edley of Ford Foundation was most interesting. As things stand, Ford can not give small amount, however, within six months or so, he says the policy may change. When it does, he wants us to be ready with our request. (Enclosed is copy of letter to him.)

Thanking you again for all your help and constant support.

I. PURPOSE:

Staff for the Southern Consumers' Education Foundation

II. TAX-EXEMPTION NO.

Under section 2055 2106 and 2522 of the Code. Form M-4280 T:R:EO:3 RLK.

III. OBJECTIVES AND PURPOSES FOR SOUTHERN CONSUMERS' EDUCATION FOUNDATION: (As detailed in Charter and Articles of Incorporation.)

1. To educate members in the purpose of co-operatives and the principles of cooperatives, and to carry on general educational programs through adult educational activities.
2. To educate members to function more efficiently as individuals, citizens, parents, and as workers. To live more intelligently with themselves and with others
3. To educate members that in a real democracy, people must share the responsibility for the creation and distribution of wealth.
4. To educate members to the thrill of feeling that they are masters of their destiny and that they can do something for themselves, through group action and true cooperative philosophy
5. To achieve through education a change of quality of individuals and to instill a desire and necessity to help their fellow man.
6. To improve education, economic and political interests through group action and motivate a desire to change.
7. To share ideas, attend meetings, work together, learn together to make their communities better places to live and work.
8. To educate members in the wise use and handling and management of money.
9. To educate members to respect differences of opinion, to seek common ground and to work to put their own thinking into the good of the group, to bear criticism, to subdue jealousy.

The Foundation assures the Cooperative members of a continuous educational program which works hand in hand with the business phase, yet separate and on its' own. This was done to avoid the mistakes of other cooperatives of relegating education to a secondary position. The Foundation gives assurance of better educational programs helping the poor to enter the mainstream of American life through economic ownership and control of various cooperatively owned and controlled business.

IV. JUSTIFICATION:

A. The business phase of Southern Consumers' Cooperative is well underway, and recently received much publicity and acknowledgement through the War of Poverty program. The first loan under the Economic Opportunity Act, Title IV administered by the Small Business Administration was administered to Southern Consumers' Cooperative to expand present Fruit Cake production plant to include other pastry items and candy. Mr. Lewis Wall of New Orleans, a nationally known pioneer in developing new food products and retired executive of the Pillsbury Company, has offered his services to help the Southern Consumers' Cooperative, Inc., in its business activities under SCORE.

However, the Foundation has received little assistance and therefore has not been able to carry on necessary educational program, because of lack of funds, which results in lack of an adequate staff. We find interest is keen and motivation is alert at this time because of the poverty program and the recognization we have received. There seems to be a spark and a light of hope on the part of members since the news and publicity which has been nation-wide. We feel certain that with an adequate staff we can accomplish in one year what it took us five years to do.

B. With the necessary funds the following programs will be put into effect:

Three fieldworkers

1. Will conduct in each of the 16 towns where members live the following workshops:

   a) Cooperatives and cooperative principles.
   b) Money management workshops, financial counseling, how to keep a budget, advantage of checking accounts, and efficient money habits.
   c) Home management classes to include: child care, shopping and purchasing, etc.
   d) House meetings: small groups discussions in the homes, on subjects of interest and needs of the people.

2. Will travel around the state acting as resource persons for the other interested groups. Giving advice and assistance to the many appeals which we receive daily from throughout the state.

Managing Director: will conduct the following courses:

1. For all employees and directors of the cooperative: management courses, public relations and cooperative principles.

2. For custodians and directors: business course in simple bookkeeping and recording, public relations and communication course.

3) For directors and officers: Parliamentary procedures, how to conduct meetings and techniques in group dynamics and leadership.

Seminars (which will be open to all members) on following subjects:

Leadership --- How to be a leader, modern leadership and responsibility (certificates will be given at the end of the sessions).

Public Speaking and Debating --- Training of community leaders to take active part in civic, school and church activities.

(Other classes will be conducted as need and possibilities are created)

C. Information and Counselling Services: There is an urgent need for added staff to provide information and counseling to members and other groups - small credit unions, small groups thinking about entering a business. At the moment our secretary is doing this, but she will need added staff to be more efficient and to coordinate the work of the fieldworkers. The service will help people who are in small businesses better their own business, and help them in applying to right agencies for help. Many groups and individuals are coming to us for information and help through the Economic Opportunity Program, and other self-help programs. Individuals stop in for other information as to which agency to apply for individual and health needs. There is a great need for a service which would be able to direct the seeker to the correct city and state agency. Part-time help will enable us to more efficiently work this out.

V. FOUNDATION WILL USE THE GRANTS AS FOLLOWS:

Gentlemen:

On the basis of your stated purposes and the understanding that your operations will continue as evidenced to date or will conform to those proposed in your ruling application, we have concluded that you are exempt from Federal income tax as an organization described in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code. Any changes in operation from those described, or in your character or purposes, must be reported immediately to your District Director for consideration of their effect upon your exempt status. You must also report any change in your name and address.

You are not required to file Federal income tax returns so long as you retain an exempt status, unless you are subject to the tax on unrelated business income imposed by section 511 of the Code, in which event you are required to file Form 990-T. Our determination as to your liability for filing the annual information return, Form 990-A, is set forth above. That return, if required, must be filed on or before the 15th day of the fifth month after the close of your annual accounting period indicated above.

Contributions made to you are deductible by donors as provided in section 170 of the Code. Bequests, legacies, devises, transfers or gifts to or for your use are deductible for Federal estate and gift tax purposes under the provisions of section 2055, 2106 and 2522 of the Code.

You are not liable for the taxes imposed under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act (social security taxes) unless you file a waiver of exemption certificate as provided in such act. You are not liable for the tax imposed under the Federal Unemployment Tax Act. Inquiries about the waiver of exemption certificate for social security taxes should be addressed to your District Director, as should any questions concerning excise, employment or other Federal taxes.

Your District Director is being advised of this action.

Very truly yours,

NEW LOAN PROCEDURES

Peoples' Enterprise, SCC's discount loan company, has initiated new loan procedures which are in effect now.

Each member borrowing $100 or more from Peoples' Enterprise is required to invest $1 per month, per hundred dollars in Southern Consumers.

These dollars invested will be toward their investment in the co-op.

Example: If a member wishes to borrow $100 for one year, he would have to borrow $112. But he would only be charged interest on $100. He would pay the $12 back without interest.

There is a dual advantage in this new procedure. Now Peoples' Enterprise not only provides loan services to members but it teaches them to save.

SCC GETS TAX-EXEMPTION

Southern Consumers' Co-op has been informed by the U.S. Treasury Department, Internal Revenue Service, that the Educational Foundation is exempt from Federal tax.

Now that the Educational Foundation has been legally tagged as a non-profit organization, SCC is qualified to receive grants and other financial gifts from various foundations.

SCC Educational Foundation has already received $1,000 grant from the Aaron E. Norman Fund, Inc. This money will be used for salaries.

The Norman Fund was established to support intercultural and interracial relations, to protect those means which strive to protect civil liberties. Some of its other interests are the problems of social adjustment of children from economically and socially deprived backgrounds.

NOTICE

Central office now has an off-set press. Co-op members are offered the services of having their personal stationary or other items printed at a low cost. Contact us if you want such services.

BOARD MEETS WITH NEW IBERIA MEMBERS

SUNDAY ---- FEBRUARY 14

PLACE: New Iberia
St. Edwards School Auditorium
Corner of French Street and Lombard Street

TIME: 1 PM - Board Members
3 PM - General Session

NEW COMMITTEES

In the process of reorganization, the board has devised a plan of six committees.

The executive committee consists of Rev. A. J. McKnight, board president, Dr. T. T. Williams, first vice-president, Coley Bellamy, second vice-president, and Misses Una Mae Hargrave and Rita Joseph, secretary and treasurer respectively.

This committee is authorized to take care of any business or problems that arise before a scheduled meeting of the board and needs immediate attention.

Ned Robinson, Rev. Ed. Bourg, and Susan Lies are on the audit committee.

The education and public relations committee is composed of Miss Una Mae Hargrave, Miss Carol Prejean, and Rev. Ivan Arceneaux.

Alvin Biagas, Clyde Coco, and Rev. August Thompson form the committee in charge of the custodians and the membership drive.

Finance and expansion committee include Miss Rita Joseph, Mrs. Roberta Portlock, and Mrs. Christiana Smith.

Dr. Williams, Rev. McKnight, Mr. Wallace Decluses, and Mr. Biagas are on the business committee for the fruit cake project. Mr. Bellamy and Clyde Coco are on the business committee for Peoples' Enterprise.

As president of the board of directors, Rev. McKnight is the co-ordinator of all the committees.

The board members are responsible for turning in to the central office a listing of what they think their responsibilities are on their respective committees.

CO-OP ADVANTAGES

The main reasons why a cooperative is a unique device for cultural improvements and community action can be summarized as follows:

1. Co-operative participation develops people. Supervisory authority can be exercised, as may be necessary at the start, but gradually withdrawn as the understanding of the participants grows.

2. Co-operatives strengthen communities. They also provide a channel through which all kinds of extension services can be more effective because people can be reached as a group.

3. Co-operatives increase income. The largest possible portion of the ultimate selling prices of products can be left in the community.

4. Co-operatives teach responsibility. For example, credit restrictions are more likely to be understood and financial committments honored as the people learn the significance of the fact that it is their own money that is involved.

However, co-operatives cannot solve all the problems of a community, by any means. It is only part of the institutional machinery serving the community. There is no magic in the word "Cooperative." Co-operative organizations will not suddenly create on the part of its members the necessary means to solve all problems. It can only be a service to the community.

Natural resources, a need responsibility and the willingness to work together must exist in order to make the co-operative what it is meant to be.

Co-ops are People.

At the last congressional meeting, Sunday, January 10, Lafayette, the board decided to hold its regular meetings in a different town or city each month. The purpose of this is to encourage the members of the particular area to attend and participate in the re-evaluation session that will follow the meeting.

New Iberia has asked the board to hold its next meeting there. This will be Sunday, February 14, at 1 PM. The place is St. Edward's School Auditorium, corner of French Street and Lombard Street.

All New Iberia, Jeanerette and Franklin members are urged to attend.

LITTLE PEOPLE AND POVERTY

Everyone's interest is keen and alert on a certain subject which of course is of deep interest to all of us from SCC, that of Poverty and our role as a Co-op and as individuals in the War on Poverty. The key to the Poverty Program is local participation. It is up to us the little people to come forward and bind ourselves together in our communities and parishes and pool our thinking together as to what would help solve the root causes of poverty in our area. We must ask ourselves, "What would do the best and quickest job to help solve this problem? What can we do?" Again and again we must remind ourselves this is a self-help program and we must do it.

Therefore, it is important that we begin discussing and thinking about these things. This is a wonderful program with great potentials so lets make use of it and help ourselves. Books and information on this subject are rather numerous and interesting. If there are enough Co-op members who might be interested in purchasing some of these books, we can get large supplies and charge small fees for a package of this type of information.

So look over the bibliography below and if you want copies of any of these, write us at the Central Office and we'll be happy to help.

Bibliography:

PRALINES--ANYONE?

Praline production is the next proposed business of Southern Consumers. It is still in the "proposal" stage, because we are encountering many difficulties. One of these is mass production of the pralines.

Recipes donated by both members and non-members of SCC have been experienced. Several were found to be excellent. But these praline recipes are excellent only when prepared in family-size amounts. This cannot serve our purpose.

Our bakery needs a recipe that will produce quality pralines on a large scale. If anyone has a recipe that complies with these qualifications, we would be more than anxious to try it out.

They would receive credit accordingly.

SCC RECEIVES $10,000 CHECK

A $10,000 check, representing the first anti-poverty money given out by the Small Business Administration, was presented to Southern Consumers' Cooperative at the Lake Charles bakery, December 22, 1964.

A loan totaling $25,000 was granted Southern Consumers' by SBA, on November 25th. The $10,000 check is just the first of several disbursements to SCC.

This money will be used to pay for the Lake Charles bakery and to purchase necessary equipment to expand our baking operations.

The next proposed business of SCC is the production of pralines. Later funds to be received from SBA will be used to purchase a pecan sheller, a walk-in freezer, a cooking stove, a marble slab and a strip packaging machine.

During their one-day visit, SBA's Washington officials made recommendations to assist in expanding our baking operations into export markets. Their specialists will continue to counsel Southern Consumers' on our management problems and offer up-to-date techniques and methods.

Rev. A. J. McKnight, SCC Board President, and Lewis B. Wall, SCC Business Counselor, exchange greetings over an Arcadiana fruit cake.

SBA RECOMMENDS BUSINESS COUNSELOR

The Small Business Administration has appointed Lewis B. Wall as business counselor to SCC.

Mr. Wall is a retired executive and former president of a division of the Pillsbury company. He was recommended by the SBA branch in New Orleans, who said that his organizational experience would be of great value to us.

He will act as advisor to Southern Consumers' in our future business endeavors.

VOLUME IV, NUMBER 8 SEPTEMBER, 1965 LAFAYETTE, LOUISIANA

ANNUAL MEETING SET FOR NOVEMBER

The annual membership meeting of Southern Consumers' Cooperative is scheduled for November 14. An important feature of this meeting is the election of new board members of the co-op.

At the September 12 congressional meeting the Speaker of the House will appoint a nominating committee of three from among the congressional delegates. This committee will nominate persons to run for the board seats that are open. Again, these nominees must be congressional delegates.

There will be a special congressional meeting in October at which time the nominating committee with present its nominees. At this same meeting other delegates may make nominations from the floor. At the end of the October meeting nominations for SCC board members will be closed.

The voting members present at the annual meeting may cast individual votes - one member, one vote. Voting in this election will be by secret ballot and there will be no proxy voting. But a voting member who is unable to attend the November meeting may request an absentee ballot and vote by mail, provided that his request is made by registered letter 20 days prior to the day of the meeting.

As a reminder: Voting members are defined as those who have purchased in full at least four ($50) of the 24 ($300) shares they have subscribed for. Only stockholders who are recorded as voting members 30 days before the annual meeting are eligiable to vote in this November meeting.

A WORD OF THANKS TO HEAD START WORKERS

The board of directors of Southern Consumers' Education Foundation wishes to express their sincere thanks and congratulations to all who have helped to make the head start programs such a success.

Without the cooperation and assistance of all involved head start could not have reached so many in Louisiana as it was able to. SCEF sponsored head start schools in six parishes in Louisiana, involving some 2000 pre-school children.

We wish to express a special word of thanks to the volunteers, totaling about 500 from the six-parish area. Their contribution will be long remembered. They helped to make head start possible by donating their time, thus helping SCEF to make up the 10% non-federal share.

To the medical and dental staff, our word of thanks. In many parishes much of their time was donated or half cost. Due to their thorough examinations, many serious medical cases in the children were brought to light. There were illnesses discovered that needed immediate attention. An example is the six tuberculosis cases which will be followed up.

SCEF is applying for another head start program which is to begin in the fall. If we are granted this we will again seek your assistance and cooperation.

Miss Una Mae Hargrave
Education Foundation President

SCEF SEEKS FALL HEAD START

Southern Consumers' Education Foundation is applying for head start schools in 10 parishes of Louisiana for the fall. The parishes that will be involved are Lafayette, Iberia, Vermilion, Caddo, Claiborne, Concordia, Acadia, West Feliciana, East Feliciana and St. Landry.

Vermilion , Lafayette, Iberia, Caddo, Claiborne, and Concordia has already operated head start this summer under the sponsorship of SCEF.

The Foundation wishes to continue and extend project head start because they have proved to be a positive means in helping to wipe out poverty in our areas.

The listing below points out some of the general goals of the head start schools.

1. Head start introduces the children to experiences they are denied in the home due to poverty.

2. It teaches them to get along with others.

3. It improves the self-image of the children and helps them to combat the ideas instilled in them from birth that they are inferior.

4. The physical and mental health of the child is improved. Head start develops an appreciation of good music through listening and singing.

5. Head start develops the child's curiosity and imagination.

6. It improves language skills and appreciation of good literature.

7. It exposes the child to the workings of the community.

8. The schools provide motor skills development through the use of active games, dancing and exercise.

These are just some of the reasons why head start is needed in our areas. Head start gives the underpriviledged a chance to experience a better life outside of the poverty pocket in which they now live. If head start schools are continued the children will truly gain a new lease on life.

OUR CO-OP TODAY

Southern Consumers' Cooperative has been growing by leaps and bounds. New investment money from members grows monthly but our needs grow faster. We are preparing for our second fruit cake season. We hope to produce and market over 55,000 lbs. of cake this season. Starting next month we will be needing $9,000 a month for the next three months for operating capital.

If we had more money Peoples' Enterprise could loan more to members. Presently we are unable to fulfill the credit needs of our members.

We are now worth close to $100,000. We need to grow faster. We need our present membership to increase their investment and we need to increase our membership.

During the last couple of months we have been growing at the rate of 100 members a month. We could increase that to 200 a month if more of our members would attend local meetings, congressional meetings and become more interested and involved in the co-op.

SCEF has just completed a successful project head start program. Several other projects are now in the planning stages. We are also submitting an application for child development centers in ten parishes involving almost six thousand chilfren.

Last word we have received on our technical assistance grant application is that it is in the process of being approved. The outlook is very optimistic.

Dr. T.T. Williams is working on a Consumer Education application which we hope will be ready by the end of September.

We at SCC are caught up in a gigantic tide of opportunities. We are doing our best to take advantage of the doors which are opening. If we had more volunteer assistance from more of our members we could accomplish so much more. Mrs. Diggs is to be commended for the many long hours she has been working on the child development center application. The future is ours if we but reach out for it.

Fr. A.J. McKnight, C.S.Sp.

SCC IS DISTRIBUTOR

Southern Consumers' Cooperative has agreed to become a distributor of Marco Brand Products produced by Marks Supply Company, New Orleans.

Some of these Marco Products are: pest control liquid, floor wax remover, window cleaner, bathroom bowl and procelain cleaner, dishwashing detergent, all purpose floor cleaner, soap powder and detergent powder.

These household products will be peddled by the local custodians. Southern Consumers' will receive a percentage of all sales, and the custodians in turn will receive a commission on all individual sales.

SCC members are asked to purchase these products from their custodians. This is another means of membership participation. It is also another means of bringing in more capital into the co-op.

Above is the site of Southern Consumers' bakery in Lake Charles. All our products are produced in this building. SCC Members are encouraged to visit their bakery at any time.

CONGRESS MEETS SUNDAY, SEPT. 12

Place: Co-op Building
2009 Moeling Street
(next door to the bakery)
Lake Charles, Louisiana

Time: 1 p.m. Board of Directors meet
2 p.m. Custodians meet
4 p.m. Congressiona. meeting

All delegates are urged to attend the congressional meeting. The Speaker of the House will apoint a committee of three delegates which will be responsible for bringing in nominees to run for the board seats at the November 14 annual membership meeting.

PECANS ARE NEEDED

The co-op is in the process of planning its second seasonal large scale production of fruit cakes.

A most needed ingredient is pecans. Pecans are necessary not only for the fruit cakes but also for the pralines, toasted-spiced pecans and brownies.

Southern Consumers' will purchase shelled or unshelled pecans. Anyone who expects to have pecans for sale in the fall or can arrange with someone to sell pecans to the co-op, may contact the central office in Lafayette or the bakery in Lake Charles.

The War Against Poverty is a "hometown fight." You can help to break the poverty cycle in your hometown by joining in the efforts of Southern Consumers' Cooperative. This war is a personal one, and each one of us is personally responsible for helping to winnow this poverty.

NOTICE

The Education Foundation board of Southern Consumers' is scheduled to meet Thursday, Sept. 9, 7:30 p.m. at the central office, 425 General Mouton, Lafayette, La.

PLIGHT OF TODAY'S CONSUMER

Consumer credit is no longer a sales tool; it is, more typically, the purpose of the sale. Where dealers used to give credit to make a profit through a sale, they now sell to make a profit on the credit. In such a deal, the sale of goods is only a pretext to get the buyer's signature on an installment contract.

The dealer can make more money on credit than he does on the goods, says CONSUMER REPORTS in its September issue. There are all sorts of opportunities for profit.

First, there is the interest pack. Most dealers finance their installment contracts with a lender---a bank or sales finance company. The lender may charge the dealer, say, 12% true annual interest---but the dealer may charge his customer 14%, 18%, 24%, or more. The difference is generally used to establish a special "dealer reserve" held by the lender to protect him form loss in case the customer defaults. The dealer collects it as profit after the account is paid off.

There are more plums: insurance, for example. The contracts may include premiums for life, accidnet, or disability insurance. The dealer gets a commission on each policy, and he would also collect any dividends.

Other possibilities for profit are late payment charges, collection fees, the possibility of more and higher interest should the borrower have to refinance the loan, and prepayment charges in casr the borrower pay ahead of time.

Few signers of installment contracts realize how completely they are pledging their total resources. Lenders and sellers take less risk than one might suppose, for they can go to court to collect even after they repossess the goods bought on the installment plan, if they don't get all that was due on a resale.

Installment buying constitutes a growing burden on American families. Currently, 14% of disposable family income is tied up in debt repayments. But only about half of the families have any installment debt: Therefore these families have pledged, on the average, 28% of their disposable income for payment. Many, of course, have pledged much more. Many are in serious trouble.

AN ADDED WORRY FOR "KITCHEN ARTISTS"

It's hard to find a reliable cooking thermometer, says CONSUMER REPORTS. Test of 14 candy and deep-frying models are reported in the September issue. The most accurate thermometer tested, that had range broad enough both for candy and deep-frying , had maximum inaccuracies of 2 to 4 in the samples tested. Such variations were considered acceptable but some other thermometers were much less accurate. Errors as high as 27 were found---yet an error of even 5 could spoil the consistency of homemade candy.

One way to test a cooking Thermometer at home is to immerse it in vigorously boiling water; it should read 212 at sea level (a little less at higher altitudes). It it's higher or lower than 212 , you can add or subtract that amount from your required cooking temperature. But this test may not help you in the 400 deep-fat frying range, because the error may not be consistant over the whole scale.

Besides accuracy, consider convenience. Models marked 5 apart are easier to read accurately than those marked only 10 intervals. Also, dial thermometers are easier to read tham glass-column thermometers.

ANNOUNCEMENT

EMERGENCY:

We need money to help us fight the seizure of our books and to keep the Co-op books out of the hands of the District Attorney.

We ask that every member send in a dollar or more for this cause. We ask every local group to start raising money to help us in our legal battle. Send your donation to the Central Office or give it to your sale representative immediately.

Support our legal rights with actions not just words.

Reports

S.C.C. BOARD DECISIONS:

1. Proposals from local chapters of S.C.C. should be presented in the following manner: Local Chapter group should write the proposal, and send their delegates with the written report to Congress Meeting. All the Delegates listen to proposal, discuss, and either rejects it or returns it to the local group for revision to be resubmitted at next meeting or sends it directly to the Board for action. Board then reviews this proposal and takes into consideration the recommendations from Congress.

2. Policy on redemption of stocks and investments of S.C.C. -- in order to redeem money invested in S.C.C. investors must have their $300. in the Co-op for over two years to get back the exact amount of money invested. This is done so that the Co-op can regain the amount spent on collection of investments. If money has been invested for less than two years, then 30% is deducted from the amount invested, in order to pay for the cost of collecting the investment.

ANSWER TO: "BAN THE AUDIT"

By: Rev. A.J. McKnight, C.S.Sp.

(Following is a T.V. presentation given on April 24,1967. It is reprinted in this Newsletter in an attempt to clarify issues, and to keep all members informed.)

I wish to congratulate Channel 3 on their sense of fair play in giving me this opportunity to reply to Bob Hamm's Special Report on April 18th on "Ban the Audit".

First I would like to state categorically and emphatically that we have never objected to an audit of the books of Southern Consumers' Education Foundation. (I made the motion at the special Board Meeting of Acadiana-Neuf, in November, 1966, that all the programs of Acadiana-Neuf be audited, that motion was amended to read, "All the programs of Acadiana-Neuf be audited by an integrated firm.") Peat, Marwick and Mitchell of New Orleans was the firm chosen. Why is it that to this day Southern Consumers' Education Foundation's programs were the only ones audited by the auditing firm?

We do object, however, loudly and strongly to the manner in which Southern Consumers' Education Foundation books were seized by the District Attorney. We also object and will fight in the federal courts the demand that we hand over the books of Southern Consumers' Co-op, which is a private company distinct from Southern Consumers' Education Foundation an which has never received any grants from the Federal Government.

Early on Tuesday, April 11th, the District Attorney and a Deputy Sheriff walked into our office, threw an illegal subpoena on the desk and started rifling through our desk drawers and files and taking whatever he wanted of Southern Consumers' Education Foundation and Southern Consumers' Co-op records. It was only after he had transported everything to his car that we finally succeeded in contacting a lawyer who after having had the subpoena and search-warrant read to him over the telephone spoke to the District Attorney. The District Attorney then changed his tune and became more reasonable. The illegal subpoena mentioned only the records of the Foundation which were concerned with programs sponsored under Acadiana-Neuf, not the other records of the Foundation and none of the records of the Cooperative. The District Attorney then returned everything to the office and with the assistance of the staff separated the records, taking only Southern Consumers' Education Foundation records connected with programs under Acadiana-Neuf. Later some of our accounts at places where we do business were seized.

On Tuesday, April 18th, a week after our office was illegally raided by the District Attorney, a legal subpoena was issued to an officer of the Board of both, Southern Consumers' Education Foundation and Southern Consumers' Co-op.

On Wednesday, April 19th the Daily Advertiser carried a large front page article about a letter which the District Attorney wrote to Southern Consumers' to ask their cooperation in having their books audited. We received the letter two days later.

Why didn't the District Attorney send the letter requesting our cooperation with the audit before he raided our office or before he had it printed in the Advertiser? With so many poor people in Lafayette why ask for an authorization of $10,000. for a third audit?

We claim that the events of the last two weeks are just another in a series of harassments and distortions of the truth against Southern Consumers' which dates back to last September.

Back in September the Daily Advertiser started carrying a series of articles on the War on Poverty in which Southern Consumers' Education Foundation and Southern Consumers' Cooperative were involved. Many half truths and distortions were printed. Not until the 19th article did the author come for a first hand interview with our staff members.

In October a law suit was filed against the Foundation. Out of the law suit charges were made that federal funds were missing. In answer an audit of Southern Consumers' Education Foundation was made.

The Auditing Firm, Peat, Marwick and Mitchell, did not discover any missing funds but did find bad bookkeeping and made recommendations which have been followed.

Then came the communist scare, created by Headline story in the Advertiser which resulted in the State Legislative Committee of Un-American Activities investigation. At that hearing an outside C.P.A. who never saw our books made his interpretations of the Peat, Marwick and Mitchell audit report. Why didn't the Committee get a member of this firm which performed the audit to testify?

On Friday, April 7th, Mr. James Howard a Federal Auditor finished his preliminary audit of Southern Consumers' Education Foundation programs. Based upon his findings, Mr. Walter H. Richter the Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity Southwest Regional Office in Austin, Texas, issued the following communication: "preliminary audit report does not reveal any conduct by Southern Consumers' Education Foundation staff which could be characterized as intent to defraud the Federal Government or misappropriate Federal funds. A final statement on this issue can be expected after a full audit report is made and the grantee is given an opportunity to respond."

We have been accused of being communists, which the State Un-American activity legislative committee was unable to prove. We have been accused of stealing federal funds which a preliminary federal audit report does not verify.

No matter what we do to answer false charges we will be vilified.

We cannot fight, as the saying goes, City Hall. We do not have the same access to the Daily Advertiser and Television Stations as our opponents. We do not have a public relations staff and we refuse to consume all of our time answering false charges. We have decided to ignore the charges and follow the dictum of Christ, who today would be called a communist: "by their actions, you shall know them."

We have, however, called upon the Justice Department and the Federal Bureau of Investigation to make an investigation into the harassment which has plagued the Foundation over the past nine months.

I would like to make the plea to the two television stations, Channel 3 and 10, to give me a half hour to tell the story of Southern Consumers' and it's purpose to the general public.

This is not Federal Money, not a loan ... nor donations, but dollars and cents saved and invested by members to operate their Business Enterprises ... The Bakery and Peoples' Enterprise.

Dear Chris:

I am delighted to know that Ray Marshall will be a consultant to the Southern Consumers' Education Foundation to work with the Foundation's project there. He is a good man, and I am sure we can work with him. And, we will, of course, continue to offer Father McKnight any help we can.

John Lewis will come to work on Monday, and goodness knows we need him. Also, it is likely that Al and his wife will come off the mountain next week and that Al will work full-time for the Co-op Federation for at least several months. Both of these men will relate, of course, to Father McKnight's program also. After our absence of this type of talent all the summer, I feel almost like we have an embarrassment of riches. But goodness knows it is good to have it.

Best.

Dear Paul:

This is to inform you that Dr. Ray Marshall, whom you know, is being appointed as a consultant to evaluate and monitor the Southern Consumers' Education Foundation grant.

It is my hope that, as well as providing monitoring for the Foundation, the relationship will develop so that Father McKnight will call on Dr. Marshall for advice and guidance. I am enclosing a copy of a letter I have written to Father McKnight on this. I hope you will pass on to Father McKnight any information which you think might assist him.

Dear Father McKnight:

This is to formally advise you that the Foundation is appointing Dr. Ray Marshall as a consultant to monitor and evaluate the Southern Consumers' Education Foundation grant for the development of cooperatives. As you know, Mr. Lamond Godwin will assist Dr. Marshall in this task.

Dr. Marshall is undertaking this assignment with the understanding that his role is to be a constructive one as far as possible. His assignment includes the responsibility to give SCEF any advice and guidance which might be requested. I am confident that as you get to know Dr. Marshall and Mr. Godwin you will recognize in them a spirit of helpfulness and friendship which should be of comfort and assistance to you.

I hope to remain familiar with the activities of SCEF, but time will preclude my detailed involvement in your monthly and daily activities. Please be assured that my interest and faith in the project remain constant. If I can be of assistance to you at any time, please do not hesitate to call me.

REPORT ON THE ACTIVITIES OF THE FORD FOUNDATION COOPERATIVE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

by

T. T. Williams

I. INTRODUCTION

For approximately eighty days I have been seeking market outlets for the products of the cooperatives participating in the development program. In addition, attention has been directed toward the injection of economic thinking into the weighted social thrust of the program. The social orientation is so entrenched in the thinking and philosophy of the staff members that nothing less than a strong policy statement followed up by action will influence its direction. My observations and discussions with individuals in and outside the program have convinced me that the road ahead for staff members in the minority who behold to the economic thrust must be heeded if the hope of low-income people is to be kept alive. Even with such a change, the social thrust of past months will continue to have a significant influence on the expansion of market outlets. However, a change in orientation within the next few weeks will assure some degree of economic success.

It is my belief that the social thrust of the program, getting people to work together, has been demonstrated with reasonable success but what must be proven is that such efforts can result in a viable economic entity or business. The implementation of the latter objective will require the coordinated efforts of all persons associated with the program.

II. ACTIVITIES

Enumerated below are the four broad areas of my involvement and some specific activities under each heading. During the remaining months my efforts will be directed along these lines with the urgency of the need influencing the time allocated to any one activity.

A. Survey of the Broad Development Program

1. Participated in the Cooperative Management Short Course in Atlanta, Ga.

2. Met with cooperative officials at the Federated Annual Meeting in Mt. Beulah, Miss. to familiarize myself with their needs and problems.

3. Made some follow-up visits to cooperatives to observe their operation.

The above involvements provided me with an opportunity to study and observe the degree to which the social and economic tools were being applied both at the local and central levels. It was obvious that all cooperatives are confronted with a common problem--the need for experts who are sensitive to the problems of the less privileged and who are acceptable to the social orientation of the cooperative establishment. Some people question if such a marriage will ever materialize. However, economic expertise must be secured and a re-orientation of the existing thrust must be changed if the emerging cooperatives are to become economically successful. This issue is so important and the people affected so large that a solution cannot be minimized. It might be necessary to concentrate all efforts on some of the existing cooperatives rather than continue to organize or form new groups.

B. Discussion with Staff Members on the Activities of the Bakery

1. Spent time at the bakery working with the staff on problems of production and marketing.

2. Helped to develop a program for up-grading the bakery to meet health standards.

3. Put in motion a cost analysis program for bakery items.

4. Developed with the manager ways in which efforts can be coordinated.

5. Started a job description procedure for employees.

Follow through will be a major bottleneck with some of the activities above. Under the best conditions it is difficult to follow through on an assignment when working in a consulting capacity. There is an urgent need for a re-dedication of some staff members to hard nose economic principles if a reasonable return on investments is to be forthcoming. Regardless of the decision to the recommendation above, the bakery investment is too large to permit an accelerated deterioration as happened during the past year.

C. Contacts with Buyers of Bakery Products

1. Letters sent to presidents of large corporations asking them to purchase the bakery products as incentive rewards to employees.

2. Appealed to season buyers to purchase the bakery products the year round.

3. Engaged in a dialogue with private and government officials who expressed an interest in the bakery products.

4. Set up a program for fund-raising groups.

5. Visited some of the large bakeries to observe and discuss their method of operation and determined under what conditions they would purchase the bakery products.

6. Began to study the economic feasibility of a Christmas basket. Such a basket should include a variety of products of several cooperatives.

7. Made preparations for the New York Premium Show. The exposure of the bakery products to buyers should result in some large orders.

The present major bakery product, fruit cake, is strictly a gourmet item. This characteristic makes it difficult to attract wholesalers. Along this line the bakery staff is in the process of developing a cheaper fruit cake to go with the gourmet item.

D. Coordinated Specific Activities of Various Cooperatives Participating in the Development Program

1. Met with government officials--OEO, EDA, and USDA--in an attempt to secure their support and cooperation relative to some of the pressing problems faced by emerging cooperatives. Very shortly the services of a vegetable marketing specialist and a bookkeeper should be available.

2. Established a working relationship with various individuals who are involved directly or indirectly with the development program.

There is a need for a plan to phase out the demonstration program into the Federation Program. Such a plan is necessary if the Federation is to effectively reflect the needs of the cooperatives as it structures its program.

III. SUMMARY

Activities enumerated above are much broader than what my responsibilities were felt to be at the time of coming with the development program. It did not take long to realize that much spade work toward economic orientation had to be made before any effective effort could be directed toward locating market outlets. Thus, assuming the broader responsibility was not out of choice but out of need.

The past eighty days have convinced me that the overall development program is in need of a re-appraisal and re-direction of policy if a representative number of emerging cooperatives are to have any reasonable degree of economic success. A decision must be made soon as to whether to pursue a policy of making those cooperatives demonstrating economic vitality the focal interest of the program or to continue to organize people with little consideration to the economic implications. Up to this stage the major thrust has been directed toward getting people working together but five months is sufficient time for this phase. Efforts must be made to shift gears and leave the social thrust in the background.

Regardless to whether the development program officials pursue an economic or social thrust the need for management and marketing expertise should not be de-emphasized. Any major economic thrust will require a re-orientation of the staff and re-direction of the resources which might not set well with some staff members.

An estimated 20,000 pounds of fruit cake are planned for this season and a 50 per cent increase in store sales. Although these goals are for the bakery, a similar upward trend should be envisioned for other cooperatives in the development program. The development staff should concentrate on those cooperatives in each state demonstrating the greatest degree of economic success and other groups should be encouraged to combine their efforts and program. The important thing is that some priority be established.

Some additional points which came to my attention after the report was typed:

On April 9 and 10, 1968 a meeting was held at the Central Office In Lafayette, Louisiana to re-evaluate the program--past, present and future. State supervisors were in attendance along with the Central staff. The state supervisors shared with the participants some of their problems and experiences. There was a dialogue on what should be done from this period on. This participant left the meeting more convinced that his earlier observations relative to the need for an economic orientation of the development program was well grounded. A lack of an understanding of basic economic principles was echoed by a number of the participants. It is questionable whether this inadequacy can be overcome with the present staff earlier enough to inject the economic thrust envisioned by some staff members as the direction the program should follow. It is my hope that the administrator of the program develop some specific policies as a result of the feed-back from the state supervisors.

Dear Mr. Anthony:

Cooperatives among low-income groups are at a critical stage in their growth. They are in urgent need for market outlets for the variety of products their members are producing.

Southern Consumers', a Louisiana charter cooperative of over 300 low-income families produces a wide variety of gourmet bakery products.

We would appreciate your assistance toward getting the bakery products fruit cakes, spiced pecans, brownies and pralines into a national chain store. The modern bakery is in a position to produce products to the specification of the buyer.

In addition, we welcome a large order from your organization this year. Use the attached Order Form for this purpose. We can make delivery at the time you specify. Place your order early and avoid the holiday rush.

Dear T.T:

Your letter of April 15th indicates that there is serious misunderstanding as to the amount of flexibility we have with regard to your position. There is no way that the Foundation can supplement its grant to Southern Consumers' Education Foundation. There is no way that a payment can be made to the University for any purpose connected with this operation.

Southern Regional Council, as an accommodation to us, agreed to pick up your salary and a few expenses. You are in effect a staff person of SRC on loan more or less full time to SCEF. We have indicated to SRC that we expect it to scrutinize funds made available for expenses such as travel. Accordingly, you should discuss this entire matter with Paul Anthony. I am sending him a copy of this letter together with a copy of your request so that he will be informed when you contact him.

We are aware of the fact that the project has and will continue to have many needs which the Foundation cannot meet. Your letter does not explain why the secretarial and administrative costs allowed in the grant to SCEF are not adequare to take care of your secretarial needs, stamps, and supplies. We see you as an integrated member of the staff operation, sharing administrative services made available to the project as a whole. Beyond that point it is our understanding with SRC that it handles certain expenses such as reasonable travel.

I have read your report on your activities and was somewhat surprised that most of your time has been devoted to the bakery as distinct from other cooperative endeavors in the region. I was also surprised that on page 2, B-5, you indicated work on job description procedures for employees. I see the tie-in but hope that your primary emphasis will be on marketing and production as it relates to marketing.

Dear Chris:

Enclosed is a report of my activities for the past eighty days and some specific recommendations based upon my involvement and observations.

It is absolutely necessary that funds in the amount of $6000 be made available for office personnel and facilities. Breakdown of the expenditure items are enumerated below. Father McKnight has informed me that office funds (hiring a typist and stamps) included in the budget for the development proposal are committed. However, I have a backlog of correspondence waiting to be typed and mailed. The demands of other central staff members for typing will delay still longer typing of correspondence.

Up to this period I have been using my campus office and facilities and paying for typing to augment the limited secretarial help in the Central Office. While I will continue to make use of my office on the campus, when the additional office budget is made available the effective follow through with activities summarized in my report will be assured.

Along this line, I would highly recommend that these funds ($6000) be made available to Southern University. This gesture will serve to commit the University to the development program and provide me with a strong base to draw upon the professional expertise associated with the University in meeting the needs of the various cooperatives. Needless to say, in the final analysis the economic success of the program will be directly related to the degree in which resources available at such institutions can be brought to bear upon the needs of each cooperative. It is my strong belief that the distance between the Cooperative Development Program and the expertise is widening not because of oversight but the absence of an instrument to encourage and support a dialogue between the two groups. The time and condition is ripe for getting these two groups to work together here in Louisiana.

You may send the $6000 to Dr. F. G. Clark telling him that you wish same to be utilized to underwrite my office activities at the University for the remaining period in which I will be with the Cooperative Development Program. You might state to him that such responsibilities were enumerated in your letter to him of March 27, 1968.

Dear Mr. Edley:

This is a short report on our progress with the bakery market. The first large order for fruit cakes was received a few days ago. The buyer, Barricini Candy Company of Long Island, N. Y., some months ago expressed an interest in our fruit cakes provided we could meet their specifications. After a number of exchanges of letters, telephone conversations and visits with the company officials, the quality of cake Barricini would purchase was decided upon.

With the assistance and some advice from bakery supply firms we were able to come up with a recipe meeting their request yet providing the bakery with above normal operating cost margin. Samples were taken to the company and they were quite pleased with the appearance and quality of the fruit cake. However, they did make some suggestions which were later incorporated in the production of the fruit cake. After a visit by the company Rabbi, we were sent a purchase order for 10,000 two-pound fruit cakes. (See attached order).

The Rabbi will be in Lake Charles June 16, to make final plans for the Kosher approval of the bakery. Within the next few months we should be receiving some orders for additional bakery items from a number of firms contacted.

The Barricini order doubles the bakery total production last year. It should be pointed out that the 20,000 pounds does not include other sizeable orders which I anticipate from my contacts with other buyers not counting the mail order business. Needless to say, the bakery staff will need some on and off the job experience in the immediate days ahead. Contacts have been made with some bakers and within the next few days something definite regarding such training should be available.

What the Barricini order has demonstrated is a simple marketing principle, "produce what the market will take rather than what a group would like to produce". This principle is applicable to the bakery and other cooperatives engaged in the production of goods and services. There were a number of doubters in the program concerning this approach but I feel that a number are being converted to this concept of marketing. But the bakery staff must still prove that the market outlet secured can be met productionwise. This is why I have asked the Director to give serious orientation to the bakery staff of their role and responsibilities relative to meeting the production schedule rather than non-economic involvement.

It is my sincere belief that the success of the bakery this year will determine the future of the business. I have been assured that the bakery stands a good chance of securing other business from Barricini provided it carries out with a minimum amount of delay and problems the first order.

There are a number of things I will be engaged in from the marketing angle during the coming months. Developing a better package and label are extremely urgent. There is the issue of planning the purchase of raw materials based on anticipated sale volume. The development of a fund-raising project is another activity which will be undertaken. While the task ahead is large, cooperation from everyone will minimize the complications and bring closer to realization one phase of the Development Program.

Finally, I think there was some misunderstanding relative to my request for secretarial assistance. Needless to say, correspondence and telephone are major means of contact with buyers as well as the development of a marketing program. What I have said relative to the inadequacy of persons to type still holds but I have found other means of overcoming this factor.

I am sure you are aware that the needs and problems of these groups are large. You cannot expect overnight results from your concentrated efforts regardless of how intense. The example of working with the bakery to develop a product which a buyer would purchase though a simple task for some people is quite involved to others particularly when you must work through a group. Not only must the group be convinced that they can meet the orders but they must be assured that it is in their best interest--economic and non-economic. What I am saying is that marketing efforts spill over into a number of side issues when you are working with these organizations and groups. But I maintain that nothing succeeds like success. When the other groups see what can happen or is happening, they will be more receptive to accepting advice and reorientation of their thinking toward economic objectives.

These comments are strictly confidential and I would appreciate it if you would not quote them to others. It was pointed out that my earlier report to you was used to reflect on the program. Such was not my intention. I was merely calling the shots as I saw them.

Very truly yours,

T. T. Williams

Dear Mr. Williams:

Thank you for your letter of June 17th and progress report on the marketing of the fruitcake. Congratulations!

Reference is made to your last paragraph on the use which was made of your earlier report. This report was shared with our consultants and Mr. Anthony. I do not see how it could have been transmitted to any other level or area. If you would be more specific as to what happened, it would assist me in avoiding any further embarrassment.

Dear Mr. Edley:

Thank you for your letter of June 21st. The marketing activity has been progressing quite well. In fact, we are in the process of landing a number of other relatively large orders.

You will find enclosed some materials developed relative to our marketing program. The newly introduced Evangeline Joy Fruit cake is quite popular among buyers. We plan also to use this cake in our Fund Raising Project.

Chris, you need never worry about embarrassing me. I wanted to make sure that anything I might say in my report was not interpreted as a reflection on the program or any individual--particularly when my role is limited to marketing. Naturally there are problems when people seem to place greater emphasis on the social rather than the economic importance but mature people can thrash these problems out and hopefully come up with a harmonious working relationship. The bakery staff is gradually coming around to the realization that more effort and time must be devoted to the production activity rather than so called sensitivity sessions. I have had an experienced fruit cake baker provide some intensive on-the-job training during the past week. This has helped tremendously in opening their eyes to what the business of baking can be. There is little time left for sensitivity sessions. The Barracini order has contributed enormously to this realization. It is still my belief that as more orders are consumated, the economic orientation of the program will be brought into keener focus.

I have made my services available to other cooperative groups in the program. Again, the other groups can see what can be done when concentrated efforts are directed toward the basic economic thrust of the development program and can desire to do likewise. I anticipate and will provide more of my services to these other groups.

Very truly yours,

T. T. Williams, Marketing Specialist

1968 FUND RAISING FRUIT CAKE PROJECT

Dear Friend:

The Acadian Delight Bakery is announcing its Fund Raising Fruit Cake Project. The tasty fruit cake is manufactured for fund raising groups such as yours in mind and is made from the best quality ingredients obtainable. When you participate in this project, you will be supporting an organization that is unselfishly giving of its resources to help low-income groups.

The Acadian Delight Bakery represents the efforts of Southern Consumers' Cooperative members. The Louisiana based bakery has made it possible for over 2,000 low-income people to combine their income and efforts to produce a "Scandalously Delicious" competitive fruit cake.

From its inception in 1960, Southern Consumers' Cooperative set out to prove that economic motivation and team effort could bring about social and economic reform. The founders set out to develop an education approach to economic participation by poor people in their community knowing that such a program could not be confined solely to the classroom. These founders further believed that the new approach to education should be designed to enlist the participation of the poor and more affluent groups toward making their state and community a more decent place in which to live. Today, we can see some positive signs of our earlier approach of getting the poor and affluent people working together on common economic objectives. Southern Consumers' Cooperative members are provided with opportunities to learn and participate in the business world thus creating employment opportunities for themselves and others. In fact, the education philosophy of Southern Consumers' Cooperative has made learners of both poor and the affluent group.

You can help to continue this social and economic reform while at the same time realizing funds to support your civic and community project by purchasing a number of the fund raising fruit cakes. Such an expenditure would help the poor people continue to develop a sense of belonging and a sense of purpose in their community. The fruit cake is manufactured at the modern bakery in Lake Charles, Louisiana.

Sincerely yours,

T. T. Williams, Marketing Specialist

Dear Mr. Edley:

During my approximately six months with the Development Program as a marketing specialist a number of firms and individuals have been contacted in person, by correspondence and by telephone in an attempt to secure market outlets for the commodities produced and manufactured by cooperatives participating in the program. While there has been some visible success, there have been also problems encountered both on the production and marketing sides. Some of the visible successes are reflected in the orders consummated at this time of the year while the problems relate to the reluctancy of large buyers to do business with emerging cooperatives. In addition, the early social orientation of the development program has retarded the production and marketing thrusts which could have been realized.

We should meet the Barricini fruitcake order on schedule--thanks to the assistance of Mr. John Wright, an experienced baker hired some three weeks ago. Securing the services of this person to work with the bakery staff has provided a needed input long recognized. Mr. Wright's services came at a time when the bakery was without the services of a manager(he was away on military duties) and when the Barricini fruitcake order was running into some problem with regard to quality. It did not take long for this person to solve the problem and put the bakery on a systematic production schedule. In fact, Mr. Wright has demonstrated that he can produce in half the time the volume earlier projected with the same labor force. My only regret is that the services of an experienced baker was not secured earlier for it would have given us a stronger competitive basis to deal with buyers.

It is true that during the early period of producing for the Barricini order it was necessary for me to assume the role of the production specialist since there was no one on the staff with the nerve or expertise to tackle such an order. This is not to imply that I possessed those qualities but in the absence of a person like Mr. Wright it was apparent to me that we had to hold on to the order until it was obvious to all that an expert baker was needed. If the know-how of this person (baker) is fully utilized he could have a tremendous impact upon the development of the bakery as a business and the training of the staff for employment in the baking industry.

Despite the problems the marketing program has made tremendous progress when compared with last year's record. This is true with the cooperatives in general and Southern Consumer in particular. For example, the bakery has doubled the total last year's sale at the time of this writing. In fact, the bakery output and sale is close to meeting the 35,000 pounds projected for 1968. Contacts have been made with a number of large firms including A & P, Independent Groceries and cooperatives. Some of these groups have agreed to place fruitcake orders with the bakery this year while others are in the process of deciding. I plan to stay in contact with all potential buyers in an attempt to successfully consummate the orders.

Mail orders have started to increase and we anticipate a continuous uptrend during the coming months. In addition, contacts have been made with a number of groups and individuals who have expressed an interest in our fund-raising fruitcake project. We plan to develop other bakery products on a fund-raising basis.

Finally, during the past months it has fallen my lot to encourage the other marketing specialists to stick with the development program inspite of the frustration they have encountered in carrying out their responsibilities. They have been assured that their services and know-how are needed.

I am aware that some of the points enumerated above do not relate solely to marketing but at the time they were carried out it was my conviction that they were necessary to realize the maximum impact from the marketing effort. It is my objective as a marketing specialist to contribute the maximum effort toward getting the bakery moving toward an economic viable business and to channel all efforts toward the development of the bakery staff. Needless to say, these goals are possible and imperative if the full impact of the development program is to be realized.

Very truly yours,

T. T. Williams

Dear Dr. Williams:

We herewith place an initial trial order for the fruit cakes as per samples you sent us. We would like to receive this shipment no later than September 25th in order to coordinate their arrival with our Co-op Month Promotion which will begin October 1st and will be publicized through our newsletter to members; the "Co-op Consumer". In fact our editor, Mrs. Suzi Slye, would appreciate any information on the history and operation of the Southern Consumers Cooperative, Inc. in order to give the fruit cakes and your organizational background good publicity among our membership.

Our initial order is as follows: (You will note we have ordered the minimum prepaid quantity.)

100 - Creole Gourmet Fruit Cake in 2 lb. tin
Cost $2.78 delivered in Beltsville. Terms 1% 10 days

480 - Evangeline Joy Fruit Cake in 2 lb. tin
Cost $1.52 delivered in Beltsville. Terms 1% 10 days

All future orders are dependent solely on consumer reception. We are running this promotion somewhat early in the season in order to get a feel for future peak season demand. You may rest assured that the cakes will receive widespread publicity among our membership and it is our hope that we will have the opportunity to favor you with several sizable follow-up orders.

MARKETING ACTIVITIES OF THE COOPERATIVE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM
(February 1 through September, 1968)

by
T. T. Williams

I. INTRODUCTION

The marketing activities have shown considerable progress during the past seven months but not without understandable problems. This report will place in context the accomplishments and what must be done if the economic objective of making each cooperative participating in the development program an economic viable entity is to be realized.

II. WHAT HAS BEEN ACCOMPLISHED

A. An overview of production and marketing needs was ascertained during the early period of the marketing specialist's participation in the development program. Visits were made to a number of the group meetings along with personal contact with individual cooperative members at the Mt. Beulah and Atlanta meetings early in his tenure with the program. During this early period an inventory of the resources (human and physical) of each cooperative group was developed.

B. It was obvious at an early period that merchandising material was in urgent need. In addition, some inexpensive method of informing buyers of the products available for sale by cooperative groups needed to be developed. A letter was sent to over 2,000 prospective buyers informing them of the products the various cooperatives would have for sale during the year. In addition, various advertising media were contacted (newspapers, magazines and broadcasting companies) to solicit some advertising support. A number of the news media gave tangible support to the request; however, it is too early at this time to measure the market impact.

C. Both Grand Marie and SWAFCA have a full-time salesman on their staff. To prevent any duplication in marketing effort, it was agreed by the three of us that we periodically compare our activities. This arrangement has been quite helpful.

D. Solving the bakery operation, with its many production problems (health and staff) is to be used as an example for planning the economic development of other cooperative groups.

Early in the program it was obvious that there was a need for some production goal or objective. By May a projection for specific bakery products was completed and approved by SCC members even though they felt it was too ambitious when compared with the previous year. In 1967, bakery production was 11,422 pounds compared with a projected production for 1968 of 36,507 pounds. Because of the almost three-fold increase in the 1968 production over 1967, each board member requested and was supplied a copy of the projection. Listed below is a summary of the bakery operation and the extent to which it is meeting its early production goal.

Product	PRODUCTION IN POUNDS
	1967	1968 (Projection)	September, 1968
Fruitcakes	9,903	35,500	23,184
Brownies	314	480	161
Pralines	408	480	139
Pecan Products	797	1,047	138
Variety Pack	0	0	50
TOTAL	11,422	36,507	23,660

Over 60 per cent of the 1967 bakery volume was mail order business (small orders) and approximately 95 per cent of the mail order business was during the months of October, November and December. Enough orders were consummated as of July 1, to start the bakery operation at that time.

E. The development of a bakery operation to eliminate some of the seasonality of the fruitcake production is reflected in the Fund Raising Fruitcake Project introduced in April. Plans are underway to implement a similar project for all the bakery items. A mailing list for the fund raising project has been received and will be utilized in future marketing efforts.

F. The marketing specialist was working on a number of fronts during the early period. The bakery facility and the staff were on health probation from the previous year and unless corrected the plant would have been closed by the local health officials. Realizing the possibility of having the bakery closed, it was imperative that the health standards be met. Today, the bakery is approved by all states, including the states of Penna and Connecticut. In addition, the bakery facility is Kosher approved and approved as a procurement center for government supplies. The products produced at the bakery can be supplied to Armed Forces installations for use by government personnel. The bakery staff will be bidding on some government contracts in the foreseeable future. As of this writing the fruitcakes will be sold in the Fort Polk and England Air Bases for the first time. We feel that this is a major market breakthrough for the Cooperative Development Program. It is our intention to try to duplicate this for other cooperative group products. During the period mentioned above, labels for the products were designed and printed and the ingredients approved by health officials.

As of September 13, some thirty-five A & P Stores and over 25 Cooperative Stores throughout the United States have placed orders for gourmet bakery products. While these are repeat orders (based upon sales), it is a major breakthrough in the national market and plans are underway to secure national publicity to help consummate repeat orders from national outlets.

Just as important, supervision of the ordering procedure for raw materials was shifted and assumed by the marketing specialist. The development and implementation of both a retail and wholesale price list was given major priority by the marketing specialist.

G. Early in May, requests began to come in for price quotations and other information buyers required to make their purchase decisions. It was during this month that Barricini Candy Company entered the mind of the bakery staff and SCC members. This one order was destined to revolutionize the entire bakery operation within a period offour months. Upon the consummation of the Barricini order in June for 20,000 pounds of a special fruitcake, it was obvious that the existing production staff would run into many problems in the implementation of this order. It should be pointed out that because of the lack of an experienced baker the special fruitcake for Barricini had to be developed by the marketing specialist.

It was agreed by the SCC membership that the production for the Barricini order commence on the first of July for the first 10,000 pounds to be delivered August 19, 1968, and immediately thereafter for the second 10,000 pounds to be delivered October 1, 1968. The production problems started with implementing the first shipment of the Barricini order. While the marketing specialist had pointed out to SCC members the need for an experienced baker, it was only after some 2,000 pounds of fruitcakes were unacceptable to Barricini that the members were convinced that an experienced baker was needed. Mr. John Wright, an experienced baker, met the bakery qualifications and needs and was available. His services were secured and on August 1, 1968, he started producing the first 10,000 pounds of the Barricini order and before August 20, had the entire amount completed and ready for shipment. Mr. Wright will have the second part of the order ready for shipment by September 18, 1968.

What is significant about the bakery operation since August 1, is that some important costs analyses have been secured for the first time. The SCC members had been told that the bakery was operating at a loss but without any concrete data upon which to base this statement. However, it can now be verified that the bakery operation can be financial successful. For example, Mr. Wright will report September 15, that the net income for the month of August was over $2,000. This is the first time the bakery operation this early in the season has realized a net profit of this amount. Orders have been consummated which will give a net profit in excess of this amount for October. The relatively large net income realized from the bakery operation for August should have a favorable impact upon the SCC membership. After observing Mr. Wright in operation it was obvious that our early market estimates could have been increased. This experienced baker has doubled the daily plant capacity with fewer workers.

The bakery along with other cooperatives participating in the development program entered the New York Gift Show August 18-23. The SCC sold over $600 of assorted bakery items at this show with prospects for repeat orders. Some of the other large buyers of the bakery products are Associated Cooperatives, Liberty House of New York, Greenbelt, Wisconsin Toy & Novelty Company and A & P. In addition, there are over 40 relatively small buyers.

The early plans for the bakery operation are being realized. However, other cooperative groups participating in the development program have been crippled by numerous internal problems. This marketing specialist will continue to work with the officials and other marketing specialists to overcome such built-in barriers. The success of the SCC bakery will be the tool utilized in securing market outlets for other cooperative group products and getting membership support in meeting the production requirements.

III. WHAT SHOULD BE CONSIDERED

A. One must live through the experience of the past seven months to understand fully the transformation that has taken place relative to economic or production outlook. The SCC members have moved from a five figure production goal to six figures for next year. While inefficient use of the plant will not be tolerated by members in the future, the marketing specialist is not as optimist with regard to the labor force. However, once Mr. Wright's message gets through in terms of what a person can learn about baking (if willing) the labor utilization picture should also change for the better. Mr. Wright's interest in working with people who are desirous of learning the baking business could be the impetus needed to realize some human resource development from the bakery operation. His services should be maintained.

B. Cooperative members should play a more active role in the affairs of their organization. The President, Mr. George Bowles, has committed himself to visiting the bakery at least weekly compared to several times yearly. Some cooperative members view the business operation of their organization as being synonymous with that of the development program.

C. Improvement should be made in the handling of correspondence (personal) and that related to marketing. A person's mail should never be opened and any mail related to production and/or marketing should be made immediately available to the marketing specialist. Too much time is lost between the Post Office marking on the letter and the time the mail is received. A number of orders have been missed because of an inability to follow through on requested information recorded in a personal or market related letter from a prospective buyer.

D. The mail order procedure should be centralized at the production point. It is non-economic to haul products (bakery) some 150 miles round trip just to place in mail. Centralized mailing would reduce the transportation costs ($.75 per item) and thus make the products more competitive with other bakeries producing similar products.

E. Additional clerical staff is needed. Typing and preparing mail orders, letters to the trade and other routine office matters take up a considerable part of the marketing specialist's time. However, any person hired should meet a specific need rather than being employed and creating a need based upon ability. This practice of hiring would eliminate the confusion of workers in caring out their responsibilities.

F. Cooperative members should constantly be cognizant of the image they portray to the public relative to their group and product. Any successful business must project confidence and strength rather than confusion and doubt.

G. Developing a diversified operation for the bakery should be accepted as the next first priority. A diversified bakery operation would smooth out the seasonality of fruitcake production. The plan which will be presented September 15, 1968, to SCC members for the walk-in trade at the bakery should be given major consideration.

Finally, SCC membership could learn from the past in building for the future. The bakery would have been in a stronger competitive position when bidding for orders if the services of a person with Mr. Wright's experience was available early in February or even June.

REPORT TO THE SOUTHERN CONSUMERS' BOARD OF DIRECTORS

by
T. T. Williams

New Iberia, Louisiana September 15, 1968

This is a summary report of my marketing activities from February through August, 1968. Considerable progress has been made along the marketing front since we last met. With August being about my halfway point of tenure with the Cooperative Development Program, this report will review with the Board some accomplishments and point out some suggestions for improving the marketing activity of the bakery.

A. SOME SPECIFIC ACCOMPLISHMENTS OF SOUTHERN CONSUMERS' BAKERY

1. At my first meeting in February, it was announced that my services as a marketing specialist were available to the Southern Consumers' Cooperative and the Board and membership were asked for their support and suggestions for the development of the marketing activity for the bakery.

2. Early in the program over 2,000 letters were sent to the trade and advertising media informing them of the program and soliciting their support.

3. This marketing specialist worked closely with the other marketing specialists and groups participating in the Cooperative Development Program. We developed a means of communication to keep each other abreast of marketing developments.

4. The urgency of the health conditions at the bakery demanded my major attention during the first two months with the program. The bakery was on the verge of being closed by health officials because neither the facility nor the employees met the Louisiana health standards.

5. A production goal for 1968 was developed and received the Board's approval. Last year (February to February) the total bakery production was 11,422 pounds. It was projected that 35,507 pounds would be produced this year. With the peak season yet to come, the bakery production goal is about 75 per cent realized.

6. Some of the larger orders confirmed are Barricini, 20,000 lbs.; Associated Cooperatives, 2,440 lbs.; Liberty House, 245 lbs.; Fort Polk, 1,000 lbs.; The Greenbelt Cooperative, 1160 lbs.; Wisconsin Toy and Novelty Store, 480 lbs.; A&P, 840 lbs.; the Gift Show, 311 lbs.; and over 600 lbs. of small orders (mail) shipped or received for shipment. Retail mail orders will increase in the immediate weeks ahead and repeat orders from some of the wholesale sales should be forthcoming.

7. About midway in the seven-month period a Fund Raising Project was developed. A number of requests for material have been answered but no definite orders have been received. A mail order Fund Raising List has been received but due to inadequate labor, stamps and other barriers, it might not be possible to capitalize on this activity in 1968.

8. At an early period, the approval by the health officials of the bakery employees and labels was secured. The bakery is now approved for Kosher production and as a source of supply for defense supply procurement. This year for the first time the bakery products will be sold in the Fort Polk Commissary, England Air Force Commissary and the A&P Stores in Louisiana. All products in the following A&P Stores will be sold under the Southern Consumers' Bakery labels: Baton Rouge, New Iberia, Jennings, Opelousas, Abbeville, Ville Platte, Denham Springs, Lafayette, Franklin and Morgan City. Plans are underway to get in the A&P Stores in Crowley, Lake Charles and Texas--the latter cities are within the territory covered by the Dallas, Texas office. There is a good chance Southern Consumers' Bakery products will be sold in the Barksdale Commissary in Shreveport, Louisiana and if time and traveling funds permit we hope to get the bakery products in additional commissaries throughout the country. Southern Consumers' bakery products must be sold in a minimum of 20 commissaries before the Cooperative's bakery name is placed on the official advertised Source for Government Procurement.

10. The approval of the bakery as a supplier of products to be sold in the states of Pennsylvania and Connecticut was secured about two months ago.

11. You are aware that it was necessary for the marketing specialist to supervise the initial ordering of supplies for the Barricini order and at times the production. This was carried on while planning labels, price lists and following through with contacts made with buyers. The above activity did not minimize my contact with the bakery staff during the early period of the Barricini production schedule.

12. The most encouraging part of my marketing activity was to observe the Barricini order revolutionize the major thrust of the bakery staff and the total cooperative membership. This one order was the impetus needed to launch the bakery operation into the big business oriented toward economic development. It is my strong belief that from this one order the bakery operation will never be the same again for this Board will never again accept an annual production goal of 35,000 pounds of gourmet bakery products. The production goal next year should be over ten times this year's target if present contacts and expertise developed are fully utilized.

13. Some cost estimates for bakery products were developed. One hastens to add that the early cost estimates were later revised after it was demonstrated that earlier estimates of the bakery capacity were grossly understated. Again, it was the Barricini order that provided the bakery staff with an opportunity to mass produce and to secure some concrete production cost figures.

14. The need for a middle price gourmet fruitcake was recognized. As a follow through on the Barricini Cake, a Evangeline Joy Fruitcake was introduced. In addition, the Variety Pack (Assortment of gourmet bakery products) has been introduced. Both the Evangeline Joy and Variety Pack are selling extremely well.

15. Lastly, the bakery products were entered in the New York Gift Show August 18-23). The Federation of Southern Cooperatives rented space at the show and permitted the bakery products to be exhibited free of charge. The pralines sold extremely well. Letters were sent to officials of the Federabion thanking them for providing Southern Consumers' Bakery with an opportunity to display their gourmet bakery products at this show. Plans are underway to participate in a similar show early in 1969.

B. MAJOR SUGGESTIONS FOR THE IMPROVEMENT OF THE BAKERY OPERATIONS

What is significant about the bakery orders received up to this time is that they represent the first major breakthrough in the South in general and the national chains in particular. This exposure of the gourmet products is important for the bakery sales effort both for this year and future years. However, when one totals up the accomplishments he should not be lead to believe that the job is complete nor should he become complacent by the obvious accomplishments.

There have been problems and this Board should be appraised of the major problems. Unless the Board gives its support in overcoming some of these problems, the success of the bakery during the past seven months will not be sustained in the immediate weeks ahead when the mail order sales will be the major market outlet.

I think that underlying the seven specific problems enumerated below is the general belief on the part of the Southern Consumers' membership that the Cooperative Development Program is synonymous with Southern Consumers and that the Cooperative Development staff can oversee the activities of Southern Consumers' Cooperative. This belief is supported by my observations during the past seven months as a marketing specialist and my close association with SCC prior to the funding of the Cooperative Development Project. Here are seven points SCC Board should address itself to in the immediate days ahead.

1. More visits should be made to the bakery for appraisal of the bakery operation. A number of Board members have started doing this.

2. It is necessary that the Board insist that mail related to marketing be channeled promptly to the proper individuals. Letters have been received several days or weeks after the Lafayette, La. postmark date. It is imperative that requests for marketing information be answered immediately if the orders are to have any chance of being consummated.

3. There is a urgent need to improve upon the mail order procedure. I would strongly recommend that all mailing be done at the Lake Charles office. This procedure should reduce the transportation costs and make the bakery products more competitive. A shipping charge of $.75 per product is in line if the products are transported from Lake Charles to Lafayette for mailing but transportation costs could be reduced considerably if the products are mailed in Lake Charles where they are manufactured.

4. You should give some consideration to securing additional staff or insist that some priority be given to specific jobs requiring urgent consideration. Major efforts have been made to get out the Fund Raising List only to be told that the stamps were out, envelopes in short supply, or there was no Fund Raising material. The bakery is in need of additional wholesale price lists to mail out. Another week's delay might be too late for instigating the fruitcake Fund Raising Project this year or sending out the wholesale price lists.

5. It is urgent that every member start portraying an image to the public of confidence and strength rather than hopelessness and doubt. The bakery operation has a success story to tell and should be capitalized on to offset the rush of some members to withdraw their savings. Tell the success story and tell it loud and clear for it is a beautiful success story the membership has helped to write in a relatively short period of seven months.

6. It is not too early to start planning for the nonfruit cake season. The Board should support a diversified plan for the bakery. Fruitcake production is still a seasonal operation; thus, there is an urgent need to plan now for the months after December.

7. Mr. John Wright has presented some interesting figures relative to the potential for the walk-in bakery trade and the Board might want to consider the points he presented in planning for next year. Mr. Wright's services should be secured on a long-term contract. Since coming with the bakery on August 1, he has been an asset to the bakery operation.

Finally, the bakery staff should be congratulated for the manner in which they have met what many considered the almost impossible delivery schedule for bakery products in August. A net income in August of $2,594.50 is a testimony to the hard work and perseverance of the bakery staff and this Board. Because of this effort, orders are already consummated which will overshadow the August net income figure for the bakery and we have no doubt that the efficient bakery staff under this Board's leadership will again meet the delivery schedule. Some other sales possibilities are being considered which will be brought to your attention at a later date.

Dear T.T:

I have your letter of September 20th indicating that you need an addition of $1,000 to your travel budget. Again I must emphasize to you that your travel budget is available through the generosity and cooperation of the Southern Regional Council.

You must make your case to Paul Anthony, and in his discretion he will determine whether the additional travel budget balances against his own needs and priorities so that it is justifiable. I note that you sent him a copy of the letter to me, and this is fine.

Mr. Anthony has a deep commitment to the work you are engaged in, and I believe he is in a better position than I to pass on this matter. Moreover, there is no way in which I could provide the money directly to you.

Sincerely yours,

Christopher F. Edley

Dear Paul:

I simply cannot get T. T. Williams to understand his relation to you and that you make the decisions on his expenses. I refer to his letter of the 20th to me in which he requests me to approve another $1,000 of travel money. My reply is attached.

Be sure to let Basil Whiting and me know the exact amount to be added on to your grant to defray this expense. As I have indicated to you, the figure is flexible; I assume it will be somewhere between $30,000 to $40,000. This of course is only a rough estimate subject to change and depends on your evaluation of the need.

Sincerely yours,

Chris

Dear Chris:

I would appreciate a minimum addition of $1,000.00 to my travel budget. This amount will carry me through the remaining four and one-half months remaining with the program.

Recently, I was informed that my travel budget was less than $800.00. Since that time, all my travel expenditures have been withheld but not at the expense of contacting and following through with prospective buyers. If my travel expenditures were brought up to date, the original budget would be depleted.

We have just received another order for 15,000 pounds of fruitcake with 7,000 pounds to be delivered immediately and the remaining later. This order will put us far over our 1968 projected goal. I feel sure that you would agree with me that we have made tremendous progress with the original travel budget and I would like to see this thrust continue.

During the remaining months plans will be implemented to develop the Fund Raising Project, the walk-in business at the bakery, package design and following with contacts made with buyers for this year and next year's sales.

Your prompt approval of this request will be appreciated.

Very truly yours,

Dear Chris:

As you will see from the enclosed letter we have increased the travel funds for T. T. Williams by $1,000. I do believe this increase is justified on the basis of his recent activities and production.

This will mean that the total costs by SRC of Williams's work; salary, travel, and insurance, will be slightly in excess of $26,500 and this is the amount which we would appreciate having from the Foundation at your convenience.

Warm regards.

Dear Mr. Anthony:

Thank you for the additional $1,000.00 for telephone and travel.

The latest financial report for the bakery shows a net profit from August 1, through September 31, 1968, of $5,252.99. Total production for this period was $21,905.51. We should end the year with a net profit of over $10,000.00. The additional funds will contribute enormously to our marketing efforts.

Dear Chris:

I am enclosing a summary report of my activities during the past weeks. Needless to say, I am not satisfied with the total accomplishments. However, as I approach the home stretch of my tenure with the Development Program and the beginning of the fruitcake season, I am encouraged by the sources from which our orders are coming.

Listed below is an example of the size orders generated during recent months. What is significant in analyzing this list is that stores in the South are represented. It should be pointed out that these are orders which were not reported in my last report to you.

A large number of other orders ranging in size from $40.00 and below have been received since October. While these order were thought of as large last year, the staff now refers to them as small orders. I would say that this is progress.

A REPORT OF MARKETING ACTIVITIES

For the past weeks my prior marketing efforts have begun to pay off. The bakery sales are closely approaching $40,000--most of this since August. I am convinced that total sales at the end of my year's stay with the program in February, 1969, will be in the neighborhood of our $50,000 estimate.

Just recently the contract with all A&P stores in all of Louisiana was consummated when the order from the Dallas, Texas regional office was received. Prior to that time an order from the A&P New Orleans regional office was consummated. It is quite gratifying to hear the cooperative members say that they saw their fruitcake on the shelves of A&P stores in Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas--stores served by the two regional offices of the A&P chain.

Earlier in the season I challenged the established cooperatives to match the Barracini order for fruitcake. Preliminary figures show that this has been accomplished. In fact, the established cooperatives have been quite helpful in the bakery marketing efforts and I have confidence that it is a sincere gesture based on sound economics.

With the contacts made during the year through group meetings, new releases, letters and personal visits to prospective buyers, I am convinced that the mail order business from now until the end of the season will triple last year's sales for bakery products. What is significant about this is that now the board and cooperative members know what their bakery operation can accomplish in terms of providing employment or the economic development of people. The six bakery workers have had to operate at full capacity since August in order to get the backlog of orders out by the requested dates. This type of involvement has definitely set a standard of performance for the bakery and with the proper follow-through next year the business should realize a fourfold increase over this year.

During the remaining of my stay with the program efforts will be undertaken to push the non-seasonal bakery products (pralines and spiced pecans). However, emphasis will be placed on improving both the packaging and visual materials concerning all products. I am already in contact with Mr. Stanley Selengut on implementing these ideas.

It should be pointed out that with the new display showcases at the bakery, which were recently purchased, the walk-in business has shown remarkable success. Sales from the walk-in trade, which should take up some of the seasonal slack in fruitcake sales, increased from $296 in August to $750 in October. This was accomplished with a minimum of advertising or sales effort since the major thrust was toward the sale and production of fruitcakes. However, with sales efforts directed toward this market in the immediate months ahead the walk-in trade will become an important entity of the bakery business.

I would not want to end this brief report without mentioning some of the problems. Certainly all the market contacts made did not result in a sale even though sometimes the effort looked promising. As you know, this failure to consummate a sale is typical in the business. Probably the most disappointing marketing effort was with the military installations. I am sure that this market can be cultivated for next season. The other problem relates to the management at the bakery. There is still a bakery management problem but now that the board and cooperative members can quantitate by comparing what this year's thrust has accomplished I am convinced that the climate is conducive for carrying through with needed management changes for the fullest use of personnel. Already one can see a constructive change in attitude and concern relative to the bakery management. At one time there was a feeling among a number of the board members that the marketing effort was doomed to failure since orders did not began flowing in immediately upon my coming with the program. After some large orders were consummated, the concern shifted to a disbelief that a large order could be met productionwise. This, too, was refuted. More recently, the concern has been concentrated on the continuation of the marketing thrust even though it was early thought that the first big order was a one-shot deal. The repeat of the Barracini order along with a number of other large orders was a primary force in changing the outlook of the board and membership from one of pessimism to optimism. The repeat orders served to convince the group that the marketing effort was undertaken on a sound business basis and that following accepted business procedures will result in larger repeat orders another year. The point that should be emphasized is that my marketing efforts in the past months have reoriented the thinking of the group about the importance of sound business while at the same time brought to the forefront the importance of a coordinated and efficient management team. The success of the business in future years will be directly related to the degree in which the group will address themselves to constructive answers to the management dilemma. I am encouraged by the observation that the climate and conditions are conducive to a meaningful and useful dialogue on the management problem.

Keeping the bakery staff busy with orders did not allow time for petty issues but the old issue of black versus white still prevails. Mr. Wright (white) has the qualifications and expertise for gourmet baking while the other staff members (Negro) feel that they should be doing the job even though they are not qualified. I have had to use all kinds of diplomatic tactics during the peak of the production period to maintain a harmonious working relationship between the two groups; for as I reported sometime ago it would have been practically impossible to meet the large order production schedule without a person of Mr. Wright's ability. Now that most of the large orders have been met immediate attention must be given to the development of a smooth bakery operation oriented toward economic objectives. I am hopeful that this can be accomplished and will use my influence and know-how to see that it is done both for the success of the group, the Development Program, and the marketing thrush generated during the past months. It is my hope that after the holiday season when I submit my final report for the year that a constructive solution to this management impasse will have been worked out.

It should be mentioned that I was nominated and elected to the Cooperative League of the USA Board at their last semi-annual meeting. Assuming the position of a board member with this organization will be quite helpful in the continuation of an economically beneficial dialogue among emerging cooperatives among low-income groups and the established cooperatives affiliated with the Cooperative League. While a number of established cooperatives have been helpful in expanding the marketing thrust this year over last year's, there are still additional ways by which the developed cooperatives can assist emerging cooperatives among low-income people. As a board member of the League I will pursue some of these avenues.

I hope that before my departure from the program in February we can arrange for a face to face discussion or review of the points enumerated in some of my reports relative to the marketing program.

Dear Mr. Williams:

Thank you for your letter expressing your pride in the increasing success of the Southern Consumers Bakery. We are very appreciative of the efforts you have made in their behalf.

Your services to the bakery were provided, as you know, by the generosity of the Southern Regional Council, in order to meet the immediate needs of the Southern Cooperatives Development Project for marketing expertise. Now that the S.C.D.P. and the Federation of Southern Co-ops are becoming fully staffed and operational, the need for full-time individual assistance has lessened. We therefore will not be able to be part of any arrangements extending your formal relationship with the bakery beyond January 31st.

Thank you again for participating in our general efforts to help Southern Cooperatives and in particular for your assistance to the bakery.

Sincerely yours,

(Mrs.) Hilary S. Feldstein
Assistant Program Officer

SOUTHERN CO-OP News

VOLUME II Number 1 January, 1969 Lafayette, Louisiana 70501

From The Director's Desk

Dear Field Workers:

There is a bill called " The Community Self-Determination Act, " which has the potential to help black people much more than the War on Poverty. This bill is expected to be President-elect Nixon's first piece of legislation. It is designed to make slum dwellers into capitalists.

This proposal has already been introduced into the last Congress by a bi-partisan, ideologically-diverse group of 34 senators.

The legislation would provide federal tax incentives and government insured loans to community corporations to provide a flow of capital for new businesses. It also would allow the creation of community development corporations, chartered by the residents of low-income, high-unemployment areas, both urban and rural. The community corporations would operate within a self-defined community area, ranging from 5,000 to 300,000 people. After 10% of the over 16 population in the community pledged to buy stock, a corporation could be established.

Each Community Development Corporation would buy and manage productive business enterprises in the community and use the profits to finance its own educational and social service programs.

AGRICULTURAL CO-OP MANAGERS MEET

The Managers of agricultural co-ops in the Federation met for a Management Development Seminar from December 27-29, 1968 at SWAFCA's headquarters in Selma, Alabama.

The seminar attended by forty co-op managers, board members and other personnel was devoted to planning and training for farmers co-ops.

The first session was devoted to a discussion of marketing problems of fresh and processed produce. Mr. Ollie Hall, the Federation's Marketing Specialist and his new assistant, Lavelt Steptoe, discussed marketing prospects for the co-ops. They stressed the need: 1) for farmers to follow good agricultural practices in using good fertilizers and insecticides, 2) to secure large volumes of produce, and 3) to be sure of having a quality product.

Each co-op listed its goal in acreages of different crops. Among the co-ops present there were about 2,500 acres each of Clemson Spineless Okra and pickling cucumbers. The participants chose a committee to meet with processors and negotiate contracts on behalf of the Federation member's total acreage.

The members of this committee are: Mr. Ollie Hall, Mr. Steptoe, Mr. Robert Miles, President of West Batesville Farmers Co-op, Mr. Wilbert Guillory, Grand Marie Co-op, and a representative of SWAFCA.

From the Director's Desk
continued ....

There was a National Conference on the Community Development Corporation bill in Philadelphia in order to study the bill in relation to the black community.

After much debate and disagreement the group finally agreed to ask the congressional group sponsoring the Community Development Act to grant a moratorium. The group endoursed the principle of self determination but wanted the process inaugurated immediately to effect self determination even in this bill.

A Black Task Force was organized to enlist a broader representation in the black community. Recommendations and suggestions will be solicited and a bill incorporating these ideas will be presented to a national convention scheduled for February.

ATTENTION HANDICRAFT and MANUFACTURING COOPERATIVES

The New York Gift Show will be held from February 23 through 28. Handicraft and manufactoring cooperatives are encouraged to send their products to the Federation of Southern Cooperatives, for display at the gift show.

Last year the Federation was able to generate more than $10,000. in sales for several of the cooperatives. In addition, these cooperative products were made known to hundreds of buyers throughout the country.

Any cooperative wishing to participate should send samples of their products immediately to:

Mr. Bill Farmer of the Federation staff discussed some of the responses he had received from fertilizer companies to the recent suggestion that all co-ops buy together. The Federation members use between 10,000 to 15,000 tons of fertilizer each year on their farms. The Federation plans to keep all the co-op managers informed on further negotiations with fertilizer companies. One plan discussed at the meeting was for all co-ops to buy from one company this year to demonstrate the strength of our volume and use this for further bargaining. We also listed some other products that the Federation could help to buy in volume for us, e.g.: insecticides, appliances, toys at Christmas.

The rest of the meeting was devoted to working on interpretation of financial statements, budget planning and the manager's role in membership education.

" HAPPY DAYS ARE HERE AGAIN," says Mr. Hurley Mose

To give aid to already existing co-ops as well as to new co-ops is a common practice and goal of Southern Cooperative Development Program. As organizers, I'm sure you have encountered problems that individuals face that are not common to a group of people.The following message tells of such an instance where a poor man was being sued for failing to repay a loan from a community bank.

Mr. Hurley Mose, a school bus driver who is the father of six children, made a loan agreement with a bank in his home town of Ville Platte, La. A loan which almost proved to be detrimental to his entire family. The loan was for the purpose of purchasing a school bus, which would supply him with a job and means of support for his family.

The bank's representative explained to Mr. Mose that he would be given seven years to repay the loan. This verbal agreement was satisfactory to Mr. Mose, however, as it turned out it was only a verbal agreement. The written signed contract stated that Mr. Mose had a three year period to repay the entire loan.

Mr. Mose is a poor man who cannot read or write fluently. However, he can sign his name. When he signed the loan contract he thought he was signing the verbal agreement, which was to repay the loan within seven years.

Three years after signing the contract, Mr. Mose was approached by representatives of the bank. They required him to pay the balance of the loan or face loosing his farm which was mortgaged by the bank.

It was at this point that I was contacted by a member of Mr. Mose's family and asked to help. I immediately looked into the matter and found that the bank was within its legal rights, as far as Mr. Mose having to pay the balance of the loan immediately. The problem now become clearer. It was a matter of finding $8,400. After searching three or four days we were able to find a very kind man who was willing to give Mr. Mose the loan at no interest. This was a big day for Mr. Mose as well as for the SCDP Staff. It was a reason to celebrate. And we did. Mr. Mose phrases everyones feelings very well when he said, " happy days are here again."

This is a very good example of how the black man is been exploited and how, if we work together, we can combat this exploitation and win justice. This one battle has been won but the war is not over yet. We invite you to join our crusade against those who would resort to trickery, bribery and out right discrimination to keep the black man in his so called "place".

FERTILIZER CONTRACTS OFFER BIG SAVINGS

The Federation of Southern Cooperatives is now in the process of securing contracts for farmer cooperatives in the purchase of fertilizer. The Federation has contacted the major fertilizer producers in the South.

By purchasing on a volume basis, a cooperative can make considerable savings on fertilizer purchases. SWAFCA has recently purchased 2,600 tons of fertilizer from SWIFTS at a savings of more than $3. a ton.

Any cooperative interested in purchasing fertilizer should contact Bill Farmer of the Federation of Southern Cooperatives, at ... 52 Fairlie St., N.W., Atlanta, Georgia.

EDUCATION IN THE COOPERATIVE MOVEMENT

It is basic to all organizational work in the cooperative movement that the approach to people must be educational, that people adopt cooperative attitudes through the gradual process of education, and that progress in cooperatives results from a variety of educational activities. The efforts of those who set out to organize co-ops, are doomed to failure unless they regard their work as education. Good cooperatives cannot be organized except on a foundation of knowledge and understanding by both co-op directors and members.

It has been said that cooperation is an economic movement employing educational action. The statement would be no less true if it were reversed. The cooperatives is an educational movement employing economic action. Education is a vital part of the spirit of the cooperative.

Report for Year 1972-1973

SOUTHERN CONSUMERS COOPERATIVE

SUBJECT: ACADIAN DELIGHT BAKERY AND BUSINESS OF S.C.C.

During the year 1972, Small Business had us spend $6,000.00 for remodeling the bakery. This was one of the demands made to secure an 8-A set aside contract. However, upon completion of remodeling the bakery, and passing the inspection, we did not receive the contract. Through a telephone conversation, I was told that there was no 8-A contracts available, but they would never put this in writing. In 1972, we cut half our lost, and is hoping that 1973 this year we will brake even.

Too much emphasis has been placed on the out-of-state sales in individual businessmen buying cakes for gifts, fun raising and individual contacts. This year we plan to put emphasis on local areas of Lafayette, New Iberia, Lake Charles, Opelousas, Baton Rouge, New Orleans, Alexandria, Shreveport, and Monroe. The only out-of-state sales we plan to put a little effort in are, Beaumont, Houston, Port Arthur, and Dallas which will be by direct marketing, newspaper ads, and individual mail orders. We hope to spend our marketing money this year on Direct Mailing.

I plan to buy two mailing list, people who buy fruitcakes and pecans. In 1972, we bought 5000 names. Our return was 3%. In 1969 when we orginally borrowed from you, experts told us we would become profitable by selling through brokers, but instead it proved to be unsuccessful. I am hoping that you will bare with us. We do see signs of success, we know now its not an overnight venture. We have come to the conclusinn that more emphasis should be placed on the businesses that we have now which are making money for us.

These businesses will be tools for making us self supporting and help make a large enough profit for expansion. These businesses are Real Estate, Trailer Park, The Loan Company, and Office Space Rentals. We are now in the process of buying 2 1/2 acres of land to build an office building to rent out, and create a second trailer park. This will cost approximately $150,000.00 These businesses on a small scale have proven to be a success.

A STORY OF HOPE

HISTORY OF SOUTHERN CONSUMERS' COOPERATIVE

by Rev. Albert McKnight, C.S.Sp.
Founder of Southern Consumers'

"Greater than the tread of mighty armies is the idea whose time has arrived."

Southern Consumers' Cooperative was conceived and organized as an attempt to ignite the spark of motivation for self-improvement in the minds and in hearts of many deprived, depressed and disheartened people of low-income in Southwest Louisiana.

Louisiana has the country's highest or next to highest adult illiteracy rate, and Vermilion Parish has one of the highest rates of the sixty-four civil parishes in Louisiana. I was stationed in Vermilion Parish, in the town of Abbeville and serving the Mission Church in Kaplan. During that time, with assistance of the Grail, we began formal adult literacy classes, which met with dismal failure We found ourselves with more teachers than students The people just were not interested in learning. They had made it this far in life without knowing how to sign their names and they could not see that knowing how to read and write would better their condition at this late stage in life

This indicated that the desire for self-improvement must precede any efforts toward self-improvement, and that ways and means of instilling such desires must be found. After much study and searching we found that the philosophy of the cooperative movement as expounded by the Antigonish Movement seemed to be the perfect instrument towards enkindling desires for self-improvement.

The Antigonish Movement (founded in Antigonish, Nova Scotia), is based upon five principles:

1) The primacy of the individual -- man is made to the image and likeness of God. The individual therefore is more important than money. From this flows the democratic principle that each member has only one vote no matter how many shares he owns; one member, one vote.

2) Genuine social reform in a democracy must come through the actions of the citizens. Real social progress can only be achieved if there is an improvement in the quality of the people themselves. That improvement in turn, can come only through education.

3) Adult education must begin with economic problems. We all know the importance of motivation in education. It is even more vital in adult education. You are best able to motivate adults by dealing with problems which they feel to be most pressing. Since most adults in the low economic status are constantly struggling with economic problems, you begin with the economic.

4) Adult education must be through group action. Group action is natural to man and the problems to be solved are group problems. Therefore effective adult education must fit into this basic group organization of society.

5) Effective social reform involves fundamental changes in social and economic institutions.

The ultimate objective of the cooperative movement is a full and abundant life for everyone in the community. Economic cooperation is the first step and only the first step toward a society which will permit every individual to develop fully his capabilities.

In these basic principles we had a course of action. . . . a guide line toward motivating people in the low economic group, toward enkindling the fire of hope in a better tomorrow. Guided by the philosophy of the Antigonish Movement we slowly, step by step mapped out a program.

Our first step was to organize a Credit Union, which is a cooperative association organized to promote thrift among its' members and to provide a source of credit for provident or productive purposes. Because the organizational structure of a credit union is simple and can be started with a few members and a limited amount of capital, it is usually the first type of cooperative organized.

Credit Unions are corporations chartered by the Federal or State government to operate among well-defined groups with a strong common bond. The members save their money together and from the money saved they borrow at very reasonable interest rates. Through running their own credit unions and handling large sums of money the members are educated in money management. They learn about the complex business of credit. They receive advice on how to save, when to borrow, how to budget. For many, this is their first experience with business. Of more value, many members get their first experience in group action and receive training in cooperation and in leadership.

Consequently, twenty-five of our initial group began meeting together to discuss and learn together, the operations of a credit union. In December of 1960 we organized ourselves and invested $5.00 each, which represents one share in the credit union. We were then ready to apply for a Federal Charter; following our acceptance as a qualified group, we had an organizational meeting in which a board of directors consisting of five members and a credit committee consisting of three members were elected. The board of directors is a policy making body, establishing the policies for the credit union within the framework and by-laws set up by the Federal Bureau of Credit Unions. The credit committee is the group who approves or disapproves of all loan applications. They use the criteria of character and ability to repay the loan, as well as the purpose of the loan.

The motto of the credit union is: "Not for profit, not for charity, but for service." The credit union is not out to make huge profits by usury nor does it have money to give away. Its purpose is to help those who are interested in helping themselves. Hence loans are made only to those members who have good character, the ability to repay the loan, and who want the money for a provident or productive purpose

We were instrumental in organizing seven credit unions in a period of two years and they all faced basically the same troubles and obstacles.

Lack of understanding of the cash flow of money caused many people to be hesitant to save. They thought that if they saved their money and then wanted to withdraw it after someone else had borrowed it that they would have to wait until the borrower had repaid his loan completely.

Those who needed to borrow were reluctant in applying for a loan because they did not want their friends to know that they had to borrow money. They preferred borrowing from the finance companies and paying higher interest rates in order to keep their transactions secret.

It was some time before the official family could be made to understand that the credit union was not a fraternity but a business and had to be operated in a business manner. Policies had to be established but also had to be changed as financial conditions changed. Each loan application had to be judged on it own merits. It was only time and experience which finally taught them that loans could not be made to everyone simply because the person was a member. Often we heard: "Well you loaned money to John, why not Tom. He's a member." It was the fraternity mentality; what you did for one you had to do for all, otherwise you were unfair.

Despite the difficulties and obstacles the credit unions grew slowly and were able to render valuable service. There are two instances of service rendered to members which stand out very vividly in my memory. One was the illiterate man who had borrowed three hundred dollars fourteen years ago to buy some land to build a house. He had paid the interest each year and after fourteen years still owed three hundred dollars. Through a credit union loan he paid off the three hundred dollars and got title to his property for the first time. Over the fourteen years he had paid well over three hundred dollars in interest.

The second case was a family of twelve whose house had been destroyed by a tornado. The Red Cross had promised to help them rebuild provided however they could acquire clear title to their property which had a seven hundred dollar mortgage. No bank or other lending agency would lend them the money without a mortgage. The credit union made them a signature loan for seven hundred dollars, enabling them to have clear title to the property. With the assistance of the Red Cross they built their home.

Credit unions encourage Christian living and give heart to money matters. Credit union philosophy is religion in action in the economic field. It enables people to join their fellowmen in doing the things necessary to make their lives more secure and the world a better place to live.

After the first credit union started to operate with a degree of proficiency, we began a buyers club. Each member invested five dollars. With the money we bought some grocery items wholesale and the members bought them at retail prices. We used the storeroom in the Church hall to store the goods. The members took turns acting as salesmen.

This was an excellent training school giving members experience in running a business. They had to decide on what goods to buy, what mark-up to make and how to advertise them. Every three months the profits were distributed to the members in the form of patronage dividends according to the profits and the amount of groceries each one had purchased. The members learned the advantage of patronizing their own store.

The original idea in starting the Buying Club was that it would gradually grow into a full size grocery store. But after a year's experience we decided that this method was too slow, the town too small and even if we were highly successful, nothing significant would have been accomplished. So we started searching for a new approach.

In the summer of 1961, through contact with the director of the recreational center in Lafayette, we heard about an investment group of seven men who were saving ten dollars monthly to invest in a business once sufficient capital was accumulated. I was invited to one of their meetings and given the opportunity to explain the principles of cooperation. The members were interested and asked me to return, which I did. Meanwhile I learned of another investment group in New Iberia and attended one of their meetings and spoke to the group about the principles of cooperation.

The Lafayette group after several months decided to contact the leaders of all the social groups in the city to find out whether they would be interested in spearheading a cooperative enterprise. Two ladies came. Another attempt was made. One showed up the second time. We then decided not to limit it to Lafayette but to invite all the people from the various towns who had shown some interest in starting a business.

Twenty-two people from Kaplan, Abbeville, New Iberia, Lafayette, Opelousas and Eunice attended that meeting. After a lengthy discussion on the goals and purpose of the group, they decided to organize and act as a steering council.

On May 21, 1961, officers were elected. Each officer came from a different town, the president from Opelousas, vice-president from Abbeville, recording secretary from Lafayette, financial secretary from New Iberia and the treasurer from Kaplan. The group decided upon a five dollar membership fee to help defray the organizational costs. This proved to be a very wise decision because we did not have to use any of our share money for organizational expenses.

Not one of the original seven from Lafayette joined because as I learned later, they thought since they were the first ones to have had the idea and had extended the invitation to the others, they should have been the elected officials.

At first the entire group met in a different town each month in order to spread the word and interest more people in joining. After several months with the membership expanding we decided that each town should organize its own local group, with its own officers. Each group would meet monthly and have its members save at least one dollar each month. In January we would hold our first congressional meeting--a meeting of delegates from all the towns which had organized local groups. Each local group would be allotted five voting delegates and this Congress would have full authority over the co-op until it was incorporated and the first board of directors would be elected.

On January 14, 1962 the first congress of the co-op convened at Heymann recreational center in Lafayette. There were delegates from twelve town. The officers of the steering council were approved as officers of the congress. A by-laws committee was established to work towards legal incorporation. Educational, membership and business committees were also appointed. Congress decided to meet monthly, alternating from town to town to allow members and other interested parties to attend the congressional meetings and become better acquainted with what was happening.

By August we had reached the stage where we were ready to have subscription contracts signed and to start receiving payments on them. Each share was set at twelve dollars and fifty cents par value. All members were required to sign a subscription contract stating that in one's lifetime they would purchase twenty-four shares at least. This requires each member to invest three hundred dollars in the co-op.

If we ever hoped realistically to accumulate a large sum of capital, many people investing a sizeable amount of money would be needed. After much debate we decided that three hundred dollars was an attainable amount. Since we were trying to attract not only those in the middle class bracket but primarily those of low-income we had to make the payments within their reach. So it was decided to accept payments as little as one dollar a month.

Collectors, known as custodians were appointed for each area, the larger areas having several depending upon the size of their membership. These were bonded. In each area a checking account was opened with only the officers of the board of directors being able to withdraw money from the account. The monthly bank statements were sent directly to the Central office which was located at the Grail House in Lafayette.

The custodians deposited the money collected in the local bank. Once a month he sent a report of money collected to the central office. It took about six months to establish the accounting procedures and to get everything functioning smoothly. The volunteer assistance of members of the Grail especially during this trying period proved invaluable. Without their assistance we would never have been able to accomplish what we did.

Being advised to provide a service to the members we decided to apply for a credit union charter for the cooperative. After four months of being interviewed and checked several times by representatives from the state league and from the Federal Bureau of Credit Unions in Dallas, our application for a charter was finally rejected on the grounds that our bond of membership was not common enough. The Bureau told us to apply again after we were in business.

In June of 1963 we had a business course given by Dr. Gloster an economist from Houston and Fr. Joseph Schiffer, S. J. from New Orleans. Dr. Gloster informed us of the efforts of a group in Houston to open a bank and advised us to begin in the financial field with a small loan company and gradually work our way towards a savings and loan company.

In seeking a small loan company charter we found out that not only did we need twenty-five thousand dollars in liquid assets but that we were expected to give ten thousand dollars to the politicians for the charter.

Later in December of the same year, through a chance conversation with a bank president we were told that we could get a regular corporation charter to discount loans at eight percent without any trouble. It took the lawyer three months to get a copy of a previous discount company and to duplicate their articles of incorporation to fit our purpose.

We then incorporated the co-op as a holding company and made the lending operation a separate entity, a subsidiary of the co-op named the People's Enterprise which makes loans only to members up to four hundred dollars.

In January of 1964 we had a brain-storming session at Southern University with a professor from U.S.L., an economy doctorate student from Houston, several professors from Southern and a couple of businessmen from the Baton Rouge area to figure out what commercial enterprise would be best for us to undertake.

From our previous experience we had agreed to several guide lines. Namely, our first industrial attempt had to be within our managerial know how. It had to be something which could start small but would have the capability of growing so that we could grow with it. It would have to be an undertaking which did not require too much capital.

After studying and reflecting on the many suggestions made, we tentatively decided to search out the possibility of marketing a quality fruit-cake for the Thanksgiving and Christmas season of 1964. Fortunately we were able to enlist the services of a food specialist from Southern University whose father had had experience in conducting a fruit-cake project at Tuskegee Institute.

An initial study was made in which the idea appeared to be very feasible. After several months exploration, a prospectus was drawn, submitting a formal request for ten thousand dollars for the fruit-cake project. The board of directors finally agreed to the project in July, 1964.

A committee of three was appointed to head the project. The cake, "Arcadiana Fruit-Cake Delight" made its debut November 1. As stated in the fruit-cake leaflet the project's aim is to promote economic activities which will provide employment opportunities for the abundant human resources of low-income families.

With the passage of the Economic Opportunity Act, new hope enlivened our small cooperative. We immediately applied for help. On November 22, 1964 word was received that our application was accepted. Much publicity and congratulations came from many sources. Ours was the first loan accepted under Title IV of Economic Opportunity Act. This $25,000 loan will allow us to expand our fruit-cake enterprise to include the production of pralines and doughnuts. We have no illusion that this small program will bring total victory to the War on Poverty in Southwest Louisiana, but we feel it is a strong beginning. The ultimate success must rest upon the determination of our people for whom this project was designed to help.

Our Story of Hope continues. It reaches out to search for new and bigger steps to make this world a better place to live.

Dear Friends,

For a long time we at Southern Consumers' have stressed the fact that we are truly self-help and our policy has been to get our friends and fellow Co-op workers to buy our products but we have not appealed directly to you for help. Now, we find ourselves in the position that we must ask your help.

We are sure that through our Newsletter and contacts with our members you are aware that for some time we have been under harassement of the local power structure. Perhaps the enclosed T. V. presentation by Fr. McKnight can best give you a complete background as to what has been happening and the final event which has made it a must to defend our rights.

We have had to turn to legal consultants to really solve this problem once and for all. We are going to Federal Court on May 4th, in an attempt to get our books back and to put an end to the harassement by the local power structure. We are trying to raise over $5,000. in order to help with the legal expenses which are involved in this case and another law suit we have pending against us. The actual cost may go up to $10,000. or more, but we have been most fortunate to get the help and services of the Lawyers' Constitutional Defense Committee. We do not have to pay for their services but we certainly feel obligated to pay for the expenses involved since they are also pressed financially.

The legal expenses have gone up as the need arises, one example would be that the lawyers have had to hire a C.P.A. to help them familiarize themselves with the technical language of accounting so that they can ask the right questions.

Any contribution you or your organization can make will be of great help to us at Southern Consumers'.

ANSWER TO: "BAN THE AUDIT"

By: Rev. A. J. McKnight, C.S.Sp.

(Following is a T.V. presentation given on April 24, 1967. It is reprinted here to attempt to clarify our position and keep you informed of the recent harrassement in our area.)

I wish to congratulate Channel 3 on their sense of fair play in giving me this opprotunity to reply to Bob Hamm's Special Report on Arpil 18th on "Ban the Audit".

First I would like to state categorically and emphatically that we have never objected to an audit of the books of Southern Consumers' Education Foundation. (I made the motion at the special Board Meeting of Acadiana-Neuf, in November, 1966, that all the programs of Acadiana-Neuf be audited, that motion was amended to read, "All the programs of Acadiana-Neuf be audited by an integrated firm.") Peat, Marwick and Mitchell of New Orleans was the firm chosen. Why is it that to this day Southern Consumers' Education Foundation's programs were the only ones audited by the auditing firm?

We do object, however, loudly and strongly to the manner in which Southern Consumers' Education Foundation books were seized by the District Attorney. We also object and will fight in the federal courts the demand that we hand over the books of Southern Consumers' Co-op, which is a private company distinct from Southern Consumers' Education Foundation and which has never received any grants from the Federal Government.

Early on Tuesday, April 11th, the District Attorney and a Deputy Sheriff walked into our office, threw an illegal subpoena on the desk and started rifling through our desk drawers and files and taking whatever he wanted of Southern Consumers' Education Foundation and Southern Consumers' Co-op records. It was only after he had transported everything in his car that we finally succeeded in contacting a lawyer who after having had the subpoena and search-warrant read to him over the telephone spoke to the District Attorney. The District Attorney then changed his tune and became more reasonable. The illegal subpoena mentioned only the records of the Foundation which were concerned with programs sponsored under Acadiana-Neuf, not the other records of the Foundation and none of the records of the Cooperative. The District Attorney then returned everything to the office and with the assistance of the staff separated the records, taking only Southern Consumers' Education Foundation records connected with programs under Acadiana-Neuf. Later some of our accounts at places where we do business were seized.

On Tuesday, April 18th, a week after our office was illegally raided by the District Attorney, a legal subpoena was issued to an officer of the Board of both, Southern Consumers' Education Foundation and Southern Consumers' Co-op.

On Wednesday, April 19th the Daily Advertiser carried a large front page article about a letter which the District Attorney wrote to Southern Consumers' to aks their cooperation in having their books audited. We received the letter two days later.

Why didn't the District Attorney send the letter requesting our cooperation with the aduit before he raided our office or before he had it printed in the Advertiser? With so many poor people in Lafayette why ask for an authorization of $10,000.00 for a third audit?

We claim that the events of the last two weeks are just another in a series of harrassments and distortions of the truth against Southern Consumers' which dates back to last September.

Back in September the Daily Advertiser started carrying a series of articles on the War on Poverty in which Southern Consumers' Education Foundation and Southern Consumers' Cooperative was involved. Many half truths and distortions were printed. Not until the 19th article did the author come for a first hand interview with our staff members.

In October a law suit was filed against the Foundation. Out of the law suit charges were made that federal funds were missing. In answer an audit of Southern Consumers' Education Foundation was made.

The Auditing Firm, Peat, Marwick and Mitchell, did not discover any missing funds but did find bad bookeeping and made recommendations which have been followed.

Then came the communist scare, created by Headline stories in the Advertiser which resulted in the State Legislative Committee of Un-American Activities Investigation. At that hearing an outside C.P.A. who never saw our books made his interpretations of the Peat, Marwick and Mitchell audit report. Why didn't the Committee get a member of this firm which performed the audit to testify?

On Friday, April 7th, Mr. James Howard a Federal Auditor finished his preliminary audit of Southern Consumers' Education Foundation programs. Based upon his findings, Mr. Walter H. Richter the Director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, Southwest Regional Office in Austin, Texas, issued the following communication: "preliminary audit report does not reveal any conduct by Southern Consumers' Education Foundation staff which could be characterized as intent to defraud the Federal Government or misappropriate Federal funds. A final statement on this issue can be expected after a full audit report has been made and the grantee has been given an opportunity to respond."

We have been accused of being communists, which the State Un-American activity legislative committee was unable to prove. We have been accused of stealing federal funds which a preliminary federal audit report does not verify.

No matter what we do to answer false charges we will be vilified.

We cannot fight, as the saying goes, City Hall. We do not have the same access to the Daily Advertiser and Television Stations as our opponents. We do not have a public relations staff and we refuse to consume all of our time answering false charges. We have decided to ignore the charges and follow the dictum of Christ, who today would be called a communist: " By their actions, you will know them."

We have however, called upon the Justice Department and the Federal Bureau of Investigation to make an investigation into the harrassment which has plagued the Foundation over the past nine months.

I would like to make the plea to the two television stations, Channel 3 and 10, to give me a half hour to tell the story of Southern Consumers' and it's purpose to the general public.

APPENDIX I

SOUTHERN CONSUMERS' EDUCATION FOUNDATION

INTRODUCTION:

Southern Consumers' Education Foundation is a non-profit, tax exempted organization founded to be the Educational arm of Southern Consumers' Cooperative. It assures the members of continuous educational programs which work hand in hand with the business phase of the Cooperative, yet separate and on its' own. Objectives and purposes of the Education Foundation are listed below:

I. OBJECTIVES (As detailed in Charter and Articles of Incorporation).

1. To educate members in the purpose of Cooperatives and the principles of cooperatives, and to carry on general educational programs through adult educational activities.

2. To educate members to function more effectively as individuals, citizens, parents, and as workers. To live more intelligently with themselves and with others.

3. To educate members that in a real democracy, people must share the responsibility for the creation and distribution of wealth.

4. To educate members to the thrill of feeling that they are masters of their destiny and that they can do something for themselves, through group action and true cooperative philosophy.

5. To achieve through education a change of quality of individuals and to instill a desire and necessity to help their fellow man.

6. To improve education, economic and political interests through group action and motivate a desire to change.

7. To share ideas, attend meetings, work together, learn together to make their communities better places to live and work.

8. To educate members in the wise use and handling and management of money.

9. To educate members to respect differences of opinion, to seek common ground and to work to put their own thinking into the good of the group, to bear criticism, to subdue jealousy.

II. ACCOMPLISHMENTS:

The Foundation has sponsored many programs under O.E.O.

This past year the Foundation sponsored Head Start in eight Civil Parishes of Louisiana, enrolling over two thousand five hundred pre-school children from poverty families. The program was a tremendous success. It also sponsored a Remedial Reading program for over fifteen hundred children and forty adults.

Southern Consumers Education Foundation through its "Sweet Potato Alert" program which was funded by O.E.O. was successful in assisting over four hundred small sweet potato farmers who were on the verge of giving up farming, to organize and operate Grand Marie Vegetable Co-op.

This Educational program has enabled the farmers to experience the benefits of group action and has helped them to identify their interests with the co-op.

Southern Consumers Education Foundation is sponsoring a management program for Vermilion Parish Federal Credit Union through an O.E.O. grant. It took this credit union six years to accumulate assets of the ten thousand dollars. Since this full time management program has been in operation this credit union has been increasing its assets at the rate of over a thousand a month. At this rate the Vermilion Parish Federal Credit Union will double its assets this year overshadowing in one year its previously five years accomplishments.

In the Grand Marie experience, as in the Foundation Head Start, Remedial Education, Food Fair (group purchasing) and Credit Union activities people who were "nobodies" in their communities became "somebodies" - savers, owners, active citizens. They have learned to articulate ideas and needs. They have seen the power of group action for achieving common goals. They have begun to control their own destinies.

A STORY OF HOPE

A PROPOSAL FOR

COOPERATIVE DEVELOPMENT AMONG LOW INCOME SOUTHERNERS

This proposal is for a two-year cooperative development program among low-income Southerners in a four state area (Louisiana, Mississippi and parts of Alabama and West Tennessee). To finance the program the Southern Consumers' Education Foundation is applying to the Ford Foundation for a grant to cover the total costs.

BACKGROUND STATEMENT

The statement of needs to be met and methods and organization to be used were formulated by a conference of southern cooperative leaders and organizers called by the Southern Regional Council, and meeting at Mt. Beulah, Mississippi, June 9-11, 1966. The statement was refined and revised in a series of meetings of a sub-committee appointed by the conference.

MT. BEULAH CONFERENCE

This conference, assembled at Mt. Beulah Conference Center, June 9-11, 1966, brought together three dozen participants, half of whom were members of low-income cooperatives, organizers connected with various human rights organizations who have helped develop cooperative projects, four O.E.O. observers, and four co-op technicians representing the Cooperative League.

The low-income members of the Mt. Beulah Conference were quite clear about some of the problems facing their cooperatives:

1. Business problems of a new cooperative.

   "A bunch of small farmers -- we'd been raising sweet potatoes but we wann't doing much good. When ya borrow money and get nothing off your crop you're in trouble. So we formed this co-op to get rid of the middle-man..."

2. Business world is a competitive world.

"We learned that sweet potatoes and fertilizer was competitive as hell! We might be fraternal inside the co-op but outside it isn't." (Quote from the President of a new vegetable cooperative.)

3. Failure of federal and state agencies to give assistance to low-income Negro farmers. (Note that in the examples cited the cooperative became a means by which the members received assistance they couldn't get individually.)

"The county agent came Tuesday. First time I ever saw him. I suppose the co-op might of brought him. If the co-op asked him to come."

A member of the vegetable co-op, "Until the co-op was organized there were no Negro sweet potato inspectors. During a meeting of the co-op someone mentioned this. The co-op sent a letter of protest to the Agricultural Department. Since that time, Negroes have passed the qualifying examination for this position. Based on individual difficulties of obtaining FHA loans in the past, the members of the cooperative were skeptical of the chances their $170,000.00 loan application had of being granted." "We expect 'em to continue stalling us until the crop's almost ready to bring in -- then they'll give us the money. Hope it ain't too late," explained one member.

4. The difficulty or impossibility of joining existing segregated cooperatives or even obtaining services from them. Those present agreed that in their areas, established co-ops in the region have been rigidly segregated for years and are not showing any inclination now to change their policies.

Members of two farmers' oil cooperatives recently organized reported that it had been impossible to join existing segregated cooperatives. The manager of one of the new cooperatives said he thought it would be impossible to integrate the existing co-ops in his county and still maintain any "cooperative" spirit among the members. Besides, he agreed why not get used to running "our own" and then maybe later on, after experience in co-ops has been gained, "merge the co-ops."

There were some who favored attempts to integrate low-income Negroes into existing segregated white cooperatives, instead of setting up competing cooperatives but none of these had personally participated in successfully integrated cooperatives where low-income Negroes were a majority or a large minority of the population.

Members of the Mt. Beulah Conference who were not themselves low income but who had helped organize cooperatives pointed out still other hazards to be avoided and difficulties to be overcome:

1. Illiteracy and semi-literacy are major problems which hold back the formation of most organizations, including co-ops, and keep them from operating properly. A major part of any co-op development program must concern itself with basic literacy.
2. It is very hard to get the poor working together except against an external group. A group organized around the issue of police brutality, for example, seems to quickly fall apart, once certain gains are made or the issue ceases to be dramatic. By organizing around economic issues using a cooperative structure, individual members of the group can sense gains at the same time the group makes gains. As we see it, the co-op remains flexible enough to work on a variety of community problems as a group, having the "steady" economic issue to hold it together. For these reasons we view the co-op mainly as a tool.

3. People, especially poor people, need to prove to themselves that they can do things themselves. Poor people suffer in nearly every phase of their lives from the basic problem of dependency upon others to do things for them. A central theme of this proposed program is that co-ops offer a tool that can be used to break this dependency cycle -- first psychologically and eventually economically.

   Electing officers, selecting managers, running businesses and planning for expansion, all help to develop the self confidence of individual members of a co-op. This also helps to increase the confidence of the members in their organization -- our program will adhere to the principle that, "nothing should be done that the people can do themselves" to best accomplish the goals of our program.

4. A fundamental need is for an initial study period before a co-op is formed. All prospective members should know exactly what they are doing and why. Feasibility studies should be done by the group of potential members for the twin reasons of "making the best possible economic use of the cooperative" and equally important, "involving the potential members in the formation of the co-op from the very beginning." Beginning by studying the problems and searching for solutions to them, education becomes an important issue in the minds of the members regarding the strength of their cooperative. Responsibilities of members, various forces in the community that effect the cooperative, the expansion and the control of the co-op are areas for further study. Thus members will discover that basic education and cooperative 'know-how' together with technical training are necessary for the success of their cooperative. As a result of this initial study period, education and training become in themselves the exciting activities which draw and keep members over the long haul replacing the temporary economic incentives.

The problem as it has been described in the preceding paragraphs is one of the undeveloped human potential, racial discrimination, and poverty problems which when, combined mean that people who suffer them, have very little, if any, control over events concerning their daily lives. A majority of efforts endeavor to solve the problem with separate programs. For instance, adult education programs, human relations courses, and community organization efforts are scattered across the South. They have achieved varying levels of success. Often, however, the person in the adult education program cannot see what relation there is between learning to read and write and some of his economic problems. Human relations courses are prone to be artificial -- Why, for instance, learn to work together, if you remain trapped in poverty?

The exchange of experience and ideas at the Mt. Beulah Conference was extraordinarily free and fruitful. One participant commented:

"The purpose of this Conference was to bring together those in the South who need technical assistance in the area of co-ops and credit unions and those who have the technical expertise which will allow them to render technical assistance to those who need it. In this sense the Conference was an unqualified success. In the two years I spent in the South, such interchanges were rare -- in fact this is the first meeting of the kind that I know of."

The Mt. Beulah Conference brought more than a free exchange of ideas. It brought creative thinking which culminated in agreement on broad outlines of an intensive five year cooperative educational and development program among low-income persons in the five states of the Deep South. The chief features of this program proposed and agreed upon at Mt. Beulah included:

1. The introduction and development of cooperatives through study action groups, to analyze their own problems and determine their own course of action.
2. The training and employment of a large number of Southerners as field workers, organizers, and educators to stimulate and guide the study-action groups in the development of the cooperatives of their choice.
3. There is a need for a Southern Cooperative Institute which will provide leadership training to leaders, members and officers as the cooperatives are organized.
4. Provision of technical assistance and guidance by a competent central staff of cooperative experts and consultants, and by maximum use locally of assistance available from government agencies.

5. Provisions of supporting simple literature, posters and audiovisual aids - all in the Southern vernacular - including the use of mobile vans, equipped with movies, for use in local group meetings.

6. Training manager, for emerging cooperatives, and providing their salaries during training, and in their initial service in a new cooperative.

7. Formation, as soon as feasible, of a federation of southern low-income cooperatives, to provide educational, auditing, counseling and managerial services for member cooperatives, taking over gradually the functions of this project.

To work out the details of this ambitious program and to solicit the funds required to put it into operation, the Mt. Beulah Conference commissioned a Continuation Committee, volunteers from the representatives of the existing low-income cooperatives, the experienced southern organizers and the Cooperative League. This committee has met several times. On July 22-23, at Atlanta, they considered a 39-page detailed "Proposal for a Cooperative Action Program for Southern Low Income Groups," embodying all the features listed above, and a five year budget totaling $7,929,700.

On September 16-17, meeting in Atlanta with Mr. Christopher Edley of the Ford Foundation, the Committee agreed to draft a revised proposal for two years instead of five, for less than a five state area, and for a starting budget of $750,000.

On October 17-18, meeting in Lafayette, Louisiana, the Committee set out guidelines, and set up a sub-committee to draft the final proposal.

On November 14-15, the committee met in Lafayette again to review the draft of the proposal and to take the first formal steps toward setting up a federation of southern cooperatives organized for and by low-income people. In addition, the group selected Southern Consumers' Education Foundation as the grantee agency.

This background information is provided to show in detail the distinctive character of this proposal.

The proposal is a blueprint for the full participation of low-income people in the cooperative action programs for their own advancement. It is more. This proposal itself is the product of such participation.

The Situation of Low-Income Southerners Considering Cooperative Action Today.

Forty-four per cent of the poverty in the United States is found in the South. Approximately five families out of every ten are poor. Twenty-nine of the thirty poorest congressional districts are in the South. Per capita income in this region is 600 dollars lower than the national average. Thirty-five percent of the housing is classed as "dilapidated." An appalling proportion of people in the rural South have so little formal education that they may be presumed to be functionally illiterate. Forty-six per cent of southern rural Negroes aged 25 or over have completed fewer than eight years of formal schooling.

Poverty in the South is unique in several ways. Forty-one percent of its population is classified as rural - the largest rural population of any region in the United States. Almost one out every two poor persons in the South is Negro. Nine million of the 11,600,000 Southern Negroes are living in poverty, a percentage reaching close to 80%, nearly double that of Southern whites. A previously "disguised unemployment" in low-income agriculture is coming out into the open as farm mechanization makes cotton choppers obsolete.

Over the past few years low-income southerners have been steadily organizing co-ops all across the "Black Belt" in an attempt to overcome the economic dependence that has kept them at the bottom of the social and economic ladder. These co-ops are generally acts of hope and vision rather than well-planned economic moves. There is generally no preplanning, no survey taken before setting up the co-op and because of the racial segregation in the South, there is almost no technical expertise available to low-income groups who are interested in organizing co-ops. Many of these co-ops are floundering and some have failed.

In many respects the situation of the underprivileged in the Deep South, both rural and urban, is like that of the millions of unemployed throughout the United States during the Great Depression of the thirties. Out of those dark days hundreds of cooperatives were born -- self-help cooperatives, buying clubs, and farmers' marketing and supply cooperatives. Many of the farmer cooperatives assisted by the then newly-created Farm Credit Administration and the Farm Security Administration, are today, large successful businesses, and their once poverty-stricken members are now prosperous farmers. Some of the buying clubs, especially those with substantial intellectual or labor leadership, have become superbly successful supermarkets with a large, prosperous membership. But the situation of the low-income groups of the Deep South today differs, in several important respects from the situation during the depression years.

1. Firstly, a majority of the South's low-income population are economically illiterate. They have never had a fair opportunity to sell their labor or their crops, or buy their supplies in a genuinely free market. They are constantly in debt or usurious terms. They have never had a chance to participate in the economic decisions which effect their own lives, individually or collectively.
2. Secondly, they lack locally trained leadership. Although within their groups there are potential leaders who could, given the proper information and training, direct and manage cooperatives successfully.
3. Thirdly, many of the low-income people are convinced that the local power structure is opposed to any improvement in their lot, and that even the local representatives of Federal agencies will not give them help to which they are legally entitled, and
4. Fourthly, the enormous technological advances of the past thirty years have greatly increased the capital required and the technical and managerial competence needed for successful cooperative businesses.

The southern Negro faces still another handicap, "psychological defeatism." Father McKnight, himself a Negro and a parish priest in a small community of underprivileged Negroes, puts in this way:

> "The Negro, having been brainwashed for centuries into believing that the white race is superior, despises himself ... They (the Negroes whom he had tried in vain to teach to read and write) suffered from a lack of ambition... Not only were they helpless, apathetic and listless, their ambitions and dreams had been suffused with despair, emptiness and hostility."

When Father McKnight discovered the use of economic motivation through cooperatives he found that despair and hostility could be successfully overcome.

TWO YEAR PROGRAM

I. OBJECTIVES:

This program will attempt to apply the cooperative organization in creative ways to the real problems of poor people. The measure of its success should be as much dependent upon the extent to which people indentify themselves with, and participate in, "their" co-ops, as it is dependent upon the economic benefits the co-op produce. If the people are truly involved in developing and operating their own co-op, they will patronize them and participate in them, and therefore, make them grow. The broad objective of this program is to develop and expand cooperatives whose owners will talk of them as "mine and ours" instead of "you all's and the co-ops." Only in this way can the individual members develop the sophistication necessary to survive in our competitive business economy. To develop such cooperatives will require technical assistance, business and management counseling, market research, packaging experiments, and a variety of other technical and consultative services.

More specifically the objectives of this program are:

1. to demonstrate on a limited scale the end result which can be achieved by various types of cooperatives organized by low-income people, with appropriate outside assistance.

2. to provide a basis for comparing the effectiveness of the various techniques of education, organization and management proposed by the Mt. Beulah Conference.

3. to combine these findings into a workable pattern of economic and social development through cooperatives that can be multiplied throughout the South.

II. COMPONENTS OF THE TWO YEAR PROGRAM:

This two-year proposal cannot meet all the hopes of the Mt. Beulah Conference. It has been carefully designed to achieve the maximum results with the limited funds likely to be available.

Two components, educational and technical, will represent the major thurst of this program. The Southerners who formulated this proposal were unanimous in their belief that the poor know what their problems are but lack organization and knowledge of the intricacies of the system in which they live to combat them adequately. There was also an unquestionable belief that to meet the general needs of people who have not had the opportunity to develop their full-potential and who suffer racial discrimination requires a program that is close to the people, uses their language, and involves the poor in changing their own lives.

A. The Educational Component:

1. The educational program must fit the local situation. The education of co-op members or prospective members must be around the problems as they arise and are recognized by the people, and not be the general theoretical training one expects from a training institute. If all the problems that might confront a co-op are laid out in front of prospective members in an abstractly prepared program, it will likely scare the people away. However, if the "source" for assistance is close by, giving the co-op assistance as each new problem arises, the group will gain strength from each problem faced and overcome. Too much education can be forced too soon. This proposal calls for 20 full time and 20 part time field workers well-trained in cooperative principles to work with the co-op as it develops, acting as the "source" from which the people can get assistance. Details of the functions of the field workers are found in the section of this proposal under Field Staff.

2. Education must be designed to bring about continued active participation in the activities of the co-op, and therefore, by extension, in the activities of the community. The members must learn to use, support and control their co-op, rather than to just join and gain the economic benefits. The education program must be concerned with keeping the groups together working and growing. It must make members realize that not just economic problems can be attacked by a group of people, but other vital issues as well. Past experiences with low-income co-ops has led us to stress in this proposal the benefits that can be brought about with a good education program.

3. Special training and educational materials need to be developed which meet the special needs of the people involved. These materials should come out of co-op organizing situations. Local idioms and speech rhythms should be used in written materials. Heavy emphasis ought to be placed on the development of new audio-visual materials because: a) there is little tradition of reading in order to learn specific information and b) the reading skills of most of the people who will use these materials is very limited. Movies, film strips, tapes, picture stories, cartoons, charts, etc., need to be developed using the people involved as the featured characters. Heavy emphasis will be placed on the development of these new audio-visual materials. New film strips, tapes, etc., need to be created because materials generally available do not deal with the problems in the southern context. In order to communicate the ideas people will have to see themselves and hear their neighbors. Otherwise a film is just a form of entertainment, not a true learning experience.

4. In order to insure that the members of the co-op have the ability to evaluate the actions of the managers, committees, and boards of directors, and thus maintain control of the co-op, there will be general training workshops held in the community to train all members in all phases of the operations.

This proposal attempts to meet this need of ensuring membership control by taking all the training and education programs possible to the entire community through the field staff and co-op experts from the central staff, as well as needed consultants. A mobile unit (perhaps a station wagon) could visit in designated areas giving week-long institutes in the communities, training all interested persons in management, principles of co-ops, duties of boards of directors, etc. This could take place in the evening while the days could be used to give intensive training to the full-time workers in the co-ops.

From the point of view of its low-income members, organizing a cooperative is not an end in itself. The cooperative rather is a tool to raise the economic status of its members. It should also develop a sense of community cooperation at all levels, and provide group and individual security for its members. It follows that the most appropriate education program is one which not only promotes group economic organization but also promotes individual participation in democratic decision making, experiences which lead to a new sense of confidence and a sense of accomplishment which becomes the basis for further development.

The aim of the proposed educational program is to produce members who understand and accept the responsibilities that go with cooperative membership and leaders who can wisely guide their groups in the search for sound cooperative businesses, and who can efficiently direct and manage those businesses when established. Such members and such leaders are not to be thought of as a means to a goal. In a truer sense they themselves are the goal. It is as true today as it was in the Depression when Harvey Hull made it the slogan of the Indiana farmers cooperative: "The best co-op product is a cooperator."

The educational program which follows is designed to meet these basic problems:

a. to discover and develop informed and loyal members among the low-income.

b. to enable potential leaders to assume and fulfill their proper leadership roles as organizers, capable candidates for elective cooperative office, committee men, managers, employees -- without whose understanding of cooperatives and dedication to cooperation as a way of business, cooperative success will be impossible.

B. Local Study and Action Groups:

These local groups will be formed before any formal cooperative organization will be undertaken. This type of organization follows the pattern of the world-famous Antigonish movement in Nova Scotia. It has been the basis of successful cooperative organization in Puerto Rico.

The purpose of the study-action groups organized under this project will be:

1. To determine for themselves their own most urgent needs and to determine which of these needs could be met by means of the cooperative mode of organization.
2. To study the essentials for success of the cooperative enterprise under consideration, particularly in terms of available business volume, capital required, and necessary member loyalty.
3. To acquire a mastery of the cooperative principles and practices essential to the success of the enterprise.
4. To acquire capital for the cooperative planned by regular weekly or monthly savings deposited with the action group during and after its period of initial studies.
5. To visit as a group, or as delegate from the group successful cooperatives already started elsewhere.
6. To stimulate the imagination of the group's members, to plan ahead, to go on from one success to another and another.
7. To develop in the members of the group, as a by-product of a successful cooperative business action, a firm and soundly based self-confidence in their ability to handle their own economic affairs, both individually and as a group.

C. Technical Component:

1. The need to develop markets and marketing skills is critical for any production-type co-op.
2. Assistance in planning future expansion, crop diversification, accounting procedures, modern business methods, etc. is needed.
3. The securing of credit is often a major problem for beginning low-income co-ops. To whom to apply, how to apply, the cost of the loan, the making of the application, etc., -- all require technical help, when doing it for the first time.
4. The need for technical help is actually endless. Because of the great variety of assistance needed by different type co-ops this proposal has requested a considerable sum of money in order to employ consultants as the specific needs arise. We feel large sums of money can be saved in this way while still providing the needed services.
5. Many of the individual needs of co-op members can be met by their community agencies. However, the services supplied by federal agencies supposedly dedicated to ridding the nation of poverty have, in the past, been disappointing.

The experiences of existing low-income co-ops in being able to exact equal service from these and similar agencies are encouraging. Although organized around economic needs, co-ops can function extremely well, as pressure groups to help bring about desperately needed changes in the social and political situations of communities. This "multiplier effect" on community service agencies and the similar effect cooperatives have on the people who build and own them are essential strengths of this proposal.

The people involved in organizing cooperatives involving poor southern people over the past few years, and many of the members of these co-ops are convinced that cooperatives offer a way to attack these--educational, individual and economic problems within the scope of the program. The reasons for this conviction are the numerous positive features found in cooperatives:

-----Co-ops can be an excellent organizing tool. They give people the opportunity to work as a group on common interest problems, and most importantly, the people, themselves, make the decisions of the group.

-----Co-ops offer people the chance to participate in good-size businesses. Again, that means making decisions about planning for the future, handling loans of considerable size, etc.---things poor people never do because they never have the opportunity to make these decisions as individuals.

-----Co-ops, with their one man - one vote provision, offer members an excellent opportunity to "participate" in a democratic organization.

-----Co-ops, especially those growing out of education and study groups, help expand their members' confidence, ability to plan ahead, and to "thing big," using direct self-interest issues as motivation.

Co-ops offer but do not guarantee these positive features just mentioned. We believe any cooperative education and development program attempted in the South must include a technical component if it is to achieve success.

1. Technical training for individual lay cooperative officers - president (as presiding officer), secretary, treasurer, supervisory committee, education committee. Specific training dealing with the problems of these non-paid, voluntary and elective officers. This technical training will take three forms:

a. coaching by the area cooperative counselor

b. group courses -- training to be given by the central staff, for example, the auditor-analyst, training bookkeepers, and/or other cooperative technicians called in

c. on the job "internship," a few days at a time, with existing cooperatives, which agree to provide this experience. This is an important part of the technique employed effectively in credit union development.

Particularly since most of these elected or volunteer officers will be low-income persons who can ill afford or cannot afford travel and expense involved in such technical training courses, they should be reimbursed by the Project for these costs.

2. Technical training for potential managers must be thorough and must embrace both theory and practice:

a. A course in management, probably one month in length, at the southern cooperative training institute proposed by this project. This course will be repeated each year as management trainees are available. Trainees will receive salaries and have all expenses paid. Planning the academic course in management will be done in consultation with best cooperative management training personnel in the nation.

b. "On-the-job training," field expereience for each management trainee, in a cooperative where he can obtain the maximum amount of experience relevent to the management job to which he expects to return. Attempts will be made to solicit successful co-ops to underwrite the on-the-job training course. When this is not possible the travel expenses and salary of the trainee will be borne entirely by the Project. This on-the-job field training will be planned and directed by the southern cooperative institute, in collaboration with the cooperatives and cooperative educational institutions which have such training programs now in operation.

III. SELECTION OF COMMUNITIES AND POTENTIAL MANAGERS:

A. Selection of the Communities:

The twenty communities for intensive coverage will be chosen within a radius of 300 miles from Jackson, Mississippi. This radius includes most of the recently organized or embryonic cooperatives among low-income people - existing cooperatives to be strengthened by this project. The twenty communities to receive the full-time services of the cooperative field force will be chosen on the basis of the following criteria:

1. Each county selected for cooperative promotion should have enough potential members to support the full-time services of a competent cooperative manager.
2. Communities that give evidence of some degree of group activity among low-income people.
3. A base to sustain actions around economic issues. Each of the twenty communities so chosen would have the full-time services of a resident cooperative or fieldman (or woman) chosen, trained, directed and paid by the central office set up under this proposal.

B. Selection of Managers for New Cooperatives:

Selection of potential managers for training will be based upon the following principles:

1. Managers as well as the rest of the employed staff of cooperatives and credit unions assisted in this program will come largely from within the groups themselves. The development of business leadership from within the low-income groups themselves is one of the major objectives of the program.
2. Talented men and women within study-action groups may be recommended for management training by the local groups, by the cooperative counselors, or by responsible local people outside the low-income group.
3. These men and women, sent for training, may be employed at the conclusion of their training by their own group, or by some other group, depending on local circumstances.

IV. NUMBER AND KINDS OF COOPERATIVES TO BE ORGANIZED:

The numbers and kinds of cooperatives which should emerge in these twenty communities are not described in the body of this proposal for the sound reason that the potential members in each community are to make those decisions themselves, guided and stimulated by their cooperative fieldmen, and advised by the technical competent experts of the central staff and their consultants.

To apply co-op principles creatively to the problems of poor people, the organization and training staff will need a flexible orientation as well as an ability to adapt to a variety of situations. For example, if there is a large number of domestic workers in an area working for $3.00 a day a member of the field staff might begin working in that community by talking about social security requirements for domestic workers. After an organization has been formed, the members might begin studying ways they can save money, perhaps by beginning a buying club and purchasing their staple food products from a large chain store or a wholesaler. A union could be formed demanding higher wages and better working conditions. Such a union might have as its central holding force a "cooperative hiring hall for all domestic services," through which job request at union pay scales would be handled. Eventually a cooperative health plan could be instituted or a cooperative funeral society -- whatever the members decided after learning of the alternatives open to them. Throughout the building of this organization, the structures should be raised by the people, growing in accordance with their particular needs, and not be built on to them or on top of them.

V. THE STAFF:

A. The Field Staff:

1. Full Time:

In order to take the major part of all training and educational programs "to the people" a field staff will be hired. These men and women will be from the South and it will be required that they have some experience in working with the poor. The field staff will live in the communities where they work on a permanent basis so the people will feel they are part of the community and always in reach when problems arise. It will probably take three to six months for these organizers to be accepted and trusted in the communities. During this time they will be able to familiarize themselves with the people, problems and "power structure" of the area.

A month training program will be attended by each member of the field staff before they are placed in their communities. The program will include:

-----How to analyze a community

-----The use of non-directive techniques of community organization (getting the community to work on its own problems under the direction of its own leaders.)

-----Programs and resources that can be drawn upon for assistance, such as FHA, SBA, ASCS, HUD, HEW, legal, etc.

-----A basic grounding in cooperative principles

-----How to creatively apply the cooperative form of economic organization to community problems

-----Tours of successful cooperatives of various types in the South and the North

2. Part Time:

The budget calls for twenty full time paid organizers and twenty part time workers. Farmers who have had experience, for instance, in setting up their own cooperatives could spend full time in the winter months working to help other farmers organize a similar co-op in another part of the state, or maybe a branch of his co-op in his own county. Housewives, older people on social security, barbers (usually only work on weekends in many southern communities), etc., could be hired on a part time basis. Much of the organizing work will have to be done in the evenings anyway because that is when poor people are free to attend meetings.

Each field staff member's project will have at its disposal a modest contingency fund to be used to assist local people who participate in the program in paying their expenses. Organizations of the poor often do not succeed simply because that is what they are -- poor people in an organization. There is no money for stamps to mail letters of complaints or requests for assistance, even if there is someone in the group who can write them; not enough telephones to "phone everybody up to come down to a meeting;" no money for gasoline to enable a committee to go to the county seat -- or perhaps there is not even a car to go in.

These are real problems that a majority of "poverty" projects forget. But they are problems that a contingency expense fund can solve. A little money spent for gasoline can mean that a good idea can get into the hands of the people. A successful co-op operation might hinge on a 100 mile trip to the nearest large city wholesale warehouse, but local people might be reluctant to go without funds to pay their expenses.

Once a group begins working on a cooperative project, the organizer will serve as an advisor-educator, assisting the co-op members when called upon and teaching basic business and financial practices as they relate to co-op principles. Field staff assigned to already functioning cooperatives will work on increasing membership participation and patronage, opening new markets and outlets, expanding territory, opening new branches and chapters of the existing co-ops, and doing whatever the members think would be most helpful.

Training, similar to that given the full time staff will be made available to part time workers on a more intensive scale.

Refresher courses or workshops for all staff and field force will be held every six months. At these refresher courses and workshops, materials will be prepared and revised and case studies will be used of actual experiences of the on-going cooperative action program.

A number of outside "experts," i.e., sociologist trained in the dynamics of group action, economists specializing in cooperative credit and business, and cooperative educators with experience both in the USA and in developing economies abroad will also be used. Representatives of regional cooperatives willing and able to accept low-income members will be invited and urged to participate in the initial workshop, as well as subsequent refresher courses. Field observation trips to cooperative enterprises in successful operation will be an important part of the training.

B. The Central Staff:

The central staff for this program will be small and therefore must be carefully chosen to insure that those selected have a multiplicity of talents and the capacity to work long hours.

1. Director - The director will serve as the overall program supervisor. Qualifications will include:

   -----a high school education or better

   -----be from the South or have considerable work experience in the South

   -----have shown some administrative ability

   -----hopefully with experience in working with low-income people's co-ops

2. Assistant Director - The assistant director will coordinate the operations of the field staff. His qualifications will be the same as the director of the program.

3. Information Specialist - The information specialist will be responsible for research and development of materials, both written and audio-visual, for the field staff. He or she will also be responsible for the preparation of a library of materials on co-ops. Qualification:

-----professional training and experience in research and material preparation.

-----experience with southern vernacular and idioms.

4. Cooperative Specialist - The cooperative specialist will work closely with the field staff beginning with the training program and continuing after they begin their community work. He will assist in developing materials; will be responsible for setting up training programs both in the communities and at the central cooperatives. Qualifications:

-----experience in working with beginning cooperatives.

-----a thorough knowledge of cooperatives and cooperative principles.

5. Bookkeeper-Accountant - The bookkeeper's job will be to keep the accounts for the program and to help new and existing cooperatives in setting up a good bookkeeping system. Qualifications:

-----experience in cooperative accounting procedure.

-----academic qualifications equivalent to CPA

6. Secretarial Assistance - normal secretarial duties. It is estimated two or three secretaries will be required.

When technical problems arise at any stage of the development of a cooperative in a local community, problems beyond the competence of the local cooperative fieldman, the central staff will make the appropriate help available. This help may be provided by:

a. A member of the central staff.

b. The appropriate government agency depending on the nature of the problem:

*the Office Of Economic Opportunity

*the Farmers Home Administration

*the Agricultural Extension Service

*the Economic Development Association

*experts from the State (land grant) University

*the Small Business Administration

c. Cooperative experts serving the Cooperative League, or other cooperative organizations as cooperative consultants.

VI. THE FIELD EDUCATION AND TRAINING PROGRAM:

To meet the general, educational and technical needs set forth in the introduction to this proposal the following educational and training program is envisaged.

The program will be taken to the communities to the greatest extent possible. This program will offer the needed technical and management assistance to already existing cooperatives and to the beginning co-ops as they come into operation. Funds are provided for consultants and for technical assistance to co-ops in whatever field they may request. A provision is also made to subsidize partially the management personnel of new co-ops. Under this provision a manager could receive a stipend from the co-op program enabling him to work at least 1/2 time for the co-op. This grant would be made only after an agreement had been reached with the manager and the cooperative's board of directors and also its general membership that they would all make themselves available for training sessions.

In the case of the manager, a requirement of the grant might be attendance at three to six one-week training sessions and periodic weekend seminars. The longer sessions would be held at the central training institute, while the weekend programs would be in the communities. Training seminars for the board of directors and members, as well as those for the manager would be open to all members of the cooperative, so that all members can learn more about the running of their co-op. There would be "instant institutes," again in the communities, conducted by the field staff in conjunction with the central staff and visiting consultants on subjects such as reading and interpreting a balance sheet, or the meaning of chartering and incorporation, etc., -- things all members should be thoroughly familiar with.

This program will approach leadership training as it will all parts of the educational and training program -- by taking the program to the community. By doing this many of the pitfalls mentoined in the introduction to this proposal can be avoided. The goal will be to prepare each member of the cooperative to handle the responsiblities of both board of directorship and management. As individuals show distinct abilities at management and directing, longer, more intense courses will be made available at the institute. The leadership section of this program will keep centrally in mind that in the South those in the community, especially the Negro community, who are called the leaders, are notoriously powerless and have very few real followers. The programs will need to find new people who can inspire the confidence of the people and who can carry through a new idea. These people exist now and they do exert influence on others, although most of these people generally do not consider themselves leaders. The development of the abilities and the confidence of these "hidden" leaders will be a central goal of the cooperative program.

The "institute" mentioned previously will be located in the area to be covered by the demonstration program. It will be an actual physical plant to be known as the "co-op development institute." The central staff will be housed in the institute, and conferences and long-term training sessions will also be held there. It is felt by the authors of this proposal that a physical institute offers a core or a central focal point to the entire co-op development program.

VII. THE MATERIALS:

The material used in this program will, for the most part, need to be created as the program develops. As has already been mentioned, a large number of people that this program is to reach, have difficulty in reading. The materials, therefore, will have to be simple, largely pictorial, in the idiom of the people, and to the greatest extent possible "involve local people in local relevant situations." A central theme must run through any materials produced. It will be one of trying to reach people where they are, with something they can understand and learn from. Audio-visual materials such as film strips and movies of "local people" involved in forming their own co-op will be produced. The ideas for the production of these materials can be drawn directly from the people.

VIII. THE REVOLVING FUND:

A revolving fund will be established by the Southern Cooperative Development Program. This fund will meet the critical need of temporary credit, a deficiency a beginning cooperative invariably encounters. Loans from this fund will be repaid in most cases after other credit sources, such as Farmers Home Administration or Small Business Administration, can be secured. A sum of one hundred thousand dollars is requested for the revolving fund. It is possible that the repayment of loans from this fund over a period of years will serve as a major source of money for the continuation of the education and training program.

IX. ADMINISTRATION STRUCTURE:

The administration structure proposed for this proposal is desired to retain good administration, which requires that a single agency receive the funds and assume full responsibility for their use, and at the same time retain the eager support of all the organizations participating in the Mt. Beulah Conference. This is highly important for the success of the project.

A. Southern Consumers' Education Foundation as the grantee agency will be completely responsible for conducting the program and will name the director.

The Southern Consumers' Cooperative

and

The Southern Consumers' Education Foundation

Southern Consumers' Cooperative, Lafayette, Louisiana, serves the people of many parishes in Louisiana, which rank among the lowest in the nation in per capita income and in literacy. In half-a-dozen years, it has developed a membership based on small group meetings and regular savings for investment in the cooperative, and expanded its structure to include three subsidiary operations:

*a wholly-owned small loan company with assets, loan to cooperative members only of $80,000

*a bakery, producing fruit cakes for sale locally and nationally - providing employment to a few members, a market for products (pecans) of other members

*a separately incorporated Education Foundation financed by initial membership dues in the cooperative to provide continuing cooperative education

The Southern Consumers Education Foundation, separately incorporated as a non-profit tax-exempt corporation has not only served well its own area but, as sub-contractor to the Cooperative League, has provided assistance and guidance to other cooperatives and cooperative projects in Louisiana and neighboring states.

B. An Advisory Board:

As indicated in the historical background statement which prefaces this proposal, the following institutions had representatives at the Mt. Beulah Conference, and were suggested as "sponsors" or "co-sponsors" of the proposed cooperative action program:

*half-a-dozen existing low-income cooperatives

*two southern organizations interested in the problems of low-income people

- Southern Regional Council, which called the Mt. Beulah Conference
- National Sharecroppers Fund

*two nation-wide cooperative federations, each of which has an Economic Opportunity Program

- Cooperative League of the USA
- CUNA International

To assure the orderly development of the program, and to provide a formal and responsible method of maintaining the full participation of the members of the Mt. Beulah Conference, and particularly of the Continuation Committee, an Advisory Board will be established.

1. Composition:

An Advisory Board will be set up and its members will be chosen by the "co-sponsoring organizations" as follows:

*seven chosen initially by the Federation (the number may be increased as the Federation grows)

*One each chosen by the following organizations

- Southern Regional Council
- National Sharecroppers Fund
- Cooperative League of the USA
- CUNA International
- The Scholarship Education & Defense Fund for Racial Equality
- The Citizens Crusade on Poverty

2. Functions:

a) Screen and recommend candidates for the position of Director (to the Applicant Agency).

b) Review accomplishments and assess the progress toward the original objectives of the program.

c) Make suggestions and recommendations on program direction and component parts.

d) Serve as coordinating body to bring to bear the maximum resources of all co-sponsors.

e) Tap the resources of other interested organizations and agencies to further the purposes of the proposal.

f) The advisory board shall meet at least quarterly, and as often as necessary.

3. A Federation:

A federation of southern low-income cooperatives will be organized now, to participate in the project from the start, and to assume responsibility for the on-going development of cooperatives among low-income southerners, hopefully as soon as possible after the completion of this two-year project.

The proposal includes the formation by the low-income cooperatives of the South of service federation, which, as time goes on, and the member and strength of the cooperatives increases, will take on more and more of the educational, financial and management services provided initially by this project. The members of existing cooperatives represented at Mt. Beulah have already put in motion machinery to set up such a federation. The federation will be in operation throughout and after the duration of this proposal.

X. EVALUATION OF RESULTS:

This two year program should be judged at its conclusion in two ways: first, how successful was it in achieving the immediate goals set; and second, what has it shown as to method to be used in further cooperative development among low-income persons. The following criteria are suggested for these evaluations.

A. Criteria for Evaluating the Success of the Project:

1. How many low-income persons or families have been involved in effective participation in successful co-ops?
2. What economic benefits have occured to these low-income persons? to their communities?
3. What impact on the community at large in solving some of the problems of the community and in developing self-confidence and ability of members to participate in community affairs?

B. Criteria for Evaluating the Methods used in Cooperative: Developing Programs:

This two-year program should bring answers to the following questions upon which further development could be based:

1. Choice of communities - What are the most significant factors in determining whether the people of a low-income community can organize successful cooperatives?
2. Types of cooperatives - Which types of cooperatives offer the greatest gains to prospective members?
3. What methods of education - organization and lay leadership development are most effective?
4. What methods of management training and supervision are most successful?
5. What size of central staff required to organize a given number of cooperatives?
6. What kind of follow-up programs are needed to keep the cooperatives
   - educational institute
   - federation successfully operating.

XI. LONG-RANGE GOALS:

The Cooperative Development Program is an effort to provide organizational, technical and educational assistance and training to cooperatives of low-income people in several states in the South. It is also an attempt to demonstrate that cooperatives can be used as a tool which poor people can use to help solve many of their problems. A strong belief is placed in the ability of people to do so, when given certain types of assistance.

A central theme in the proposed program is that the poor should build and control their own cooperative organizations. A natural long-range goal, then, should be that the Cooperative Development Program should eventually be owned and controlled by the members of these cooperatives.

A federation of low-income cooperatives will be organized and after a period of years this federation will take over the Cooperative Development Program. When this development takes place the persons with cooperative experience and experience in working with low-income cooperatives will become the sole members of the Advisory Committee. The Cooperative Development Program will, after it is under the control of the federation, be able to pay for a majority of its own program by funds provided by the individual member cooperatives.

COOPERATIVE DEVELOPMENT PROPOSAL

Submitted by Southern Consumers' Education Foundation

June 1, 1954

Dr. Charles S. Johnson
President
Fisk University
Nashville 8, Tennessee

Dear Dr. Johnson:

Many thanks for your letter of May 26. We are pleased with the new Southern Educational Reporting Service and expect to work closely with it.

The job of getting small community groups to pave the way for unsegregated schools is so vast that I don't think we and the NCCJ will tread on each other's heels. Often it is the case that where they have strength we have little, and sometimes the other way.

I will be in touch with some of the officials in the next ten days and will try to knit further the already pleasant relationships between the two agencies.

I can see coming up a movement which could grow quite a lot -- a movement to have official municipal human relations agencies. Dade County, Florida, and Rock Hill are the first two. Charlotte is eager and I hear that Anderson, South Carolina wants one. Atlanta talks of it, and Dallas has been interested.

They never sprouted in the South, particularly because law was against their proper purposes. They did sprout in the North because there the purposes fitted the foundation legal institution. Now that the law is clear for the South on schools, local human relations agencies have a job to do. I think that the litmus test to apply to those who are planning each group is whether they genuinely wish to see a substantial start made with unsegregated schools. If they do I will help them. If the agencies are proposed as stumbles all should oppose them. I am sending out a competent man, Earl Brewer, in June to make a quick roundup of the movement, North, South, and West, for such local municipal agencies, and hope to publish in July a lengthy New South article or maybe something bigger that would give steam to many communities which have caught this idea, but do not see clearly the proper purposes of such a show.

There is some reason to suppose that SRC's state agencies, when got going, will be mainly coordinating bodies for the various state and city agencies, official and unofficial, at work within each state. They will be membership organizations, but in addition to building a membership they should build a program which hooks together the increasing number of available agency-interests.

Dr. Alexander made a contact with Monte M. Lemann, and Morris Abram and Harold Fleming will go down to see him in New Orleans June 10, and plan a program of helpful action within the Bar for the South.

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell
Executive Director

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

26 May 1954

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

I am greatly obliged to you for sending to me the condensed account of the proceedings of the recent Williamsburg Conference.

The Supreme Court decision, which came very shortly after our conference, changed the climate completely from one of tentative alternative plans to one of positive and inflexible challenge.

I was able to make some reference to the deliberations at Williamsburg in a conference with another group, a Southern Educational Reporting Service. It will follow substantially the lines indicated in the report on the final day of the conference. You have probably been informed by now that Mr. C. A. McKnight, Editor of the Charlotte News, has been selected as the Director of the Service. This can prove of considerable usefulness to the programs of the Southern Regional Council, as it moves ahead on its plans.

I spent a good portion of the day in another conference called by the Conference of Christians and Jews (southern region) to work out plans within the context of that organization for implementing the decision of the court very largely through small community groups and, perhaps, religious groups. There were many references to the Southern Regional Council and your own personal work, and a desire expressed to work with the organization in the total program. The Conference of Christians and Jews feels that, as a result of its non-specificity with respect to race and race relations, in these times when it is necessary to move into the area, it probably has more conservatives who constitute the power structure of the region than perhaps any other organization. However, it is anxious to work with other organizations.

With best wishes,

Sincerely yours,

Charles S. Johnson

Dear Pete:

Everybody is much taken with your first issue. The copy you sent us -- as well as the one you gave me at the Dinkler -- is battered and worn from much passing about.

All of which leads me to a brazen request: If possible, we would like to get four copies here for central staff and three copies for each activated state group -- one per chairman, vice-chairman, and executive secretary. Ultimately, this will add up to 40 copies, a whopping big total, I know. But these are the people who, presumably, will be giving leadership in their states, and your information would be tremendously helpful to them.

If the request is unmanageably large but could be made manageable by our paying a subscription fee, let me know the amount. I'll send along names and addresses after I hear from you.

Sorry I didn't get to see you and Harry again after all the oratory, which I hear went very well. Hope you have caught up with your sleep by now.

You are not at all presumptuous, my lad. We have had several requests for that many or more copies, all of which we have fulfilled.

If you will send me a complete list of all of your people in your Southern Regional Council you think should receive Southern School News, we will add them to the mailing list for the first and all subsequent issues.

I have just returned from three days in Washington and New York. Since Ashmore wasn't along, I caught up on the sleep I lost in Atlanta.

Come up to see us one of these days.

Dear Sirs:

Under separate cover, I am sending you the September and October issues of the Southern School News, the official publication of the Southern Education Reporting Service. I call your attention specifically to the lead story and the exchange of correspondence between Mr. Faust and Mr. Dabney on Page 1 of the September issue which explain fully the purposes and objectives of the Reporting Service.

You will notice that a major function of the Reporting Service will be to create in Nashville a large collection of contemporary information about events in the South growing out of the Supreme Court decision in the school segregation cases. In addition to a general clipping service for newspaper items, we will want to clip other periodicals that carry information about segregation or desegregation. The collection will not only be available for contemporary writers and researchers, but will eventually be placed in one of the southern university libraries as a rich source of research material for the scholars and historians of future centuries.

It seems to me that the New South should be represented in this collection. Our original budget carried enough funds for SERS to buy all the publications it would need, but the tremendous demand for Southern School News will force us to revise our total budget in order to meet higher printing and mailing costs.

Hence, this request -- indeed this plea -- that the New South be sent to the library of the Southern Education Reporting Service without cost during the life of the project. In return, we will assure you that all references in New South to the broad problem posed by the Supreme Court opinion will be included in what I believe will be a truly significant historical collection.

Sincerely,

Imogene M. McCauley

If there is opportunity to submit names of persons for whom we will request subscriptions to Southern School News, I would suggest Marion Wright, Gordon Hancock, and Rufus Clement.

You could also add Robert Hughes at a Montgomery address, obtainable, let us hope, in the next few days from Fred Routh. Also, Harry Jones at an office address to be obtained.

Dear Susie:

Your note of September 21 was waiting for me when I got home the first of this week, after being away for nearly a month.

You probably know by now that I have a delightful granddaughter -- Deborah Hamilton Payne, Age one month. It was good to see her and to have a few days of "air" in the beautiful and civilized New England climate.

I have asked the Southern School News, whose mailing address is Box 6156 Acklen Station, Nashville 5, Tennessee, to send you their publication. It is available to individuals upon request, and unless you receive the October issue in due time, it might be well for you to write them directly, though this may not be necessary.

I surely hope that it will be possible to have a visit with you sometime during the year. We have all enjoyed the stories in the press about the development of the Bennett Nursery School. I am eager to see it.

With my best to your good husband and other friends in Greensboro, I am

Yours cordially,

Dear Crawford:

The enclosed issue of New South called "The Churches Speak," gives a useful quote from the Department of Christian Social Relations of the Protestant Episcopal Church, Province of Sewanee. That includes and covers Florida. I believe the meeting which adopted that statement recommended that within each Episcopal Diocese the Department of Christian Social Relations make up its mind before a major church meeting coming up in November as to where that department and that Diocese should stand on the matter of school segregation.

Of course, what I want to happen is local church-related discussion meetings of white and Negro people to figure out what to do town by town, and neighborhood by neighborhood, about the integration of schools together.

Maybe the Herald-Trib speech will help you. Here's a copy.

Mailed 11/15/54 (eab)

I send you, separately, such back issues of the Southern Education Reporting Service paper as we have. You can subscribe to it at P. O. Box 6156, Acklen Station, Nashville, Tennessee, and they will be glad to send it on to you free. Plus the back copies if you ask.

Had a nice time with your brother at a party after the first Herald-Trib speech-making. I liked Sarah Lawrence and was glad I was there, and at once hooked his surname on to yours and we became good friends.

I have been asked to lead the discussion for the Episcopal ministry in this area as to what the church's position should be in the matter of segregation. Unfortunately I seem to have misplaced my copies of the New South with the exception of the issue on "Schools in the South."

Would you please forward to me the information which you would consider most effective to be used in this group?

I do not havea copy of the Ford Foundation Newspaper. I would appreciate it if you would forward me a copy if you have an extra one.

Mr. Harold Fleming

Dear Harold:

In your most recent letter, you raised again the question of what disposition should be made of the original manuscripts prepared for the Ashmore project, which you have in your files.

I have discussed the matter with Phil Coombs, and we feel that the logical repository for the material is the Southern Education Reporting Service library, which Pete McKnight is now in the process of building. As part of the SERS project, Pete plans to assemble a complete collection of contemporary materials on the school segregation-desegregation story. He is convinced, and we agree, that the SERS library will be of great and lasting value to students of this era in American history for many years to come. He now has a full time librarian working on the job, and plans to add an assistant late this month.

As you may know, Pete has a steady stream of visitors - scholars, newspapermen, etc. - who regard the SERS office as the best source of information on what is happening in the 17 states and the District of Columbia as a result of the Court decision. He feels that the Ashmore materials would be an extremely valuable addition to his collection. At the end of the SERS project, he plans to turn his entire library collection over to a Southern university library - probably the joint university libraries at Nashville.

We feel that it makes sense to keep all of the material together in one place, so we have agreed to turn the Ashmore material over to SERS. I am sending Pete the 6 manuscripts that I have in my possession - Amerman, Christensen, Hope, Valien, Yinger, Dozier. I believe you have all the rest of the material with the possible exception of Earl Johnson's over-all memorandum on the non-South. I think Ashmore has that one. If you will send Pete all the materials you have, I will write Ashmore and ask him to send along the Johnson manuscript.

We are very pleased with the reception Schools in Transition is getting, particularly in the South, and we are also very pleased with the whole SERS operation. I hope sometime soon to get down to Atlanta for a visit. If I do I certainly hope I will have the time to stop in and see you. In the meantime, best regards.

Dear John:

The six manuscripts you sent me last week were received in good order. I will look forward to getting the others from Harold Fleming and Harry Ashmore.

As soon as the manuscripts are in hand, I want to do a special feature story on our library for release to Sunday newspapers throughout the region. I have delayed doing so until we had a definite peg for the story. The placing of the original manuscripts for the Ashmore project in the SERS library will give me such a peg.

I enjoyed seeing you again in New York, and am pleased that the new project was so warmly received.

Dear Pete:

I was glad to get your letter with the welcome news that you are now in the archives business on a full scale. Certainly we will want appropriate back issues of New South and other SRC publications included. I have already deputized myself to make such a selection and will send it on to you soon.

By now you will be aware of the fact that Fred Routh of our staff delivered to one of your innumerable assistants the corpus delicti of the Ashmore Project. I felt a trifle guilty sending it to you in its somewhat decomposed state, but you will recognize that these were working documents assembled without regard to posterity. Most of the stuff bundled together as staff memos represents the frenzied threshing about of the scholars involved and influenced the book little or none at all. The same is true of the card file on community studies.

Anyhow, what I sent includes all of the documents except an Earl Johnson memo (which Ashmore had and has probably forwarded) and a screed on the Chicago public schools by Helen Amerman (which Coombs took for Robin Williams' use). Also missing is a copy of the so-called research draft produced here in Atlanta, which is the primitive ancestor of the book. Maybe the Fund can supply a copy.

The correspondence of the project has never been in my hands. I think John Griffin has some of it and, of course, more would be in the files of the Fund. The Atlanta portion of it, at least, should be a part of your collection and I have so told Griffin.

It would be great if you found some valid reason for coming to Atlanta, since it appears that I am never going to get to Nashville and I would like to see you.

Dear Harold:

Having finally assembled a library staff adequate to do the job, we are now moving full scale into building a contemporary collection, mostly of unbound materials, which will be available to researchers and writers. At the end of the project, it will be placed in one of the southern university libraries--probably the Joint University Library here--for permanent filing so that the scholars of the future will have full information on this interesting period in American history.

I don't know how many past issues of The New South have carried information on the segregation issue, or what other publications the Southern Regional Council may have issued over the years. But if any back copies are available, they certainly ought to be included in the SERS library.

Will you deputize one of your innumerable assistants to take a look around and send us whatever you think would be useful for our library?

We're still going well, so far as I can tell. Hope to see you in Atlanta before long.

Will you or Constable be responsible for making a list of those who are on our staff who ought to have paid subscriptions to Southern School News?

We are ordering 10 copies at the bulk subscription rate for staff here — plus individual subs for CHP & MAW if they haven't made their own arrangements.

HCF

GSM/eab

We've got growing pains

And—you're partly to blame!

The tremendous demand for Southern School News makes necessary the charging of a small subscription fee, effective July 1, 1955.

In its first year of publication, Southern School News has been distributed free, on request. This was made possible by an initial grant of $99,200 by the Fund for the Advancement of Education. The grant was based on an estimated maximum circulation of 18,000.

Popular response far exceeded our original estimates. In nine months, circulation has skyrocketed to 30,000—almost double the anticipated maximum—and daily surges higher. This remarkable growth made necessary a supplemental Fund grant of $33,822.31 to cover first-year costs.

Aware that the need for Southern School News will be even greater after the forthcoming Supreme Court decrees in the school segregation cases, the directors of the Southern Education Reporting Service requested an additional grant from the Fund for the Advancement of Education for a two-year extension of the project. To stabilize the Fund's contribution, the SERS directors suggested that the Fund underwrite the basic overhead costs of the Reporting Service, and that subscribers who have hitherto received Southern School News without charge be asked to pay a nominal fee covering only the final cost of printing, mailing and bookkeeping.

Accordingly, the Fund has allocated $213,884 to cover SERS overhead costs for two years beyond July 1, 1955, or until June 30, 1957.

This, then, is the first notice to subscribers. The subscription price—$2.00 for one year (Volume II) beginning July 1, or $3.75 for two years (Volumes II and III) — is approximately one-fourth the actual cost of each annual subscription.

If you wish to continue receiving Southern School News beyond July 1, mail your check or money order promptly to the Southern Education Reporting Service, P. O. Box 6156, Acklen Station, Nashville, Tennessee. An application blank is at the right.

Dear Mr. Wright:

As you no doubt noticed in the last issue of Southern School News, effective in July, it is going to charge a modest subscription fee. Have you entered your own subscription, or would you like us to pay for one in your name?

If you will let me know at your earliest opportunity, we can attend to this along with the provision for the staff here.

Dear Harold:

As you know, since last Fall, we have been sending your office a bulk shipment of 25 copies of Southern School News, plus individual subscriptions not only to officials of your office but to officers and members of a number of your offshoots all over the region. I wish we could continue doing so after June, but them Fords seem to be running out of money, and we had to switch over to the subscription plan announced in the May issue.

Where do we go from here?

Obviously, we will be happy to exchange up to three complimentary copies for a similar number of copies of New South.

But I want to do everything possible to keep on the mailing list the members of the various state human relations councils.

Bulk subscriptions (five or more to same addressee at $1.50 each) are not the answer, for they require redistribution. So for you and a good many other organizations similarly situated, we have set up a special semi-bulk subscription at $1.75 each (for five or more subscriptions covered by the same order but sent to different addressees). This is half way between the bulk rate and the $2.00 individual rate, and can be justified because it simplifies our bookkeeping and mailing problem.

I hope your office can cover the members of your central committee. And I hope you will nudge your various state affiliates either to cover their membership, or encourage the individuals to subscribe. It'll be even more important to keep well-informed during the next two years, in my opinion, than it was this first year.

And, of course, a plug in New South would bring heaps of gratitude.

I'm to be in Atlanta next week to talk to Sigma Delta Chi on the night of the 31st. I'll give you a call.

Best regards

Pete

Dear Pete:

In recent conversations with John Scanlon, I learnt that you and Don Shoemaker were considering showing by map the federal judicial districts in the South. Enclosed are proofs of the two color engraving we are using in the forthcoming New South. You will see that we simply shot in one color our earlier multicolor population map and we are superimposing the district lines in another color. If this will do you any good, you are welcome to the negative or the engravings themselves.

John also mentioned you planning to drum up subscriptions to Southern School News. As I told him, we want to help in every way we can in this effort.

Please give Don Shoemaker my best regards and tell him that I am hunting for an opportunity to get together with him one of these days- especially now that Roy Harris has branded SCRS in offshoot of the SRC.

And as for you, I am postponing my regards until you reveal yourself as an honest working man devoid of mystery.

Dear Don:

We find ourselves in need of a comprehensive list of court cases involving segregation or discrimination since 1944. I have a hazy impression that an appendix to the Leflar-Davis manuscript, prepared for the Ashmore report, contains such a listing.

Could you ask your librarian to let us know the exact nature of the appendix and how, at this distance, we could avail ourselves of it? We will greatly appreciate your help.

Dear Mr. Dinkins:

This, with apology for the delay, is reply to your recent letter requesting our cooperation in promoting SOUTHERN SCHOOL NEWS. We have regularly advised the members of our affiliated State organizations to avail themselves of the valuable information published by SOUTHERN SCHOOL NEWS and we will be glad to further subscribe in any other way we can.

Unfortunately, the Southern Regional Council has always operated under an invariable rule which forbids sending any copy of mailing lists out of this office. We should be glad, however, to work out some arrangements whereby your mailings might run through our addressograph and mailed from here. Let me know what plan of this kind would be feasible from your point of view, and I will proceed from there. We could use up to about 3500 copies of this material.

In any case, soon we will run another plug for SOUTHERN SCHOOL NEWS in our monthly publication NEW SOUTH.

Dear Dr. Mitchell:

I am writing to ask your advice and assistance in helping us to contact those persons who do not know of, or at least, do not subscribe to SOUTHERN SCHOOL NEWS.

It seemed to me that members of your organization would have a special interest in getting news of the segregation-desegregation picture in the southern states affected by the recent Supreme Court rulings.

Would it be possible for your organization to furnish us with a mailing tape from your mailing list plates which we could use to mail promotion material, such as that enclosed, to your members explaining the content of SOUTHERN SCHOOL NEWS, and how they may subscribe.

If you feel, as we do, that it would be a valuable service to your members to acquaint them with SOUTHERN SCHOOL NEWS then, in addition, you would probably want to write a letter on your stationery urging them to read and consider carefully our enclosed material. Of course, we would pay all costs of addressing the tape and reproducing your letter.

Because we wish to reach your members as early as possible in the school year, it would be appreciated if you could advise me as soon as possible the number on your mailing list (or lists), how soon you could furnish the tape, and if you would prefer that we send you a suggested draft of the letter to your members for your O.K.

Sincerely,

NASHVILLE, Tenn.---A monthly tabloid paper described by NEWSWEEK magazine as "the talk of educators and public officials throughout the South" will bring school people a complete and factual picture of the regional scene with the opening of the new school year.

It is SOUTHERN SCHOOL NEWS, published here by the Southern Education Reporting Service and a corps of crack southern newsmen.

SOUTHERN SCHOOL NEWS is designed to report objectively and without bias on developments in the southern states following the Supreme Court decision of May 17, 1954 holding public school segregation unconstitutional.

"We are neither pro-segregation nor anti-segregation," pointed out Editor Don Shoemaker, who is also executive director of the Southern Education Reporting Service, in announcing plans for extensive coverage of the school front during the next year.

The publication was founded by a 13-man board of southern editors and educators including Virginius Dabney, editor of the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch, who is chairman of S.E.R.S.; Editor Tom Waring of the Charleston (S.C.) News and Courier; Chancellor Harvie Branscomb of Vanderbilt University; President Henry H. Hill of George Peabody College; and President Charles S. Johnson of Fisk University.

SOUTHERN SCHOOL NEWS entered its second volume year with the issue of July, 1955. It is supported by a grant from the Fund for the Advancement of Education and by a nominal subscription fee of $2 per year, first made effective this July.

Serving as a channel of information between schoolmen, between educators and the lay public, SOUTHERN SCHOOL NEWS is staffed by 19 prominent newsmen in 17 states and the District of Columbia who regularly send it detailed reports on happenings in their areas. The newspaper-like format provides topical arrangement of news stories for ready reference by school superintendents and principals, school boards, school board attorneys, public officials, parents and others.

Aside from publishing SOUTHERN SCHOOL NEWS, the Southern Education Reporting Service maintains a unique reference library at its Nashville headquarters to provide newspapers and researchers with factual information. The library, which collects and catalogs documents as well as clippings from leading regional newspapers and magazines, is the only one of its kind in the country.

"South or North," said NEWSWEEK in reference to the claim of objectivity, "many might have thought the NEWS an impossibility. It is very much of a fact. Now twelve issues old, it is a solid, detailed, state-by-state job."

Publication offices are at 1109 - 19th Avenue, South. The postoffice address is Box 6156, Acklen Station, Nashville.

Tracing the Color Line

Don Shoemaker, the editor of The Asheville (N.C.) Citizen, found himself in one of the most challenging journalistic jobs of this generation last week. He succeeded Colbert Augustus (Pete) McKnight, just appointed editor of The Charlotte Observer (NEWSWEEK, July 18), as executive director of Southern School News, a monthly tabloid with a very untabloid-like purpose: An objective account of what is happening in education as a result of the U.S. Supreme Court's 1954 desegregation decision.

South or North, many might have thought The News an impossibility. It is very much of a fact. Now twelve issues old, it is a solid, detailed, state-by-state job, which, over the past year, has been mailed free to 30,000 schools, newspapers, and interested parties. Last month it went on a paid-subscription basis, at $2 a year. Despite that, subscriptions have poured in, for The News obviously has significance out of all proportion to its circulation. The talk of educators and public officials throughout the South, it offers an encouraging example of cooperation across lines of color and opinion.

Hold Fire: Referring to the educational news situation at the time of the Supreme Court decision, Harry Ashmore, editor of The Arkansas Gazette, remarks: "There was a terrific vacuum to be filled. We didn't know whether the South was going to fire on Fort Sumter again or not."

With a grant from the Ford Foundation's Fund for the Advancement of Education, Ashmore himself had recently produced a pioneer, exhaustive study, "The Negro and the Schools." Just prior to the court decision, at the Washington meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, he arranged a meeting between Southern editors and Philip Coombs of the foundation. "We assumed," Coombs says, "that each community's situation was unique but that every community had something to learn." It was felt that local papers would need all the objective help they could get in reporting the great controversy.

Out of these meetings came the Southern Education Reporting Service, with Virginius Dabney, the widely respected editor of The Richmond Times-Dispatch, as chairman. Other board members included Tom Waring, editor of The Charleston (S.C.) News & Courier, a spokesman for racial separation in the public schools; Charles S. Johnson, president of Fisk University, a Negro sociologist who favors integration; Coleman A. Harwell, Nashville Tennessean editor, a supporter of TVA and Adlai Stevenson, and Charles Moss, executive editor of The Nashville Banner, a Taft man and an anti-TVA stalwart who said, apropos of Harwell: "We have never supported the same person at any level from magistrate up to the President."

In July the Reporting Service got under way with a $99,200 fund grant and a Nashville office on the edge of the George Peabody College campus. McKnight became head of The News, which later acquired nineteen expert correspondents. McKnight recalls that just before he got his job, Tom Waring asked Harry Ashmore: "I've known old Pete, had a few drinks with him, but what's his political position on this issue?" Ashmore replied: "I think you can assume it's to the left of yours, because there ain't no room on your right."

In taking the job, McKnight says, he was "more interested in full-dimensional journalism than in the race question. I knew we would be suspected of producing a propaganda sheet. The first rule we had was to throw out all those adjectives and adverbs. We didn't have public speakers 'vigorously' saying anything."

Range of Opinions: The News and Reporting Service facilities have been used extensively by leading Southern papers and such outside organs as The Christian Science Monitor and The Milwaukee Journal. A poll of News readers recently showed that 98 per cent of them found the paper objective, with opinions ranging from "good enough" to "masterpieces of objectivity." Pete McKnight points out: "Herman Talmadge and Lillian Smith are renewing their subscriptions together."

The Service has a new $213,884 grant to last it another two years. Virginius Dabney observes: "In view of the glacial speed at which the South is moving, I wonder at the wisdom of shutting it off in two years. It may turn out that it ought to go on a good while longer."

SOUTHERN SCHOOL NEWS

PUBLISHED BY THE
SOUTHERN EDUCATION REPORTING SERVICE

Your Objective, Unbiased Guide to One of the Greatest Stories of Our Time

With the historic Supreme Court decision on segregation in the public schools, there arose a tremendous need for completely unbiased, objective facts on resulting developments.

To meet this need, the Southern Education Reporting Service was set up by a group of distinguished Southern editors and educators as a non-profit agency and brought together one of the most brilliant news staffs ever assembled to cover one great story in SOUTHERN SCHOOL NEWS.

Within a few months, over 30,000 thinking individuals were receiving SSN. Among these were State Governors and Legislators, Chief State School Officers, University Presidents and Faculty Members, Local Superintendents, Principals, Board of Education Members and Teachers, Editors, Librarians, Religious Leaders, Members of Civic, Social and Educational organizations and individual pastors, lawyers, doctors, businessmen and parents from every walk of life.

Regardless of their personal opinions, whether for or against desegregation, these interested citizens and officials found in SOUTHERN SCHOOL NEWS the up-to-the-minute trustworthy information they needed to keep abreast of every development.

Subscribers receive SOUTHERN SCHOOL NEWS for only 15¢ monthly, because three-quarters of the cost is paid for by a grant from the Fund for the Advancement of Education. Now, as the school year opens and developments will be coming thick and fast, take advantage of this opportunity to keep informed through SOUTHERN SCHOOL NEWS.

(Please see over)

SOUTHERN SCHOOL NEWS is the official publication of the Southern Education Reporting Service, an objective, fact-finding agency established by southern newspaper editors and educators with the aim of providing accurate, unbiased information to school administrators, public officials and interested lay citizens on developments in education arising from the U.S. Supreme Court opinion of May 17, 1954 declaring segregation in the public schools unconstitutional. SERS is not an advocate, is neither pro-segregation nor anti-segregation, but simply reports the facts as it finds them, state by state.

What Readers of Southern School News Say:

A Governor

" I believe the reporting in the News represents the highest type of journalistic objectivity on a most difficult subject."

A Minister

" I have found the presentation of the factual material most illuminating and most consistent with your purpose to keep your reports objective."

A State School Officer

" I have suggested that many of our leaders write to your office to be placed on the mailing list. I would suggest that, if possible, this service be offered to every county and city superintendent of education in our state."

A Representative

" I have been using the Southern School News in trying to gain an overall picture of this situation throughout the South. I intend to use this information in our deliberations on the problem."

Dear Mr. Fleming:

Before leaving on a week's business trip yesterday, Mr. Shoemaker referred to me your letter of October 10.

On checking the papers of the Ashmore Project, now on deposit at the Joint University Libraries, I found that Dr. Leflar and Dr. Davis did include in their manuscript four appendices listing cases concerning segregation and discrimination through September 10, 1953. These listings consist of abstracts of the cases as set out below, and from my cursory inspection of the material I would judge there are approximately 200 such cases included.

The appendices of the Leflar-Davis manuscript are captioned as follows:

I. Abstracts of Pending U. S. Supreme Court Cases.
II. Supreme Court Order, June 9, 1953.
III. Abstracts of U. S. Supreme Court Decisions Concerned with Racial Segregation or Discrimination in Public Educational Institutions (Together with Abstracts of Plessy v Ferguson and Shelley v Kraemer, and a Note on Recent U. S. Supreme Court Decisions Concerning Racial Segregation or Discrimination in Public Transportation.)
IV. Abstracts of State and Lower Federal Court Cases in Which the Issue of Racial Segregation or Discrimination in the Public Schools is Substantially Involved.

The Joint University Libraries have bound and catalogued the papers from the Ashmore project and the particular volume containing the Leflar-Davis manuscript is numbered 371.974, A82n, L49. However, the matter of circulating this material is at present uncertain and will not be finally settled until Mr. Shoemaker returns October 17. If you need the material before that date, we can arrange for you to have access to it here at any time.

However, if you can wait until after Mr. Shoemaker's return I believe we may be able to make the Leflar-Davis volume available to you either through direct mail or on interlibrary loan.

In any event I will take this matter up with Mr. Shoemaker on his return and feel confident some arrangement convenient to you can be made.

Concerning litigation since September, I am afraid we will be able to help you only in cases directly involving segregation or discrimination in the public schools, plus those cases in other areas, such as transportation or recreation, in which the principle of the School Segregation Cases is at issue or is relied upon in the decree. The story on page 1 of the October Southern School News may prove something of a guide to cases in the former category; our files are sketchy, or less, in the latter.

I hope this has been of some assistance to you; and if, in the future, we can help you further, please do not hesitate to call on us.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Fleming:

As you will notice from the enclosed copy of my letter to the Joint University Library, I have today requested that the Leflar-Davis manuscript be sent to you. The material should be in your hands by the middle of next week.

The new legal education reporting service has shown some interest in this material also, and I would request that you return it to the library as soon as you have completed your work with it.

If we can be of any further assistance, please let us know.

Sincerely,

Dear Miss Brown:

Mr. Harold Fleming, assistant director of the Southern Regional Council, has requested that we send him on inter-library loan the volume of the Ashmore papers which includes the Leflar-Davis manuscript on court cases dealing with the school segregation question. This material is on file at the Joint University Library, and the particular volume requested is catalogued under Number 371.974 A82n L49.

Mr. Don Shoemaker, our director, has taken this matter up with Dr. Kuhlman, and they have agreed that this volume can be made available to Mr. Fleming through inter-library loan. I will appreciate your sending it to him as soon as possible. His address is:

Dear Mr. McCauley:

Our information, like yours, suggests that organizations established specifically and exclusively to further desegregation of the schoolsx are practically non-existent. However, the following groups are worth mentioning, in case they have escaped your notice:

(1) The Integration Service, Inc., of Memphis was established early in the summer as a clearinghouse to assist individuals and groups favoring school desegregation. The executive secretary is Miss Margaret McCulloch and the address is 749 Walker Avenue, Memphis 6, Tenn.

(2) In 1954, the Clearinghouse on Public Education in Northern Virginia was established to serve Arlington, Fairfax County, and Alexandria. The chairman was Jack Worndorff of Arlington, and the group wasx made up of people in that area who wished to further public school desegregation. We have just learned that the organization was dissolved about two weeks ago and that there are plans to establish a new group specifically for the purpose of opposing pro-segregation amendments to the Virginia Constitution; that is all we know at the moment.

(3) The Montgomery County, Md., PTA has a special Committee on Integrated Schools and Integrated PTAs. Hardly a separate organization, but a special-purpose unit of an existing group.

(4) Bi-racial ~~xxxxxxxxxxx~~ citizens committees officially appointed to assist school authorities in planning desegregation might be included, unless you are limiting your survey to voluntary citizens groups. You probably have more information than we do about such committees.

Though not specifically to the point, I am enclosing for your files a list of our state organizations and their principal staff members.

Best wishes for Christmas and the New Year to you, Don Shoemaker, and the other SERS staff members.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Fleming:

The Southern Education Reporting Service, for its reference library and probably for use in Southern School News, is endeavoring to compile a list of bona fide organizations established specifically for the purpose of taking a position on the school segregation-desegregation question.

We have been able to count approximately 44 groups -- some regional and some limited to certain states -- which may be listed as "pro-segregation organizations." And we are, of course, aware of organizations such as the Southern Regional Council which have great interest in the school question as affected by race. However, neither Mr. Shoemaker nor I have been able to recall or to find in our collection of materials the names of any groups formed solely for the purpose of advocating de-segregation of the public schools. All the organizations we have found on the pro-integration side of this question were organized before the Supreme Court's 1954 school decisions and have favored school desegregation as part of broader programs in race relations.

If you can provide us the names of any "pro-integration organizations", or if you can suggest where we might look for them, we will be most appreciative.

Sincerely,

Patrick McCauley

Dear Mr. Fleming:

During a telephone conversation with Mr. Shoemaker today I brought up the matter about which you called us yesterday. He said so far as Southern Education Reporting Service is concerned you may feel free to reprint the Leflar analysis of the Supreme Court desegregation decisions in the pamphlet planned by the Southern Regional Council.

While Mr. Leflar has no claim on the article, Mr. Shoemaker suggested that you write him to inform him of your intended use.

I hope this delay has caused you no inconvenience in your publication plans.

Dear Pat:

Harold Fleming asked me to send you what we have on county-by-county registration of Negroes in Alabama. He has explained to you, I'm sure, how the figures were obtained. Enclosed you will find everything sent us.

Unfortunately, we can't help much on Negro political organizations. The field survey sent us consisted of exactly one paragraph:

"There is a state organization--The Alabama State Coordinating Association for Registration and Voting. There is a similar organization in each Congressional District and in some counties. Besides urging registration and voting, they also formulate a yardstick for measuring candidates for use in each electoral district and help voters decide upon candidates for state office. It has been very effective and has done much to encourage registration in Alabama."

The only background reading I can suggest--and I'm sure you've long since exhausted this--is the Donald Strong study, "Registration of Voters in Alabama" published by the University of Alabama last spring, plus V.O. Key's "Southern Politics."

If we receive any additional information, it certainly will be sent to you.

Please remember me to your wife and the Shoemakers.

Sincerely,

Margaret Price

Dear Mr. McCauley:

The newspaper stories you have seen were based on the enclosed release. We have been carrying on a state-by-state survey of Negro suffrage, but we are only now in the process of putting the state reports together in an overall report on the region.

I am asking Margaret Price, who is doing the drafting job for us, to send you what we have on Alabama that might be useful for your thesis. I'm afraid, though, we can't put too much faith in the reliability of the county figures. As you probably know, this information is all but impossible to gather from official sources in Alabama. Our survey was done for us by Professor J. E. Pierce, Alabama State College in Montgomery. Pierce has followed this situation for a good many years and worked with Professor Donald Strong of the University of Alabama on his recently published report, which you have probably seen.

When we get our overall analysis finished, I will be sure that you get a copy.

This is an appropriate time for me to express once again our thanks to you and Don Shoemaker for help in compiling the instances that went into the integration booklet.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Fleming:

During the past couple of days I have noticed some news stories concerning a report from the Council on Negro voter increases in the South. I wonder if your office has issued, or plans to issue, some kind of bulletin on the subject.

For some work I am doing at Vanderbilt University in political science I am particularly interested in getting county-by-county Negro registration figures for Alabama for 1954 and 1956. If you have any data of this kind that I could beg or borrow from you I would be much beholden to you.

I'm also shy on data on Negro political organizations, activities and leadership. If you know of any handy sources I would appreciate the tip.

We received copies of the report compiled by you and Mr. Loth, and while I haven't read it thoroughly yet, it appears to be an exhaustive job.

Thanks for any help you can give me on my little research effort. It is incidently a thesis for the master's degree in political science and deals with the political implications of the school segregation decisions in Alabama. Trouble is every time I arrive at an ultimate truth, Mr. Folsom, Mr. Engelhardt or someone in between comes up with a new gimmick and I find myself re-assessing, re-writing and re-greting I ever chose such a timely topic.

Thanks again,

Sincerely,

Pat McCauley

Dear Don:

Thanks for your letter about the forthcoming meeting at Arden House and your suggestions for the panel discussion. You've left me plenty of territory in which to find something worthwhile to talk about. It would be very helpful if the three of us could, as you suggest, get together ahead of time for a kind of warm up.

You deserve the highest commendation for arranging to give your wife a break on this trip. I only hope my wife doesn't hear about it, for I am long overdue. It now looks as though I will be in New York for several days after the conference rather than before. But if I should get there early, I will try to track you down. In any case, it will be good to see you again.

All best regards.

Dear Harold:

I believe you are in receipt of some correspondence with Gloria Dapper of the National Citizens Council in regard to the meeting at Arden House later this month. I wrote Gloria that I would get in touch with the third participant in our panel discussion, Dr. W. D. McClurkin of Peabody, and map out what we plan to discuss. I have done so in the last few days.

McClurkin's field is school planning and in this enterprise he has probably the best overall view of southern school administrative problems of any professional educator now alive and kicking. He and I agreed that our presentation should be thoroughly informal, though he preferred to transcribe his beforehand. I will do a general roundup of the factual developments in the field in the last year or so and he will come along with a discussion of some administrative problems reflected from my discussion. He is a matter of fact chap, very keen, and likely to give a very good account of himself.

Since you will be speaking to a definite point of view, perhaps your discussion could be most helpful if it concerned problems on the organizational level in working with school boards, community groups and individuals who are interested in the school question. This is a rather vague definition of what you might talk about, but I should assume if you give your regular spiel and I give my regular spiel it will be a fairly well-rounded panel.

To repeat, I will simply do the factual background, McClurkin will discuss administrative problems from the professional school man's point of view, and the rest of the field will be open to you. It seems to me that this is just about as close as we can get to a definite format, but we might rehearse it, all three of us together, when we first reach Arden House for the program there.

I got the impression from Dorothy Mitchell that you might be on hand in New York a day or two early. I hope we can see you then. My wife has been such a good girl that I am going to take her along for a few days of playgoing before we go on up to Arden House. I am not certain yet whether she is to accompany me there.

With warmest personal regards, I am

Sincerely,

Don

We also need about five of the former and at least three more of the latter for our files. Please bill us for the lot.

Thank you for promptly fulfilling this request. And thank you again for the data on Alabama voter registration you sent me a couple of months ago. The thesis is finished---at long last---and will be submitted formally to the political science department at Vanderbilt about May 1. With your help it turned out better than I had thought it could.

Dear Mr. Constable

Thank you for your inquiry about "Facts on Film." We have in preparation a descriptive pamphlet which will be sent to you shortly. Meanwhile, please let me supply you with some additional information.

"Facts on Film" is a complete reproduction on 35 mm. microfilm of our research library on developments in segregation-desegregation in the public schools, and in race relations in general. This library is constantly consulted by scholars and newsmen who in many cases have come great distances at considerable expense to use this material.

The collection contains more than 100,000 items and dates back to the Supreme Court opinion of May 17, 1954. It contains newspaper clippings (news stories, editorials, letters to the editor, cartoons and features) from scores of southern and national newspapers. Also it has court transcripts, texts of legislative acts, pertinent speeches, surveys, hundreds of magazine articles -- in brief, everything collectable on this great national issue.

Two rolls contain a detailed index. A short index in booklet form for quick reference is in preparation.

The film has been in preparation for more than a year. Those who have seen the negatives are highly enthusiastic, among them Chancellor Harvie Branscomb of Vanderbilt University who, as you know, is a former librarian.

The film is being offered at $1,000 for the 20 reels. The edition is limited. Thousands of manhours have gone into the tedious laying out of clippings, cataloguing and assembly of the material. In the process, new techniques had to be developed and tested. We are confident that this is a significant departure in library filming.

We invite your continued interest in this production which should be ready for general distribution July 1. Of course, the initial price includes semi-annual supplements which will keep the matter up to date.

You may expect to hear from us again within the next few weeks. Again, thank you for your inquiry.

Sincerely,

Mr. John Constable,
Director if Information
Southern Regional Council, Inc.
Room 432, 63 Auburn Avenue, N. E.
Atlanta 3, Georgia

Dear Mr. Constable:

In reply to your recent inquiry, which was greatly appreciated, it gives me pleasure to report that positives of "Facts On Film" are now available for distribution. Supplying you with these further details, I hope that your library will feel the need to subscribe to our new service.

As mentioned in our brochure and initial letter, this collection totals over 100,000 items and dates back to the Supreme Court opinion of May 17, 1954.

The complete collection of "Facts On Film" will be extended and guaranteed through June 30, 1961. The portion of the collection available at present is complete through June, 1957. The first supplement, to include from the above date through December 31, 1957, we agree to send to purchasers by November 1 of this year. The second supplement, January 1, through June 30, 1958, will be available by February, 1959. Six-month supplements will be supplied as quickly as completed thereafter.

The first portion is on 22 rolls with approximately 100 feet and 1000 frames to the roll. This includes a card catalogued, detailed filmed index. Also, a 100-page printed index for more efficient use of the film will be provided. "Facts On Film" has been shot at a reduction to meet requirements of any standard reader showing 35 millimeter microfilm.

The price at which we will market "Facts On Film" is $1000. This includes the guarantee, of course, of all supplements through June 30, 1961. In line with our policy, this service is being offered on a non-profit basis. We sincerely believe that this collection will be of unsurpassed value to scholars, historians and others seeking to stay better informed on one of the vital issues of this era.

I will be happy to confer with you further on additional questions. Thanking you for your inquiry and hoping to include your library among the subscribers to our newest service, I am,

Sincerely,

Harold Goodrum

Dear Mr. Goodrum:

Could you write me the particulars on just how the "Facts on Film" project now stands?

I would appreciate, if possible, details on what periods the project now covers and how much is available at this time.

Thank you.

Attached is the latest information concerning the film service of SERS. I have looked at a viewer and reader. Total price for the viewer-reader-copy machine is $629. This includes one lense which should be sufficient for our use.

Note price of service has gone up by $750.

Advice, please?

Dear Mr. Constable:

Replying to your letter of January 29 to Mr. Goodrum, I am happy to bring you up todate on the status of our library filming project, "Facts on Film."

We have now completed the first installment, covering the period May 1954 through June 1958. Filming of the card catalogue which controls the collection and printing of the index will be completed within the next week. We expect to be able to make shipment of this first installment, complete with index, within two weeks.

Three annual supplements will complete the film. Filming will be begun in July or August of the first supplement, consisting of material collected between July 1, 1958 and June 30, 1959. The same schedule will be followed for Supplements Nos. 2 and 3.

The following explanation of the delay in completion of the film appears to be in order:

A very careful examination of the first installment of film (covering May 1954-June 1957) which we originally offered for sale disclosed that in several respects it failed to meet the exacting standards we had set for it. On the advice of our professional consultants and our board members, refilming was begun in August, and decision was made then to have the first installment include the year 1957-58.

As you probably can imagine, this has been a monumental job; also a costly one. We are told that the filming of a complete library, such as ours, is without precedent. Estimates of time required for completion of the work and cost of the film were based on the best professional advice we could obtain. However, instead of the 35 - 100-ft. rolls estimated for the first installment, the finished product consists of 44 rolls, of which 4 rolls were required for the card catalogue. The annual supplements for 1959, 1960 and 1961 will require a minimum of 10 rolls each, making a total of 74 for the entire project.

The $1,000 price originally quoted was an arbitrary figure which we had hoped would cover production costs. However, our investment amounts to considerably more. We are absorbing the cost of the unused film, but in order to recover the actual cost of production of the film we are now offering for sale, we must set a price of $1,750.

If you would like to examine the film before making a decision, we will be happy to send it on a week's approval. We are confident you will agree that the value of "Facts on Film" to researchers in the field of race relations will be incalculable, and that it meets the most exacting standards of professional quality.

If you wish any further information, please let us hear from you.

Sincerely,

Ed Ball

Dear Ed:

This is to confirm our conversation by telephone in which the Southern Regional Council is ordering one negative set of "Facts on Film." I talked with Mr. C. N. Morgan of Recordak here in Atlanta. He is to pick up the positive set of film we have, make us a negative to be delivered here, and send the positive back to you. Billing is to be done through you so you may send us a bill when Mr. Morgan indicates.

"Facts on Film" is most impressive. The material seems to be quite complete, and it is certainly a boon to researchers in this field to have it in such a compact form. This viewing service will enable us to service our many information requests much more easily and efficiently; but we think the fact that any of the material from "Facts on Film" can now be copied quickly and easily will indeed be an important addition to our research and information departments.

Thank you for your continued indulgence while we were considering "Facts on Films."

Best wishes.

Dear Mr. Fleming,

I find on my desk here a letter dated October 22, 1959 from Miss Dorothy Mitchell, Administrative Assistant at the Fund for the Advancement of Education. The letter was addressed to Mr. Ball and said that you could use about 500 copies of our recent book, SOUTHERN SCHOOLS: PROGRESS AND PROBLEMS.

I am wondering if this request was ever filled, and if not, how many copies you would be able to make use of now.

We would appreciate anything you folks could do to help us push circulation of this book.

RECEIVED
APR 3 1961

Dear Harold:

I have been invited to participate in a conference at Emory on metropolitan problems April 10-12. While I am in Atlanta I would like very much to have the opportunity to visit with you for a little while to get your ideas about some phases of SERS activities. I'll call you after I get to Atlanta to make a specific appointment, assuming that it is convenient for you.

Specifically, I'm interested in getting any ideas you may have about how we can improve SERS services and products. We would like to include in each issue of Southern School News at least one major article discussing some important aspect of the school segregation-desegregation situation. I'm trying to define these areas of interest and to determine who in the South is best qualified to discuss them in such an article.

Another thing I want to discuss with you is the possibility of establishing a somewhat closer working relationship between SRC and SERS in the exchange of information. Facts are pouring in on us daily, but sometimes we discover that it is an almost impossible task to correlate them. My guess is that you already have done the job in some areas.

For whatever interest it may have to you, I'm sending you the text of a report I presented recently at Chicago.

Sincerely yours,

Reed Sarratt

Enc.

Report by Reed Sarratt, executive director of the Southern Education Reporting Service, at the 16th Annual National Conference on Higher Education, Chicago, Ill., March 6, 1961.

The last year has brought relatively little change in the statistical status of racial segregation-desegregation in higher education in the United States. Yet, as a period of stock-taking and direction-pointing, it may prove to have been highly significant.

Georgia was the scene of the only change accompanied by violence. Two Negroes became the first of their race to enroll at the University of Georgia. This left two states -- Mississippi and South Carolina -- that have maintained complete segregation in their state-supported colleges and universities.

Alabama is a third state that does not now have both white and Negro students attending a state institution. But in 1956 Autherine Lucy was admitted to the University of Alabama. Although she was expelled after three days, the University of Alabama remains under court order to admit qualified Negro students.

The University of Tennessee, which under court order admitted Negroes to its graduate and professional schools in 1952, in the fall of 1960 voluntarily adopted a policy of opening its doors to qualified Negro undergraduates. The first Negro undergraduates were enrolled with the beginning of the winter quarter, 1961.

Negro enrollment increased somewhat this year in those public institutions which already had desegregated. But, with the exceptions already noted, the status quo was maintained.

My report will focus on the 17 Southern and border states, plus the District of Columbia, that at the time of the 1954 Supreme Court decision in the Brown case had public school systems segregated by force of law. I shall confine myself to a discussion of developments affecting public -- as opposed to private -- institutions. I shall endeavor to limit myself to the presentation of facts, refraining from the expression of opinions about them.

These restrictions are made necessary by two circumstances: 1) the policies governing the operations of Southern Education Reporting Service, with which I am associated, and 2) the unavailability of very much information about desegregation in private institutions and their exclusion from the application of the legal principle enunciated by the Supreme Court that compulsory segregation in education is unconstitutional.

According to the records of SERS, there are today in the area I have designated 140 formerly all-white, tax-supported institutions above the high school level that are desegregated in practice or in principle, either by court order or voluntary action. These desegregated institutions are 60 per cent of 228 predominantly white public junior and senior colleges and universities in the area.

The totals do not tell the whole story. Some states have complied with the Supreme Court ruling willingly and on a large scale. Others are in technical or "token" compliance. Still others have offered especially strong resistance and either have not complied at all or have made determined fights against compliance.

Twelve of the 17 "segregation" states admitted Negroes to formerly all-white institutions before 1954; they are Arkansas, Delaware, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia and West Virginia. The District of Columbia desegregated in 1954, Alabama in 1956, Florida in 1958 and Georgia in 1961. Of those states which have desegregated, six -- and the District of Columbia -- may be said to have complied with the Supreme Court decision. These states are Delaware, Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri, Oklahoma, and West Virginia. The five "token compliance" states are Arkansas, North Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia. The six "resistant" or "hard core" states are Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina.

Your interest lies in higher education. Yet it is impossible to separate completely developments in higher education from those below the college level. The 1954 decision was directed to elementary and secondary schools, but it was foreshadowed by a line of decisions, beginning with the Gaines case in 1938, directed toward higher education. In turn the 1954 public school decision has affected higher education profoundly.

Along with the University of Georgia, the City of New Orleans recently has shared the spotlight in violent opposition to desegregation. Of interest in this connection is the extent of desegregation in higher education in Louisiana. Five of the state's ten tax-supported, formerly all-white colleges and universities have admitted Negro students, and their combined Negro enrollment this year is 634. This is considerably more than twice the combined enrollment of Negroes in formerly all-white colleges in Arkansas, North Carolina, Tennessee and Virginia, which along with Texas comprise the "token compliance" states. The New Orleans branch of Louisiana State University has 229 Negro students. Desegregation of higher education in Louisiana occurred without incident.

The disorders in Georgia and Louisiana were of major proportions and merit examination. But first, it is worthy of note that when the academic year began last September, there was a complete absence of violence for the first time since the Supreme Court opinion. Neither the New Orleans nor the Athens outbursts was entirely unexpected, although at least in the case of cosmopolitan New Orleans the intensity of the reaction came as something of a surprise.

In both cases, statewide politics played important parts in the shaping of events. In both cases patterns of action developed which may prove to be of great significance in the shaping of the future.

In all the states which have resisted compliance with the desegregation decision, the principal tactic of political leaders has been to seek delay through legislation and litigation. The tactic has been remarkably successful. Laws have been passed to make desegregation difficult, if not impossible. These laws have been assumed to be constitutional until declared unconstitutional. Cases attacking the laws sometimes have taken years to bring to a conclusion. When one law, or set of laws, has been declared invalid, new laws have been passed to take their place, starting the legislate-litigate cycle anew.

In Louisiana and Georgia the familiar mold was broken. The federal courts acted with unusual speed. In Louisiana the courts declared acts of the General Assembly, in one special session after another, unconstitutional and void almost before the ink of the governor's signature on them had time to dry. Decisions were rendered within hours after court action was begun.

The rapidity of court action in these cases reflected judicial impatience with the tactics of delay. Since 1955 the courts have handed down hundreds of decisions in cases growing out of the Brown decision. With each decision the practical meaning of the 1954 decision has been spelled out a bit more precisely, and one route of evasion after another has been closed. Now it is becoming rather clear that the resistant states must make their choice between compliance or closing their schools.

It is an agonizing choice for the Deep South states to make. Perhaps the most significant single development of the last year is the effect of the University of Georgia incident on public opinion and political action in Georgia. A few months ago the odds were slim indeed that the governor of Georgia would recommend and that the Legislature would approve the abandonment of "massive resistance" and the substitution for it of a plan that on its face will permit compliance with the Supreme Court opinion as an alternative to the closing of schools. In a letter to legislative leaders Governor Vandiver commented that the law requiring withdrawal of state support from a white institution that admitted Negroes had turned "from a source of hope to an albatross."

Whether this change in attitude will spread from Georgia to other "hard core" states remains to be seen. But there are indications that resistance may be stronger in at least some of the other states. For example, Governor John Patterson of Alabama in a press conference said: "If you think they've had trouble in New Orleans, just wait until they try integration here. There'll be hell to pay.... If the federal government continues its present course, the only solution will be to close the schools... I'll be one of the first ones stirring up trouble, any way I can." Governor Patterson was outspoken in his criticism of Governor Vandiver.

A general softening of Southern attitudes of resistance was indicated in a recent Gallup poll. The question was: "Do you think the day will ever come in the South when whites and Negroes will be going to the same schools...?" In August, 1957, just before "Little Rock," 45 per cent of the respondents answered "yes." The same question asked in October, 1958, brought affirmative answers from 53 per cent. In January, 1961, the proportion of "yes" answers had grown to 76 per cent. But, since 1954, an unvarying 71 per cent of Southerners have expressed their disapproval of the Supreme Court opinion.

Before leaving the University of Georgia incident, I wish to make two additional observations about it. One has to do with the effects of violence, the other with the role of the United States Department of Justice.

Earlier I mentioned that Autherine Lucy, a Negro, was admitted to the University of Alabama. Her enrollment sparked violent demonstrations in Tuscaloosa. After three days, the Board of Trustees excluded her until further notice "lest greater violence should follow." When Miss Lucy was later "permanently expelled" for accusing university officials of conspiracy in the violence, her expulsion was upheld by the courts. No Negro since has been accepted as a student at the University of Alabama.

Contrast this with what happened at the University of Georgia. After one night of violent demonstrations, Charlayne Hunter and Hamilton Holmes, Negroes who had been admitted to the university under court order, were suspended "in the interest of their personal safety and for the safety and welfare of more than 7,000 other students at the university." Two days later -- on Friday -- U. S. District Judge William A. Bootle ruled that the two Negro students would have to be readmitted by 8 a.m. the following Monday. He quoted the Supreme Court opinion in the Little Rock case that "constitutional rights... are not to be sacrificed or yielded to...violence and disorder" and indicated that, if the state could not control the situation, he would call for federal assistance in maintaining order. The two Negroes were readmitted, and there has been no further incident.

In both the Alabama and Georgia university cases, there were indications that the demonstrations were organized by outsiders for the deliberate purpose of thwarting court desegregation orders. If this is indeed what happened, it would appear to have been a successful strategem in 1956 in Alabama but unsuccessful in 1961 in Georgia. This could be one of the more important developments of the past year.

As to the role of the Department of Justice in the Georgia affair, agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation appeared on the Athens campus the day after the rioting. The attorney general announced that they were there to determine whether there had been violations of Title I of the Civil Rights Act of 1960. This section of the act provides that persons who obstruct or interfere with any order issued by a federal court, or attempt to do so, by threat or force, may be punished by a fine of up to $1,000, imprisonment of up to one year, or both.

At this point I should like to digress for a moment to define a couple of terms. you may have observed my frequent use of the word "desegregation" and my avoidance of the word "integration." Without going into a lengthy dissertation on semantics, I think you should know what I mean when I use these words. In the lexicon of Southern Education Reporting Service, "desegregation" is defined as "change from segregated to biracial or multiracial status, either in practice or in principle." "Integration" is defined as the "absence of all racial distinctions." Applying these definitions to education, it is readily apparent that a school or college which is desegregated may not be integrated. Indeed, we make it a rule not to use the word "integrated" except in direct quotation.

Although there was not much change in the status of desegregation in higher education during the last year, much attention was paid to civil rights and race relations. A major reason was that 1960 was a Presidential election year. Both major parties and their candidates for the Presidency put themselves squarely on record in support of the Supreme Court decision of 1954.

Since the Democrats won, it might be well to take a closer look at their platform pledges and at the pre-election and post-election statements and actions of President Kennedy.

The Democratic platform had a good bit to say on the subject. I shall quote only part of its statement of general principle: "A new Democratic Administration will use its full powers -- legal and moral -- to ensure the beginning of good faith compliance with the Constitutional requirement that racial discrimination be ended in public education. . . We believe that every school district affected by the Supreme Court decision should submit a plan providing for at least first step compliance by 1963, the 100th anniversary of the Emancipation Proclamation... To accomplish these goals will require. . .above all . . . the strong, active persuasive and inventive leadership of the President of the United States."

In 1956 President Kennedy, then a United States Senator whose ambitions for higher office already were known, called upon his party to take a forthright stand in support of the Supreme Court decision. In January of 1960, in announcing his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the presidency, he reaffirmed his civil rights position. In a number of campaign statements and speeches he emphasized his view of the civil rights issue as a moral question. In a June address to the Liberal Party in New York he said: "Moral persuasion by the President can be more effective than force in ending discrimination against Negroes. In one of his television debates with former Vice President Nixon he said: "What will be done to provide equality of education in all sections of the United States? Those are the questions on which the President must establish a moral tone, a moral leadership, and I can assure you that if I am elected president, we will do so."

It is generally conceded that the Negro vote and the "liberal" vote went for Kennedy in proportions large enough to have played an important role in the outcome of the election. Indeed, it may be said with some assurance that without these votes Mr. Kennedy would have lost.

One incident occuring just before the election assumed special significance. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., whom some describe as the American Ghandi, was jailed in Atlanta. Senator Kennedy telephoned Mrs. King to express his sympathy, and his brother Robert is credited with having gained Dr. King's release from jail as a result of a telephone call to Mayor Hartsfield of Atlanta. Some political analysts have said that this was the precise point on which the Kennedy victory turned.

This slight excursion into politics is pertinent to our subject tonight, because demands now are being made on the new administration to carry out campaign promises. For example, Dr. King is the author of the leading article in the Feb. 4 issue of The Nation. The title of his article is "Equality Now: The President Has the Power." It is a rather long article, but I shall quote only brief excerpts. "We must face the tragic fact that the federal government is the nation's highest investor in segregation," Dr. King writes.

Later he adds: "It is no exaggeration to say that the President could give segregation its death blow through a stroke of the pen."

Dr. King is not alone in urging this course of action on the President. Since the election, the President has received at least three major reports recommending that federal funds be withheld from schools and colleges which practice segregation.

Two of these reports came from national commissions -- the President's Commission on National Goals and the United States Commission on Civil Rights. The third came from the Southern Regional Council, a private organization which has as its purpose to advance equal opportunity for whites and Negroes in the South.

The first of these reports to be submitted was that of the President's Commission on National Goals. In its statement on "National Goals in Education" the commission said: "We should set as our minimum goal that by 1970 there should be no state in which desegregation is prevented by state action, no state that has not moved to comply with the court decision on desegregation." Three of the eleven commissioners held that discrimination in education should be entirely overcome. All but one of the commissioners joined in a recommendation that "the federal government should enforce the principle that federal funds shall not be disbursed to...universities (which) discriminate on the basis of race."

The entire 355-page report of the United States Commission on Civil Rights, submitted to the President on Jan. 13, was devoted to the subject of "Equal Protection of the Laws in Public Higher Education." The commission declared "that the Federal Government has been a silent partner in the creation and perpetuation of separate colleges for Negroes." Although saying that "the heart of the problem of discrimination against the Negro today lies in the Southern states," the Commission added that "the public colleges of the Northern and Western states are not free from discrimination against Negroes."

In its findings the Commission said: "Discrimination by such colleges on the grounds of race, religion or national origin is a denial of equal protection of the laws" and that "the Federal Government has an obligation to take appropriate measures to prevent discrimination." Five of the six members of the commission recommended, among other things, that "the Federal Government, either by executive or, if necessary, by congressional action, take such measures as may be required to assure that funds under the various programs of federal assistance to higher education are disbursed only to such publicly controlled institutions of higher education as do not discriminate on grounds of race, color, religion or national origin." Three of the six commissioners would apply the same treatment to private institutions.

The Southern Regional Council in January submitted to President Kennedy a 48-page report containing 18 proposals for actions by the executive department "to strengthen civil rights and improve race relations." The Council said: "Resistance to the Supreme Court's decision is an assault on the Constitution, and the federal executive should take all authorized measures to bring it to an end." Among the measures advocated was the withholding of certain Federal funds from institutions which deny admission to Negro students.

The statements and reports I have quoted fall into the category of opinion or advocacy. What about action? What has President Kennedy done to carry out his and his party's campaign pledges?

In statements before his election the President repeatedly emphasized the importance he attached to "moral leadership," "moral persuasion," and "moral tone." Since his election, the President has had little to say about discrimination in education. At a press conference on Feb. 8 he was questioned about the situation in New Orleans. He replied, in part:

"I will, at such time as I think is most useful and most effective, I will attempt to use the moral authority or position of influence of the Presidency in New Orleans and in other places. I want to make sure that whatever I do or say does have some beneficial effect and, therefore, it is a matter which we are considering... It is my position that all students should be given the opportunity to attend schools regardless of their race... I believe strongly that every American should have an opportunity to have maximum development of his talents, under the most beneficial circumstances..."

Apparently the President's words did not have the same meaning to everyone who heard or read them. His statement was both praised and criticized by commentators on both sides of the school segregation controversy.

Subsequent to the President's press conference statement, his brother, Attorney-General Robert Kennedy, filed contempt proceedings against Louisiana Education Supt. Shelby M. Jackson. The purpose of the action is to force the state superintendent to comply with federal court orders not to interfere with the operations of the New Orleans schools.

An act of omission on the part of the Administration may attract as much attention as anything the President has done. On Feb. 20 President Kennedy submitted to Congress a message outlining his "aid to education" program. Noticeably missing was any mention of withholding funds for non-compliance with the Supreme Court school segregation decision.

Perhaps Secretary Ribicoff of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare spoke for the Administration when at a press conference on the same day he said: I personally believe in the Supreme Court school desegregation decision. I believe it was right morally and legally. But my job is education, and my hope is that we would not block education with any other side issues. I want to see us help schools and students, North, South, East and West, Negro and white alike. I can't think of any worse tragedy for education than to put on its back all other problems facing the country. I will fight against anything that will hold back education."

Replying to a question, the Secretary said: "I know of nothing in law that would allow the secretary or the President to withhold the funds. Grants are made under acts passed by Congress. The secretary or the Chief Executive follows what is in the law... If the Congressional acts do not have the prohibition, I don't see how we can usurp the power of Congress."

Waiting in the wings to try to see to it that the missing prohibition is supplied was Representative Adam Clayton Powell, Negro Congressman from New York and chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee. Earlier Powell had said that he would not seek adoption of an anti-discrimination amendment to the education bill this year, if President Kennedy created the "proper atmosphere" of executive action in the field. Congressman Powell said that he would offer the anti-discrimination amendment if Secretary Ribicoff was "speaking the mind of the President." At the same time the Congressman expressed the hope that by the time the bill comes to the floor of the House the Administration's stand against racially-segregated education would be so clear that it would not have to be specified in law.

The Republican leadership in Congress was quick to react to the situation. On Feb. 23 Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen said that he would offer a civil rights bill "in the absence of any clear indication that the administration is going to submit anything." He said that his bill would provide federal financial aid to schools seeking to desegregate.

The United States Civil Rights Commission met at Williamsburg, Va., Feb. 25-26 for its third annual conference on schools in transition. In a telegram to Commission Chairman John A. Hannah, President Kennedy paid tribute to "the men and women responsible for maintaining our public schools and for carrying through the process of desegregation." The President said: "This is no time for schools to close for any reason, and certainly no time for schools to be closed in the name of racial discrimination." He referred to "the command of the Constitution" and said that "...we must be true to the great principles of our constitution." These remarks may be classified as "moral leadership," in support of the Supreme Court opinion, but they contain no hint of executive action to enforce it.

Unwilling to leave the decision on federal aid to either the President or to Congress, five Virginia Negroes filed a suit on Feb. 14 in the United District Court in the District of Columbia asking the court to enjoin the federal government from making appropriations to "institutions engaged in the nauseating practices of racial segregation by virtue of statute, ordinance, regulation, custom or usage."

Any move to tie expenditure of federal funds for education to compliance with the Supreme Court opinion will be vigorously opposed, as it has been in the past. Indicative of the opposition is the report adopted at Biloxi, Miss., by the Southern Assembly, composed of Southern leaders in education. The report said that "the union of educational and social objectives poses a special threat to colleges and universities and especially to private institutions." It warned that federal support designed to compel social change might terminate other support of equal or greater significance.

Of course, the federal government cannot force its financial aid on any institution or school system. The Houston, Texas, school board recently voted to reject all federal aid.

Where does all this lead? That is not for me to say. My function is to report what has happened. Our political and educational leaders will decide the course of the future.

Dear Harold:

Congratulations on your appointment as executive vice president of the Potomac Institute. I am sorry indeed that you are leaving the Southern Regional Council, but I know that you will be able to render even broader service in your new job.

From the press release, I assume that the change will not take effect for several weeks. As you know, I plan to be in Atlanta next week, and I still would like to see you while I'm there. I would also like to meet Leslie Dunbar. I'll call you Monday morning to make an appointment.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Les:

The correspondents for Southern School News will hold their annual seminar this year at the Atlanta Biltmore October 27-28. We would be delighted to have you join us for any or all of our meetings.

We plan to get underway at 3 p.m. on Friday, October 27, with a discussion of the work of the Southern Regional Education Board. A cocktail party and dinner will follow.

On Saturday morning, beginning at 10 o'clock, we will discuss the desegregation of Atlanta schools, and then we'll have lunch together. We have set aside Saturday afternoon for shop talk. Cocktails and dinner on Saturday will wind up the session.

While you would be welcome at any part of the seminar, we most especially would like to have you join us for cocktails and dinner on Friday or Saturday nights, or both. I'd appreciate your letting me know when you can be with us in order that I may make the proper arrangements with the hotel.

Dear Reed:

I finally have read your memo on "The Future of SERS and the SERS Library" You certainly have given your board a lesson in how to face up to a problem. I will be very interested to hear what came out of the March 26th meeting. I especially would like to know whether you got the go ahead for the book.

With best wishes,

Memorandum on

The Future of SERS and the SERS Library

At the Directors' meeting on March 26, 1961, Mr. McKnight made the following comments:

"At our annual meeting next year, the question will be termination or renewal of the project. I would like to suggest, sir, that the Executive Committee at this meeting also prepare for the board a recommendation on the feasibility of continuing the library part of SERS beyond '63, if the board should decide to terminate SERS, either under the same sponsorship or new sponsorship . . . I feel very strongly if we can find the funds, if we disband SERS we should continue the library part of this operation."

The Chairman referred the matter to the Executive Committee. The future of the library is involved intimately with the future of the project as a whole. Presumably, so long as SERS continues to operate, the library will remain an integral part of the operation. Therefore, the first question to which the committee should direct its attention is the future of SERS. Should the committee decide that SERS ought to terminate on June 30, 1963, then it will be necessary to decide what to do about the library as a separate operation.

At some point during each grant period it has been necessary for the Directors to determine whether in their judgment SERS has fulfilled its objective to the extent that its services no longer are needed sufficiently to justify recommending another grant. This judgment must be based in part on the Directors' personal assessments of the school segregation-desegregation situation in the Southern and border states. At the same time there are certain objective measurements of the usefulness of SERS's services and the need for them.

The School Segregation-Desegregation Situation

At the time of the Supreme Court decision in 1954, public schools were segregated by law in 17 states and the District of Columbia. When schools opened for the 1961-62 academic year, 7.3 per cent of the Negro school children in this area were enrolled in desegregated schools. Of these, 97 per cent were in the District of Columbia and in the six border states of Delaware, Kentucky, Maryland, Missouri, Oklahoma, and West Virginia. The remaining three per cent were in the states of Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, North Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia. Desegregation in Louisiana was limited to 12 Negro children in schools with whites in New Orleans; and in Georgia, to 9 Negroes in Atlanta. In three states -- Alabama, Mississippi and South Carolina -- all public schools remained segregated.

The states in which 97 per cent of the desegregation has occurred have 14.3 per cent of the region's Negro school children. The eight states with three per cent of the Negro children in schools with whites have 60 per cent of the Negro school children in the region. The three states with no Negro children in schools with whites have 25.7 per cent of the region's Negro school children.

From these facts it is apparent that in this eighth school year after the Supreme Court opinion six states and the District of Columbia are in substantial compliance, eight states have taken some steps toward compliance, and three states have not begun to comply.

SERS Services

In this situation, is it reasonable to predict that the need for the services of SERS will continue beyond June 30, 1963? It may be helpful in answering this question to examine the use now being made of these services. To list them, they are:

Southern School News

Perhaps the best indication of the usefulness of Southern School News is paid circulation. The peak of 11,300 was reached in June, 1956. Two months later it had dropped to 8,221 and by December of the same year had climbed to 9,478. From then it declined steadily, falling to 4,792 in October, 1959. Until November, 1960, circulation held around 4,800. Since that time it has dropped to about 4,600. Circulation Department records show that SSN has had 15,345 subscribers since the policy of charging for subscriptions was inaugurated on July 1, 1955.

While total circulation has been stable for the last two years, it is constantly turning over. Figures compiled on the five issues August through December, 1961, show that 495 subscriptions were permitted to expire. During the same period 114 old subscribers whose names had been removed from the active files subscribed again, and 285 new subscriptions were received. The net loss for the five months was 96.

These figures suggest that there is a sustained interest in Southern School News and that subscribers who drop out are replaced by new ones. Although the long-range trend of circulation has been downward, the rate of decline for the last two years has been slow.

Confronted in the spring of 1960 with the question of whether to recommend extension of SERS for another two-year grant, the Directors retained Dr. William L. Rivers of the University of Texas "to conduct an independent survey regarding the usefulness of Southern School News and the need for its continuation." On the basis of Dr. Rivers' findings, the Directors voted unanimously to recommend an additional grant.

Many unsolicited comments come to SERS from the users of its services. These in effect provide a reaction-guage similar to the Rivers study. During the last years more than 60 such comments have been recorded. With few exceptions they are highly complimentary. The samples quoted below are representative:

> I want to thank you sincerely for the great service you are providing our entire region through the Southern School News. -- Dr. William C. Archie, Director, State Board of Higher Education, Raleigh, N. C.

> I've been to Harvard on a Nieman . . . I've been keeping up with the world of Southern affairs through the Southern School News. It is like never leaving home. -- Robert C. Smith, Associate Editor, The Virginian-Pilot and Ledger-Star, Norfolk, Va.

> I am an avid reader of your publication and am much indebted to it for so much valuable information. This is valuable to me as a teacher of "race relations" as well as a great boon in my personal research in this field -- Jonas O. Rosenthal, Sociology Department, Colby College, Waterville, Maine.

This publication is vital in my work. -- Jesse DeVore, Public Relations Assistant, NAACP, New York.

I have read your Southern School News for a number of years. You do a very fine job of reporting school news in an impartial manner. -- Edwin W. Davis, Associate Secretary for Special Studies, National Education Association, Washington, D. C.

The Southern School News continues to render a valuable service. -- John W. Letson, superintendent, Atlanta, Ga., public schools.

An activity such as yours is not only integral but central to the whole process of educational communication. -- J. Ben Lieberman, Director, Education Writing Program, Columbia University, New York.

I know the Governor has found Southern Education Reporting Service very useful and I particularly have. -- Graham Jones, Press Secretary to Governor Terry Sanford, Raleigh, N. C.

Your publications are frequently useful in our work . . . In the interest of meeting the needs of Congress efficiently and quickly, we would appreciate your authorizing us to copy from your publications . . . for use either in legislative matters or in connection with Members' correspondence . . . -- Burnis Walker, Executive Officer, Library of Congress, Washington, D. C.

Southern School News is important to me as a citizen of Mississippi . . . I find myself being largely guided by the source material coming to me in Southern School News. -- Worth M. Tippy, Laurel, Miss.

I count it as a privilege to have had some of my material published in Southern School News recently -- the condensed publication of the statement of the Louisiana State Sovereignty Commission on the Adoption (?) of the Fourteenth Amendment. -- Walter J. Suthon Jr., attorney, New Orleans, La.

Your co-operation and the special knowledge you have contributed have been of inestimable value in helping us evaluate and report the news more quickly and more authoritatively. -- Bernard M. Auer, Publisher, Time.

This is an excellent, indeed an indispensable service. -- J. Edward Sproul, National Board of YMCA's, New York.

I find the paper very informative and unbiased. You are rendering a great service to areas where such news items never reach the daily paper. -- Mrs. E. J. Cook, Mobile, Ala.

You are doing a tremendous job. I wish that more people could read your materials -- Miss Virginia Lerch, Chattanooga, Tenn.

May I take this occasion to express my appreciation of the high character of reporting which has characterized this publication. -- A. A. Bond, M.D., Jacksonville, Fla.

You have performed and are performing a most valuable service. -- J. L. Blair Buck, Richmond, Va.

Another index to the usefulness of Southern School News is the number of times it is cited as the source of information.

A survey of books in the SERS library shows that 18 authors cited Southern School News in 228 instances. Occasionally authors mention SERS in their acknowledgements. For example, J. W. Peltason in his book "Fifty-Eight Lonely Men (New York: Harcourt, Brace and World, 1961) says: "I have relied heavily, as do all working in this area, on Southern School News, published monthly by the Southern Education Reporting Service, which provides detailed, state-by-state coverage." Fred P. Reuter, in his "An Administrator's Guide to Successful Desegregation of the Public Schools" (Ph. D. thesis, School of Education, New York University), writes: "For up-to-date accurate and factual news reporting devoted exclusively to school desegregation, the Southern School News is unparalleled."

In writing its annual reports to the President and Congress the United States Commission on Civil Rights has relied heavily on Southern School News. The 1959 report contains 142 SSN citations; the 1960 report, 81 citations; and the 1961 report, 67.

Southern School News is quoted with such consistency and frequency by newspapers, magazines and radio and television newscasters that it would be impractical to attempt to count the number of instances.

Race Relations Law Reporter

The relationship of SERS to the Race Relations Law Reporter is that of business agent. Full responsibility for editorial content rests with the Law School of Vanderbilt University. In handling circulation for the Reporter, SERS obtains information about it similar to that reviewed above for Southern School News.

Circulation of the first issue of the Reporter after SERS assumed responsibility for it was 1,772. This was Issue No. 1 of Volume 4. Circulation for Issue No. 4 of Volume 5 was 2,243. Beginning with Volume 6 the price of an annual subscription was increased from $3 to $5. This brought a decline in circulation to 1,569. But for the last issue, No. 3 of Volume 6, the circulation had climbed to 1,713. Thus, despite the drop of 530 in circulation, revenue increased by $1,836.

In correspondence about circulation, SERS receives many favorable comments on the Law Reporter. Some samples from the last few months follow:

> Your excellent publication has been recommended to me by both my Northern and Southern friends. -- Earl Johnson Jr., Chicago, Ill.
> I had thought it would be possible to get along without the Reporter during this, a sabbatical year away from teaching at the University of Wisconsin Law School. But I can't. -- G. W. Foster Jr., San Francisco, Calif.
> . . . one of the finest works in this field. -- George L. Moxon, attorney, West Hollywood, Fla.
> Race Relations Law Reporter is a highly worthwhile publication. -- E. Lee Trinkle Library, Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg, Va.

The Law Reporter often is cited as a source of information. Thirteen books in the SERS library cite it 304 times. Peltason says of it: "The Race Relations Law Reporter . . . is the primary source for judicial decisions, legislative enactments, rulings of administrative agencies and reports of commissions." Wilson Record wrote in his "Little Rock, U. S. A." (Chandler: 1960): "Race Relations Law Reporter . . . provides a comprehensive summary of legal developments . . . Required for those who have an interest in the legal aspects of race relations."

The United States Civil Rights Commission cites the Law Reporter 67 times in its 1959 report, 34 times in its 1960 report and 261 times in its 1961 report.

Statistical Summary

First printed in April, 1957, the Statistical Summary now has gone through ten revisions. Sales of the Summary increased dramatically with the ninth revision, published in May, 1961.

The maximum printing of any previous revision was 1,000 copies. The printing order for the November, 1960, revision was 800 copies, and 405 of these were sold. Of the 800 copies printed of the May, 1960, revision 411 were sold.

Prior to the May, 1961, revision, the Summary had been sold on an annual subscription basis, subscribers receiving two semi-annual revisions for $1, or at a rate of 50 cents a copy. With the May, 1961, revision a new policy was started of selling the Summary at $1 a copy. A first printing of 1,000 copies was quickly sold out, and a second printing of 1,000 also sold out.

By the time the November, 1961, revision was ready for distribution -- early in December -- orders already were on hand for 762 copies at $1 each. By Dec. 18 orders had been received for 1,240 copies. In view of the sale of the entire printing of 2,000 copies of the May, 1961, revision and of the pre-publication interest shown in the November, 1961, revision, 5,000 of the latter were printed. The Summary will be revised annually in the future rather than semi-annually, according to present plans.

Whether the growth in sales of the Summary is the result of greater promotion or greater interest in its subject matter, it is apparent that a substantial number of people feel a need for it.

Information Bureau

In addition to the information that it disseminates through its publications and microfilm, SERS frequently receives direct inquiries from news media, government officials, various organizations and interested individuals. In the first six months of the current fiscal year 115 such queries, excluding requests from students, were recorded.

Among those asking for information were the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the Saturday Review Education Supplement, Newsweek, the New York Times, the Associated Press, United Press International, the Ford Foundation, Peabody College, Tuskegee Institute, the Methodist Board of Education, CBS, the United States Commission on Civil Rights, the Saturday Evening Post, the National Council of Churches, Time, the Southern Regional Council, U.S. News and World Report, the United States Information Agency, the Atlanta Constitution, the Wall Street Journal, the Christian Science Monitor, the New York Herald-Tribune, the Washington Post, the Board of Registrars of Macon County, Ala., the Encyclopedia Americana, the American Jewish Committee, the Potomac Institute, the Wilmington (Del.) News-Journal, Howard University, the Missouri Commission on Human Rights, the American Review (Rome, Italy), and the National Education Association.

Press Releases

Undoubtedly the widest distribution of information from SERS comes through its monthly press releases. At present these releases are going to 117 newspapers, news magazines, press associations and radio and television networks and stations that have requested them.

It is impossible to measure the use of the press releases, except in the publications received in the SERS library. If they are representative, the use of the releases is extensive. The library regularly receives 48 newspapers. The December, 1961, release was used in 28 of them. In November a special release on resegregation was mailed in addition to the regular release; 25 papers used the special release and 18 the regular one. The regular October release appeared in 24 papers.

The Associated Press and United Press International prepare stories from SERS releases each month for distribution over their news wires. In this way many newspapers and broadcasting outlets that are not on the press release mailing list obtain stories based on the releases.

It is no exaggeration to say that millions of people are exposed to SERS information through the use made of its press releases.

Library and Facts on Film

The library and the microfilm are inseparable. In Nashville the original library collection is in constant use by the SERS staff. Many outsiders come to the library to do research in the field of race relations. The most recent library visitor was James Jackson Kilpatrick, editor of the Richmond News-Leader, who spent two days in December at SERS headquarters doing research on a book he is writing.

The use made of the library on microfilm is unknown, but its purchase by 41 libraries scattered throughout the country indicates that it is regarded as a valuable source of information.

Some Possibilities for the Future

This memorandum thus far has dealt with facts about SERS operations and services that the Committee may wish to consider in formulating its recommendations to the Board on the future of the project. Among the various possibilities for exploration are these:

1. That the project terminate on June 30, 1963, with the expiration of the current grant.

2. That the project continue on essentially the present basis for two years beyond June 30, 1963.

3. That the project continue, but on a curtailed basis.

4. That the project continue, and that it be expanded.

5. That the project continue for one year or two years during which a book on the first ten years of school desegregation would be prepared. Other phases of current operations could be continued, curtailed or expanded while the book was in preparation.

6. That the project continue for the sole purpose of maintaining the library.

The first two possibilities listed -- termination on June 30, 1963, or continuation on the present basis -- would seem to require no further documentation. Some elaboration on the others may prove to be helpful.

Curtailment

The project might be continued, but curtailed. The Committee will want to examine the points at which operations could be curtailed and the effect that this would have on services and costs.

By far the greater part of SERS costs of operation are for salaries and printing. The most obvious place to trim operations would be in the area of publications.

Already the Ford Foundation has suggested that Race Relations Law Reporter look to another source for funds after June 30, 1963. The cost of publishing the Law Reporter for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1961, was $66,619.79. The estimated cost for each year of the current biennium is $68,750.

Were the publication of Southern School News to be discontinued, operating costs would be reduced substantially. Printing and mailing the paper costs around $15,000 a year. Base salaries for correspondents amount to $22,800 a year. Elimination of the paper would remove the need for one, and possibly two, of the three men on the Nashville staff.

If both the Law Reporter and Southern School News were to be eliminated from SERS operations, there no longer would be any need for a circulation department. Salaries paid to the three circulation employees amount, at present rates, to $9,300 a year.

Retraction of the area covered by Southern School News is another possibility. The process of compliance with the Supreme Court opinion has proceeded in six states and the District of Columbia to the point that frequently correspondents there have difficulty finding anything to report. The savings to be realized from this step would be confined primarily to the salaries of the correspondents involved. This would come to $8,400 a year.

The fixed costs of the most recent revision of the Statistical Summary were $3,437.13. It costs SERS an additional 15 cents to sell a copy of the Summary. To break even on the issue, 4,044 copies must be sold. The staff is hopeful that the Summary will prove to be self-liquidating and even profitable.

Facts on Film could be discontinued, but as explained in the memorandum on microfilm, this would save no money. Indeed, Facts on Film should produce a profit in the future.

To summarize: Removal of Race Relations Law Reporter from SERS operations would reduce operating costs by $68,750. Discontinuation of Southern School News would make possible further reductions in costs of at least $57,000.

If SERS were to continue its library and general information functions, including the annual publication of Facts on Film and the Statistical Summary, a rough estimate of the net cost would be $70,000. This assumes a staff consisting of a director, a secretary, a librarian, three assistant librarians and a janitor. It provides for the irregular publication of monographs on various phases of the school segregation-desegregation question; these could be sold or distributed without charge.

Expansion

Almost from the beginning of SERS, proposals for broadening its scope have been discussed. So far SERS has limited its publications to coverage of public school segregation-desegregation in the 17 Southern and border states and the District of Columbia. That is to say, it has confined its reporting to developments that involve both public schools and race in the states which in 1954 had constitutional or statutory requirements that their public schools be racially segregated.

Already school segregation has become an issue in states where segregation is a fact but is not, and has not been, required by law. The first legal challenge of de facto school segregation in the North was in New Rochelle, N. Y. Other suits have been filed in Chicago, Philadelphia, Centreville, Ill., and Newark, N. J. Thus one possibility for expanding operations would be to continue the limitations on subject matter, but to cover the entire United States.

Another possibility would be to retain the present geographical boundaries of the area covered but to amend the limitations on subject matter. Reporting could be broadened to include all aspects of education and/or race relations. Even under present policies it often is extremely difficult to know just where to draw the line between strictly education-related race relations and other aspects of race relations.

Still another possibility would be to broaden the geographical area of coverage to include the entire United States and at the same time to report all significant developments in education and/or race relations. If a move were to be made in this direction, it probably would not be practical to give complete coverage to both education and race relations. A more feasible plan might be to concentrate on either education or race relations. The Southern Education Reporting Service might evolve into a National Education Reporting Service or a National Race Relations Reporting Service. In either eventuality the service would report on those developments in which education and race came together. Whether to emphasize education or race relations would hinge on judgment of relative need for complete, objective reporting in the two areas. Casual observation suggests that the need now is being met more nearly in the field of education than in race relations.

The Board may feel that any expansion of either geographical area or subject matter covered would be outside the concept of SERS. Should the SERS Board agree on the need for such expansion, it might wish to suggest to the Ford Foundation the creation of a new, national agency to meet the need.

In the absence of any concrete plan of expansion, it would be rather futile to attempt to estimate the cost.

Book on First Decade of School Desegregation in the South

Last spring the executive director presented to all members of the Board and to Mr. John Scanlon of the Ford Foundation a tentative proposal for the publication of a book on the first ten years of school desegregation following the Supreme Court opinion of 1954. The response was uniformly favorable to the idea. The proposal then was explored with Mr. Lambert Davis, director of the University of North Carolina Press, who was enthusiastic about the prospect of publishing the book.

Briefly put, the book would be a condensation of what has been published in Southern School News since 1954 and would include a refined and revised summary of statistics for the decade. Comprehensive treatment would be given to every major phase of activity, including but not necessarily limited to the following: litigation; legislation; the pace of compliance; patterns of compliance and resistance; the roles of official and lay leaders, politicians, the press, the church, organizations and law enforcement agencies; the effects of desegregation on school personnel; the economic effects of school desegregation; the effects of population shifts; the effects of the school decision and its implementation on other aspects of race relations.

Were the book to be published, the cost and method of its preparation would depend on other decisions made about the future of SERS operations. The proposal originally outlined was that the publication of Southern School News cease on June 30, 1963, and that the SERS Board recommend to the Ford Foundation that another grant be made for a period of one year, July 1, 1963 - June 30, 1964, specifically for preparation of the book. Under this plan, a grant of $100,000 should prove ample. This assumes that most of the work on the book would be done by the Nashville SERS staff and that the library operations would continue unchanged.

An alternative to this plan would be a two-year extension, during the first year of which publication of Southern School News would continue, leaving a second year for preparation of the book. The advantage of this plan is that it would permit full coverage in Southern School News of the first ten years after the Supreme Court decision. The same advantage would hold for the book; to prepare it in 1963-64 would necessitate limiting factual review to something less than the full ten years. The extra year also would allow more time to work on the book. Under this two-year plan the maximum grant for the first year would be $195,000 (the same as the current annual grant) and $100,000 for the second year, or a total of $295,000.

Still another alternative would be to continue to publish Southern School News while the book was in preparation, either during a one-year or two-year period beyond June 30, 1963. Were this choice made, it would seem necessary to employ additional personnel and to add to the grant an amount sufficient to cover the extra salaries involved. The greater part of the research and writing on the two SERS books already published was done by persons who were not members of the regular Nashville headquarters staff. It is contemplated that very nearly all of the research and writing for the proposed book would be done by the Nashville staff. It would be extremely difficult for the present staff to undertake the preparation of a major book while continuing to perform all present functions.

The President and staff of the Fund for the Advancement of Education last spring discussed the book proposal. In a letter to the SERS executive director, Mr. John Scanlon summarized the conclusions they reached. He wrote:

"I brought the matter up at a recent Fund staff meeting, and the consensus of my colleagues was that we would look upon such a request with sympathetic interest, but that certain decisions needed to be made first by the board of directors of SERS. Briefly, we felt that these decisions were as follows:

"(1) Whether or not to request an additional grant from the Ford Foundation at the expiration of the present grant on June 30, 1963.

"(2) Whether or not to publish such a volume, and a decision as to its nature and scope.

"(3) Whether or not to have such a volume published by the University of North Carolina Press. (The University of North Carolina Press has, if you will recall, printed the original Ashmore report, so there is some logic in this.)"

In a telephone conversation with the SERS executive director, Mr. Scanlon raised two additional questions. They were:

(1) How long will it take to prepare the book?

(2) How much will it cost?

This memorandum addresses itself to the last two questions. The first three are for the SERS Board to answer.

The Library as a Separate Operation

The Executive Committee has been asked to give particular attention to "the feasibility of continuing the library part of SERS beyond '63, if the Board should decide to terminate SERS, either under the same sponsorship or new sponsorship."

If SERS continues on any basis after June 30, 1963, the library would remain a part of it. This would postpone until some future SERS termination date the activation of any plan for continuation of the library alone.

The Board already has taken action on disposition of the library upon termination of SERS. On March 6, 1955, the Board designated the Joint University Libraries as "the permanent site of the SERS library collection." On March 26, 1961, the Board rescinded its earlier action and designated Fisk University as repository for the library.

Presumably, unless the Board takes some further action, the future of the SERS library will rest with Fisk University once SERS terminates its operations. What Fisk would do with the library would have some bearing on any further action the SERS Board may wish to take.

Following the March 26, 1961, Board meeting, the SERS executive director conferred with President Wright, Dean Redd and Librarian Bontemps of Fisk to discuss the Board's action. They indicated their intent to maintain the library, once it was in Fisk's possession, substantially as it has been operated and to make it accessible to those who wish to use it.

To do this obviously involves more than the mere physical transfer of the library collection from SERS to Fisk. It would be necessary for Fisk to provide space and equipment to house the library, and funds would be needed to maintain and continue the collection of materials and to pay the salaries of staff.

At the request of President Wright, a statement was prepared on the direct costs of operating the SERS library. In preparing this statement, it was assumed that all equipment -- primarily filing cabinets for clippings and the card catalog -- now in use to house the collection would accompany it.

The statement shows that the total cost of operating the SERS library for one year, exclusive of salaries, is approximately $11,000. This includes the cost of books, subscriptions to newspapers and periodicals, materials, equipment and service and microfilming. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 1961, SERS paid to library personnel salaries totaling slightly more than $14,500, making the total cost of library operations $25,500. The amount of $8,600 charged against the library for microfilming was recovered from the sale of microfilm. Thus the net cost of library operations, including salaries, was $16,900, and exclusive of salaries, $2,400. Any continuation of the microfilming should be self-liquidating.

Should the SERS Board decide to retain possession of the library and to continue its operations after termination of all other phases of the project, the cost would be approximately the same as indicated in the paragraph above. Added to this would be rent and perhaps a few other miscellaneous items. The total should not exceed $20,000 a year.

Such an operation appears to be feasible. The necessary funds probably could be raised -- if not from the Ford Foundation then from some other foundation or source.

The question that logically arises is: What would be the advantage of continuing only the library under SERS auspices rather than to let the library go to Fisk upon termination of all other phases of SERS operations? Fisk could collect, classify and process materials as well as could a separate SERS library. Whether Fisk or SERS operated the library, the materials in it would be equally accessible.

There is some question that Fisk could serve the function of a general information bureau as well as SERS does. The wide acceptance and use of SERS as a source of information stems from its reputation for objectivity. It is doubtful that Fisk would be so regarded by the press, by government officials, by the legal profession, by educational administrators or by the general public. This is not to the discredit of Fisk but is a normal product of its position of leadership in the effort to secure the civil rights of Negroes.

It also is doubtful that SERS as nothing more than a library could serve adequately the information function that SERS now serves. The library staff is trained in the techniques of collecting and processing materials and making them available. But it has no experience in dealing directly with those who call on SERS for information, nor is the staff trained in research, writing and editing.

If the Board wishes to extend the existence of SERS beyond June 30, 1963, primarily to operate the library, the proposal outlined in the last paragraph of the "Curtailment" section of this memorandum seems worthy of serious consideration.

The Question for the Board

Mr. John Scanlon, in a telephone conversation with the executive director of SERS, well described the situation and phrased the questions that the SERS Board must answer. He said:

"The people in the Fund and the Foundation feel that SERS has been a worthwhile enterprise and that it shouldn't just peter out. The initiative in determining whether the enterprise is going to terminate at the end of the current grant will be up to the Directors of SERS.

"The Foundation's attitude would be determined by the answers to such questions as: Have the major outlines of the story been told? Have the major developments unfolded?

"The Foundation has never abandoned a project in mid-stream. They would want to see this one carried to a successful conclusion, but if the major outlines are clear by the end of June, 1963, the Foundation probably would raise some questions before making another grant to extend it.

"The Foundation always has placed a lot of weight on the judgment of the SERS Directors. The Foundation is 1,500 miles away, while the SERS Directors are intimately involved. The Foundation would lean strongly on the judgment of the SERS Directors. SERS is one of the best things the Fund and Foundation have ever done."

Dear Les:

You will find a report on the SERS Board meeting on Page 4 of the April issue of Southern School News. As you will observe, it does not mention the book.

The Board of Directors did not approve the book project. I suppose I would have to say that they disapproved it, since they deleted from the budget I submitted the amount included to cover the cost of the book's preparation.

Sincerely yours,

Reed

Dear Reed:

Thank you for your note of April 13. I will tell you now the reason I was especially interested in the book is that we have thought of doing this ourselves on the 10th anniversary of the Supreme Court decision. Although anything we did would differ markedly in character from an SERS publication, I am not sure that it would be worthwhile for both of us to do it. Beyond talking about it, we have made no plans at all, though our probable method would be to free Benjamin Muse from other duties so that he could write the book, perhaps with the help of other persons, in a couple of sections such as the exposition and analysis of legal decisions.

If this is a dead possibility with you now we would like to move ahead on plans. At the risk of seeming needlessly persistent, I wish you would let me know whether this is the case or whether you still have hopes that SERS may undertake this. It may be, of course, that you, no more than we, can be at all definite at this time.

With best wishes,

Sincerely yours,

Dear Les:

It doesn't surprise me to learn that you are thinking about producing a book on the first ten years following the Brown decision. The need for it is obvious.

There is not much more I can say about the status of our plans for a book. Clearly, my Board of Directors has not given me the authority to go ahead with my book proposal. I would be less than honest, however, if I were to say that I accept this as a final decision. I cling to the hope that, after further thought, the SERS Board will see fit to approve the project.

This doesn't help you very much, I realize. You are correct, I think, in believing that what one of us does will have some bearing on what the other should do.

Regardless of what the decision about an SERS book is, should you decide to go ahead with yours, may I assure you of our full co-operation with you in making available the materials we have accumulated.

If there are any developments here, I shall keep you posted on them. I shall appreciate your letting me know what you decide to do. Certainly one, or both of us should turn out a book on the significant events since 1954. Were both of us to do so, our books might be competitive in the market, but in a real sense they would complement one another in their contents. We would concentrate on factual objectivity, while you would emphasize interpretation.

Sincerely yours,

Reed Sarratt

Dear Les:

It would seem that we're not on your mailing list for the L-Reports. We checked the list in the March issue of New South and found that we had received L-32 and L-33; however, we do not have L-29, L-30 and L-31.

I'd appreciate your having copies of the missing reports sent and having our library put on your mailing list.

It would appear that we also are missing "The Annealing of the South" by Leslie W. Dunbar. Could we have a copy of that too, please sir?

Sincerely yours,

Reed Sarratt

Dear Mr. Constable:

Some time ago I wrote to ask whether you would be interested in buying supplements to "Facts on Film" for 1961-62 and 1962-63, if they were produced, at a price as near cost as possible.

The decision now has been made to continue the annual microfilming of additions to the Southern Education Reporting Service library. The price to purchasers of all the microfilm for the period 1954-1961, of whom you are one, will be $300 for each supplement, or $600 for the two years. These supplements may be purchased separately by others at $350 a year; thus you are being offered a price advantage of $50 a year.

Since you are familiar with the content and value of the SERS microfilm, no effort will be made to resell it to you. To place your order for the 1961-62 and 1962-63 supplements, use the enclosed form and postage-paid return envelope.

Dear Reed:

Following our telephone conversation of this morning, this is to confirm our order for the SERS clipping service. This is for the newspaper clippings only, which we understand is at a cost of $200 per month, plus postage.

If possible, we would like for this service to begin August 1.

All good wishes for the launching of this valuable service.

XEROX REPRODUCTIONS
CURRENT RACE NEWS AND COMMENT

Southern Education Reporting Service

MATERIAL REPRODUCED: All news stories, letters to the editor, editorials and cartoons on the subject of race, clipped by the SERS library staff from approximately 50 newspapers, and approximately 25 periodicals. The library staff frequently reviews the list of magazines and newspapers received, dropping or adding publications on the basis of news developments. A check in May, 1962, showed that the library clipped 1,662 news articles, 330 editorials, 120 letters, and 33 cartoons--totalling 2,145 separate clippings from newspapers alone.

REPRODUCTION: The clippings will be reproduced by a Haloid Xerox 914 office copier on standard, legal-size white paper (8½x14) with one item appearing on each page. The article will be continued on extra pages, if necessary, but extra-long headlines will be considered expendable. Each item will be identified as to source, date and page on which it appeared.

DELIVERY: The clippings can be mailed as often as preferred but twice weekly mailing dates of Wednesday and Friday are recommended.

COST: Newspaper clippings only--$200 a month, plus postage. Newspaper and magazine clippings, including the postage--$250 a month.

TERMINATION: The service can be obtained on a monthly basis and could be cancelled by notice at least two weeks before the end of the last month for which clippings are requested.

Dear Reed:

To make certain that we and SERS were interested in and clipping the same items before discontinuing our subscriptions, we ran a comparison for the week of August 8-14 on three papers, the Observer, Constitution and Post. The results are enclosed.

Needless to say, we are disturbed at the differences and the number of items both of us missed. There are indications that with the Observer we clip different editions and this might well account for some of the omissions though hardly all. This is one of those bugs we spoke of. How do you suggest we go about getting rid of it? For instance would it be helpful if someone from your place came down here for a review or if our Research Assistant came to Nashville for a day?

Best.

Mr. C. A. McKnight
Southern Education Reporting Service
P. O. Box 6156, Acklen Station
Nashville, 12, Tennessee

Dear Mr. McKnight:

I have your letter of September 8, regarding the possibility of a national reporting service covering all principal problems of racial relations. I think I have probably little to contribute to consideration of this possibility other than some rather obvious expressions of preferences.

First, let me say that I believe Southern School News has been immensely and uniquely helpful during its life to many and varied persons and organizations. We recognize that good things have to end sometime, and this may be the case with SSN. If so, we hope very much that the Statistical Summary and the Race Relations Law Reporter, at least, will be continued.

I happen to be one who believes that racial adjustment is a national issue deeper and more momentous than seems to be generally recognized. Consequently, I would certainly applaud a reporting service which would give regular and widespread coverage.

I would add, however, a couple caveats. First, I doubt that worthwhile results could be had simply by giving Reed Sarrat another staff assistant or two. There will be a need for a staff strong enough to select stories and contributors, plan a publication, shape an editorial policy, read and process a mass of material.

Second, I doubt that a newspaper, along the lines of SSN, would be appropriate. The justification for handling SSN as news is that the stories in the South are fast-breaking. On a national scene, I don't believe sthis would be the case, in anywhere near the same degree. For the same reason, I would question seriously whether the new publication should bind itself to a state-by-state, or even region-by-region, coverage. Rather, it should follow a topical approach, and combine interpretation with description. I believe a periodical along the lines of the Sunday Times News of the Week section, without the editorials and with occasionally longer articles, might be approximately what seems to me most probably useful.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Dr. Dunbar:

You know about the Southern Education Reporting Service and the important role it has played in gathering and disseminating factual information on the school desegregation problem in the Southern and border states.

With each passing year, what was once primarily a regional problem has become increasingly a national dilemma with serious international implications.

For this reason I now pose to you this question:

What would you think of a national reporting service covering all the major phases of the racial adjustment problem -- education, housing, economic opportunity, recreation, voting, personal and quasi-public services, public transportation?

Such a service would follow the basic SERS purpose, i.e., to report factually, objectively and in full detail the complex story of racial adjustment in the United States.

The information assembled would be made available to all persons and institutions interested in any phase of the problem.

I write you in the capacity of chairman of a special committee of the SERS Board of Directors appointed at a recent meeting to study the feasibility and value of such a service.

Your opinion would be of great value in drafting our conclusions.

I will need your reply no later than September 20. It should be sent to the address above.

Will you help us?

Sincerely,

C A McKnight

Dear Paul:

It was a real pleasure to see you and so many of your associates when I was in Atlanta last week. I particularly appreciated being extended the privilege of auditing a part of your Executive Committee meeting.

After our discussion of the Xerox service, I had the feeling that each of us understood better the other's situation and problems. I know more about your needs, and you know more about the policies by which we operate. We both realize that there is a gap in your requirements that our service won't fill. I appreciate your desire, despite this, to continue with our service until you have had the opportunity to test it more fully.

Within the next few weeks, I anticipate that our work will return to something like routine. That should produce some improvement in the Xerox service, particularly in the promptness of mailings. To be sure that I did not lead you astray, I have checked with the staff here my statement that we should be current by the end of each week. The staff confirms this.

As I have emphasized, we welcome your suggestions, and we always will give them serious consideration, whatever our decision on them may be. We want to accommodate you to the greatest extent possible without running afoul of our policies.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Reed:

You are very generous to offer to supply sample copies of Southern School News and the 1961-62 Statistical Summary to the delegates at our conference. I am passing word of your offer on to Herman Long, who is Program Chairman. I feel sure that he will want to take advantage of it.

Let's get together during the conference.

Dear Les:

I have read with great interest the press release on the conference to be held at Vanderbilt Law School December 27-29. I want to attend as many of the sessions as possible.

If you wish, I shall be glad to supply sample copies of Southern School News for as many of the delegates as may want them. I shall also be willing to provide free copies of the 1961-62 Statistical Summary. The 1962-63 edition of the Summary will be off the press this week. I don't feel that I can give them away, but we do have some copies of last year's.

I shall look forward to seeing you. Maybe I can even drag you the short distance from the Vanderbilt Law School to the SERS office.

Dear Reed:

We have ninety (90) Board members and some of them have expressed interest in a group order to Southern School News. What would be the rate of an order for 90? for 50? for 25? Frankly, I think nothing will come of this, so don't have any hopes. I would, however, like to be able to put a proposition before them.

Dear Mr. Sarratt:

Mr. Dunbar has asked me to write you regarding the proposition you made to him on bulk subscriptions for Southern School News.

The executive committee of the Council was very interested in the proposition, but they had a couple of questions:

1) Would it be possible to add our six copies (subscribed for by SRC) to the list for the special price, and cancel our present subscription? This would make 96 subscriptions.

2) How much additional cost would there be if we had SSN mailed out from your office to the 90 board members, six to SRC? You have a cheaper mailing rate than we have; also our mailing department is pretty rushed as it is.

We will appreciate your consideration of these questions.

MA' pls do something

Dear Les:

Hope springs eternal. The members of your Board all should see Southern School News, so I'm going to make a proposition to you that you can't possibly turn down.

Before I do, I will answer your questions.

We have established rates for bulk subscriptions. Groups of five or more copies mailed to different addresses are $1.75 each per year. If all copies go to one address, the subscription price is $1.50 each per year. From these figures, you can determine what the cost to you would be for 90, for 50, for 25 or for any other quantity you might want.

For my purposes, let's assume that you take 90 subscriptions at the $1.50 rate. This would come to $135 a year.

When I talked with you in Atlanta, you suggested that you didn't have the money to pay for these subscriptions. I'll take you at your word.

Now, here's my proposition. If you will subscribe to as many as 70 copies, at the bulk rate of $1.50 each, all to be mailed to your office in Atlanta for redistribution by you, I will make these copies available at practically no cost at all to you, as I shall explain. Under the arrangement now in effect with you, we add the cost of postage to our fee for the Xerox reproduction service. Postage for the first six months of this service totals $48.25. Assuming that the postage for the next six months would be the same, this would amount to $96.50 a year. If you take 70 subscriptions to Southern School News at $1.50 each, the total cost of which would be $105 a year, I will supply the Xerox service to you at the present flat fee of $200 a month, and we will pay the postage.

This may seem like pressure selling. It is. I'm trying to give you no choice but to enter a bulk subscription for 70 or more copies of Southern School News. Of course, I would be pleased were you to take more. If you were to take 90, the net cost to you would be $38, or just over 42 cents for each subscription. Why not make it 100?

Sincerely yours,

Reed Sarratt

Dear Mr. Sarratt:

Your letter of the 28th came just as I succumbed to the flu, and I'm sorry about the delay. The figures you included in your letter are satisfactory. We appreciate your making it possible for us to take advantage of this bulk subscription rate by absorbing the Xerox service postage.

We do want you to mail out the subscriptions from your office, and a list of SRC board members is enclosed. There will be 89 instead of 90; Dr. Trenholm is deceased and this is so marked on the list.

I suppose we are too late for the March issue. If so, please begin in April. Again I apologize for the delay.

Mrs. Montez G. Albright

Southern Regional Council, Inc.

Atlanta 3, Georgia

Dear Mrs. Albright:

Since talking with you this morning, I have rechecked my arithmetic, and I am really not surprised that in my earlier quick figuring I made some mistakes. Still the correct figures are not too different from those I gave you.

In answer to your first question, the six copies of Southern School News that would be sent directly to the SRC offices in Atlanta would cost you $1.50 per subscription, or $9 a year for six subscriptions.

If we were to send 90 additional copies to your Atlanta office at the same bulk subscription rate of $1.50 each, the total annual cost would be $135. If we were to mail each of these 90 copies directly to the individual subscriber, the cost for each subscription would be $1.75 a year, or a total of $157.50. Therefore, the difference in cost to you if the mailing were to be done from here would be $22.50 a year.

These are not special rates. They are our established rates for bulk subscriptions. I am offering you a substantial price advantage, however, by agreeing to absorb the cost of mailing Xerox reproductions to you. As I indicated in my letter of February 5 the postage for the Xerox service for one year should be approximately $96.50, based on the actual cost for the first six months. This would mean that, in effect, you would receive 96 copies of Southern School News each month for a net cost to you of $70 a year. This amounts to approximately 73 cents for each subscription.

As I said in our telephone conversation today, I would like to begin these subscriptions with the March issue of Southern School News, which is now being prepared for publication. For that reason I shall appreciate your sending me the mailing list for the subscriptions immediately in order that we may have time to prepare the necessary addressograph plates.

I hope that my statement as to charges is clear. If you have any further questions, please call me collect.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Sarratt:

Enclosed is the Council's check for $7.50 for five (5) bulk subscriptions to SOUTHERN SCHOOL NEWS, representing our renewal for one (1) year from June, 1963 to June, 1964.

You will note that I have cancelled two of the three semi-bulk subscriptions because they are receiving them as indicated. Another SRC Board Member is deceased as of June 11, 1963, Mr. Charles A. Shaw, Houston, Texas. Please see that his name is removed from the mailing list. Could Dr. C. H. Parrish, Louisville, Kentucky, receive his unexpired subscription? He is listed as the third person receiving a subscription under our semi-bulk arrangement.

If this is satisfactory, please let me know at your earliest convenience.

Dear Mr. Sarratt:

Pursuant to your conversation with Les and your letter to him of August 9, we are happy to set forth our agreement with your suggested changes regarding the invaluable services rendered us by Southern Education Reporting Service.

We agree to pay 5 cents a sheet for the Xerox reproductions of clippings. Our enclosed check for the amount of Four Hundred Ninety-Five and 95/100 Dollars ($495.95), evidences our agreement that the new rate be retroactive to July 1, 1963.

Please discontinue reproductions of letters to the editor and editorial cartoons. In addition, eliminate clippings from the New York Times, The Washington Post, and the Atlanta papers, if it is convenient for you to do so. We are aware of the difficulties involved in such a process, but would appreciate your efforts to do so, if possible.

Ltr., Mr. Reed Sarratt

My notes from our phone conversation reveal that you promised to assume the cost of postage. Inasmuch as you did not mention same in your letter of August 9, we assume that SERS will be responsible for the postage.

RECEIVED

Dear Les:

Earlier this week I talked to Vernon Jordan about the situation I outlined to you in my letter of July 25 relative to the charge we had been making for Xerox reproductions of our clippings. As I explained to Mr. Jordan, our records show that in the month of July we sent you 9,919 sheets of reproductions and paid postage of $19.85.

At the rate of $200 a month, which you have been paying, this means we are supplying the Xerox service at a considerable loss to us. You understand why I cannot continue this arrangement.

In talking with Mr. Jordan, I suggested that we charge, retroactive to July 1, 1963, at the rate of 5 cents a sheet. Mr. Jordan was amenable to this suggestion, although he made it clear that he wanted to have the opportunity of discussing it with you before making a commitment. It is at his request that I am writing this letter embodying the proposed change. OK

Assuming that you will agree to the proposal, I am enclosing a bill for the material sent you during July based on a charge of 5 cents a sheet.

Mr. Jordan explored with me the possibilities of our discontinuing the reproduction of certain types of materials for you. I specifically suggested that we might drop letters to the editor and editorial cartoons. For your guidance in deciding whether you want to do this, we sent to you during July 867 sheets of letters to the editor and 315 sheets of editorial cartoons. drop

In addition, Mr. Jordan asked whether we could eliminate clippings from the New York Times, the Washington Post and the Atlanta papers, since you are clipping these papers in your office. This creates some problem for us because of the routines involved in our handling of these materials. I have discussed it with our Xerox operator, however, and we believe that we can do it. drop if convenient

I would like to know your decision as soon as possible. I would appreciate it if you or Mr. Jordan would call me collect at CY1-1262.

Sincerely yours,

Reed Sarratt

July 25, 1963

Dear Les:

On July 15 I called your office in response to a letter I had received from Staige Blackford asking whether we could "close the gap" between the date of a newspaper's publication and the date of delivery to you of Xerox reproductions of clippings. Realizing the seriousness of this to you, I called immediately, but both you and Staige were out. I talked with Paul Anthony, and I assume that Paul relayed to both Staige and you the substance of what I said.

As to the immediate point of closing the gap, we are doing our very best to keep up with the tremendous quantity of material now being published about race relations. In the month of June we had 13 people working in our library. While this was not sufficient to keep on top of the job, it exceeds our financial and space resources. I regret that I can't assure you that we will catch up by any given date, but I can say we are making a strenuous effort.

Beyond this current situation there is another problem which I mentioned to Paul and which I must call to your attention. It is that the price you now are paying for our Xerox service bears no relationship at all to the quantity of materials you are receiving. Some adjustment in price or the service itself is mandatory.

When we began the service to you approximately a year ago, we were processing an average of some 2,000 items each month. The flat rate of $200 that we have charged you for the service was fixed at a point that barely covered our costs for the volume of material being sent to you at the time.

We now have complete records for the fiscal year ending June 30. Instead of sending you an average of 2,000 reproductions a month, we have sent you more than 3,500 as a monthly average, or an average of 1,500 sheets each month above the estimate on which the price was based.

This situation is bad enough from our point of view, but it would seem to me that it can do nothing but become worse. During the month of June we sent you more than 6,800 items. The May total was more than 5,000. Your guess is as good as, or better than, mine as to the tempo of race relations activity to be expected during the next year, but I believe that it will continue at a relatively high level.

Before proposing any specific change in our present agreement, I wanted to give you the opportunity to react. Several possibilities occurred to me: (1) We might raise the present flat rate from $200 a month to some figure substantially higher, (2) we might discontinue sending you certain types of materials which may be of relatively less value to you than others or (3) we might supply the service on a piece-rate basis or a combination flat rate and piece rate. You may have other ideas.

Whatever we do, I hope that we will be able to find some arrangement that will make it possible for you to continue to receive this service. I have no desire to make money on it, but I cannot continue to supply the service at a loss, as we have been doing for some time now.

This is of such importance to me that I will come to Atlanta at any time to discuss it with you, if you think that either necessary or desirable.

Dear Staige:

You haven't received your copies of Southern School News since July, I have discovered upon investigation prompted by your note. A mistake was made in our circulation department, but it now has been corrected. Today we are mailing the Council's copies of the August and September issues. I'm terribly sorry this happened and hope there will be no repetition of it.

I'm quite sure you will not want to adopt our indexing system, but I thought it might be of some interest to you and your staff to see how we file the materials we collect for our library.

You're right in guessing that we had our hands full with the opening of school. More has happened this fall than during any other school opening since I've been here. As you are so acutely aware, we've had our hands full since last spring, when the general civil rights movement took on new life and vigor. We seem to be holding our own and even making a little progress. I remain hopeful that soon we will be current with our work.

Dear Les:

The publisher sent us a review copy of Ben's book, and I already have read it. In my opinion the book is excellent in every respect, and fully lives up to my high expectations for it. Thank you for sending another copy, one which I shall feel free to keep for my own.

I noted with pleasure Ben's comments about Southern School News. He was very generous.

Dear Reed:

We have your letter of July 28. I can well understand the need to raise your price, and the cost problems of reproduction. I have only this morning signed a contract for a Xerox 813, to be installed here. We are doing this because the Xerox cannot help but be cheaper than the shockingly high paper costs of the fluid copying machine we now have. This whole reproduction business is a great thing, but it doesn't come cheap. So, though we regret the price increase, we accept it with no objective complaints.

Our research staff is rather deliriously happy over your announcement of sharply reduced clipping. As you know, there has been a large amount of duplication, and it is our belief that you can make the reduction you intend without hurting the coverage.

Do please remember that we do not order from you clippings from the New York Times, the Washington Post, and the Atlanta Constitution.

We looked over your list of papers to be surveyed. We are in agreement with you that a Dallas paper and a Houston paper should certainly be kept. Of the others on the list, we would like to advise that we find the Baton Rouge State Times, the Roanoke Times, and the Columbia State to be particularly helpful in their coverage.

And, most of all, the Chattanooga Times. If you ever decide to stop clipping it I wish you would call our attention to the fact, because we would than want to subscript to it directly.

All the best.

Sincerely yours,

July 28, 1964

Dear Les:

We have made some rather drastic changes in our operations, and they will affect our Xerox reproduction service to you. Before I describe these changes in detail, let me say that one of the compelling reasons for them is our financial situation. We have been spending money at a considerable higher rate than our resources permit, and we are trying to reduce, if not eliminate, our deficit.

Under these circumstances I feel compelled to increase the price per sheet we have been charging you for Xerox reproductions. You know that the current price of 5 cents a sheet is well below our actual cost. Every time a sheet of paper goes through our machine, it costs us 7½ cents. Effective August 1, I should like to raise the price to you by 2½ cents a sheet so that we will at least recover our minimum costs. As it is now, we actually lose money every time we make a reproduction for you.

The probability is that the total cost of the service to you at this new price will not be as much as you are paying now. The reason is that you will be receiving many fewer items, as I shall explain.

Briefly stated, we are curtailing our operations by focusing more precisely on the 11 states of the old Confederacy. One of the effects of the new policy will be to discontinue state-by-state reporting in Southern School News on school desegregation in the six border states and the District of Columbia. Of greater pertinence to the subject of this letter is the change being made in our library.

You know something of the problems we have had in handling the vast mass of materials we have been collecting. Our objective is to reduce by at least 50 per cent the quantity of these materials. You may welcome this development, as I do. But, because it affects our Xerox reproduction service, I shall describe the change in some detail.

Enclosed with this letter are four lists of newspapers. One of them is labeled "National Papers." From these papers we will continue to clip as we have in the past everything dealing with race relations in the United States. From the list headed "Southern Papers" we will clip only items dealing with race relations in the 11 states of the old Confederacy. Another list is headed "Papers to be Surveyed," and we will clip from them items dealing with race relations in the 11 Southern states pending later decision on whether to continue or drop them. This decision will be based on the relative productivity of the papers. You will note that two papers from Dallas and two from Houston are on the list, and from each city we will keep the more productive paper. The fourth list is headed "Discontinued Papers," and we no longer will clip anything from them.

You will continue to receive from us the same categories of newspaper material that you have been receiving except that the volume will be much lower. If you and your associates have suggestions to make about papers that should be on the list of those to be clipped, we would welcome your ideas. Whatever papers we clip, we want to reduce the volume of clippings at least 50 per cent.

Our clipping from periodicals will continue as in the past except that we will be much more selective than we have been. That is, we will clip only those articles of relatively greatest significance, whereas in the past we have clipped everything that has dealt with race relations regardless of its importance.

Obviously these changes will affect our Xerox reproduction service. It seems to me that the reduction in volume might be as advantageous to you as it is to us. Despite the increase in price per sheet, the cost of the service to you will be reduced, as will the difficulty of processing the materials you receive. I hope the changes will meet with your approval. In any event I wanted to inform you of this change and to invite your reactions to it.

Sincerely yours,

Reed Sarratt

Dear Les:

Thank you for your understanding. We will bill you at the new rate of 7½ cents a sheet for Xerox reproductions after August 1.

The lists that I sent you were prepared for our general use. That's why the New York Times, the Washington Post and the Atlanta Constitution appeared on them. We, of course, do not send you materials from these newspapers.

Our survey to date suggests that we will continue to clip the Baton Rouge State Times and the Columbia State. The Roanoke Times and the Chattanooga Times appear to be doubtful on the basis of non-productivity. In view of your interest in these last two papers, we will continue to clip them and will check them with exceptional care. I'll let you know before we come to a final decision about clipping them so that you can make arrangements for subscribing to them before we drop them.

Dear Reed:

Thank you for the thoughtfulness in writing to us again. I think we will not be interested in subscribing to a Xerox service on the new basis. As you well know, we do need many items other than education, and as long as we are reading and clipping the newspapers for them it will be fairly simple to clip the education news as well. In anticipation of the dreadful day of June 30 we had already entered subscriptions to a number of southern papers, and have also replaced the young lady who left us when we began our subscription to your service. You will be interested, I think, to know that Glenda Bartley is coming to work here next week.

Again, as I have before, I want to wish you all success with the new venture; I know that you will have this success. Living without Southern School News seems strange -- almost as if another southern tradition had ended. It has been a tremendously valuable publication.

I want to tell you also how helpful and valuable the Xerox service has been to us. We now go back to our old methods, but we are most grateful to you for enabling us, these past couple of years, to have had the advantages of this service.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Les:

Today marks the end of the old SERS program. Tomorrow we start our new project. The change will affect all of our operations, including the materials that we place in our library.

The last time I talked with you about this, it was my impression that you wished to discontinue our Xerox service. We will, of course, finish clipping and reproducing materials from all newspapers dated through June 30.

Unless we hear from you to the contrary, we will stop the service at that point. We still will clip items about the desegregation of education and will be glad to supply reproductions of them if you want them.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

Thank you for your comments about our report and the position of S.E.R.S. We certainly don't think they constitute a federal case and appreciate having them.

We regret any misinterpretation we gave to the present and future role of S.E.R.S. or any difficulty this may have caused you. Actually, we tried to indicate in our report the assistance we received from your staff in rather frequent correspondence and telephoning. Our reference to Southern School News no longer being published was meant only to imply that we missed this valuable source of information at a time when we felt it was more needed than ever.

We did feel that at no time in recent years had so little factual information existed and that we all were experiencing more difficulty in obtaining such information than in the past. And, while we understood that S.E.R.S. was still very much in business and knew something of your attemps and interests in collecting information, we did not know that your previous practices of collecting statistical data by districts and publishing them was to continue. We are delighted to know this.

While we occasionally stumble into such a mess, please know that we try to make a very determined attempt to avoid inter-organizational rivalry. Too many years of experience have proved to us that we all together have little enough resources to do our jobs and not only is there room for all of us - and enough credit to go around - but clearly we can achieve far more by cooperation and sharing than anyone of us could achieve singularly.

S.E.R.S. has made a tremendous contribution during its lifetime. We are delighted to know of your appointment, and extend to you our best wishes and sincere congratulations.

I, too, look forward to an opportunity of meeting and visiting with you.

With best wishes,

Sincerely,

Mr. Paul Anthony
Executive Director

Dear Mr. Anthony:

I don't want to make a federal case of it, but I do want you to know that we noted with some concern the implication in the Southern Regional Council's report on School Desegregation that Southern Education Reporting Service had stopped collecting data on the subject. I enclose a copy of the section of the report that gives rise to our concern. Unfortunately some newspapers have picked up the statement, with the result that a misleading impression has been created concerning SERS.

It is true, as the SRC report indicates, that Southern School News ceased publishing in July, 1965. But as Mr. Jim Leeson pointed out some time ago to Mr. Sam Adams, this did not mean that SERS stopped collecting data. Actually, our correspondents have continued to supply monthly reports on desegregation in education. These reports have been Xeroxed, bound and sent to the U. S. Office of Education. They are available to any other individuals or agencies that wish to pay the established price; furthermore, we are glad to answer specific questions regarding the reports without charge.

As a matter of fact, we had all the information on school desegregation in September of 1965 that we have had in September of any other year -- that is, the number of districts where desegregation had taken place. Information on the number of schools desegregated or children attending desegregated schools has not become available in this or any other year until November.

Following our annual custom, we plan to publish not later than December all the statistical information that our correspondents in the Southern and border states can dig up. This report will be available to anyone for $1 a copy.

In making these comments, I do not mean to dispute the Southern Regional Council's recommendation that surveys should be made in all districts, presumably by the federal government, to determine the proportion of Negro school children. The Office of Education, acting under the authority of law, should be able to get reliable information on desegregation more quickly than an unofficial organization such as yours or ours.

My comments, moreover, are not inspired by any inter-organizational rivalry. Southern Education Reporting Service claims no monopoly in gathering information on school desegregation. We recognize the vital and wholesome interest of the Southern Regional Council in charting the progress of desegregation. Your current report on the subject is useful in pointing out the slow rate at which the process is progressing. I simply wanted you to know that we are still in business here and that we want to be helpful in any way that we can.

As you may know, I am new on the job here in Nashville. I hope to get to Atlanta soon and to have an opportunity to meet you. Especially do I want to get your reaction to our new venture, Southern Education Report.

Dear Paul:

It was a great pleasure to talk with you in your office on Wednesday and to have a chance to meet some of the members of your staff. I especially appreciated the ride to the airport and the opportunity to get better acquainted while we were riding out.

I have long admired the work of the Southern Regional Council, and now that I have met several of you who are responsible for its activities my admiration has increased many times. Although we operate on a smaller scale, I feel that SRC and SERS complement each other.

I read a good portion of New South during the plane trip back to Nashville. You are off to an excellent start with your quarterly. As far as I can determine, we did not receive a copy in the mail, so I would appreciate it if you would ask Bob Anderson to check his mailing list and make sure that we're still on it.

Please don't hesitate to call on us whenever we can help you in any way.

You will receive in the mail, within the next week or so, a copy of The Ordeal of Desegregation by Reed Sarratt, who was executive director of Southern Education Reporting Service from 1960 to 1965. This book is published by Harper & Row.

Distribution of a limited number of complimentary copies to individuals concerned with education and race relations is made possible under our grant from the Ford Foundation.

The Ordeal of Desegregation describes in detail the way the people of the South reacted to the Supreme Court's school desegregation decision. The approach is in keeping with the policies of Southern Education Reporting Service, which was established in 1954 by a group of Southern editors and educators to collect and disseminate factual, objective information about developments in education arising out of the court decision.

Both Mr. Sarratt and I would welcome your comments.

Advance For Use in A.M. Papers, Sunday, June 22, 1969

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- Southern Education Reporting Service, which has reported on race and education in the Southern and border states for the past 15 years, is going out of business. It will be replaced by the newly organized Race Relations Information Center which will gather and disseminate information about major aspects of race relations in the nation.

Termination of the reporting service and the establishment of the new center, with headquarters in Nashville, were announced in the June issue of Southern Education Report, a monthly magazine which is being discontinued after four years of publication.

Dr. Luther H. Foster, president of Tuskegee Institute in Alabama and chairman of the board of directors of Southern Education Reporting Service, will also serve as board chairman of the center. John Seigenthaler, editor of the Nashville Tennessean, is vice chairman, and Robert F. Campbell is executive director.

The Race Relations Information Center will provide reports for distribution to educational institutions and news media and also occasional papers for general distribution. It will perform journalistic research in race relations for foundations and educational institutions. A library will be maintained, enabling the center's staff members to answer questions about race relations from journalists, scholars and the public. The present SERS library, consisting of hundreds of thousands of items from newspapers and magazines, as well as pamphlets, laws, court decisions and books, will be the basis for the center's library.

Dr. Foster said that substantial funding of the center is anticipated so that it can begin its service on September 1. With the activation of the center, Southern Education Reporting Service will cease to operate.

Like SERS, the new center will be essentially journalistic in nature, and will also make broad use of the academic resources available in Nashville and elsewhere. It will not advocate any point of view or course of action.

A major area of reporting will be school and college desegregation, the primary field of interest for SERS. In addition, the reports will deal selectively with politics, employment and economics, housing, religion, public health and welfare, the arts, athletics, lawmaking and enforcement, and the courts.

MORE

"With the changes that have taken place over the years," Dr. Foster said, "it is no longer appropriate to report on race relations in a regional or sectional context. The Race Relations Information Center represents an effort to broaden race relations reporting geographically, as well as by subject-matter scope."

Members of the board of directors who have been selected so far include, in addition to the three officers, Harry Ashmore, executive vice president, Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions, Santa Barbara, Calif.; Mrs. Mamie Phipps Clark, child psychologist and executive director, Northside Center for Child Development, New York; Dr. John M. Claunch, president, George Peabody College, Nashville; Dr. Alexander Heard, chancellor, Vanderbilt University, Nashville; Vernon Jordan, director, voter education project, Southern Regional Council, Atlanta; Dr. James R. Lawson, president, Fisk University, Nashville; Mrs. Ruby Martin, attorney, Washington, D. C.; C. A. McKnight, editor, The Charlotte (N.C.) Observer; Charles Moss, executive editor, The Nashville Banner; Dr. Thomas Pettigrew, professor of social psychology, Harvard University; John N. Popham, managing editor, The Chattanooga Times; John Sengstacke, editor, The Chicago (Ill.) Defender; and Don Shoemaker, editor, The Miami (Fla.) Herald.

Additional directors will be announced later, Foster said.

In an article in the June issue of Southern Education Report, McKnight, the first executive director of SERS, summarized the activities of the agency, which was established in 1954 by a group of Southern editors and educators to report on events growing out of the U. S. Supreme Court's school desegregation decision of that year. The agency's principal support has come from the Ford Foundation, which has made grants totaling more than $2,600,000 during the 15-year period.

McKnight's article discusses Southern School News, a monthly tabloid which was published from 1954 through the summer of 1965, and the Statistical Summary, a periodic report of school segregation-desegregation in the region, as well as Southern Education Report, which was established in 1965 to report on programs for the education of the culturally disadvantaged.

"Future historians," said McKnight, "will have to evaluate the contribution of SERS to public education when they write the minutes of this 15-year period. But it would seem clear even now that without the factual information made available throughout the South, and without the central store of information that guided journalists, magazine writers, radio and TV networks, and public officials at all levels, the South would have had more difficulty picking its way along a dim and uncertain path.

MORE

"I have no doubt about the ultimate judgment of SERS as a journalistic undertaking. In thoroughness, accuracy and objectivity, it is without parallel in the history of U. S. journalism."

Thirty-one editors and educators have served terms as members of the SERS board. Dozens of newsmen, working in the SERS headquarters on the edge of the Peabody College campus and in the various states of the region, have produced SERS publications. The present editorial staff of the agency consists of Campbell, the executive director; Tom Flake, director of publications; Jim Leeson, director of information and research; and Clayton Braddock and John Egerton, staff writers.

February 9, 1968

Mr. Paul Anthony
Executive Director
Southern Regional Council, Inc.
5 Forsyth Street, N.W.
Atlanta, Georgia 30303

Dear Mr. Anthony:

I became the director of this organization when the Southern Teaching Program merged with the Recruitment of Southern Teachers last summer. I am aware that you followed the progress of STP very closely for several years when Fred Schulze was the director.

The purpose of this letter is to solicit your advice and possible financial assistance in support of our program to recruit teachers for Negro colleges.

The enclosed proposal is now being considered by several foundations, including Ford, Carnegie, Taconic and Field. The Ford Foundation has given us strong assurance of their continued interest in supporting our summer and academic year teacher recruitment program. We are faced, however, with a serious problem in that our current funds will be totally exhausted by the end of the month; and, none of the foundations we have approached are able to fund us before Spring; the Ford Foundation cannot fund us before summer.

A member of my staff spoke to Winifred Greene and Tom Wholman of the American Friends Service Committee, who suggested that the Southern Regional Council might have funds available to help us to continue our recruitment activities over the next three months. Our monthly budget amounts to $2,936. We could reduce this amount further by eliminating all salaries except a small sum paid to our part time typist, and still be able to operate temporarily with $1,561 per month.

If this is not possible, could you recommend any sources of support of our program for the months of March, April, and May?

Thank you very much for considering this matter.

Sincerely yours,

Lawrence Rushing

Proposal for 1968-69

Summary

The main purpose of the Southern Education Program, Inc. is to assist Negroes in the south, through education, in fully realizing their potential as human beings. Over the next two years we propose to continue and to improve our existing programs by:

1. Assisting Negro institutions of higher learning to attract and retain qualified faculty members for the regular academic year and for summer programs.

2. Supporting local communities in the south in establishing and operating educational enrichment programs for high school aged students.

3. Orienting and training SEP-placed teachers by means of (a) intensive three-day conferences and (b) the establishment of a Clearinghouse which will collect and disseminate relevant information to teachers.

The Southern Teaching Program, Inc.

The Southern Education Program, Inc. (SEP) represents a merger of the Recruitment of Southern Teachers (RST) and the Southern Teaching Program (STP). STP was formed in the spring of 1964 by several Yale Law School students to place graduate and professional students as teachers in the summer sessions of southern Negro colleges. The summer instructors replaced regular faculty who were studying, filled vacancies, and helped to staff special Pre-freshman, Pre-college, and Upward-Bound programs. During the following summers, recruitment spread to over a dozen additional graduate schools, both north and south. In four summers, over 350 instructors have taught at a total of 35 different colleges. In addition, STP placed twenty-five teachers in regular academic year positions.

Beginning in 1965, STP also recruited teachers for special summer enrichment programs for high school students in six towns in South Carolina. Over one hundred teachers have worked in these programs during the past 3 summers. Each of these programs has been organized by a community group such as the Human Relations Council or the YWCA, with the cooperation and participation of the local schools.

Most of the summer instructors have been young, with an M.A. and usually a year or more of teaching experience. Both the colleges and outside observers felt that their major contribution was an interest in their students and enthusiasm for teaching. The instructors put in many extra hours, meeting with students outside the classroom, starting or participating in such activities as drama, debating, art and discussions.

Not all of the summer instructor's work has gone smoothly of course. Some instructors had difficulty working with administrations and older faculty whom they considered inflexible. There were the usual problems of lack of textbooks, overly heavy teaching schedules and last minute course changes. The overwhelming majority of instructors, however, took matters in their stride and over the years a growing number of instructors have returned, either for another summer or for a full year. Better than one of every six of last summer's instructors returned in 1967, and four have remained in the south to teach for a full year.

Negro college administrators and outside observers agree that summer instructors can be valuable in filling certain limited needs, such as freeing faculty for study or research, or making special programs possible. A more serious need of most colleges, however, is for faculty who will remain long enough to have an impact on the institution, as well as on individual students.

The Recruitment of Southern Teachers

Recognizing the great need for qualified faculty personnel in the Negro colleges, a young physics instructor at Stillman College began in late 1964 to recruit teachers in his spare time. His efforts resulted in the recruitment of 11 teachers from northern universities to teach in Negro colleges in the south beginning in the 1965-66 academic year.

With the assistance of foundation funds and the employment of a full-time director and assistant director, the program, located at Stillman College in Tuscaloosa, Alabama, expanded its operations to locate teachers at 41 universities in the north and south. Using posters, advertisements in the college press, and volunteer interviewer-representatives, RST recruited 134 full-time college instructors to serve in 50 different Negro institutions during the past two years. Ninety percent of the qualified teacher-candidates, whose credentials were forwarded to the colleges, were successful in finding positions. Out of 80 teachers recruited for the 1967-68 academic year, all except one (a dance instructor) hold advanced degrees, and thirteen teachers have earned doctorates.

There is a critical shortage of faculty members in the 94 Negro colleges served by SEP. Most of the colleges are poor and cannot compete with the majority of colleges in the United States in offering attractive salaries and working conditions. Sixty of the colleges recently reported, on a questionnaire circulated by SEP, a total of 159 full-time faculty vacancies as of January, 1968. At the beginning of the academic year this number will multiply several times. This appallingly large number of unfilled teaching positions serves to underscore the finding of Earl J. McGrath in his comprehensive study of the Negro Colleges: (The Predominantly Negro Colleges and Universities in Transition). "The most serious weakness of most Negro colleges in the United States stems from the inability to seek, obtain, reward, and retain faculty members rich and growing in scholarship."

One hundred eleven SEP-recruited teachers are presently employed in Negro colleges. Their value to the colleges and their students is considerable. SEP teachers have helped to design new curricula at their colleges; they have initiated and staffed honors programs to prepare talented students for graduate study, and set up special remedial and tutorial projects. One SEP teacher is Chariman of the Humanities Department at Bishop College; another teacher founded the first statewide mathematics talent search project for high school students in Alabama.

Some SEP teachers intend to remain permanently at Negro colleges. One of these recruits is now serving as an Administrative Interne at Texas Southern University under the auspices of the Southern Education Foundation. Another former recruit was awarded a graduate study fellowship by the Southern Fellowships Fund; he will return to teach at a Negro college as a career upon the conclusion of his studies. Probably the best indicator, however, of the value to these young instructors of teaching at a Negro college was revealed when better than half of the teachers recruited for 1966-67 remained to teach for a second year.

The Merger of RST and STP

In July of 1967, the STP and the RST completed final steps in their long planned merger. The establishment of the Southern Education Program, Inc., has for the following reasons, greatly improved the organizations services to the colleges, teaching applicants, and local communities:

1. SEP now maintains a single office in a centrally located area of the Southeast resulting in reduced administrative costs.

2. The administrative red tape encountered by the colleges and teaching applicants has been considerably reduced.

3. The board of university representatives has increased, resulting in an increased number of teaching applicants.

4. SEP's close proximity to the colleges and community programs has led to improved communication.

5. Better coordination of summer and academic year programs has enabled SEP to place summer instructors who have decided in advance to remain a full year.

The Southern Education Program was established for the sole purpose of serving Negro colleges and local southern Negro communities. Our aim is to form as close a bond between the organization and its' clientele as possible. In order to forward this objective, over the coming two years, we intend to continue to invite outstanding individuals connected with the Negro colleges and the community programs to join the policy making body of the organization, the Board of Directors. We will, consequently, be moving the control of the organization to the persons most intimately connected with SEP's program. Two outstanding educators, Dr. Prince Wilson, Executive Secretary of the Atlanta University Center Corporation, and Mr. Butler Henderson, Assistant to the President of Morehouse College, have accepted invitations to serve as members of the Board, beginning in 1968.

PROGRAMS FOR 1968 and 1969

A. Recruitment of Regular Academic Year Teachers

The aim of the regular academic year recruitment program will continue to be one of attracting highly qualified faculty members willing to commit themselves to teaching in a Negro college or university on a long term basis. SEP has found an enthusiastic response on the part of graduate students and teachers to the challenging opportunities offered by teaching in a Negro educational institution. This response which is reflected in the increasing number of teacher placements over the years makes it readily apparent that far greater numbers of skilled and dedicated individuals could be recruited if the work of SEP was better known. SEP intends, therefore, to (1) increase paid publicity in college newspapers, and magazines and national publications widely subscribed to by teachers, such as the New York Times; (2) to increase the number of universities from which we recruit teachers from 41 to at least 60, with a commensurate increase in the number of volunteer representative-interviewers; and, (3) to improve communications between SEP, recruitment universities and the Negro collegs through use of more field visits and long distance telephone contacts. (4) A special emphasis will be placed over the coming years on recruiting more black teachers. Only a small percentage of teachers recruited in the past were black (about 5% in 1967-68). Today, the Negro colleges are increasingly seeking out Negro teachers who can provide positive role models for Negro youngsters, and thereby assist them in raising their career aspirations and self esteem. This special program, initiated in December, 1967, will continue with advertisements in the Negro press, and personal contacts with black student groups on university campuses.

B. Summer College Teacher Recruitment

Sixty-two teachers were placed in 13 colleges throughout the south in the summer of 1967. We anticipate, as a result of the merger of RST and STP, an increased number of applicants for summer positions and requests from the colleges for summer instructors. Since 35 colleges have already expressed interest in hiring instructors through SEP for the summer of 1968, it is possible to conservatively estimate placing at least 100 college instructors this year.

As a result of the merger of RST and STP, closer coordination between the summer college program, academic year teacher recruitment program, and the community educational enrichment project is now possible. An example of such cooperation occurred in the summer of 1967. SEP instructors at several colleges, including Tuskegee, Prairie View and Texas Southern used as the basis of their instruction in Pre-College-type programs the curricula developed by SEP for the South Carolina educational enrichment project. Most of the 30 instructors using these materials reported later on their effectiveness with beginning college students.

Also, during the course of the summer, the English and mathematics master teachers from the community programs visited the colleges to discuss and interpret these materials with the college teachers. They sat-in on classes, offered suggestions on the use of the materials and were available to answer questions, clarify points of interest, and introduce new methods of teaching.

Another means of cooperation between these programs occurred during the orientation programs before the school term began. Information, invaluable to new teachers--new curriculum units, teaching techniques, background data concerning southern history and traditions and the nature of southern public school education for Negroes--was effectively presented before a mixed group of high school teachers and beginning college teachers. From this it was shown that the orientation and training of teachers in both programs could be simultaneously accomplished.

SEP intends to continue to exploit such possibilities for coordinating programs in all future planning. We will continue to develop and test curriculum materials for the same age level of students--primarily, 10th grade through college Freshmen. Priority will be given to placing college instructors in the most effective summer programs--Pre-College and Upward Bound.

Further cooperation will be achieved through giving the first order of priority in the selection of summer teachers to applicants who will remain to teach for the regular academic year. Thus, teachers, with 6-8 weeks prior experience in the summer, who have been provided with teaching materials and methods by SEP, will be better equipped for their roles as full-time college teachers. (The merger of RST and STP has made such placements easier to accomplish; over 50 per cent of new applicants for academic year positions have also applied for the summer.) In addition to this, the Clearinghouse will function to tie all of the programs together by providing all SEP teachers with relevant pedegogical material on a continual, year round basis.

The success of the summer college program continues to depend, in part, on the ability of SEP to pay the salaries of some teachers and the round trip transportation expenses of all teachers. Funds are requested to pay the salaries of 30 out of the 100 instructors we anticipate placing this summer. Though our aim has been to encourage colleges to assume the full costs of salaries--and this has been increasingly the case over the past two years--there are still many institutions with which we have worked successfully in the past, that would be unable to operate expanded summer programs or special Pre-Freshman programs without this assistance. Transportation expenses for teachers to and from the Negro colleges is included in our budgetary request because most of the teachers recruited from the ranks of advanced graduate students are unable to assume this expense; the salaries paid by the colleges and SEP are generally not sufficient.

In summary then, the aims of the summer college program are:

1. To advance the educational opportunity of Negro students by assisting the Negro colleges in attracting qualified faculty.

2. To financially assist a limited number of institutions unable to afford special summer programs.

3. To concentrate placement efforts in the Pre-College type programs; offering assistance to colleges interested in establishing such programs by supplying teachers, curricula, and advice.

4. To coordinate the summer college program with the regular academic year recruitment programs and the high school educational enrichment programs. This will be accomplished by (a) developing and collecting curriculum materials; (b) training and orientation of summer instructors and (c) giving priority in the selection of summer college instructors to applicants who will remain for the academic year.

C. Community Educational Enrichment Programs

1. History

In 1965, a community group in Charleston, South Carolina, composed of parents, teachers, and guidance counselors, requested teachers from STP for a special summer program for local Negro high school students with high potential. The program, in which five teachers worked with 45 students, emphasized small classes and individual attention in English, reading and mathematics. The success of the program was illustrated by greatly improved scores on standardized tests, and by a greater self-confidence which showed during the following years when many of the students transferred to white schools and did well, or went on to college, generally out of state or to recently integrated colleges within South Carolina.

STP encouraged five other South Carolina communities to start similar programs the following summer. In 1966 and 1967, six South Carolina towns had such programs, the only programs of this nature in the state. They were sponsored by various groups and with the cooperation of the local schools. In each town the sponsoring organization raised funds locally to oover costs of materials and room and board for the teachers, who usually lived with local families. STP provided the salaries. The curriculum generally included classes in English and mathematics, with only ten students per class, and individualized work in reading. In some programs social studies was offered; in all programs, optional classes or interest groups in such areas as art, drama, and French were formed.

An extra activity which was tried successfully in one program in 1966 and then extended in 1967 was tutoring of younger students enrolled in the program (see appendix I).

Each student, 8th through 12th grade was required to tutor an elementary school student 2 days a week. In some towns where this type of tutoring had the full support of the teachers it proved valuable for the tutor in an educational sense and also as a means of emphasizing community responsibility.

Another activity begun only last year, and which shows great promise, is the integration of Negro college students into the program in the capacity of Teacher's Assistants. In Charleston and Sumter where this was tried, the students, employed under the College Work Study Program, proved extremely valuable. They assisted the regular teachers in their classroom duties, provided younger students with individual instruction through one to one tutoring, and led special interest groups. Many of these college students are continuing to work as tutors during the regular school year in the winter tutorial programs.

Perhaps the most significant development of the past summer was in terms of steps taken to institute a year round program. Four towns have moved ahead with a winter program which can operate on a limited scale with volunteer help from the community and some SEP support. Such programs are presently operating in Aiken, Columbia, Charleston, and Greenville. The towns of Sumter, and Anderson will start their winter programs in February, 1968. Each program is using college students or qualified adults from the community to tutor summer participants in a program specifically designed to continue the summer work. SEP now has an Assistant Director who concentrates on developing this winter program and offering assistance to other towns interested in developing similar projects.

Most of the summer programs are attempting to obtain independent sources of funds which would enable the programs to be expanded to include more students and to assume the entire costs of teachers' salaries and materials. One obvious source of support is the Office of Economic Opportunity. This approach has been successful in one case, Charleston, which obtained OEO funds for a year round program involving 150 students. Though the Sumter program submitted a proposal for similar funding through this source and other programs in Aiken and Greenville are planning to submit proposals for next summer, the chances of success are not good. Many of the local community action agencies and local boards of education are hostile to educational enrichment programs for Negro students. For instance, the Board of Education in the town of Anderson recently voted to deny the use of the local segregated high school for a summer educational enrichment program or winter tutorial program. This action was taken in spite of the obvious benefits of the 6-week summer program to college bound students, as reflected in test score gains averaging 5 months in reading and mathematics. Efforts are being made, with strong community support, to organize a winter tutorial program using the facilities of a local church.

2. Future Needs

The expansion of these enrichment programs in South Carolina and other states is limited only by financial resources. There are no other summer opportunities of this nature in South Carolina. Five other towns have already expressed interest in programs for the summer of 1968; several times this number could be easily organized if funds were available.

The major expense of running and expanding these programs--teachers' salaries-- will probably have to be met by foundation grants for another several years at least, and until local power relationships change and federal money begins to become more avialable. In 1967, representatives of each town formed the South Carolina Educational Project, a state-based group, for the purposes of exchanging information and of raising funds from foundations and local businesses. Perhaps in the future a federal grant to this organization will be possible. For the present, however, to continue working with the present six programs and to initiate three new programs in 1968, a total budget of $37,000 is foreseen. This amount excludes the local communities' contributions for room and board, materials and school facilities, which makes up about one third of the total cost.

D. Orientation Programs

1. History

From the beginning, the staff of STP felt that all summer instructors nneded some orientation about the south, about race relations, and most importantly, about teaching. Each spring, weekend sessions for all teachers were held, at four or five regional centers, at which general problems and past mistkaes were discussed and teachers from previous summers talked with the new teachers about specific colleges. It became clear from observing out teachers, however, that we needed to give them much more guidance in the areas of teaching methods and selection of materials.

In 1967, STP hired one person part time to work on curriculum. He collected and sifted through the suggestions of past teachers, examined recently developed materials from such groups as Educational Services, Inc. (ESI), and prepared for the orientation, a list of recommended materials and several units in English and mathematics. For English teachers, STP made available in quantity, mimeographed copies of several of the most widely successful short stories. (One frequent problem is that book orders arrive 2 or 3 weeks into the summer session.)

During the summer of 1967, most of our suggestions on curriculum have been followed in the South Carolina Enrichment Programs. In addition, many instructors in Pre-freshman programs in the colleges have used some of the materials and ideas. We are presently evaluating the experiences of this summer's instructors, with the purpose of improving the orientation of future teachers. The curriculum developed so far in the South Carolina and Pre-freshman programs will be one source of the materials for the Clearinghouse.

Since the establishment of the Recruitment of Southern Teachers, the administrative staff had feelings similar to STP regarding the need for orientation of teachers recruited for the regular academic year. It was apparent that recruiting and placing teachers was not sufficient if the long range goal of helping to improve the quality of education for Negroes in the south was to be achieved.

Although applicants are screened and selected for scholastic competence, personal maturity and likely success in finding a satisfactory position, many are faced with the following problems: few have taught extensively; almost none have taught Negroes from deprived schools; they do not know where to find curriculum ideas, materials and resources; few know the full extent of the legacy of segregated society on the Negro student's attitudes and preparation.

The first orientation conference for academic year teachers, addressed to these and other related topics, was held at Morehouse College in November, 1967. (see appendix for program). The conference provided a unique opportunity for 62 teachers from more than 30 Negro colleges to meet with outstanding Negro college educators and administrators, to confer with colleagues, and to be introduced to new teaching ideas and curricula being developed specifically for Negro college students. The materials developed by STP were made available.

Topics of vital concern to new teachers-- the future direction of the Negro colleges, student unrest, racial tensions, were explored in depth. The generally agreed upon value of this conference on the part of the conferees and guest experts, gave added support to the need to continue such programs in the future.

2. Future Needs

SEP proposes that each year a three day orientation workshop be held for summer and academicyyear teachers. Both convocations will be held in Atlanta, Georgia, at the beginning of the summer for summer personnel and the end of the summer or early Fall for regular academicy year teachers. The total anticipated cost of these annual conferences is $15,831.80.

E. Clearinghouse

Our past experience with orientation programs has shown that a great deal can be accomplished through short, but intensive teacher-training, however, such programs can be viewed realistically as only a beginning in the process of education of teachers. There is not sufficient time in three or even ten days to discuss all of the relevant curriculum ideas, and important teaching teacniques. Nor is there time to investigate all of the latest and most applicable developments going on inthe Negro colleges generally in the United States. Most importantly perhaps is the fact that short conferences do not provide sufficient time for teachers to share fully the useful ideas and experiences they have acquired through teaching.

A resource, relatively easy to establish, and of great potential value to young teachers, is a central clearinghouse which would maintain a resource library to collect, organize, evaluate and disseminate pertinent information on a continuing basis.

The major purpose of the Clearinghouse which we are proposing will be to maintain a continuing interest in, and commitment to improvement of the quality of teaching, in its fullest sense, at the Negro colleges. The Clearinghouse will assist teachers in keeping informed of techniques and approaches to pedagogy which have been effectively demonstrated to have been of value in solving the problems they face. Thus, instead of leaving our recruits on their own to repeat the failures and initial successes of others, the Clearinghouse will help to establish a community of teachers in similar fields. A future teacher will be permitted to not only start at the present level of understanding of teaching problems, but also participate in advancing that level, and in passing his developments on to his successors. In order to carry out these objectives, the Clearinghouse will initiate the following programs:

1. Establish a resource library which will collect, organize and evaluate existing material for SEP teachers. The staff will continually seek out reports and essays of interest from our recruits, from other teachers and educators in the South, and from Northern universities and schools of education.

2. The Clearinghouse will encourage the generation of new material to add to the library and to share with SEP taachers. In particular, it would attempt to have any and all interested teachers at the Negro colleges write out information on units and courses they have developed, statistics they have compiled, descriptions of programs for advanced students and other information which could be of use to successors or colleagues elsewhere.

3. The Clearinghouse will emphasize the dissemination of this information without cost to SEP teachers and to anyone at the Negro colleges interested. Multiple copies of important documents, essays, bibliographies will be mimeographed as received or needed. Any teacher at any Negro college will be able to request by mail essays which interest him.

4. The Clearinghouse will work closely with the SEP orientation programs, provide working papers, make its files available to conferees, and transcribe for its library, the more significant addresses.

5. The Clearinghouse will publish a monthly newsletter which will be routinely sent to all SEP teachers. The newsletter will summarize essays and publish in brief all relevant information accumulated by the Clearinghouse.

APPENDIX I

*SOUTH CAROLINA ENRICHMENT PROGRAM OF THE SOUTHERN EDUCATION PROGRAM

SUMMER, 1967

Introduction

No attempt will be made in this report to trace the entire three-year history of the program. For information basic to the history and philosophy of the program, but omitted here, the reader is referred to the report on the program for summer, 1966. In particular, this report discusses:

- History of the program - p. 1-3
- Roles of the community groups and the Southern Education Program in program conduct p. 3
- The advantages of a community-based program over such programs as Upward Bound - p. 10-14.

This report will describe the functioning of the program during the summer of 1967 with special emphasis on changes and improvements that have been instituted.

Participating Communities

The six South Carolina communities which conducted summer programs in the summer of 1966 once more participated. Below is a brief description of the nature of the program in each community

*Report prepared by Donald Moore, SEP Program Coordinator.

Aiken, South Carolina. sponsored by local Human Relations Council. 70 students. grades 7-12. local schools cooperated with program by allowing the use of classrooms, offices and libraries.

Anderson, South Carolina. sponsored by local high school principal and PTA. 35 students. grades 11 & 12. local schools donated free use of buildings.

Charleston, South Carolina. program funded year-round for 150 students. grades 10-12. local schools supplied facilities for the program.

Columbia, South Carolina. sponsored by a group of local school counselors and principals. 40 students. grades 7 -12. local schools donated facilities.

Greenville, South Carolina. sponsored by the Greenville Education Committee, a group organized to promote school desegration. 60 students. grades 1 - 12.

Sumter, South Carolina. sponsored by local YWCA and interstted parents. 50 students. grades 1-9. local school cooperated by donating facilities.

In general, the relationship between the community and the summer teachers was excellent. All teachers lived in the community. Because of the past year's experience, local sponsors anticipated many problems and the summer ran very smoothly.

Once again, the programs cooperated with local educational institutions and were allowed the use of their building. Charleston's school board has finally allowed the program to be conducted in the public schools. Greenville is the only program still denied the use of public school buildings; however, this summer the parochial schools donated adequate facilities.

Program Innovations

A number of changes and improvements in the program were suggested on the basis of experience from summer, 1966. These were instituted on an experimental basis this summer.

A. In 1966, the program had no state-wide coordination. This summer, Donald Moore, an experienced master teacher in English, and Claude Case, an experienced master teacher in mathematics, coordinated the program. They were able to do the following:

(1) Oreint teachers more thououghly to program goals and local situations.

(2) Obtain and suggest materials appropriate for special groups and situations.

(3) Institute special activities like tutoring, team teaching, training sessions, trips, etc.

(4) Observe classes and assist teachers in becoming more effective.

(5) Evaluate the curriculum materials which were used and discover ways in which they might be made more effective.

B. As suggested in 1966, several changes were made in the curriculum , consistant wi th the general conclusion that a "basic skills" orientation was too narrow for our program. The replacement of reading with social studies was definitely a success. Students enjoyed the social studies program and became deeply involved nn discussions and research in the community on problems and issues relevant to them.

The mathematics program was also changed from preparation for next fall's math course to examination of topics not generally encountered in regular school. The emphasis in English, Social Studies and Mathematics was on involvement and critical thinking. We did not ignore the so-called basic skills in our program, but rather held that the most basic skill our students needed, and on which others depended, was the ability to think critically. Gains on standardized tests of reading and mathematics discussed elswwhere bear out the validity of our approach.

C. Another attempted innovation was the introduction of team teaching between cooperating English and Social Studies teachers and between mathematics teachers. Our attempt met with moderate success. Some teams did excellent work. Others never really got togehher. Our failures stemmed from (1) teachers not understanding that they would be teaching on teams when they were hired; (2) teachers not having enough ideas about how to utilize the team properly, (3) teachers with little experience wanting to be left alone. If we are to continue to combat the authoritarian educational background of our students, the give and take, the contrasting views and discussions, that team teaching allows are valuable means for reaching this goal. If there is to be interaction between local teachers and outside teachers during the summer so that local teachers can carry on the program, then team teaching is a necessity. We had enough successful team teaching work done this past summer that I am certain team teaching can be brought up to a satisfactory level of performance by:

(1) Hiring of more experienced secondary school teachers (Discussed elsewhere)

(2) Teacher awareness at the time of hiring that he is going to team teach.

(3) More extensive orientation about the possibilities of team teaching.

D. An attempt was made to have all students tutor a younger student in the community. Like the introduction of social studies, this was intended to get students away from the basic skills approach and more involved in community problems. In Charleston, Columbia and Aiken, where strong support for this idea came from teachers and community sponsors, this part of the program was a success. However, in the other towns, largely because there were so many other activities taking place, tutoring was never acutally conducted. I would recommend that it be continued only in those towns where sponsors have a strong positive feeling about it.

Curriculum Development

Units in mathematics, English and social studies were prepared by the master teachers for the use during the summer program. The materials and the approaches they embodied were employed by all of the teachers. On the basis of observation of classes by the master teachers and extensive comments about the materials written by teachers, the materials have been revised. They are available to all SEP teachers for this academic year in the college and for subsequent summer programs.

This has proved an excellent method for developing curriculum materials. I recommend that new units be written and tried out next summer. This was not only desirable from the curriculum development standpoint, but also because many returning students must have new material if they are to be encouraged to return.

This Summer's Teachers

Once again, the program was able to employ teachers of a generally high calibre. We had approximately three applicants for each position we were able to fill in the community programs. Of this summer's 33 teachers, 16 had full-time teaching experience at either the high school or college level, and all the rest had some form of tutoring experience. All except one had a master's degree or its equivialent. The exception was made in the case of a student with special experience in a ghetto teaching program. With a few exceptions all teachers did a creditable job, and about half were especially outstanding. As a group the experienced secondary school teachers were almost uniformly outstanding and more such teachers should be recruited in the future. Also valuable were four teachers returning from past years who were able to orient the new teachers to local situations and expectations. A special effort should be made to get strong teachers from this summer to return next year.

School Achievement

The outstanding achievment of some past program alumni in attending college and attending integrated schools is outlined in the past report and will not be repeated. Of graduates from summer, 1966, 90% are attending college, including such schools as Barnard, Yale, University of Illinois, Seton Hall, Clemson, Furman and the University of South Carolina. Intensive work was done this summer on raising sutdent aspirations for college.

In addition, students were interviewed during the summer for special programs and college placement services. Indications are that about 15 of our top students have excellent chance to attend prestige colleges and that about two-thirds can attend schools at least of the quality of the state schools in South Caronina.

On a more short-term basis, achievement tests in mathematics and reading were administered to all program participants at the beginning and end of the summer. Average gains of five months were recorded during the six weeks program in both mathematics and reading. Over one-third of the students made gains of one year or more. In view of the statement in the recent report on Racial Isolation in the Public Schools that no compensatory education program has achieved significant gains in achievement, these results take on special meaning.

SUMMARY: FUTURE ROLE OF THE PROGRAM

I have made some specific suggestions earlier in the report which I will not repeat. As important, I think are some general observations about the programs successes and future role. Our experience has, I believe, established the following:

(1) That intensive enrichment programs like this one can prepare Southern Students of average or above average ability to attend good colleges.

(2) That such programs can be used to start larger, year-round programs that involve both local teachers and local educational institutions.

(3) That such programs can realistically hope for alternative forms of funding so that SEP can play an initiating role without being permanently responsible for financial support of the programs.

In light of these past successes, I would recommend that more programs of this type be initiated with similar long-range goasl of preparing students with potential to attend good colleges and return to their communtties as leaders; to involve local teachers and educational institutions in the program; and to phase out of financial support of the programs as they become a established, later serving only the role of locating outside teachers and other staff members.

Dear Mrs. Gershon:

Dr. Reid and I wish to thank you for your words of commendation concerning the SOUTHERN FRONTIER. It is always good for the morale of the editors to know that someone thinks that they are doing a good job.

We have sent you with our compliments six additional copies of the April and May issues of the SOUTHERN FRONTIER.

Dear Directors:

I have been a little slow in getting around to reading the April and May issues of the Southern Frontier, but now that I have read them I want to tell you both how thoroughly worthwhile I think they are. Your policy of reporting the special meeting of the board of directors to your general reading public seems to me very wise strategy, and of course, incidentally, is good democratic procedure. The whole of both issues contained articles and items of real value.

Could I purchase three or four additional copies of both issues? I should like to send them to several people outside of this area who are interested in the functioning of this organization in particular and in the whole situation in general.

With cordial good wishes to you both, I am

Sincerely,

Rebecca M. Gershon

"The July issue of the SOUTHERN FRONTIER came today, and notwithstanding the many setbacks it recorded that are heartbreaking, your editorial as well as the article "Science and the American Race Problem" along with really more acts of progress recorded than of the other kind, did so much to lift up my heart in thanks and elation, that I just need to tell you about it, for I have been very low-spirited lately, for some reason, and needed this uplift that came today very greatly."

From a letter from Mrs. F. H. Gray of Bruni, Texas
August 9, 1944

"Congratulations on the July issue of the SOUTHERN FRONTIER just received. Your front page headed "Here and There in the South" is just what I believe is needed. I had been puzzling for some months about the way to pass on small pieces of news mostly on the constructive side about successful handling of race and labor relations, particularly for the benefit of mill owners, teachers and ministers."

Dear Mr. Benet:

We should like very much to have the privilege of reprinting in the SOUTHERN FRONTIER your poem "Primary Day in Georgia" which was published in the SATURDAY REVIEW OF LITERATURE, July 22, 1944. We have written to the SATURDAY REVIEW, and we had a letter from Amy Loveman saying that we are welcome to reprint the poem if you have no objection.

I am enclosing a couple of issues of the SOUTHERN FRONTIER which will give you some idea of the sort of thing which the Southern Regional Council is trying to do.

"~~I am happy to know that you accepted the position as Executive Director.~~ Among the many problems that we face at this time I believe one of the worst is that of transportation on street cars, urban, Greyhound and Trailways buses. I have had an occasion to observe some of the things the members of my race have to submit to. For instance, in Little Rock, Arkansas, not long ago, when the bus came in there were enough people to fill two. When it was loaded and pulled out, only one Negro had been admitted and the others stood waiting. Many times on the urban bus and cars Negroes are very much embarrassed because the operators are always very careful to see that they move back to give whites a seat but rarely is a white person asked to move forward, unless he wishes to, and give room for Negroes. There is one bright spot in the picture, however, there are members of the white race that show culture and consideration enough to be concerned about Negroes getting a seat. On two or three occasions I noted a white person inviting a Negro to sit beside him. A particular instance, a young white woman left her seat and insisted that an elderly Negro woman take the seat. I hope in some way a solution may be found to remove the annoyance in transportation."

Dear Mr. Ramsey:

I deeply appreciated your letter of February 6. I hope you will forgive me for not replying more promptly. We have had such an epidemic of conferences and trips that we are way behind with all of our correspondence. We are very much in need of additional help on our staff, but, as you know, it is hard to find the right people these days.

Believe it or not, I agree with you completely in your statements concerning the poll tax and the careless use of statistics to make a case against it. I think that the table which was used in the January Southern Frontier was "lousy." As a matter of fact, I intended either to cut it out or give it a title such as "Voting and Non-Voting in the South", but there were so many things pressing for attention that I let it get away from me. The case against the poll tax is bad enough, without the unintelligent use of statistics to prove it.

I have long wanted to get together some accurate data on voting in the Southern states, and to make such deductions as the data will allow on the probable effects of various suffrage requirements. For example, one might trace the amount of voting in North Carolina for the past 40 years and get a little light on the effect of the repeal of the poll tax requirement. After one has worked out a kind of norm for non-voting in a state which has few restrictions on suffrage, one can talk more intelligently about the probable influence of various restrictions in those states which still have them. I hope that some time within the next few months I can find the time to write an article along this line.

Do you mind if we publish some excerpts from your letter in the March Southern Frontier? We certainly deserve the criticism.

Cordially yours,

My dear Dr. Johnson:

I am genuinely distressed to note that The Southern Frontier is repeating as if it were the gospel truth the utterly unprovable statement that the poll tax voting requirement disfranchises "10,000,000 potential voters" in eight Southern states.

It so happens that I am opposed to the poll tax qualification for voting - but it also happens that I am even more opposed to the use of fabricated figures to support a good cause. I think that persons who assume to speak in the name of democracy are all the more obligated to be truthful.

The poll tax qualification operates, of course, to reduce the number of voters. But there is no way to establish just how many the requirement disfranchises. Certainly the total is nothing like 10,000,000.

According to the 1940 census, there were 13,589,526 "potential voters" in the eight Southern states which still cling to the poll tax voting requirement. By "potential voters" are meant all citizens over the age of 21. In the 1944 election, these states cast 3,113,082 votes.

We are expected to believe that of the 10,476,444 "potential voters" in the eight Southern states who didn't vote in November, 10,000,000 were disfranchised by the poll tax while only 476,444 were disfranchised by indifference, change of residence, literacy condition, etc.

If the poll tax was responsible for virtually all of the failure to vote in these states, what explains the 2,000,000 potential voters in New York who for one reason or another did not vote in the presidential election?

The other day I saw some figures showing that while only 388,485 citizens of Virginia voted in the recent election, 672,836 had paid their poll tax. Why didn't all of the persons who had paid their tax vote in the presidential election?

All who face the true facts know that the abolition of the poll tax voting requirement will not in itself lift the votes cast in the South to the national average. North Carolina has had no poll tax voting requirement for more than 20 years yet there are in this state 1,150,000 "potential voters" who did not vote in last fall's election. It is worthy of note that Tennessee with a poll tax voting condition casts a larger percentage of its potential vote than does Louisana which has no poll tax franchise stipulation.

I sincerely hope that The Southern Regional Council will keep its statistics authoritative and dependable and not allow itself to be deceived by the figures hand-tailored by certain persons who seem to be bent on exaggerating the conditions.

D. Hiden Ramsey

My dear Dr. Johnson:

I have your letter of February 20.

I do not have any personal objections to the publication in the Southern Frontier of extracts from my letter of February 6, provided you think that such publicity will be helpful.

When I wrote you, I was not moved by any desire to gain any publicity for my views. I was merely expressing my dissent from certain false figures and my genuine concern that the Southern Regional Council keep its activities on a high plane of strict intellectual integrity.

You are free, therefore, to do what you will with the letter. If you publish any part of it, I will not be offended. If you ignore it altogether, I will not be disappointed.

Dear Mrs. Seidman:

Thank you for your letter of April 18. We are sorry to have been caught napping in the March issue of the Southern Frontier. Of course, we know that the Progressive Democratic Party of South Carolina is not an "all Negro party". One of our staff members simply summarized the Columbia State's review of significant events in 1944.

We shall be glad to make a correction on this item in the Southern Frontier--in the April issue if it is not too late to get it in.

Atlanta 3, Georgia

Gentlemen:

Received my copy of The Southern Frontier, March 1945 yesterday and on reading found on the back page a heading South Carolina-1944, in which is stated this misleading item:
The formation of the state's first all-Negro party, the Progressive Democrats.

Now I can hardly excuse you for thus aiding the facistic policy of The State since you are apparently dedicated to the cause of reason and understanding, thus, it seems that you, of all groups, would check carefully before passing on such fantastic and unsubstantiated misinformation.

From its very inception the PDP has been a party for all the people who certainly are not represented by the various factions in South Carolina. Our policy has ever been to create a voice for the voiceless. We have stressed time and again, in The Lighthouse and Informer, in speeches all over the state, in talks over the Radio our policy of cooperation. But it apparently serves the powers that be best to relegate us to a limited status and one that they presume will be derogatory and prevent the timid from affiliation, by labelling the party all-Negro.

The State does this willfully and maliciously.
In November I wrote to them that I, a white woman born and bred in South Carolina, educated athe University of South Carolina am a member of this party and that we have other white members, and for that reason to drop the (Negro) after any mention of our party. They chose to ignore this request. A copy was sent to the Record who gave heed.

For your information, and it surprises me that you seem so unaware of what is transpiring in a movement that you profess interest (as evinced by your publication of John McCray) a movement that is bettering the relationship of people in the south, this party from the outset was the answer to a definite need, that of obtaining constitutional rights for people wrongly excluded from these rights. Small wonder that liberal white people should be just as interested as Negroes.
Now, if anyone wants to call us the only Anti-Facistic party in South Carolina, that would be quite correctfor all other parties who deny this group of our citizens for the reason of a darker skin are closely following the Nazi party line. To call us all-Negro is to put us in a class with the gangster factions, such as the Ku-Klux Klan, The Christian Front, or the vicious "Mother" groups that have spawned like a foul disease in sections of our country. Surely, surely, we have a right to expect more careful thinking of people like you and movements like yours.

I expect a retraction in your next issue.

New York, New York

Dear Sergeant Gilmer:

Your letter in the August 14 Fort Worth Star-Telegram was such a forthright statement of the Negro's rights for democracy in the South that we asked the paper for permission to reprint it in our publication, The Southern Frontier.

We are also publishing the letter in a small illustrated leaflet for distribution throughout the South because we believe it can do a great deal of good in helping to win for the Negro the rights for which he fought. The Star-Telegram granted us permission for this publication also and we are writing you for your approval just to make it complete.

For your information, in case you are not familiar with the Southern Regional Council, ours is a non-profit organization devoted to the development of the South. Part of our work is in the field of better race relations and political and civil rights for the Negro. I am sure -- judging by your letter -- that you are in accord with our aims, and so I am confident that you will have no objection to our publishing your views. However, we would appreciate it if you could manage to write us a brief note authorizing publication of your letter.

It is my hope that this letter will find you either back in civilian clothes by now or at least nearly on your way out of the army. We are enclosing copies of the September issue of The Southern Frontier in which your letter was published. If you will give us your new address, if any, we shall send you copies of the leaflet when it is printed.

If you should happen to be in Atlanta any time, by all means drop in to pay us a visit.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Boutwell:

We have just received your letter concerning the listing of The Southern Frontier in "America's Educational Press." We shall be glad if you will list The Southern Frontier in your publication.

We are enclosing two copies of our periodical. It is published monthly and the subscription price is 25 cents a year.

The Southern Frontier was founded by the Commission on Interracial Cooperation. When the Southern Regional Council was formed in February, 1944, it absorbed the Commission and its related activities. Please note that our present address is 63 Auburn Avenue, N. E.

Dear Editor:

It has come to our attention that the publication of your Association is not listed in "America's Educational Press," a classified list of educational periodicals published annually by the Educational Press Association of America. This list is becoming increasingly important and its use is now very general. Listing your publication is valuable to you as this list goes to about 4500 leading school superintendents, to libraries, publishers, and other groups influential in the development of magazine lists for school systems, colleges, and universities.

We would appreciate receiving a copy of your publication for possible listing in the forthcoming issue of "America's Educational Press." There is no charge for listing. We would appreciate a prompt reply since we hope to go to press in the very near future. Please address replies to the Educational Press Association of America, 1201 Sixteenth Street, N. A RESTATEMENT OF VITAL PRINCIPLES

If the speech which President Truman delivered in New York yesterday can be regarded as the most important which he has made, it is not for any original policy which he announced. His address was largely a redefinition of principles which have been repeatedly stated and which have come to be accepted as fundamentals of American policy.

For all that, the President did well at this time of confusion to restate in elevated language the principles which are basic with us and which will shape our foreign policies in the days and months ahead. If our allies will only understand them, they will never be at loss to comprehend our positions on the most crucial issues.

First of all, "we seek no territorial expansion or selfish advantage." "We believe in the eventual return of sovereign rights and self-government to all peoples who have been deprived of them by force." "We shall approve no territorial changes in any friendly part of the world unless they accord with the freely expressed wishes of the people concerned." "We believe that all peoples who are prepared for self-government should be permitted to choose their own form of government by their own qualified ten million citizens in the Southern states that retained it. The poll tax condition does operate to prevent many Southerners from voting. There can be no gainsaying this ugly fact. But when The Council places the number at ten millions, it overreaches itself and uses figures that are manifestly wrong.

Now comes the Southern Regional Council to manhandle other statistics in arguing for the elimination of the poll tax requirement. It undertakes to emphasize the financial hardship which the poll tax works on the average citizen of the poll tax states. It contends for instance that in Virginia the wage-earner in the family would have to work four days to pay the poll taxes for two years of himself and his wife. The Council arrives at this interesting conclusion by citing that "the per capita income" of the average citizen of Virginia for 1940 was $455, that the poll tax for two years for two persons would be $6 and that therefore the wage-earner in the family would have to work four days to pay the taxes. No such conclusion is possible from the figures cited. It has taken some misconstruction of statistics to obtain such results. The per capita income quoted is, of course, not that of the average wage-earner. It is, on the contrary, the per capita income of every resident of the state, old and young, male and female. The income of the average wage-earner in Virginia for 1940 was perhaps three times as large.

This misuse of figures does no vast harm to the fly-by-night organizations that are agitating for the repeal of the poll tax requirement and that have no sense of continuing responsibility to this section. But the Southern Regional Council is too reputable an association to allow itself to be used in disseminating propaganda which will not withstand analysis. It does not have to stoop to such arguments to make out a strong case against the poll tax voting condition.

IMPROVEMENT

The millenium has not arrived in Asheville. But conditions seem to have improved quite sharply. Some of the joints have closed for "repairs" or other good and lawful reasons, however fictitious. Whiskey, we understand, is not being served so openly at some of our restaurants. The professional gamblers with their various devices for extracting money from the gullible are not so brazen in their operations.

There must be a reason. It is hardly to be found in the fact that two special officers have been assigned to the vice squad. Two made, it is not for any original policy which he announced. His address was largely a redefinition of principles which have been repeatedly stated and which have come to be accepted as fundamentals of American policy.

For all that, the President did well at this time of confusion to restate in elevated language the principles which are basic with us and which will shape our foreign policies in the days and months ahead. If our allies will only understand them, they will never be at loss to comprehend our positions on the most crucial issues.

First of all, "we seek no territorial expansion or selfish advantage." "We believe in the eventual return of sovereign rights and self-government to all peoples who have been deprived of them by force." "We shall approve no territorial changes in any friendly part of the world unless they accord with the freely expressed wishes of the people concerned." "We believe that all peoples who are prepared for self-government should be permitted to choose their own form of government by their own freely expressed choice, without interference from any source." "We shall refuse to recognize any government imposed upon any nation by the force of any foreign power." "We shall continue to strive to promote freedom of expression and freedom of religion throughout the peace-loving areas of the world." "We are convinced that the preservation of peace between nations requires a United Nations organization composed of all the peace-loving nations of the world who are willing jointly to use force if necessary to insure peace."

This was not all. There was more in the same lofty vein by way of defining the principles which guide this nation and which determine our duties in the post-war world. The speech lacked the golden touch which Woodrow Wilson would have given to such an utterance. But there was little, if anything, in the address to which the great President of a quarter century ago would have taken exception. In fact, the Truman speech was built quite largely on the philosophy of world relations which Wilson announced and which this country refused to accept and to implement in the years of failure between the two wars.

President Truman went out of his way to state that "there are no conflicts of interest among the victorious powers so deeply rooted that they can not be resolved." He argued that "a combination of forbearance and firmness" will bridge these differences. The task of reconciling our policies with those of our allies will be much easier if they will ponder the fundamentals of policy which he outlines in his Navy Day address. Within the broad confines of those basic principles, we are willing to practise a policy of give and take. We should not insist that we have our way on every disputed question. But we can not retreat on these fundamentals without doing violence to the faith which we have come to accept.

STATISTICAL ABUSE

The Southern Regional Council is a most reputable and useful organization. It is headed by Dr. Howard W. Odum and numbers among its other officers Southerners of genuine light and leading. Its chief objective is the promotion of more cooperative and equitable relations between the two races in the South and it is succeeding notably.

For all of its responsibility, the Regional Council is spreading some statistical arguments against the poll tax voting qualification which are wholly or partially inaccurate and should not be repeated by persons who pretend to know this section.

Several months ago the Council reiterated in its organ, The Southern Frontier, the charge that the poll tax requirement discriminates against the Negro. This is not true. The poll tax requirement is not directed against the Negro. It is not directed against any race. It is not directed against any section. It is not directed against any class. It is not directed against any party. It is not directed against any religion. It is not directed against any nationality. It is not directed against any age. It is not directed against any sex. It is not directed against any occupation. It is not directed against any income. It is not directed against any education. It is not directed against any ability. It is not directed against any character. It is not directed against any conscience. It is not directed against any soul. It is not directed against any God. It is not directed against any anything. It is not directed against any nothing. It is not directed against any everything. It is not directed against any anybody. It is not directed against any somebody. It is not directed against any nobody. It is not directed against any everybody

My dear Mr. Johnson:

I am attaching herewith a clipping of an editorial which we carried in Sunday's Citizen-Times and which commented on another statistical aberration of The Southern Frontier.

When I consider that so many officers of the Southern Regional Council are genuine scholars, I am at loss to understand the demagogic fashion in which figures are being misused in The Southern Frontier to argue for the elimination of the poll tax requirement. The case for the banning of the poll tax requirement does not need the doubtful support of twisted figures.

What I say above is written in the utmost friendship for the Council and in a genuine desire to see it avoid that demagoguery that has been the curse of the South so long.

Dear Sir:

I wish to thank you for your editorial comment in last Sunday's Citizen-Times in which you pointed out a statistical fallacy in an article on the poll tax which was published in the October issue of our monthly paper, The Southern Frontier.

The article in question was contributed to The Southern Frontier by Mr. Stetson Kennedy and we do not necessarily share all the views which he expressed. However, I regret that we did not catch the statistical fallacy in the table which was included in the article and which you so ably pointed out in your editorial. The cost of paying the poll tax in terms of number of days of work required is on the average probably one-fourth to one-half the amount shown in the table in the article.

Occasional mistakes of this sort are inevitable of course, but I assure you that we are trying to hold them to the minimum. We appreciate your constructive criticism and the fine spirit in which it was offered.

Dear Mr. Ramsey:

Thank you for your letter of October 30 and the editorial which appeared in last Sunday's Citizen-Times. You have indeed caught us with our statistical britches down! The Southern Frontier article was a signed piece by Mr. Kennedy, and although we did not necessarily share all of the views expressed by the author, we certainly should have caught the bad statistical device which he used when he computed what it would cost a man and wife to pay poll taxes in terms of days of work from a per capita income figure based on the total population. We deserved criticism and we appreciate the spirit in which you gave it.

I am enclosing a little note which you might wish to publish if you think well of it.

My dear Dr. Johnson:

I deeply appreciate your letter of November 3 and the disarming frankness which characterizes it. The letter to the editor which accompanied it will be published in next Sunday's issue of The Citizen-Times.

Your job is, I know, far from easy and I do not wish to add to your difficulties with my fault-findings. But The Southern Regional Council has such an opportunity for service that I do not want to see it destroy its usefulness.

The folks who are spearheading the drive for the federal anti-poll tax law are no better than Senator Bilbo when it comes to intellectual honesty. They have distorted statistics in the most shocking fashion. I have convinced myself that we can not publish their propaganda without making ourselves a party to the circulation of mendacious arguments.

The curse of the South has been demagoguery. There is no moral distinction between damagoguery which is on our side and demagoguery which advocates measures which we oppose. A lie is a lie whatever the cause in which it is enlisted.

I suspect that before it is all over, you will find that the propaganda being issued by the organized poll-tax group must be thoroughly screened to meet the standards of a reputable publication.

Please be assured of my high personal regards.

We have just been informed that the Southern Conference for Human Welfare has decided not to use the name, New South, after all for its educational press. This leaves us free to proceed in accordance with the original vote at the annual meeting on November 14 in favor of changing the name of the Southern Frontier to New South.

We are glad to inform you, therefore, that it will not be necessary for the Executive Committee to choose a substitute name, and that, beginning with the January 1946 issue, our monthly publication will appear under the title, New South.

918 Cypress Street, N.E.
Atlanta, Georgia

Dear Mr. Dixon:

In an address April 27 before the annual meeting of the Southern Sociological Society, Dr. Howard Odum, of the University of North Carolina, used the phrase "Operation Equal Opportunity."

He was setting forth tasks ahead of the South in four main areas. These were: correction of "the inexcusable situation with reference to brutalities, injustices, inequalities, and discrimination"; "'Operation Equal Opportunity' to comprehend all phases of public education"; "to provide immediately for non-segregation in all university education on the graduate and professional level"; and, lastly, "to move judiciously but speedily toward agenda for negotiations and specifications for future achievement on the total front."

On the education program, he continued: "With reference to the monumental task of equalizing facilities for education, this is a big job challenging not only the will, strength and capacity of a strong people but the cooperation, judicial interpretation, and constitutional structure of the nation. The reconstruction of our educational facilities, including buildings, equipment, salaries, and administrative features, involves an extraordinary multibillion dollar industry, which, operated at its best, will enrich the South, develop its resources, raise its standards of work, income, and living. This done adequately will not only make the South prosperous beyond previous measure but will enable it through its increased prosperity to pay for its new investments and contribute powerfully in turn to the national wealth. But in turn there can be no doubt of the nation's obligation to share this investment both because of the Federal strategy of equalization of funds and reciprocal cooperation with states and regions but because of the Federal ruling which makes mandatory the South's rebuilding of its educational structure.

"Now the South's part of the initial added increment for the reconstruction of its educational facilities, in terms of what specifications can be made available and of authorizations and priorities, would be no more than the first expenditure for the first atomic bomb and a small ratio of subsequent such expenditures. The South would surely ridicule the challenge that it could not appropriate two billion dollars for an investment which would net many billions of dollars in the future and contribute powerfully to conservation and development of its human and institutional resources, as well.

"For there is here a tremendous difference between the two types of investment in that these new expenditures will be powerfully productive and constructively geared to the development and wise use of resources in the increase of wealth and prosperity and the enrichment of people and institutions as opposed to the negative or destructive nature of atomic warfare. Instead, therefore, of doubts and fears, so far as fiscal capacities go, the 'Operation Equal Opportunity' is something to challenge not only capacities but enthusiasm for the future. Such a raising of standards and doubling of facilities in a brilliant transitional period of our own reconstruction, will provide the structure and facilities, equitably distributed according to local geographic areas and administered through procedures consistent with educational standards, through which the problems of segregation may ultimately be adjusted in the American way of balance and equilibrium between voluntaristic effort and coercive decree; between compromise and inflexibility, as has been the prevailing mode of American democracy from the first.

"The above agenda for equalizing educational opportunities applies to all levels of schooling and assumes the normal status and processes of segregation and non-segregation consistent with the development and administration of educational systems everywhere. It assumes a certain inevitable continuity of the sub system featuring primarily segregation in the public schools but with both non-segregation and segregation modes and privileges in institutions of higher learning. This is necessary to insure equality of opportunity for the extraordinary Negro institutions, teachers, students, and administrative officers in ways which will give maximum recognition and opportunity for Negro professional folk and students."

It occurred to me that the Southern Education Foundation would perform a great service, and one quite in accord with the impulses of those who established its various original funds, if it would now or in a comparatively short period of time provide a statistical service to the South as to our progress or lack of progress in achieving equal educational opportunity. I assume the reporting function would be limited to elementary and secondary education.

Reasonably up-to-date and comprehensive figures in this whole field are extremely hard to come by. Figures can, of course, be had state by state, but not on a comparable basis, and what I have seen in the past from the U.S. Office of Education is insufficiently detailed.

As a starter, could not the Southern Education Foundation issue an annual report reviewing the status and progress of each Southern state in this field? Such a report would be everywhere considered accurate. And organs of public opinion and state officials would be inclined to give extraordinary weight to the Southern Education Foundation's findings. Much undiscriminating and needlessly angry controversy arises because the exact relevant facts are not obtainable. Again on the basis of the facts a healthy rivalry between states and communities would spring up. It need be no part of the Southern Education Foundation's work to propagandize in the area at all; the press, interested citizens, and a variety of organizations could be trusted to employ the findings to constructive purpose.

I should think that an ancillary service that would be very useful would be narrative comment on new and interesting developments in the general field of elementary and secondary education in the Southern states.

I do greatly hope that the Southern Education Foundation will find it possible to provide a service of this kind.

Sincerely,

George S. Mitchell
Executive Director

Honorable Ransome Williams
Governor of South Carolina
State Capitol
Columbia, South Carolina

Dear Governor Williams:

I take pleasure in sending you, with the compliments of the Southern Regional Council, this copy of our recent publication entitled, THE SOUTH - America's Opportunity Number One. In view of the problems and opportunities facing the South in this postwar period, I believe you will find this pamphlet of special interest.

If you would like to have additional copies, please let us know, and we shall be glad to make them available.

Cordially yours,

GUY B. JOHNSON,

Southern Governors' Confer.

Dear Governor Caldwell:

I am pleased to present herewith a copy of the September issue of New South, entitled Machines in the Cotton Fields.

This study of the mechanization of cotton farming was done by Dr. Arthur Raper of the United States Department of Agriculture. He first presented it at a meeting of the Southern Sociological Society which was held in Atlanta last May. We thought that it was such a significant piece of work that we obtained permission to print it and give it wider distribution than it would otherwise have had.

I am sure that you will agree with us that the mechanization of cotton farming in the South is a process of tremendous importance. The social and economic effects of mechanization will soon begin to make themselves felt, and it seems important to explore these effects and to work out methods of dealing with them intelligently. Even in those Southern States where cotton is not the major crop, the effects of mechanization are bound to be felt because of the migration of displaced cotton farmers.

May we earnestly urge that you, along with the other members of the Southern Governors' Conference, consider the advisability of calling a special Cotton States Conference on the subject of mechanization of cotton farming. The Southern Regional Council will gladly assist in every way possible in such a conference and in any research project which the Governors' Conference might wish to initiate.

Cordially yours,

GUY B. JOHNSON

Southern Executives Decline to Debate Controversial National Problems

Miami Beach, Fla., Dec. 8.—(AP)—The Southern Governors' Conference Saturday decided politely, but firmly to consider only regional subjects and to keep out of possibly controversial national problems.

The question cam up at the final session of the conference at which Gov. R. Gregg Cherry of North Carolina was elected chairman and Gov. Clarence Meadows of West Virginia vice chairman for the coming year.

They succeed Govs. Robert Kerr of Oklahoma, chairman, and Chauncey Sparks of Alabama, vice chairman.

Gov.-Elect J. S. Thurmond of South Carolina, a member attending his first session, raised the question of the conference considering national matters when a resolution he offered for endorsement of the nation's foreign policy was dropped as not coming within the scope of the session.

"I am wondering whether we are pursuing the wisest course in the policy of refraining, as leaders of the Southern states, from considering matters of national importance without fear or favor," said Thurmond.

Gov. Millard F. Caldwell of Florida said the Southern Governors' Conference was "a completely uninhibited body" and could discuss any subject it desired, but said that Thurmond's resolution would not "point up" the questions actually discussed.

Caldwell observed:

"I haven't been able to determine just what our national policy is, but I would be willing to endorse most any policy pursued by (Secretary of State) Byrnes."

Other governors pointed out that Republicans also attend the Southern Governors' Conference and that while all see eye to eye as a rule on regional questions, there might be serious differences on national or international subjects.

An afternoon at the races occupied the executive s before they headed for their state capitols.

14 Divorces Granted.

Asheboro, Dec. 8.—Judge J. H. Clement, presiding over the December term of Randolph Superior Court, adjourned the term yesterday after granting absolute divorces in 14 actions calendared for the final day of a criminal term.

Dear Gov. Cherry:

I am delighted to learn that you were recently elected chairman of the Southern Governors Conference. Being an ex-Tarheel who worked at the University of North Carolina for twenty years, I am particularly proud of this recognition which has come to you and to North Carolina.

You may recall some previous correspondence concerning our pamphlet entitled, "Machines in the Cotton Fields". I understand that the recent meeting of the Southern Governors Conference at Miami Beach had so many important matters to discuss that it was impossible to take up the question of the effects of the mechanization of cotton. I hope that at a future meeting the Conference will be able to explore this question. The Southern Regional Council will be glad to cooperate in any investigation which the Conference might wish to undertake. I am also writing to former Governor Broughton, who is chairman of the Committee of the South which was set up recently to survey economic conditions in the South.

It was thoughtful of you to write me further concerning the Southern Governors' Conference and the question of Mechanization of cotton farming. I realize that the conference had a very crowded schedule and that it was difficult to explore everything in which the governors are interested.

I have written to Governor Cherry, the new chairman of the Southern Governors' Conference, and I am also getting in touch with former Governor J. Melville Broughton, who is chairman of a recently formed group called The Committee of the South. This committee plans to survey the economic problems and trends in the South. Re: Memorandum of January 28, 1958

Dear Harry:

Reference is made to your memorandum, January 28, concerning interracial facilities in the South.

Negro males in transit can stay at the Downtown Y. M. C. A. in their attractive dormitories. The eating facilities are open to all Negroes, transit or otherwise. It is located in downtown Tulsa, 515 South Denver. The dining room of the Y. W. C. A. is open to Negroes also on an unsegregated basis, but dormitory service here is apparently not available. It is located in downtown Tulsa, also, at 116 West 5th Street. Interracial meetings are held at both places.

Interracial meetings with food services are open to Negroes at the two largest downtown hotels and the very modern Chamber of Commerce. At the hotels, though, Negroes do not go into the dining rooms as individuals although they are served wherever the meeting is held, such as in the mezzanine, ballroom, etc. Negroes are accepted at the Spartan Airport Cafeteria and across the street at the Sky Chief Restaurant both with meetings and as individuals. Also non-segregated are the Tulsa County Courthouse, Union Bus Depot and Union Railway Depot. Nine movie theaters with non-discriminatory service are open to Negroes. All the large ballrooms downtown and on the outskirts of Tulsa are frequently rented by Negroes for dances or meetings but these ballrooms do not have food services except for sandwiches at the bar. However, they may be served by caterers.

One large hotel in Oklahoma City will accommodate Negroes, even for sleeping, if reservations are made in advance (contact Cenoria Johnson for this information.)

Negroes can hold meetings and eat as individuals at all the Universities in Tulsa on a non-segregated basis.

I hope that I have not neglected to include any other information requested by the memorandum but if an omission has occurred I will gladly send the same upon notification.

Sincerely,

Dear Harry:

Reference is made to your memorandum of January 28 titled, "Interracial Facilities in the South".

Unfortunately we here can speak only for the city of St. Louis, and I am afraid in that respect we can talk only in a general way. In the city of St. Louis, all of the first rate hotels - Statler, Lennox, Sheraton-Jefferson, Coronado and Kingsway - accept Negroes as guests and in their coffee shops and dining rooms. We suggest that those seeking accommodations either wire or write for reservations and confirmation of the same. I might add that if you would write the hotels direct requesting information of this kind, they would probably not respond or at most avoid giving a direct answer, but I re-emphasize that it has been the practice, for the past several years, to honor confirmed reservations.

Except for the dime stores and chain drug stores, and of course restaurants in the railway station, airport and bus depot, there are no first class restaurants open to Negroes. This of course is in somewhat of a state of flux and my advice would be that persons seeking up-to-date information should get in touch with the Urban League, the NAACP or the St. Louis Argus newspaper on arriving in St. Louis.

I am sorry that I cannot give you anything definite with regard to motels in the area. Perhaps Tom Webster could give you this information.

Listed on the attached sheet are the addresses of the hotels we mentioned.

George Iggers (from Dillard) called and said that the Biltmore Hotel is not going to serve dinners on an integrated basis for the Southern Historical Association meeting.

John Snell (from Tulane) is going to introduce a resolution that they meet only in cities where integrated banquet facilities are available.

They want to know in what cities this can be done. They know about Louisville and Miami.

Nothing is in the files upstairs. What can we do on this matter?

NOTE: Harold, I dug out of the files the two attached letters which came in response to FBR's memo of Jan. 22, 1958 asking for data on "Interracial Facilities in the South". This might be a starter.

Dear Mr. Snell:

In response to a telephone request by Mr. George Iggers, we searched our files for cities with hotels which accommodate desegregated banquest meetings. Unfortunately, we have not been able to turn up too many which are not generally known. Of course, Gattinburg, Tennessee, and Williamsburg, Virginia are two integrated ones and I understand hotels in Louisville and Miami generally accept integrated meetings. The only other information we found concerning this matter is that first rate hotels in St. Louis such as the Statler, Lennox, Sheraton-Jefferson, Coronado and Kingsway and the two largest downtown hotels in Tulsa, Oklahoma, accept integrated meetings.

I am sorry that this is not much, but I believe if your organization consulted hotels far enough in advance many of them would accept your meeting on such a basis.

Thank you for your suggestion that the Southern Regional Council undertake a survey of Southern meeting places for racially inclusive groups.

We are fully persuaded of the importance of such information and will do our best to collect and make it available to interested organizations and individuals. We were able to give some encouragement and help to Claude Sitton of the New York Times in the preparation of the enclosed article. This is at least a start toward helpful airing of such information.

Subscription to New South is optional with membership in the North Carolina Council (i.e., for payment of $2.00 in addition to membership fee). Thank you for your thoughtful letter about the problem of meeting-places with a non-discriminatory policy. I hope that the Southern Regional Council can be of some help in this matter.

I haven't forgotten the fact that in that conversation we had recently we also talked about Southern images, and the conference held by SRC at Williamsburg , and that you had been interested yourself in a study of myth and image in Southern history, but that for the time being you were tied up ~~complete~~ with the completion of a volume on Southern history. I don't know yet what we in the Southern Regional Council can do in this matter, but I do hope that something can come of it, and that you can help us.

It was a pleasure to see you again and talk with you. I know I risk a lot of off-the-cuff historical statements, many of which are more theoretical than factual; but I do respect the men who know.

Dewey Grantham of Vanderbilt tells me that he spoke to you recently about this problem. I know that a survey of this kind would be a ticklish proposition, but I would like to think that you people know how to go about it.

Incidentally, I have not received the last two issues of NEW SOUTH. I recently transferred my membership, or rather paid dues for membership, in the North Carolina Council on Human Relations. Doesn't this membership entitle me to a subscription?

Dr. James McBride Dabbs
President

Dear Dr. Dabbs:

First of all, let me say that I am writing as a private individual and not as the representative of any organization.

You may recall our conversation in Chapel Hill recently regarding the need to find meeting places for organizations such as the Southern Historical Association where a non-discriminatory policy will prevail. I don't know whether the matter got into the papers outside of Atlanta or not, but the issue was brought up in the business meeting of the association last week end and was referred to a committee of the association for further consideration. And now the problem has arisen in connection with the meeting of the Southern Sociological Society in Atlanta next April. And I know this has created problems for the Southern Economics Association, the political scientists, the law teachers' and law librarians' associations, the general library associations, and others, some of which are small enough that they can simply meet in places like Gatlinburg or Chapel Hill.

It seems to me that there is a need for a survey to give an answer to the perennial question, "Where can we meet if we adopt a non-discriminatory policy?" The few places that are known to be open, such as Williamsburg, Gatlinburg, and Miami, are either too far away for many of the members, or (so it is said in the case of Gatlinburg—I don't know this of my own knowledge) too small to handle an attendance of 700, which was our total registration in Atlanta.

I know it would be extremely difficult to make such a survey, for hotels that might be willing to commit themselves for a specific association or convention might not be willing to make a blanket commitment, and so would be difficult to sound out. However, it seems to me a problem worth the application of whatever ingenuity the Southern Regional Council can bring to bear. Many organizations, I am sure, would be grateful.

With best wishes,

Sincerely yours,

Mr. Harold C. Flemming, Exec. Director

Dear Mr. Fleming:

You will probably recall that last fall you were kind enough to send me 13 copies of the issue of NEW SOUTH that contained the summary of hotel policies in southern cities, so that I might send copies of it to the members of the executive council of the Southern Historical Association. I had intended to report to you briefly on what happened at the Tulsa meeting of the Association last November, but have neglected to do so until now.

I was pleasantly surprised to find that several of the members of the council wrote me saying that they would be glad to speak with me about the matter at the convention. On arriving at Tulsa I found myself under some pressure not to bring the matter up on the floor of the convention. I told the president, Professor Hesseltine, however, that I would probably want to be recognized. I was assured by Prof. Posey (of Emory) that something was being done about it, and some of the more liberal people on the council thought it would be bad tactics to offer a resolution from the floor to the effect that the body urged the Executive Council to hereafter meet only at places where there was no discrimination. I learned that the Executive Council had decided to make what seemed to me to be a rather mild step forward by declaring that hereafter local arrangements committees would be directed to see to it that Negroes could attend all official sessions--including luncheons and dinners. To me it seemed that in addition to saying nothing about hotel rooms and non-convention meals, this policy did not even really guarantee that Negroes would be admitted to official meals of the convention. I also learned that the Executive Council had chosen integrated Miami Beach over segregated Charlottesville for the 1962 convention. The 1961 convention will be held in Chattanooga, as decided previously; but I learned that President Hesseltine stopped there on his way to Tulsa and changed the meeting from a hotel that would not serve Negroes at the convention's dinners & luncehons to one that would. I think that many of the members of the Association feel that this "new" policy solves the problem, which it doesn't. After considering the various factors (including the slight progress that seemed to be being made), being unaware of much support for my own point of view, and deferring also to the judgement of the more liberal members of the council, I decided not to offer a resolution. I did however make a statement from the floor, pointing out the shortcomings of the council's new policy, and stating that it didn't solve the problem at all. I was gratified to find that there was a great deal of support for my comments from those attending the business luncheon; the meeting was of course held pretty far west, and I presume next year at Chattanooga the segregationists will be in stronger force.

I am not yet sure what tactics to pursue for next year--whehter to submit a constitutional amendment saying that the association must meet at fully integrated facilities, (this would take a 2/3 vote to pass), or to offer a resolution like the one I had considered submitting this year. I don't expect that either one would pass at Chattanooga, but I do not think that this should deter us from making the effort, because I think that if we keep on bringing the issue up that we will thereby bring the time closer when the SHA will take some sort of decent action on the matter.

I would appreciate any suggestions that you may have. You certainly know the South better than I do. I must say that I was constantly amazed xxx at the SHA at the fears that well-meaning people seem to have of what would happen to them if they spoke up on this issue, and at the examples of pressure on the xxxxxxx truly liberal people in the organization and in southern institutions of higher education.

Sincerely yours,

August Meier

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
October 5, 1957

Statement from: Myles Horton, Director
Highlander Folk School
Monteagle, Tennessee

An undercover agent sent to Tennessee by Gov. Griffin of Georgia charges that the Daily Worker also infiltrated a Highlander Workshop. If so, the alleged infiltrators were unidentified by the School or by newspaper reporters who covered the speeches and discussions at Highlander's 25th Anniversary Celebration. Ed Friend paid the required registration fee like all other applicants to the event and voluntarily identified himself as an employee of the Water Pollution Department of the State of Georgia. Like 179 other participants, the undercover agent was free to attend all meetings and to take pictures of other participants, speakers, and activities such as swimming and square dancing. Sessions were covered by the press, and the Tennessee papers carried daily reports of all speeches and discussions. In the meantime, Gov. Griffin himself was giving aid and comfort to Gov. Faubus' efforts to use armed resistance to a court order for integration of a Little Rock high school.

Since 1953 hundreds of southern community leaders have openly and honestly taken part in scores of Highlander workshops on the subject of integration. In celebration of Highlander's 25th Anniversary, a distinguished group of courageous southern leaders were brought together over Labor Day week-end; and adults committed to democratic solutions to social problems were invited to enroll for a discussion of "The South Thinking Ahead". Highlander takes pride and assumes full responsibility of the speakers and discussion leaders selected and for the program itself. However, we had only such information of the participants as they themselves furnished us. For example, Friend, Gov. Griffin's undercover agent, said he was a freelance photographer and water pollution expert for the State of Georgia. He gave the name of an Atlanta college professor as a reference. There was no way of knowing that he was a White Citizens Council member or sympathizer and an official "infiltrator".

Georgia's undercover agent's report of participants includes along with the Rev. Martin Luther King, Aubrey Williams, and Mrs. Rosa Parks, the name of an alleged Daily Worker reporter. Since this charge has not been verified, we can only say that Highlander did not and does not welcome enrollment of anyone with a totalitarian philosophy whether from the extreme right or from the extreme left. In these troubled times, nothing but more trouble can come from the White Citizens Councils' and the Communist Party's infiltration into groups earnestly seeking a democratic solution to our problems. Both are morally bankrupt and have nothing to offer. We want only those at Highlander who do their own thinking.

The interest in Highlander of Georgia's segregationists dates from our inviting the Koinonia Farms of Americus, Georgia, to hold their children's camp here after the children were run out of Georgia.

REPORT OF THE SUBCOMMITTEE ON FACT-FINDING

Southern Interagency Meeting
November 12-13, 1957

The Subcommittee on Fact-Finding met on Tuesday evening, November 12th to formulate plans for several joint efforts in the area of fact-finding and legal services. The recommendation on legal services, separately drafted, is attached. Following are the recommendations on fact-finding:

I. Violence, Intimidation, and Reprisal

In view of the creation of the Civil Rights Commission, it is felt that a comprehensive report of incidents in this category should be compiled as quickly as possible. It is tentatively agreed that the period to ~~would~~ be covered might date from the Supreme Court school decision of May 17, 1954.

~~Although~~ We recognize that practical considerations arising in the course of the survey might cause us to adopt a shorter period. In any case, the incidents reported should be limited to those involving violence, intimidation and reprisal growing out of Southern reactions to the Supreme Court's decision. The following mechanics and methods were agreed upon:

1. A temporary project person, having appropriate skills and experience, should be employed. This temporary project director would work under the overall supervision of an interagency committee made up of Southern staff members of the Anti-Defamation League, the American Friends Service Committee, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and the Southern Regional Council. These agencies were selected because they have existing files and materials in this field.

2. A prospectus describing this project shall be circulated to each of the organizations participating in the Southern interagency effort. Each of these organizations will be asked to assume a prorata share of the cost of the project. We estimate roughly that the cost of the project would be between $3,000 to $5,000. It shall be understood that the four agencies previously mentioned shall have full responsibility for the direction of the project. When the fact-finding has been completed and a report drafted, however, each of the contributing agencies will have an opportunity to review the manuscript and decide whether it wishes to be associated by name with the report.

3. The object will be to document each incident by newspaper reports. We recognize that it may be necessary in some cases to check the facts against other sources - organizational files, first-hand accounts, and so on. In addition to clippings and reports in the files of cooperating organizations, the files of the Southern Education Reporting Service should be utilized. It is hoped that the final report can state that each of the incidents is supported by published news reports.

4. Publication plans will be made when a draft of the report is in hand. The findings may be communicated directly to the Civil Rights Commission, released to the press and other media in printed or mimeographed form, or both, depending on the circumstances at the time of completion.

II. Employment Discrimination

The need for greater interagency cooperation in this field is recognized. We start from the fact that there are official committees appointed by the President to deal with this question - The President's Committee on Government Contracts and the President's Committee on Government ~~Federal~~ Employment Policy

As a first step, it is recommended that each of the cooperating organizations having programs in this field pool their information. Once this has been done and the information has been screened and assembled, further steps can be decided. It was agreed that Tartt Bell of the American Friends Service Committee would serve as the central person to whom all of the information should be sent at the earliest possible date. Among the organizations that might logically be expected to contribute to the pool of information are the AFSC, the Urban League, the Anti-Defamation League, the NAACP, SRC's labor consultant, and various trade unions. A possible follow-up step might be a visit to the committees in Washington by a delegation drawn from these and other agencies.

III. Voting Discrimination

The Subcommittee discussed next steps indicated by the passage of the new civil rights legislation and the formation of the Civil Rights Commission. It was agreed that the main focus should be on the community level and specific instances of discrimination against would-be voters should be called to the attention of the Department of Justice. It is recognized that the NAACP is giving special emphasis to program and procedure designed to do this. Two additional steps were seen as desirable:

1. To collect official statements and other ~~possible~~ public documentation showing an intent to disfranchise on the part of state and local officialdom.

2. It was pointed out that there is a need for white Southerners to participate as observers to the registration process in their communities. To this end, it was recommended that the Fellowship of the Concerned convene a selected group of women leadership on a region wide basis to devise such a program. It was also recommended that steps be taken to induce such church women's organizations and perhaps the League of Women Voters to make non-discriminatory practices one of their program objectives.

Old - 1957 or 1958

6 MAR 58

VI. INTERRACIAL MEETING PLACES - Fred Routh requested that those persons who had not replied to his memorandum do so immediately, so that a list of such meeting places can be compiled.

VII. SOUTHERN INTER-RELIGIOUS CONFERENCE - Will Campbell, Reporter

The group was reminded of past planning and action toward a conference and was told that plans were now at a standstill due to lack of knowledge of source of funds for such a conference. Fleming suggested that letters be gotten from important people in denominations and faiths to present evidence of interest to Foundations. The matter was turned back to the continuing committee.

VIII. DEFINITION OF INTERAGENCY EFFORT

There was a motion that the following statement of definition of the Southern interagency effort be adopted. The motion carried.

It has now been more than a year since we, the Southern staff members of agencies concerned with human relations, first met to consider our common problems and opportunities. Having found our periodic conferences productive of field cooperation and the sharing of information and program plans, we feel it is timely to reduce to writing a brief definition of this Southern coordinating effort as it has evolved:

(1) The cooperative effort of Southern field staff members may most appropriately be referred to by the name that has developed as a matter of convenient usage -- the Southern Interagency Conference.

(2) Most of our parent organizations are participants in the National Consultative Conference on Desegregation; we wish to cooperate in the implementation of the CCD's objectives in every way consistent with the policies of our respective organizations and with our conception of the role of the Southern Interagency Conference.

(3) The strength of our cooperation lies in the periodic consultation among staff members with common concerns based in the Southern region. These consultations are informal and off-the-record and involve no organizational commitments or publicity of any kind.

(4) We shall continue to regard the areas of our cooperation as including any of the functions in which we engage on behalf of our respective agencies -- public information, fact-finding, community relations, inter-religious activity, consultative services, assistance to victims of pressure or reprisal, etc.

IX. ADDITIONAL TOPICS AND REPORTS

(a) Bill Shannon explained the program of the Encampment for Citizenship to the group. It was announced that scholarships are available through the Southern Regional Council.

(b) It was announced that the National Director of Inter-racial Services of the Boy Scouts of America had visited the SRC. He is Mr. Ray Sweazey of New Brunswick, New Jersey. The group approved his being invited to meetings of the Southern Interagency Conference.

(c) H. Milton Patton of the UCYM reported on the community evaluation projects being done by this group using as an example the Houston, Texas, project. His address is 257 - 4th Avenue, New York 10, New York.

(d) There was discussion concerning a statement attributed to Dr. Hanna in the February issue of Southern School News with the suggestion that persons or agencies write him concerning this statement in which he equated the NAACP and Citizens Councils as extremes.

X. NEXT MEETING

Paul Rilling was selected as chairman of the next meeting of the Southern Interagency Conference which will be convened in Atlanta on May 27-28, 1958.

Mrs. Margaret Price
Route 1, Box 272
McLean, Virginia

Dear Margaret:

Here is a copy of a memorandum describing a proposed fact-finding project in which, it is hoped, a number of organizations will cooperate -- at least financially. I think the project will go ahead, whatever the response of the other agencies. Once it is set, I will be in touch to see if you're available for a temporary stint as "project personnel." There is little doubt that the effort will be carried on out of SRC's office. (Since we're also about to get more space in this building, working conditions should be better.)

Tell Ben I did what I could to assist Mr. and Mrs. Tanetani. They seemed very pleasant and intelligent folks.

The best to you both.

Sincerely,

Dear Harold:

I like the proposal for the fact-finding project. I think we will want to participate but I am not in position to say that we have money to put into this. It is the kind of project for which funds can be found and the best we can say is that we will promise to look for special sources to finance AFSC participation in the project.

I assume that you are not asking at this stage for a firm commitment. If this reply does not suffice until we meet in Atlanta, let me know pronto.

Looking forward to seeing you.

Dear Harold:

I am late in responding to your memorandum of January 13. This is a timely project and one to which we must devote our best. I only wish I had been present at the meeting to give it my full support and to urge in every way possible that we give our attention to this project with devoted zeal and determination.

In spite of my enthusiasm over the prospects of such a statement, I must confess that I am a little concerned about basing the report on news incidents. I could wish there would be some way of getting behind the news story and confirming the facts on a more authentic basis. At the same time I do not have as much experience in this field as some of you have.

I shall be glad to have a word from you on the progress of this undertaking.

We should know pretty well where we stand by the time of the Southern interagency meeting of February 25th and 26th. We can then take stock of the number of agencies that have indicated a willingness to participate and decide whether the project is feasible. I am hopeful that a sufficient number will come in to make the pro rata share of finances a modest one for all.

I have your memorandum to the organizations participating in Southern Interagency Activities of CCD regarding the proposed cooperative fact-finding project on violence, intimidation and reprisals. I have conferred with Will Campbell regarding this matter and we are prepared to recommend to our General Committee, when it meets March 13th and 14th, that we make a contribution of $300 to the project. In connection with informing the Committee I should like to use your memorandum of January 13th to circulate among them for purposes of information. I hope this is agreeable with you.

Dear Mr. Fleming:

This is in reply to your memorandum of January 13 concerning the proposed cooperative fact-finding project on violence, intimidation and reprisals. The YWCA appreciates very much being asked to participate in this project, but after giving it careful consideration we feel that it is not practical for the YWCA to participate according to the plan you have outlined. The YWCA of course is engaged in several cooperative undertakings relative to the interracial situation.

You will be interested to know that the National Board of the YWCA several months ago wrote to President Eisenhower, strongly supporting the Commission on Civil Rights. As an organization it is our intention to give whatever direct help we can to the Commission.

We are interested in the project you are undertaking and will be glad to see the report when it is finished. We understand that the form it takes will depend on the circumstances at the time of its completion.

This is in response to your memorandum of January 13, 1958 sent to organizations participating in the Southern Interagency Activities of CCD requesting their cooperation in the anticipated project "Proposed Cooperative Fact-Finding Project on Violence, Intimidation, and Reprisals."

My first reaction is that I am certain this will be the kind of project in which our Organization will want to participate. In your memorandum you did not indicate what the allocation of cost per organization would be. So, at the outset I should like to advise that the UAW will participate in this project providing such costs are not prohibited.

I look forward to hearing from you with respect to the matter.

Dear Oscar:

9 At the last Southern Interagency Conference the participants were pleased and encouraged by the news that the National Council of Churches of Christ has agreed to participate in the proposed joint fact-finding project on violence, intimidation, and reprisals.

Seven organizations have now definitely committed themselves, and four more have advised us that they still have the proposal under consideration and will very possibly want to be included. The organizations that have definitely accepted are: The American Friends Service Committee, ADL, AJC, NAACP, UAW, The National Council of Churches of Christ, and SRC. On the basis of these commitments, we can now set the pro rata figure of $500 per agency as the maximum that will be required for the project. If the project turns out to be less expensive than we anticipated, or if further acceptances lower the pro rata amount, any surplus will be returned.

The steering committee for the project - drawn mainly from Atlanta based staff members of participating agencies - will be meeting shortly to select a project director and get the effort under way. Meanwhile, if it is convenient for you to send me a check for your agency's share of the financing, we will be able to get the project under way that much more quickly. The check may be made out to the Southern Regional Council, with the special purpose designated.

We will see that you are kept informed of the progress of the project each step of the way.

With all best regards,

Sincerely,

Harold C. Fleming
Executive Director

P. S. We are mindful that the amount which you expect to be able to contribute is $300, and this is perfectly satisfactory with all concerned. In fact, it may turn out that the contribution for each of the other agencies need be little larger than that, if at all.

At the last Southern Interagency Conference, you expressed some interest, on behalf of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, in cooperating financially in the proposed joint fact-finding project on violence, intimidation, and reprisals.

I am enclosing a copy of a memorandum describing the project and a letter just sent to all of the agencies that have agreed to come in on it.

If, on the basis of this information, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference feels that it can contribute, we will all be very pleased.

It was good to have you with us at the meeting.

Dear Mr. Joughin:

I recall our conversation at the time of the Southern Interagency Conference about your not having seen the memorandum proposing a joint fact-finding project on violence, intimidation, and reprisals. Enclosed is a copy of it. So far, seven agencies have definitely committed themselves, and we have set the pro rata share of the financies at not more than $500.00

We also checked our records of mailings to ACLU and found that minutes of all meetings have been sent to Pat Malin. We did find, however, that the fact-finding proposal was sent to Al Reitman, because of his special concern with publicity and publications. Perhaps this is why there was a failure of communication on the matter.

Needless to say, if ACLU feels that it can come in on the project, we would all be most pleased.

That was a good letter you wrote to Dr. Blake about the proposed inter-religious conference. As I suppose you have heard too, a meeting of the CCD Mass Media Committee has been scheduled for March 26. Dear Ed:

Thanks for your letter assuring us that the AJC's contribution to the budget of the Project will be at least $250.00.

We will be sending progress reports periodically, and of course Sam Lubin is one of the four staffers on the project steering committee responsible for overall direction.

I am glad to be able to report now that a project person has been secured and is already at work. She is Mrs. Margaret Price, an experienced newspaper woman who has done several similar jobs for SRC - notably the voting study of 1956. Mrs. Price has begun setting up a card fil of incidents, starting with SRC's fairly voluminous clipping files. The plan is for her to make a similar canvass of the other organizational files, as well as those of Southern School News in Nashville. After that, it will be largely a matter of filling in the gaps, screening the incidents selected, and working out the form of the first draft of the report. The steering committee will meet again Monday, at which time we will review progress to date, questions that have arisen, and next steps in the project. At that time we will discuss with Sam the best way for AJC's materials and resources to be tapped.

Of course, once we have a draft report, everybody concerned will have ample opportunity to submit their thinking on form, content, and uses to be made of the findings.

All the best.

Dear Harold:

At the moment, I am in position to assure you of the sum of $250 as a contribution to the budget of the fact-finding project. This, of course, in addition to the resources and data we hope to be able to offer to the enterprise.

It is possible, though I will not go so far as to suggest that you count on it in these days of shrinking budgets for us, that if the project runs into difficulties later on, we may be able to dig up a little more money.

Do let me hear from you about the project -- whether a project director has been found, and what processes will be established for the assembling of the materials, their screening, their arrangement, etc., etc.

As always, my warm regards.

MINUTES OF MEETING OF STEERING COMMITTEE OF SOUTHERN INTERAGENCY CONFERENCE, JOINT FACT-FINDING COMMITTEE held at the Southern Regional Council, April 14, 1958.

Present were: Committee members Sam Lubin, American Jewish Committee; Art Levin, Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith; Harold Fleming, Southern Regional Council; and Mrs. Margaret Price, project research person, and John Constable, Southern Regional Council.

Committee members agreed that purpose of project is to document cases of violence, intimidation, and reprisals related to the race relation climate in the South today in the wake of the Supreme Court decision. It was further agreed that the report is being prepared with a view toward publicizing it in some form. It was also agreed that the finished report will probably be sent to the Civil Rights Commission, the Justice Department, and the Library of Congress as a matter of form.

The states in which the report will be concerned are Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, and Texas.

The report is being divided into three separate categories, reprisals, violence, intimidation, with subheads under the three categories.

Points decided by committee include:

1. Violence by Negroes against whites to be included.
2. Juvenile cases to be used only when clearly race-connected.
3. Rape cases will not be included in report.
4. No police brutality cases are to be included unless ~~it~~ they resulted in an indictment.
5. All cases of brutality where person or persons involved were indicted are to be included.
6. Cases where city officials cooperated in WCC, KKK, and other rallies and cross burnings are to be included.
7. Cases where city officials refused to cooperate with KKK and like groups are to be included.
8. Cases of unjust court sentences when they are not connected with violence are not to be included.
9. No cases of legislative reprisals and intimidations are to be included.
10. The final report will include both narrative reporting and listing of cases.
11. Key to sources to be decided by Mrs. Price.
12. Controversial cases to be reviewed by members and decided on individual merit.

The time factor the report will include is to be from January, 1955, to the present. This was decided on the basis that the White Citizens' Councils experienced their biggest boom in 1955.

Mrs. Price is to research the newspaper files at the Southern Education Reporting Service in Nashville, Tenn., following her check of files in Atlanta of the cooperating agencies.

Harold Fleming will confirm next committee meeting.

Dear Tartt:

My apologies for getting so far behind in our correspondence. I will try to catch up by covering a couple of matters in this one letter.

First of all, thanks for your letter of April 10, which was intended to transmit the first half of AFSC's share to the fact-finding project. I say "intended" because the check somehow failed to get itself enclosed. This happens to us ever so often, and it is standard practice for us to blame the inanimate object. As to the second half, we will worry not. With all those rich Quakers AFSC has on the string, $250 will give thee no trouble at all.

We now have the following amounts in hand:

ADL	$500
NAACP	500
UAW	250

The others have sent warm assurances of early remittances.

The project is well under way. I am enclosing the rough notes on the meeting of the Steering Committee held on Monday, as part of my continuing effort to keep you informed. If at any point you have reservations about the procedure or want further explanation, don't hesitate to let me know.

I am sorry to say that I have not yet had a chance to read the draft statement on race relations, but I hope to get you a reaction shortly. Meanwhile, I want you to know that we have considered around here the question of university presses. I wasn't able to collect any further ideas of sufficient note to warrant further communication. In fact, I believe the ideas we cooked up on the telephone are as good as anything I was able to uncover. If you want to let me know what efforts you make and what the results are, I will be glad to continue to ponder the question with you.

As to the legal aid idea, I must report that there wasn't even a decent funeral accorded it in New York. You will have heard something of this from Mike Yarrow, I am sure. There was sort of a vague understanding that CCD was to see what could be worked out with the appropriate agencies, but there was no receptivity at all for the kind of full blown services we had in mind.

As a further dismal note, I am enclosing a copy of a letter that I have just written to Rowland Watts. It seems we can't even get the services that ACLU is thought to offer routinely. I am sending a copy of this to Mike Yarrow with the thought that "Rights of Conscience" may be able to give some help if that situation blows up.

The best as always.

Sincerely,

Harold C. Fleming

Dear Harold:

Enclosed is our check for $250.00 for the Fact-Finding Project. I trust this indicates we are with you. I have no serious reservations about the outline of the project as you have presented it. I hope and trust we can come out with some results that will shoot another big hole in the ancient argument that the South knows how to handle its race relations problems and if just let alone will iron things out smoothly.

If your arithmetic is clicking today - and I strongly suspect it is, as usual - you will note that this leaves you $250.00 short of the AFSC's commitment. But don't get worried. Sister Moffett in Philadelphia is loaded with dough and will soon send you some kind of gilt edged security for the remaining $250.00. Our agreement is that we would each try to "find" half of the total commitment of $500.00.

You are now free to call Art, Sam, and Ruby any time within the next fifteen minutes to let them know they are delinquent and we are all ready to get the project underway as soon as their funds are in your pocket.

I am awaiting your description of the funeral of our legal aid project which you attended in New York a few days ago.

Warm regards and best wishes.

Cordially yours,

MINUTES

April 21, 1958

MEETING OF THE SPECIAL FACT-FINDING COMMITTEE OF THE SOUTHERN INTERAGENCY ORGANIZATION

Present were steering committee members Mrs. Ruby Hurley, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; Mr. Sam Lubin, American Jewish Committee; and Mr. Harold Fleming, Southern Regional Council; and Mrs. Margaret Price, researcher for project; and John Constable, Southern Regional Council.

Mr. Fleming reviewed previous steering committee meeting.

Mrs. Price told of her progress. At the time, she had nearly completed her search of files at SRC. She said that she had scanned the complete file of Southern School News and had checked with Pat McCauley of Southern School News by telephone to determine if any additional material of value might be obtained through a trip to the Southern School News headquarters in Nashville. Committee members concluded that a trip to Nashville by Mrs. Price was unnecessary in view of the material already available from the Atlanta files.

Mr. Lubin said his New York office had offered its newspaper files for perusal, but it was also decided that little would be turned up there that would not be included in files present in Atlanta.

Committee members decided to differentiate between reprisal boycotts and boycotts such as the bus boycott in Montgomery, Alabama. It was decided that the Montgomery, Tallahassee, and Rock Hill boycotts should be treated in the text as background material for cases of violence, intimidation, and reprisals which occured during and following the actual boycotts.

The group decided to mention the names of products involved in boycotts where the identity of the product has been definitely established.

It was decided to include voting reprisals in project.

It was reaffirmed that legislative reprisals would not be included in this report but suggested that this might be a subject for consideration as a possible follow-up.

It was reaffirmed that press authenication is a prerequisite for a case's inclusion in the report.

Individual cases were discussed and disposition decided.

Mrs. Price checked files provided by Mrs. Hurley, retaining some for further checking.

It was decided that Mrs. Price also would check Anti-Defamation League files in Atlanta before concluding project.

P.S. You should have stayed down, the Field Foundation just gave us $10,000 for the continued survey on voting.

Thursday, May 1

Dear John:

Would you please tell Ruth that the card file arrived last Saturday--only a day and a half after mailing, a new record for the P.O. Also, the envelope came yesterday, so will you please thank her for me and tell her I'll drop her a note as soon as I dig out from under?

Also, I want to thank you and Bill for all the rides--and about this I'll write again later, too. While I'm passing along thanks--the Alabama clip arrived and Bob Hughes called yesterday to say he's sending me the first batch of additional clippings and more will come next week. I'll send them down to you when I wade through.

You might want to announce at the next staff meeting that the current survey already has received its first publicity. While I was gone, a neighbor dropped in one morning for coffee with Bem. He didn't know at the time she is the correspondent for the local weekly, but soon figured it out when the following item appeared in the Providence Journal:

> "Mrs. Margaret Price, wife of Bem Price, the Associated Press correspondent, is in Atlanta, where she is doing a survey on Southern violets."

I've always told Bem he didn't enunciate clearly enough to be understood up here in Yankee-land.

Harold--

There are a few additional items on which I'm doing a little more checking and will send along soon. There are three or four others I'll write to you about, hoping someone on the committee can shed some light. Meanwhile, do you have any idea on how we could check the outcome of the attached?

Bob Hughes sent quite a few clippings, but most the SRC already had. I'll send John a few for copying before forwarding to Hughes. The rest I'll send to Birmimgham, along with a note asking for the outcome of one or two cases there.

I made May 1 the cut-off, so that we don't keep adding and having to change totalxs in the text. However, I've started an additional list (which includes the firing of the white professors at the Negro college in S.C.) and perhaps by the end of the month or when the thing is ready for the printers I can add the latest incidents at the last minute.

You'll note I made a couple of marginal checks, hoping that Marge perhaps could supply missing dates. In both instances the items came from SRC files and the dates were omxitted on my cards through my own carelessness.

MEMORANDUM May 16, 1958

To: Agencies Participating in the Joint Fact-Finding Project

From: Harold C. Fleming

Re: TRANSMITTAL OF ROUGH DRAFT OF FINDINGS.

Our temporary project person, Mrs. Margaret Price, has completed the main research on specific instances of violence, intimidation, and reprisals in the South, as reported by the press since January 1955. Her work has been guided by the steering committee provided for in the original memorandum inviting agencies to cooperate in the project.

As you will see, this is indeed a rough draft, since, in the interest of speed, Mrs. Price's manuscript was mimeographed exactly as received. We are sending it out as quickly as possible in the hope that your representative at the Southern interagency conference of May 27-28 can convey your agency's reactions. If your agency won't be represented, please do your best to give us your criticisms and suggestions before the 27th.

We are not now concerned about typographical errors, spelling, punctuation, or obvious discrepancies, since the manuscript will be carefully proofed and edited in due course. But we do need at this point everybody's views on substantive questions of content and form. No doubt we will want to redraft the introductory material in a way that will more effectively summarize the specific findings.

The recent bombings and attempted bombings give the report special timeliness. We feel that justifies our asking your cooperation on this "crash" schedule.

Best regards.

Dear Barbara:

Thanks for your remittance of the national office's half of AFSC's commitment to the Joint Fact-Finding Project. Despite Tartt's blithe assurance that you are dough-laden, I noticed the tear-stains on the check.

The project is rapidly approaching completion. Enclosed is a rough draft of the findings, prepared by our researcher, Margaret Price. We are sending it our "raw" to all the participating agencies, in the hope that we can put our respective reactions together at the interagency conference of May 27-28. The report will be carefully checked and edited, of course, and I should think that Margaret's introductory material should be rewritten in a more factual and restrained style.

The recent demolitions have made the project very timely. The steering committee hopes that we can get the report in final form, work out the details of release, and issue it as soon as possible. I hope this "crash" schedule will give you time to communicate with Tartt before the interagency meeting.

All the best to the Community Relations staff.

Dear Harold:

Tartt Bell's gay and witty letter of early April about the AFSC's commitment of $500 to the Fact-Finding Project is before me and reminds me of our debt. All I can say to account for the good humor with which Tartt parted with his $250 and for the confidence with which he looked toward the "dough-laden" national office of the Community Relations Program for the matching sum is that his was a pre-budget-drawing-time letter and mine is "post"!

Despite the depressing days in which it is done, the $250 enclosed is sent with great enthusiasm. The project can do something important and we are for it 100 per cent. I hope that at the meeting in Atlanta later this month details can be worked out and that we'll be receiving reports from our attenders that the project is on the way. If there is anything else we can do to forward it, please let us know.

Dear Harold:

The rough draft of the findings in the Joint Fact-finding Project arrived a few days ago, and has already been given a once-over.

Harry Fleischman will dip into it even more deeply, before coming to your next Interagency meeting on the 27th, at which time he will bring with him our criticisms and suggestions.

My best to you.

AMERICAN FRIENDS SERVICE COMMITTEE

SOUTHEASTERN REGIONAL OFFICE

Date May 29, 1958

To: Harold Fleming

From: Tartt Bell

Subject: Fact-finding Publication

We have a national Board meeting scheduled for Wednesday, June 4, and an executive committee session of our regional office on June 7. These will be the two hurdles we will need to clear before we can give you a final word on our ability to release the fact-finding survey in the AFSC's name. My personal feeling at this time is that we actually do not need any clearance from the national Board and that we are highly likely to receive easy acceptance by our executive committee. I shall try diligently to resist giving the executive committee the opportunity to do any editing - for this is one problem that's obviously involved. If things go as I anticipate, I should be in position to give you an answer on Monday, June 9.

Could you scrounge six copies and send them to me pronto.

THE JOINT FACT FINDING PROJECT

We have had a chance to put the proposal that the inter-agency fact finding project bear only the imprint of the AFSC -- specifically, the Southeastern Regional Office of the AFSC -- before several key people and last night before the Community Relations Committee as a part of a larger report on Atlanta Friends and various parts of the "confederate" CCD sessions which might suggest some action from us. As a result, we have some reactions and suggestions to share with you and your Executive Committee.

Obviously the points made in favor of publication with our imprint included the enthusiasm you feel for this line of action and the judgment of other organizations that ours would be a helpful imprint. The importance of the document, no matter whose imprint it bears, was also clearly recognized.

Weighing against the use of our name alone in its publication were such factors as: our usual caution in the publishing field heightened when considering a case in which we have not had clear responsibility for the project with publication under our name in mind from the start; the possible impact of this project on the hoped-for publication of our own Working Party document which has a clear priority over anything to be printed by us in the race relations field (the University of Oklahoma Press is much interested); the fact that most Quaker by-lined publications speak from our own direct experience; and lastly, the particularly Quaker-based apprehension over publishing a document, no matter how shocking, absorbing and necessary, that gives only the negative side of a story without the balance of the positive steps which have been taken.

As you can see, these do not add up to basic criticism of the document or its importance; they are questions relating to the document over an AFSC imprint alone, thus making it necessary to consider it as a major AFSC effort in a field into which we do not venture often.

There were several expressions at our Committee meeting of the real value of having all the sponsors of the research project listed. It seems so valuable to say to the world -- and to each other, perhaps, as colleagues in the field -- that we stand together in our desire to place these facts before people in strategic places. We know of the reasoning behind choosing the most acceptable imprint public relations-wise and we're realistic enough, I think, to make decisions on this basis along with other considerations of more importance from time to time. But, we really need to pass along this strong positive reaction to the possibility of having all who sponsored the project list their names on it. (This morning Jean has raised the interesting possibility of having the document signed by individuals in the sponsoring organizations. What about this?)

The Community Relations Committee asked that their reactions be passed along to you promptly in view of your Saturday Executive Committee meeting. They feel that it is hard to divorce the Southeastern Regional Office of the AFSC in particular and the AFSC in general and thus want to express themselves in this matter. They are aware that our judgments may differ on this project and will be anxious to hear of the opinion of the Southeastern Regional Office Executive Committee.

Tartt is away from the office this week - vacationing at the coast. Before he left, he asked me to write to you that at their meeting on Saturday, June 7, the executive committee tentatively approved the publication of the fact-finding document. A preface will have to be written and cleared with the inter-agency group.

Next week Tartt will write to you more fully about this.

Dear Oscar:

This is belated but grateful acknowledgement of your recent letter on the joint fact-finding report.

The draft report and the various reactions to it were discussed by representatives of the organizations involved in the recent Southern Interagency Conference. A plan of revision was agreed upon and various assignments were handed out. We are presently marking time until these assignments are completed, but I will shortly be writing you again, hopefully, with a revised draft embodying the changes agreed upon.

Your point about voting discrimination is a good one. The interagency steering committee felt that certainly the implication of these findings for the field of voting should be pointed out, but they also recall that the purpose of the study was basically to document violence, intimidation and reprisals rather than concentrate on voting discrimination as such. There was full agreement that further studies were needed, whether cooperative or by individual agencies to document further the record of disfranchisement.

We will also be in touch with Will as the project moves toward conclusion.

Sincerely,

Harold C. Fleming

Dear Harold:

I have read the rough draft of the Joint Fact-Finding Report with a great deal of interest. I regret that it was not possible for me to get to it before the 27th so that my comments may be late.

First, let me say that I think overall the report is an excellent one and it is very well presented. However, it is my impression from contacts in Washington, that the Civil Rights Commission will be dealing primarily with the right to vote. I agree with many other people that the Commission ought to tackle the total problem of civil rights, however, if they limit their work to this specific area it would seem to me that the report ought to include more material about the denial of the right to vote and about the purging of voters lists which have occurred in many counties in the South. For instance, reliable information has come to this office that a number of names of Negroes have been taken off the voters list in Jefferson Davis County, Mississippi. This is particularly interesting, because for a long period of time consistent efforts have been made by Prentiss Institute to carry on citizenship education in order to get Negroes to vote. As a result of this program, it is our understanding that a substantial number of Negroes had registered to vote. It is reported that about 30% of the voting strength of the County was exercised by Negroes. Mr. A. L. Johnson of Prentiss Institute may be able to give you additional information about this matter.

With every good wish, I am

Sincerely yours,

fact-finding project

Harold C. Fleming
Southern Regional Council

Atlanta 3, Georgia

Dear Harold:

This unhappy hour has been put off as long as possible. With considerable reluctance I have arrived at the decision that the AFSC is not in position to publish in its own name our fact-finding document. Personal consultation with Stephen Cary, head of our American Section, during his recent visit here indicates that the objections and questions on the minds of Philadelphia staff and Board members are too serious and weighty not to be taken into account. A good deal more is involved than I originally envisioned when we talked about our taking this project on.

Ultimately what has proved too high a barrier for us is the combination of problems arising from the relationship of this publication to our own forthcoming LIFT EVERY VOICE, the lack of "balance" in the fact-finding document, a reluctance to assume responsibility for what has been from its initiation an interagency project-and, perhaps, a pinch of the summer doldrums.

As you well know from our conversations of last week, I am thoroughly aware of the muddle this leaves us in. Do further reflections on our conversation indicate to you any new sense of direction or possible alternatives. As a first step I suppose I should communicate this decision to everybody concerned. At the same time I would certainly like to couple this with a creative suggestion of how we move forward from this point. Would it be beyond the pale to suggest our "buying out" the NAACP - both literally and figuratively - and then trying to secure interagency clearance for publication? I don't think this should be done however until we have put some real heat on the Jewish agencies to come through with full cooperation and publication under everybody's name. I know you are feeling pretty hopeless about this prospect. With the passage of at least a few days is there any reason to suspect the answers might be different?

I will look forward to hearing from you.

Warm regards,

Tartt

Subject: Fact Finding Project

We are anxious to hear what alternatives seem possible in the matter of publishing the fact finding document. Our difficult decision has certainly created problems. Last week in a conference with Lewis Hoskins, Steve Cary and Earle Edwards we were discussing the project and the group there felt that perhaps the most urgent piece of business was to get the document before the Commission on Civil Rights while the events reported in it were relatively up-to-date. As a matter of fact that was the suggestion of one member of the Community Relations Committee in June--namely that the most effective way of all to use this material was to type an original manuscript and present it as a specially prepared document to the Commission. Any publicity that we cared to build around that project might be a kick-off for wider circulation of the document if we can find a way to do that.

Jean Fairfax and I were just discussing the idea that we "buy out" the NAACP in order to secure interagency clearance for publication. We have a rather unhappy reaction to this and would not like to see it happen.

In our interagency session this morning, Will Campbell gave us the welcome news that your Department would consider taking on the public release of the joint fact-finding report.

Representatives of the sponsoring agencies were enthusiastic over the prospect of the National Council serving in this capacity. I very much hope that the decision of your committee will be favorable.

At Will's suggestion, I am sending the additional copies of the report enclosed. We made some minor editorial changes last night and have updated the incidents through June 30 on the master copy. But in all major respects, this mimeographed draft is what we propose to publish.

SUBJECT: Transmittal of Revised Draft of Findings

This is in response to your September 24 memo regarding "The Joint Fact Finding Project". I am excerpting below, several lines of suggestions which have been made by several members of the AJC staff. They are presented ver batim and without any comment on my part:

* * *

On page 7 I suggest substituting "one national agency" for "The Anti-Defamation League." Since we agreed that no Jewish agency names should be used, this should apply to the text as well as the sponsorship.

On page 76 it is reported that three klansmen were sentenced to twenty years. I believe four klansmen were convicted.

I find that the prefatory content of each of the sections is too highly editorialized and argumentative; that in its present form, it detracts from the total impact of the incidents recited. In other words, I found a lot of "special pleading" which was not necessary under the circumstances.

Mention of the ADL or any other Jewish organization should not be included, as it has been in the prefatory matter.

Also, I feel that the low estimates of Klan membership are not justified - especially, as a reading of the total memorandum clearly indicates the probability of a membership way in excess of the figures quoted.

It would seem to me that, instead of the presentation of a compendious "volume" such as this, it would have been better if the compiler and writer had incorporated all of these incidents into a running narrative, preserving identity and source of the item through appropriate footnotes.

* * *

From my own point of view, I find that the report as it now stands, except for the comment regarding the ADL above, meets with my approval. I wish to remind you again that it is the policy of the American Jewish Committee that its name should not appear on the report as one of the sponsoring groups.

Best regards.

Dear Harold:

Regarding your letter of September 24, 1958 transmitting the revised draft of the joint fact-finding project on violence, intimidation, and reprisals in the South, please be advised that we have given the revised draft a cursory examination. However, as I am sure you realize, due to the many problems confronting us we have not had adequate time of course to review it thoroughly. Nevertheless, we feel that you and those responsible for it are in a good position to evaluate these studies in their present form.

With respect to the three questions posed in your correspondence transmitted to us on September 24th, this is to advise that we of course had not contemplated participating in the project other than on the basis of the request made to us earlier. Therefore, we feel that it is not necessary to include the name of our organization in the release of the report or in its subsequent publication.

I look forward to hearing from you regarding the aforementioned, and we of course are prepared to follow through on our commitment as soon as you call for it.

Kindest regards.

Sincerely,

William H. Oliver

Dear Oscar:

I've been involved in the difficult process of tracking down members of the steering committee for the project on violence, intimidation and reprisals. Most of them have now responded, and the consensus is that you be asked to submit the proposal on publication to your Committee on Policy and Strategy. It is the group's earnest hope that the decision will be favorable.

Meanwhile, if your printer gave you any estimate I would appreciate your sharing it with me.

Dear Jean:

Thanks for your letter of November 12. I had occasion to call Barbara Moffett the other day and took the opportunity to convey through her the answer to your question about the Fact-Finding Report. To repeat what I told her, it is still in the hands of Oscar Lee, who is to present it to the appropriate policy committee about December 1. Oscar and his superiors felt this was necessary. We all regret the delay, but to work out another arrangement would doubtless have taken even longer. Let us now pray that the decision will be favorable and that publication may proceed.

I have taken some steps to make it possible for the report to be quickly updated once the decision to publish is final.

I shall look forward with interest to word of your interview with Dr. Carr of NEA. We were in touch with Knoll about his series and were able to give some help. Once it has run, we ought to compare notes on the need for reprints and their distribution.

All the best.

What is the status of the fact-finding survey at the present time? Did the National Council of Churches agree to release the report? If so. when will it be published?

I have an appointment in Washington tomorrow with Dr. William G. Carr, Executive Secretary of the National Educational Association and will let you know the outcome.

I have heard through our Washington representative. Burns Chalmers. that Irwin Knoll. Educational Editor of the Washington Post. is preparing a "careful and forceful series of articles" to be published in the Post on the subject of desegregation in Washington. Perhaps these articles may provide some of the printed materials which we need to circulate to refute the Davis Report. I hope to see Irwin Knoll in Washington.

By now you have received a letter from Oscar Lee, stating that he is asking his committee, which is meeting on December 1st, to approve of the publication of the report on reprisals, intimidation and violence, jointly by the National Council of Churches, the American Friends Service Committee and the Southern Regional Council.

Ed Lukas just talked to Alex Miller who says that the Anti-Defamation League definitely will not have its name on the pamphlet.

Lukas also talked to John Morsell who is writing to Ruby Hurley, stating that for reasons for which we are all too familiar, the NAACP thinks it best to keep its name off the pamphlet too.

Hopefully, when you come to the Mass Media Committee meeting on Tuesday, December 2nd, we should be able to send the pamphlet right to the printers.

With all best wishes.

Dear Oscar:

This is to confirm the understandings reached in our recent telephone conversation concerning the Joint Fact-Finding Project on Violence, Intimidation, and Reprisals.

The organizations which cooperated in the execution of this project have authorized me to request the Department of Racial and Cultural Relations of the National Council of Churches to accept responsibility for the publication and public release of the resulting report. To finance the printing of the document is $1,483.84 available in the keeping of the Southern Regional Council, and another $250 has been pledged by the United Auto Workers. I shall be prepared to remit from these funds the cost of printing and handling, as well as any additional costs that we may agree upon, on receipt of your statement.

A draft of the report has been forwarded to you previously, and an updated version will be supplied if your decision is favorable.

The cooperating agencies feel that this report is a significant one. We appreciate your con sidering the role of publishing agency and look forward hopefully to an affirmative reply.

Re: INTERAGENCY FACT-FINDING PROJECT

At the Interagency meeting last week we had no opportunity to discuss our durable project, and this is an attempt to see if we can reach a new consensus without ~~more detail of~~ further meetings.

At our last session, you will recall that we agreed to request the National Council of Churches to be the publishing agency. This matter was taken under consideration by Oscar Lee's department and for a period of some weeks was subjected to the scrutiny of various staff and lay committees. Ultimately, however, the National Council decided that it could not assume the role of publishing agency.

As matters now stand, the cooperating agencies that have indicated a wish to be publicly identified with the report are three - The American Friends Service Committee, the National Council of Churches, the Southern Regional Council. Of these, the first two have declined the role of publishing agency. This leaves us with the following alternatives. If you feel you can do so, please check the alternative which you prefer, or write in at the bottom of the second page any other preferred alternative that I may have overlooked, and return the sheet to me. We will be guided by the group's preference, which I will communicate as soon as all returns are in.

(1) Schedule another meeting of the Steering Committee.

(2) Ask the AFSC and/or the National Council of Churches to re-consider the proposal that they publish.

(3) Ask the SRC to up-date and publish the report.

(4) Request one of the other cooperating organizations to publish.

(5) Request some organization outside the cooperating group to publish.

✓ (6) (Some other alternative as follows:)

AFSC, NCC & SRC publish jointly - i.e. "sign" report; SRC do actual release.

Dear Harold:

The second sentence in the third paragraph of your January 20 memo on the Fact-Finding Project calls for an important refinement. It is stated that the AFSC and the National Council have declined the role of publishing agency. It would be a bit more accurate, as far as AFSC is concerned, to say that we have declined the role of sole publishing agency. We have all along been ready to be a joint publisher with other agencies. If the situation stands that the Service Committee, the National Council, and the SRC are the three agencies which now wish to be publicly identified with the report, I say let's the three of us pbulish it together as quickly as possible, giving what acknowledgement seems proper and acceptable to the other agencies that have helped finance the project. I assume a fairly quick check could be secured from the National Council on its willingness to proceed on this basis.

I think Ruby should be encouraged to speak very frankly about how she feels to have the NAACP not be one of the publishers because of the judgment that this would handicap seriously the usefulness and acceptance of the document.

We are anxious to go ahead with it. If the National Council can't see its way clear to this let's proceed to publish it as a joint report from the AFSC and the SRC, provided of course this meets the approval of the other underwriters.

Let us know at once what responses you get and what wisdom you have about the next steps.

Sincerely,

Tartt cs

Dear Harry:

Here are the page proofs of the report on intimidation, reprisals and violence. Please bear in mind that these proofs have not yet been read by us and therefore probably contain some errors in addition to those marked by the printer.

We do not have graduated costs, except for 4,000 and 5,000; those totals are $1,450 and $1,640 respectively - and unit cost .36 and .32. Roughly, we may expect the unit cost to drop for every 1,000 copies wanted. This may seem fairly expensive, but remember that the type setting job was an unusually difficult and time-consuming one.

Let me know what success you have and thanks.

If the steel negotiations should be settled without a strike, we can come back to him for another order on this, but at the moment they will only make a token purchase.

Dear Harry:

Thanks for the letter concerning your efforts to get advance orders for the report on violence, etc. Frank Shane's 100 will help. (I must say the Rubber-workers' letter strikes me as insane -- the type is bigger than that in most comic books.)

The UAW is one of the co-financing agencies, and Bill Oliver accordingly has received an invitation to place an advance order for copies beyond their pro-rata share. Since there's been no word, I assume he wants no more. As a matter of fact, the UAW still owes $250 on their pledge, and I will be content to get that once the pamphlet is in print.

We're proceeding with the printing without further ado. The final corrections are now being made. SRC will order, at its own expense, an extra supply of 1,000 copies, from which we can fill any orders that may materialize after publication.

While I'm writing, I must regretfully report that I won't be able to make New York in time for the MM Committee meeting next week. My only other commitment there -- a conference of the SSSP -- doesn't begin till Friday, and the demands here are just too heavy for me to get away two days early. Anyhow, I'll hope to talk with you Friday.

Dear Galen:

Dorothy Hampton has suggested that you might be interested in ordering some copies of the enclosed report on intimidation, reprisal, and violence in the South. As you may have noted in the press, the report has just been released.

The pamphlet costs 40¢ per single copy; 35¢ each in quantities over 50. This is rather expensive, I know, but the limited number we could print ran up the unit cost.

We've been pleased with the publicity we have seen so far -- front page in the New York Times, the Atlanta Journal, and the Chattanooga Times.

With best regards,

Sincerely,

Dear Margaret:

I suppose you've seen about as much of the publicity on the violence report as we have. But I don't want to chance your missing the fact that it was first page, top and center in the New York Times; also first-paged with Shannon's byline in the Atlanta Journal and (AP) in the Chattanooga Times. You undoubtedly saw Baker's piece in the Post.

One of the interesting things was the excellence of the AP story out of Atlanta. I don't yet know who did it, but I want to find out so I can cultivate him.

Sorry to be so long communicating about the voting report. As usual, we keep getting derailed by the flying objects around here. But you'll hear from us on it soon.

Meanwhile, though you disowned it, congratulations and thanks for all the good work that made the violence report possible. Whatever impact it has -- and I think it will have quite a bit -- is ~~uie~~ due to you.

I thought you might like to see a copy of the enclosed report on "Intimidation, Reprisal, and Violence in the South's Racial Crisis," published by the Council and two sister agencies. This presents a distressing side of the Southern picture, but one which requires the concern of us all. We were encouraged by the prominent attention it received in the press yesterday.

Thanks for your thoughtful note. I too enjoyed our meeting and was only sorry that we couldn't have had a longer and more sociable time together.

We were delighted with the fine treatment in yesterday's Times of the story on our inter-agency report of intimidation, reprisal, and violence in the South. The story appears to have had good play generally, but the Times treatment was especially important and valuable.

I might add that I recently had a visit from John Wicklein and was most impressed with the thoroughness of his research on the churches and race relations.

Dear Arnie:

I am mailing you today 100 copies of the report on violence, etc., for distribution to the CCD mailing list. In order to prevent duplication, I'm enclosing a list of the human relations agency people who have received the report. Your mailing should omit all of the personnel of the agencies that cooperated in publication, since they each have a quantity; they are SRC, ADL, AJ Committee, NAACP, AFSC, NCC, and UAW. You will also note that most of the members of the Mass Media Committee received copies.

As to price, I'm in some difficulty, since we didn't do any "price fixing" and I don't know what the other agencies will be charging. It's all right to say that SRC will fill orders for 50 copies or more at 35¢ each. Individual copies are available from any of the seven agencies listed above at -- you'd better say -- "a somewhat higher unit cost."

All the best.

The South Is Due an Apology

EVERY RESIDENT of the eleven Southern states from Virginia to Texas is due a personal apology from three organizations which united to publish a slanderous and prejudicial document purporting to show that there has been a general breakdown of law and order in the South in the past four years.

The 30-page booklet, entitled "Intimidation, Reprisal and Violence in the South's Racial Crisis" was published jointly by (1) Southeastern Office, American Friends Service Committee of High Point, N.C.; (2) Department of Racial and Cultural Relations, National Council of Churches of Christ in the United States of America, of New York City; and (3) the Southern Regional Council in Atlanta.

The purpose of the tract, obviously, was to amass a box score of real or alleged "incidents" from newspaper clippings, and to present the total listing largely out of context without benefit of any statistical comparisons on which it could be properly judged or evaluated, in an effort to prove that the South is fairly wallowing in race riots and anarchy.

FROM THE RESULTING conglomeration came a "news release" announcing widespread "erosion of individual liberties" in the eleven Southern states involved, attested to by a list of 530 specific cases of "violence, reprisal and intimidation" in the four-year period. The story made page 1 of New York papers last Monday. Editorials of condemnation followed. Declared the South-hating Washington Post & Times Herald: " . . . there is little hope for the South to shake off this trend toward violent eruptions until its own basic thinking about adherence to the law as defined by the courts is straightened out."

Thus, the three groups responsible for the publication have, for reasons best known to themselves, contrived through a misleading document to fan the fires of sectional animosity.

LET'S TAKE A LOOK at the report itself, which covers the period from Jan. 1, 1955 to Jan. 1, 1959, during which 530 specific cases of violence, intimidation or reprisal were cited. How many cases occurred in the four years from 1951 to 1955? This is not listed, but if twice as many occurred, it could be said that conditions in the eleven states are improving. More important, what would the box score show for the same period in eleven Eastern or Midwestern states, of any eleven chosen at random with the highest Negro-white ratios of population, if a similar count were made? Would the South show more cases—or would it show less?

Since no attempt was made to give such a comparison, the motive of the joint endeavor may be taken for granted—namely, to hold the South up to scorn and contempt.

DOES A TOTAL of 530 "incidents" in eleven states over a four-year period show a general breakdown of law and order? This would average out to about a dozen incidents per state per year.

Last year a congressional committee investigated more than 800 specific incidents of violence (not including intimidations and reprisals) during the same period of time in one labor dispute in Kohler, Wis. And this was by Walter Reuther's union—we don't even have to get into the statistics from the real bad boys such as Jimmy Hoffa. Does this indicate a widespread erosion of individual liberties in Wisconsin? And if so, why was this not included in the report?

On race incidents, what about Cicero, Ill., or Levittown, Pa., or Dearborn, Mich.? What about New York, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Chicago? The box score, had one been kept, of similar incidents, would have shown a greater number in New York or Chicago during the four-year period than the 530 total for eleven Southern states!

IN FACT, when we consider that the Southern states have the highest proportion of Negro population to white, we'll bet our last dollar that an honest survey would prove race relations in the South to be better and more amicable than any other area of the country where there is an appreciable Negro population.

The organizations responsible for this report have done an irresponsible thing that will not help the cause of better race relations in the South or elsewhere. Their report, itself, admits "this is not a comprehensive survey . . . It describes only their angry, violent side." We ask them—Why? We think the South is due an explanation.

Hold On, Senator

SEN. PAUL DOUGLAS of Illinois has leveled a broadside against retired military officers who accept positions with industry. He said that when firms seeking defense contracts "hire former officers of high rank to negotiate with their former fellow officers—some of whom they have promoted—the potential and actual abuses are magnified."

Yankee Ingenuity

Russian Scientific E

Does That Again

But before we look at them, it will be useful to understand, if we can, the historical situation in which the issues have been posed.

Since the war which ended 15 years ago Franco-American relations have been based on a premise which was never openly avowed but has always been assumed both in Paris and in Washington. The premise has been that France, though it is counted among the victors, was in fact defeated, and that her colonial empire is in the process of dissolution, and that she is no longer a first class power. The chronic instability of the post-war governments in France, the budgetary and monetary disorders, supported this view.

LIPPMANN

Our government acquired a habit of not consulting France regularly and genuinely, and indeed of treating her with less intimacy and confidence not only than Great Britain but even West Germany. On two recent occasions which might have led to a war involving France—the landing in Lebanon and the affair at Quemoy—there was no full consultation with Paris.

THE ADVENT to power of Gen. de Gaulle was bound to mean, as it has meant, that France would not accept the lower position which she has occupied. She has been regarded not only as not so great a power as Russia and the United States, but not even as being in the second rank with Great Britain or even with Adenauer's Germany.

We must never forget that Gen. de Gaulle, to his everlasting honor, is the Frenchman who never surrendered and who never accepted defeat, and it is a kind of historic justice that he should be the man who now insists that France must not be treated as a defeated and inferior power.

In this context we may look at the issues. They were raised diplomatically last summer and then in a note addressed to President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan on Sept. 24, 1958. This note has never been published. But it is said to set up three French objectives.

Talmadge Hits Racial Strife Study

By ALBERT RILEY
Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Sen. Talmadge took the floor of the Senate Tuesday to denounce a report published last week on racial incidents in the South since 1954.

The Senator called the report "an irresponsible, unfounded, and slanderous attack upon the good name of the South."

He branded the three groups who published the report as "organizations dedicated to racial agitation."

ORGANIZATIONS NAMED

They are the American Friends Service Committee, of High Point, N.C., the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States of America, of New York City, and the Southern Regional Council, of an Auburn avenue address in Atlanta.

They joined in publishing a 30-page booklet titled "Intimidation, Reprisal, and Violence in the South's Racial Crisis."

Talmadge said the three agencies "sought by innuendo, distortion, association and half truths to conclude from a series of 530 unrelated 'incidents' spread over a four-year period that law, order and harmonious race relations no longer exist in the 11 states of the South."

CALLED ONE-SIDED

"This studied effort to indict a whole region of our nation is wholly one-sided and makes no pretense at comparison with other periods or regions, nor does it attempt to report on the manner in which these so-called 'incidents' have been dealt with under due process of law in the states and localities where they occurred," Talmadge declared.

"The hypocrisy which motivated this biased and inflammatory publication is unspeakable and deserves the condemnation of all fair-minded Americans regardless of their place of residence," the Senator added.

Talmadge inserted in the record editorials from The Augusta Herald and The Savannah Morning News attacking the report as a biased distortion of facts slanderous to the entire South.

ATTACK CALLED UNJUST

In Atlanta, the Southern Regional Council issued a statement expressing belief Talmadge had not read the report and calling his attack unjust.

The statement said, in part:

"The Senator could not have read the report before making his charges. If he had, he would have found that each incident reported was taken from objective newspaper accounts and that arrests and convictions of offenders were also reported. Moreover, cases in which Negroes were the perpetrators of violence against whites were also included.

HITS AT TALMADGE

"The Senator is grossly misinformed if he believes that these (sponsoring) organizations engage in 'racial agitation.' Each of them is known for its temperate, responsible approach to race relations.

"It is a great pity that Sen. Talmadge is not more concerned about these critical problems of lawlessness, rather than unjustly attacking those who soberly point out the dangers."

Dear Harold:

I have your memorandum of June 10, 1959 and your subsequent letter of June 12, 1959 regarding the release of the report on violence in the South and your reminder of the $250. remaining on our pledge. I am today processing the check for $250. Be advised I have received the 500 copies of the report, which are most illuminating and should serve to awaken the conscience of many, both North and South, to the seriousness of the present impasse in race relations in the South.

I have distributed most of the copies I received to all our officers, Executive Board members, and to the field staff working on Race Relations. I would suspect, based on the reactions to date, we can use another 500 copies or possibly more. It is my current impression that the concise format and straightforward analysis of this report will command far greater attention than any of us anticipated. Please let me know how much an additional 1,000 copies will cost.

Regards.

Dear Bill:

Now that the report on intimidation, reprisal, and violence is out, we are trying to wind up the Council's responsibilities as custodian and administrator of the join funds for this special project.

In reviewing the correspondence, I find that you have sent in $250 toward the UAW's pledge of $500. If you can send us the remaining $250 for the project, this will enable us to have a final audit of the special account for the benefit of all the participating organizations.

It will be interesting to see the kind of public notice the report attracts following its public release Monday. Lord knows, it took long enough to get it out, but I hope all of us will feel it was worth it.

Best regards.

Sincerely,

Harold C. Fleming

Dear Sir:

An examination has been made of the books and records of the Southern Interagency Conference--Joint Fact-Finding Project for the period from January 1, 1959 to June 30, 1959.

The following Exhibit and Schedule, with comments, are submitted herewith:

EXHIBIT A - Statement of Receipts and Disbursements

SCHEDULE 1 - Reconciliation - Citizens Trust Company

COMMENTS

The Southern Regional Council, Inc., acting as coordinator and secretariat of the Southern Interagency Conference--Joint Fact-Finding Project, agreed to serve as custodian of funds for a joint fact-finding project on Intimidation and Violence. Exhibit A shows the receipts and disbursements of those funds for the period from January 1, 1959 to June 30, 1959.

Receipts were traced to bank deposits. All disbursements were made by check. The bank balance was confirmed by correspondence with the depository.

Respectfully,

Daniel E. Harrison

SCHEDULE 1

SOUTHERN INTERAGENCY CONFERENCE

Atlanta, Georgia
September 19-20, 1960

Jean Russell, Chairman Galen Martin, Secretary

1. In opening the meeting everyone was urged to respond to future requests for agenda suggestions and reservations plans, only a very few having done so for this meeting.

2. New project or agency reports included:

   Dr. Thornton W. Merriam was introduced as a new staff member of the Southern Area Council of the YMCA, with responsibility for human relations concerns.

   James R. Wood, Wyatt T. Walker, and Dorothy F. Cotton were presented as new workers with the Southern Christian Leadership Conference. Mr. Wood explained that the SCLC staff had been doubled and that they were trying to provide increased assistance to leaders, with attention also devoted to voting registration and encouraging discussion of the philosophy of non-violence.

   Richard M. Shapiro was present as a new staff member of the Southeastern office of the Anti-Defamation League.

3. The Atlanta Steering Committee presented six recommendations for improved functioning of the Southern Interagency Conference.

   a. Participation should involve only agencies national or regional in scope.

   b. Only professionals should be involved normally.

   c. A permanent chairman should be chosen for the 1960-61 year.

   d. There should be a well planned agenda for each meeting. Formal program should not be planned for the evening, rather it is hoped that some informal social activity can be arranged. On the second day the meeting should continue until about 3:00 p. m.

   e. Reports should be limited to things not known through the press. Generally there is no need to arrive at conclusions. On policy phases if there are more than twenty participants, there should be a division into more than one group.

   f. CORE and the Southern Students Non-Violent Coordinating Committee should be invited to participate.

May 2,3 - 1961

The First five recommendations were accepted. It was felt, however, that since the group was not organized, no suggestions for additional participants should be entertained by the group. It was agreed that the Secretariat and the Atlanta Steering Committee would be responsible for maintaining the agency mailing list for announcements of future meetings.

REPORTS

4. Art Levin and others reported on Jacksonville. It was suggested that the trouble was engineered with the initiative taken by Klansmen. They came from South Georgia and North Florida, and even instructed police not to interfere in disturbances. The police stood on the side lines. The Mayor was once a candidate for Governor and to some extent the trouble reflected a political battle between the Mayor and the Governor.

   It was suggested that in such situations the police be publicly put on notice that the public expected law and order to be maintained. Public opinion should be mobilized in advance so blame can be affixed.

   The police put one white student in a "tank" with his attackers who continued the attack. The Mayor rejected a request for settlement made by Governor Collins.

5. Constance Curry of the National Student Association Southern Project reported on the student movement. There was to be a student conference October 13-15, in Atlanta. The emphasis was on the philosophy of non-violence. A monthly newsletter is being sent out by the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee, called Student Voice.

   The problem of expelled students was raised, and the possibility of work projects. Also mentioned were students who had lost part-time jobs.

   Hope was mentioned that leadership for kneel-ins might come from campus religious groups. Agencies which have been helping expelled students include:

   National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro Students
   National Student Christian Federation
   Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee

   SNCC is to prepare a list of agencies, with type of aid available, and criteria for aid.

6. Prince Edward County. Irene Osborne is now at work for the American Friends Service Committee on the scene. An audit is being made of the number of children and their school needs. Fifty have gone

North to desegregated schools, Litigation is in process, but with little hope for this year. One hopeful sign is the development of a small interracial group.

7. Art Levin reported on the implications of anti-Semitism in the South. The swastika painting caused a re-examination. They revealed much more anti-Semitism than realized. Anti-Semitism is a high paying profession. Gerald K. Smith groups have an estimated gross earning of $225,000 a year. The National States Rights Party (200 members) openly espouses violence to establish control of the government. The Klan is considered more anti-Semitic than anti anything else. The same groups oppose the Salk Vaccine, flouridation, and psychiatrists. Publications of these groups include: Common Sense, American Nationalist, American Mercury, and the Economic Council Letter.

   The National States Rights Party is on the ballot for this fall in Alabama and Arkansas and attempting to get on in Tennessee. Faubus and Crommelin comprise their ticket.

   The problems of discrimination and prejudice seem inseparable. The hate groups make no distinction. The conclusion should be the need to keep in mind that these matters are inseparable. They go hand in hand.

8. Paul Rilling of SRC reported that the report on the South Carolina consultation on work in non-urban areas is due soon and that agencies will be informed.

9. Herman Long and others told about the work of the National Association of Intergroup Relations Officials and distributed membership leaflets. NAIRO has over 600 members. This year's conference will be held in Cincinnati November 15-18.

10. Mr. Saul Silverman, Staff Assistant to the Florida Commission on Race Relations reported on the organization and work of that agency. It is headed by Cody Fowler of Tampa, former President of the American Bar Association, and is called the Fowler Commission. It has established advisory committees in several areas. Their communications have suggested that it is no longer a choice of change or no change, because change is inevitable. The Advisory Committee on Higher Education has 42 exceptional members. A religious advisory committee is also active. Fourteen interracial committees have been organized in different cities. This is seen as a way of institutionalizing city supported efforts for better human relations.

11. The National Broadcasting Company will present an hour long television documentary on race relations in December or January, with special emphasis on the changing role of the Negro in the South.

12. It was reported that Bob Hughes, Executive Director of the Alabama Council on Human Relations will go to Southern Rhodesia as a Methodist missionary in the near future. Bob's going to Africa is reported as a result of the Methodist Church provision that a minister must serve a "charge" every so often. This is stated as not being a direct result of recent developments in Alabama in which he was summoned by a local grand jury in a libel suit, and refused to give the names of members and contributors to the Alabama Council. Later the subpoena was reworded to remove this requirement and he did testify.

13. STRATEGY DISCUSSION OF STUDENT MOVEMENT

Observations included the view that the movement was changing into new directions. The opposition may be better organized. The student movement was cited as a rebirth of social concern on the campus not seen since the 30's. Adult professional workers can't have much to say about the movement; they might tend to slow it down.

What is the role of intergroup workers?

a. To interpret.
b. To encourage realization of the need to take sides.
c. To point out what the community may face in the future.
d. To bring the groups together without trying to solve differences.
e. To give advice without inhibiting those making the decisions.
f. To exchange information.

It was suggested that with one or two exceptions, there have been no resolutions of lunch counter sit-ins solely by negotiation between students and business men. The pattern is for involvement of adult business and community leaders to achieve desegregation. Intergroup workers can talk of alternatives without trying to make decisions. The advice giving process can be very subtle.

14. The next meeting will be held January 3 and 4 in Atlanta.

Mrs. Jean Russell was elected by acclamation as chairman for 1960-61.

Charles Wittenstein was elected secretary for the next meeting.

It was suggested that a more informal concensus process be used except when definite difference is evident.

Agenda Suggestions

1. New Orleans school desegregation.
2. Review of tokenism, grade-a-year plans, and teacher desegregation.
3. Voting cases in Terrell and Fayette Counties
4. Prince Edward County suit.

It was agreed that the chairman and the steering committee would work for a more systematic reporting on some of these topics.

Meeting adjourned at 11:59 A. M. September 20.

Dear Paul:

My calendar says I am to write you Novemb er 1 about the agenda for the next SIC meeting. Since Galen hasn't gotten the minutes out yet and I find my notes rather incoherent, this isn't easy.

However, you said for me to remind you that you might send out a note asking for agenda suggestions about this time.

You will remember that it was suggested by several people that we should have the school situation brought up to date at the January meeting. John Hope suggested that we do some depth discussion of the problems of tokenism and teacher desegregation. Dr. Long was interested in having the SCLC discuss their philosophy, as was Art Levin. You will remember the lengthy discussion about that. Back up to the school situation, Knoxville, the Prince Edward County suit, and New Orleans were specifically mentioned. Also mentioned were the Fayette County situation, the Terrell County, Ga., situation, and I have a note that says "formation of quasi-public commission on human relations" which I can't remember a thing about.

You will remember the discussion about assigning proper persons to take the various topics in advance, so that the background material necessary for an intelligent discussion would have been presented.

I will write Galen today to send me at least the complete list of topics presented for the next agenda. If I remember correctly, you said you will be at N.A.I.R.O. If something doesn't happen, I will be there for two days of the meeting, and maybe we could get together to talk farther. Incidentally, if Iam taking the matter of agenda too seriously, just ignore me. But I feel Art Levin's hot breath on my back.

Seriously (but not about Art),

Since you indicated an interest in joining NAIRO last week, I am enclosing a membership form. It's also a bargain -- if you join now, your membership extends through 1961.

Dear Paul:

I assume you are in New Orleans where all good pros should be, But this letter may catch you between trips.

Could we plan to have the meeting of the Atlanta steering committee to work on the agenda for the SIC meeting on Monday afternoon, January 2, about two o'clock. That will give me plenty of time to get down that morning and also enough time for it to be run off before the next afternoon.

I have received no further agenda suggestions. In looking over what we got at the last meeting, I find I am not sure who should be asked to do what. You will, of course, report on New Orleans, and I will ask Galen to bring us up to date on Knoxville. Who would do Dallas and Houston? Are there other school situations we should have reports on?

I suppose Connie can report on the student movement assisted by, or assisting, anyone who shows up from the Student Co-ordinating Committee.

Would Ruby want to do the Prince Edward County suit and the Terrell and Fayette county voting cases?

And that leaves what John Hope had suggested as a depth discussion on tokenism, grade-a-year plans, and teacher desegregation.

For the latter, at least, the person should be notified in advance, and I really think it would be best for me to drop a note to anyone whom you think should handle these subjects.

Should Jean Fairfax have time to present orally the thing she has sent out on Prince Edward County? And what did we finally decide about asking the Southern Christian Leadership Conference to report on their philosophy?

After the meeting coming up, I think you and I should look at the agenda items suggested for the next meeting (at lunch, instead of just talking about it), and it would save you some of this trouble by correspondence.

Dear Jean:

I accept service on the SIA committee, as requested in your letter of May 11. For your information, may I recapitulate the responsibility which the Atlanta steering committee wanted this committee to consider:

1. Should SIA meetings be continued? Why?

2. What is the purpose of such consultations. If the meetings are continued, how can they be more effectively structured to obtain this purpose.

3. Should SIA affiliate itself or relate itself to NAIRO? Should it consider disbanding and channel clearing house efforts through the appropriate regional departments of NAIRO?

Ladies, gentlemen, etc.:

The steering committee of the SIC requested me to appoint a committee to evaluate the usefulness of SIC and report to the fall meeting. These persons are requested to serve on this committee: Art Levin, Ruby Hurley, Will Campbell, Paul Billing, and Jean Fairfax. I will serve as convenor.

We should look toward meeting in August perhaps. I will send out a suggestion of dates and meeting places at a later date, however.

In the meantime, let's all think mean thoughts about JFK.

Dear Jean;

I would be perfectly willing to go along with Jean Fairfax's suggestion if this is the best we can do. Having been involved in the originalsuggestion for the committee, however, I would hope we could make one more effort to convene it. You may know that Art Levin is now in Washington for a four months period. I have a meeting in Baltimore the week-end of July 14-16, and will probably be going to Virginia in August when our new state director takes over there. I believe that Will has some sort of meeting in New York this summer. Might it not be possible to schedule a meeting in Washington which would accommodate Jean Fairfax? If I were already as far North as Washington for other purposes, I could probably justify travel on to New York or Philadelphia, but this would seem pretty far off center unless two or three of us were already there. How goes your schedule?

Dear Paul:

I have heard from only one of the persons appointed to serve on a committee to discuss the future of the SIC, and this was Jean Fairfax. She said it would be very difficult for her to get to Atlanta this summer, and suggested that the members be circulated with some sort of questionnaire and meet the morning of September 20.

Since you are the only other person who has responded, I thought I might ask your advice. Should we see if there is a possibility of another meeting place (farther north), or should we just give in to what is probably the inevitable and send out the questions raised by the steering committee? I would not imagine we would receive many answers from these busy people - which would mean handling the matter on that morning.

I will appreciate your considered advice.

Sincerely,

Jean Russell

Paul Rilling has asked me to write you that in sending invitations to the September Interagency Conference we are omitting H. B. Sissel. We are inviting J. Metz Rollins and John Marion. This is in line with our general pattern of inviting regional representatives. Do you have any objections to our omission of the Rev. Sissel?

Dear Carl:

Paul Anthony shared with me your recent letter requesting information on the Southern Interagency Conference and the Consultative Conference on Desegregation. We received this morning your return card indicating that you will attend the September meeting of the Southern Interagency Conference. This group meets quarterly and we will keep you informed.

I'm afraid that the Consultative Conference on Desegregation no longer has any meaningful existance. An organizational structure was set up for CCD, but this has been inactive for several years with the exception of the Mass Media Committee of CCD, which continues to meet regularly in New York. This committee consists primarily of New York based representatives of national agencies and considers how to make more effective use of the national media. I would suggest that you ask to be placed on the mailing list of this committee. Write to Barry Fleischman, National Labor Service, 165 East 56th Street, New York 22, N.Y..

I look forward to seeing you at the September Interagency Conference.

Dear Paul:

Sometime ago I listed two names with you for the mailing list for agencies participating in the "Inter-Agency Meeting". The two names are mine and Miss Edith Lerrigo, General Secretary YWCA, 600 Lexington Avenue, New York 22, New York.

I would like to add a third name - Miss Mary Jane Willett, Executive Community Division, 600 Lexington Avenue, New York 22, New York.

You probably remember Miss Willett as a former correlator for the National Board in the Southern Region, and more recently executive director of the New Orleans YWCA. Beginning this month she accepts the responsibility for the Community Division of the National Board located in New York and I am sure her name on the mailing list would add greatly to her information concerning the strategic development in the Southern Region at this time.

I am looking forward to seeing you in the meetings on September 21 and 22.

Best wishes to you.

Dear Harold:

I apologize for not sending you the notice of the September Interagency meeting, one of which is enclosed. Actually, we cannot officially ask you to participate until the Atlanta committee formally approves the issuance of an invitation to the Potomac Institute. We can assume that this is a ritual which will be completed at the meeting of the Atlanta committee, which will be held either Friday, September 15, or Monday, September 18. Pack your bags, but don't leave until we let you know officially. I do hope that you can come.

I think your suggestion to Paul that the Interagency Conference meet at the Potomac Institute is an excellent one, primarily because I have not been to Washington recently. Perhaps you can invite us for the January meeting.

Dear Florence:

We will be happy to send minutes of the Interagency Meeting to Miss Willett and Miss Lerrigo. Our usual policy is to send only one invitation to attend the meeting to each agency, which in this case would normally go to you. Of course, this does not limit the YWCA as to who would represent the organization. It is just intended to simplify and standardize the invitation proceedure. We were at one time inviting as many as five from some agencies and only one from others.

The Southern Interagency Conference eagerly accepts your invitation to meet next time in the Nation's Capital and make use of the fabled resources of the Potomac Institute, whatever that is.

The dates will be January 11th and 12th; if, for some reason, this is inconvenient to you, we suggest the 18th and 19th. It is our understanding, of course, that you will arrange to have such persons as Feild, Bernhard, and Marshall scheduled to meet with the group at that time.

We are assuming that each individual will make his own housing arrangements, although we will probably designate the Cairo as hotel headquarters.

Dear Paul:

Well, it seems to me that our best hope would be to try to schedule a meeting in Washington preceding or following your Virginia trip. Will is taking July for a vacation, I was told by his secretary last week. I am pretty unscheduled and un-nerved, because my mother has rather suddenly become almost bedridden due to age, and I am still trying desperately to adjust to this new situation both emotionally and physically. However, I have some help that I can get to stay with her for short periods until I can work out something better. So if you can give me some notice of your Virginia date, I can circulate the committee for a Washington meeting and feel sure that since A rt is already there, we could get enough together for a meeting.

How about accommodations in Washington? We will have to determine a meeting place and everything.

What is Art's Washington address?

Jean

Dear Friends:

As one who has been participating in the Southern Interagency Conference for five years, I believe there has been a change in the nature of our meetings and am very grateful for it. I sense a shift away from factual reporting and information per se and more interest in the analysis of developments in the South and in a search for their deeper significance.

Inevitably as more groups have become active in the South, the participation in the Interagency Conference has grown. We have ceased to be a little club. At the same time I am glad that we have not become a collection of representatives who are united only through the formalities of an agenda. As human relations and civil rights programing moves into the more resistant areas of the Deep South and as there is more diversity among groups active in the field, there are bound to arise more genuine differences of opinion about goals, strategy, techniques, the effectiveness of personnel, etc. I hope we will be sufficiently generous and resilient to see in this new situation the potential for mutual stimulation and growth rather than for interagency conflict.

One matter troubles me about the Interagency Conference and that is the absence of representatives of the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee (SNCC). I do not know the specific reasons for their non-participation. Perhaps they have not been asked to attend. If so, what prevents us from extending an invitation to them to join us? Inasmuch as representatives of the American Friends Service Committee meet representatives of SNCC in national meetings where SNCC is accorded the dignity of recognition as a bona fide civil rights organization, I am uneasy to be in meetings from which I feel they may have been excluded.

I would find it hard to sit in judgment on the credentials of another body and hope that the Southern Interagency Conference will not have to devote valuable time in our sessions to a discussion of qualifications of membership. I think it is more appropriate for those of us who want to include a new group to express our points of view to the Atlanta Steering Committee which has the responsibility for extending invitations. I believe that most of the persons who have been participating in the Southern Interagency Conference would agree with me that an invitation should be extended to SNCC to send representatives to our meetings.

I am writing to you now hoping that an early and favorable consideration by you of this matter will result in the inclusion of SNCC in our new roster of participating groups.

Best wishes.

Dear Jean:

Your formal letter concerning the admission of SNCC to the Southern Interagency Conference is at hand and will be placed before the Atlanta Steering Committee at its next meeting which will be in advance of the next quarterly meeting of SIC. The question of admitting SNCC did come up some time ago, and the Steering Committee elected not to act on it either way but to table the question until the reorganization of the Committee, then in process, was completed. We have not had a request from SNCC since that time, but they have been advised as to the procedure for indicating a desire to be invited.

I agree with your position and will support the admission of SNCC at the meeting of the Atlanta Steering Committee. I will let you know what happendd

On the matter of Anne Braden's request which you discussed with Les by telephone, I would suggest that we grant her request by letting her provide us with so many copies of her letter and then mailing them, along with Bill Higgs' letter to Branton, to all persons who were present at the Interagency session. Let me know your thinking on this.

It seems to me important to get a chance to meet with some of the members of the Atlanta Steering Committee for the Interagency conference. Besides the agenda, there are some communications which we should consider. I wonder if it would be possible to see if we could have such a meeting? Except for the weekends and December 5 and 6, I can, as of now, get to Atlanta for one day almost at the convenience of the committee. As you know our calenders fill up pretty fast, so if you could conveniently find a day for such a meeting fairly soon, I would appreciate it very much.

INTEROFFICE MEMO

Date December 5, 1962

To: Paul Anthony
(cc: Les Dunbar)

From: Paul Rilling

Subject: Conclusions of Atlanta Steering Committee, Southern Interagency Conference, meeting December 3.

1. It was agreed that Anne Braden's memorandum to Wiley responding to his comments at the last Interagency Meeting will be circulated to all persons who were present at that meeting. Bill Higgs' letter to Wiley will be included. Neil Tarplee will notify Anne Braden. Mrs. Braden will provide copies of her memorandum, which we will mail out to agencies present at the last session. Marge has the list of such agencies. It was further agreed that the Bradens will not be invited to appear personally at the next Interagency Meeting, as they requested.

2. There was no positive consensus on inviting SNCC to participate in future Southern Interagency Meetings. Consequently, no invitation will be issued concerning the next meeting.

3. It was agreed that the members of the Atlanta Steering Committee will meet with Neil Tarplee on the morning of Jan. 3, prior to the convening of the regional meeting in the afternoon to consider further the whole question of membership and criteria for membership. It is also thought that the discussion should range over the philosophical differences dividing various agencies et cetera. In the light of this discussion, the suggestion that SNCC be invited to participate in the Southern Interagency Conference will be considered by the Steering Committee. The secretariat is responsible for reminding members of the Steering Committee about the meeting the morning of the third and scheduling a place for it. Neil Tarplee will be on hand to preside.

4. It was agreed that in the future host agencies will provide a secretary to keep the minutes of Southern Interagency discussions so that participating members will not be so burdened. SRC will furnish a secretary for the meeting January 3 and 4. This responsibility will rotate pending on where the meetings are held, etc..

5. It was suggested that the secretariat arrange the next meeting for January 3 and 4 at the Peachtree Manor Hotel. It was suggested that SRC discuss the matter with the management of the Peachtree Manor and make the arrangements unless the management of the hotel feels that this will be a sensitive meeting that might embarrass the establishment. If it is not found convenient to hold the meeting at the Peachtree Manor, the Waluhaje or ITC are possibilities.

6. The secretariat, as usual, will make contacts with persons who will have program responsibilities, and arrange their involvement. The agenda agreed upon at the Steering Committee Meeting is attached. In arranging the agenda it should be remembered that the group decided last time to have an early evening session followed by a later evening social hour.

7. As has been our practice, three members of the group will be listed as hosts for the social hour and will share the costs of the refreshments. Or maybe it is four. Marge will have the list of those who have so far shared this responsibility. The secretariat must make the arrangements for the social hour, although if it is at the Waluhaje, Ruby Hurley has been willing in the past to handle this. The reception could be at the Waluhaje even if the meeting were at ITC.

Suggested Agenda, Southern Interagency Conference, January 3 & 4, Atlanta

1. Announcements and notices.
   (Anyone wishing to pass on a program announcement or notify the group of pending developments may do so at this time.)

2. The Significance of the President's Housing Order and Discussion Thereof. -Harold Fleming or Art Levin

3. The Oxford Incident, Its Implications for the Future. -Will Campbell.

4. Whither Goest Alabama? -Norman Jimerson
   -Dick Shapiro
   (It was suggested that SRC bring Jimerson over if possible. If not, Neil Tarplee will contact the campus minister of the University of Alabama for the same purpose.)

5. Department of Justice.

   (This would be for the purpose of informal exchanges between a representative of the Department of Justice and the Interagency Group. Burke Marshall could be asked to designate who might come, or come himself. John Doar was also suggested for this purpose.)

(This format was devised with the thought that it might be preferable this time to have discussion in depth of a smaller number of topics.)

Dear Mrs. Braden:

I have distributed copies of our correspondence to the Program Planning Committee of the Interagency Conference. The committee would like to suggest the following course of action: It has asked the Southern Regional Council to act as secretariat and mail to those who attended the last meeting of the ~~last~~ interagency conference copies of the statement which you and Mr. Braden have proposed making, together with an account by Bill Higgs of his telephone conversation which seemed to play an important part in the matter. If you will send about fifty copies of the statement from you and Mr. Braden to the Southern Regional Council in care of Leslie Dunbar, I am sure the statement will be sent out right away.

I am indeed sorry that you and Mr. Braden feel as strangly as you do in regard to this matter. I know that it is very distressing to people to feel unjustly accused of anything, and if there were any errors of statement at the interagency meeting they should be corrected. I was present at the meeting, however, and did not get the impression at all that either you or your husband were being "attacked and raked over the coals".

I hope sincerely that you will feel that this action will provide adequate communication with those who were at the last interagency meeting.

TO: Committee on Organization, Southern Interagency Conference (Jean Fairfax, Vincent Harding, Ruby Hurley, Charles Wittenstein)

FROM: Paul Anthony

As I have discussed with you, the following procedure seems logical for the job our colleagues have generously given us: each of you send to me as quickly as possible your draft of--or comment on--the report we are to prepare. The drafts and our final report should be as brief as we can make them. Among the things we are to concern ourselves with are:

Description of the Interagency Conference;
Role of and procedures for selecting the secretariat;
Role, procedures for selecting, responsibilities of the steering committee;
Role, responsibilities, and procedures for selecting the chairman;
Agenda, minutes, secretary;
Membership;
Voting: if, when, and how;
Representation by agencies.

I will send to each member of the committee the drafts received here. Thereafter we will plan for an early meeting. Jean Fairfax will likely be able to stop by Atlanta from a Texas trip sometime between February 1-10. Until we know dates, will you please keep this period as free as possible.

The progress we make at that meeting will determine what next.

I think we have been given a very serious responsibility, one which may well determine the future structure and effectiveness of what is basically a very worthy idea. Perhaps if we can plow through this we can get about the business at hand again.

CONFIDENTIAL

Memorandum

AMERICAN FRIENDS SERVICE COMMITTEE
160 North Fifteenth Street Philadelphia 2, Pennsylvania

January 11, 1963

TO: Paul Anthony, Vincent Harding, Ruby Hurley, Charles Wittenstein

FROM: Jean Fairfax

SUBJECT: SOUTHERN INTERAGENCY CONFERENCE: Some Thoughts About the Committee on Organization

May I suggest Wednesday, February 6, beginning with lunch, as a tentative date for a meeting of our committee? I shall have to ask your forbearance because I may have to change the date but it seems to be a possibility now.

I am not prepared to submit a draft of a report for committee consideration. Here are some random thoughts, in a rough outline.

I. We need to recognize the fact that agencies have different attitudes toward consultation with other groups.

A. Very frankly, I get the feeling sometimes that some agency representatives really do not feel the need to consult with anyone else. Therefore, they will give a low priority to interagency consultations, so far as staff schedules are concerned, and will not have much sense of responsibility for making the consultative process effective.

B. Agencies, like AFSC, need interagency consultation. As an agency without a broad constituency, we have staffed programs in few communities in the South. Therefore, we can be very knowledgeable about a few places but often have no source of information, other than the mass media, about developments in other areas. We are not equipped to be "fire-fighters" and usually do not have the resources to move quickly into crisis situations. We depend on our interagency contacts as a source of information and insight about general developments and crisis situations. Membership organizations which have a broad constituency in the South may not be in this situation.

C. Agencies which are not based in Atlanta and which do not have the opportunity to confer regularly with other groups may expect more from the Interagency Conference than those that are in Atlanta. The time and expense involved and the need to get as much accomplished as possible in one meeting (because the next opportunity will not come again for another 3 months) are some of the factors behind the pressure for evening meetings, more planning and advance preparation of sessions, etc.

II. As I see it, the Southern Interagency Conference provides an opportunity for information, analysis and coordination.

Wittenstein - OK
Harding - message
Hurley - OK call back around 11:00

A. Information: the sharing of information about developments in the South and about agency programs.

B. Analysis: assessment of situations, discussion of trends, consideration of questions of strategy. I sense a growing interest, particularly in representatives of religious groups, for discussions on the deeper level of the ethical and religious impulse which motivates work in intergroup relations.

C. Coordination: I think we learned fairly early that it is very difficult to coordinate widely differing organizations into single action programs. However, the Southern Interagency Conference has provided a framework within which coordination has taken place among organizations which felt they could work together on particular matters. For example:

(1) the pamphlet "Intimidation Reprisal and Violence in the South's Racial Crisis"

(2) AFSC has called special consultations on tokenism in North Carolina, on human relations programing in hardcore areas, on Prince Edward County and on Mississippi which we were able to have more easily and with greater confidence because of the interagency framework.

III. The nature of our meetings

A. They should be carefully planned.

B. They should make full use of the rich resources in the group.

C. There should be an informal and easy atmosphere which is conducive to candor; the confidential and off-the-record nature of these gatherings is vital to their success.

IV. What kind of organization do we need to accomplish this end?

A. I think we need a relatively stable group so that confidence can develop. For this reason I am in favor of the following:

1. The present list of agencies that are invited should be reviewed. Some are dead wood and have not sent representatives for several years. They should be queried about whether they really wish to participate and to send representatives reasonably regularly. If not, they should be dropped. I see us developing a contact list of interested agencies who might wish to be on an interagency mailing list but who do not feel they can participate regularly in the Conference. I would separate this list from the "members."

2. I think we should ask agencies to designate who their official representatives will be for a given program year. We should cut down on the number of persons who drop in for a single session which might give them a warped idea of what we're about. I think it is okay to have visitors but would be in favor of submitting their names in advance to the secretariat so that we do not have a disproportionate number of outsiders at a given meeting.

B. On the basis of the above we should develop a "membership list." In general these will be agency representatives with area or regional responsibilities although I have no objection to including local intergroup persons (Atlanta Council on Human Relations, Atlanta Urban League, etc.) if that number does not get too large.

C. The Southern Interagency Conference is not an organization with a constitution and by-laws. Nor is it a meeting where representatives come with fixed agency positions which they wish to put over and defend. There should be relatively few matters on which we should vote and I am not yet prepared to say whether voting should be by agency or by individual.

D. We may need a statement of agreement to which members would give their assent; that discussions are confidential and that reports of meetings are not to become public information; that no pictures are to be taken without consent of those present; that membership lists may not be shared, etc.

E. We need a recognized procedure for extending the invitation to new groups. What about a vote by 2/3 of the members? This would prevent a blackball by one group but would accept the fact that the consultative process will not work if a substantial minority of the members feel uneasy about the participation of a certain organization. I should think this procedure could work for "un-inviting" someone who has violated the commitment to confidentiality or who has engaged in behavior which we feel is unacceptable.

F. I am in favor of asking the Southern Regional Council to continue to serve as the secretariat.

G. I think the steering committee should have a definite composition, chosen each year by the Conference. For the sake of convenience, most of its members will probably be Atlanta persons. What about a steering committee of four, plus the chairman, two of whom would not be based in Atlanta. The responsibilities of the steering committee would include planning the meetings, keeping members informed on matters of importance, doing advance preparation when policy matters need to be presented to the body, etc. It would handle the "casual" invitations to a given meeting and would work out a procedure for polling members on invitations to prospective members.

Dear Paul:

This letter is coming to you in a rather round-about fashion because we are snow-bound in Kentucky on our way back from Chicago and are making use of the time with our dictaphone machine. Since secretaries at our Pennsylvania office do the typing for us, this is a somewhat circuitous route for this letter. I am writing--I hope not too late--concerning some of my ideas for our committee of the inter-agency group.

I would throw out several suggestions concerning the inter-agency group, and let you do with them what you will as far as distribution is concerned. These are my suggestions and concerns:

1. The inter-agency group should be, I think, primarily a clearinghouse for ideas and information for all who work in the South in the field of human relations.

2. I think that there should be membership in this group only in terms of a willingness to be listed on our mailing list and in terms of a willingness to commit the agency to regular attendance and confidential sharing at the meetings.

3. On the crucial question of membership, I think that the decision to accept a group into this loose kind of membership should be made by a substantial majority of those already represented--perhaps two-thirds of our number.

4. I think that the initiation of the process of membership should still come about either by invitation or by application.

5. I think that the decision as to whether or not persons should be recommended to the entire group for membership should not rest with a smaller steering committee, but any group that seeks for membership or is recommended for membership should come to the entire group.

6. I think that we should regularly spend some time discussing the goals and direction of the inter-agency conference whenever this is possible or whenever this seems helpful to the entire group.

7. It seems to me that there should be some time during each meeting when we get a chance to hear about the program ideas and planning and execution of each of the groups represented if they wish to say anything about what they are doing.

8. Concerning a steering committee, I am not sure of my feelings on this at this point. I think that the group should be smaller than it has been. Perhaps a group of seven or nine with the majority made up of Atlanta people but with a definite attempt to be sure that more than Atlanta people are represented at steering committee meetings. I think that one important function of the steering committee would be the preparation of agenda for our inter-agency conference meetings. As I suggested above I think the steering committee should serve the purpose of passing on requests or recommendations for membership but not of making decisions on this.

9. I think that meeting together three times a year is probably sufficient for our purposes.

10. Generally it seems to me that as little parliamentary procedure in our meetings as possible is definitely to the good of us all. This includes as little formal voting as possible, too.

11. I think that the chairman for the coming year should be nominated and voted on at the last meeting of the previous year, and I think that it should always be suggested that he sit in the steering committee whenever possible.

I don't have any monumental thoughts on this matter, as you can see, Paul. This is about all I have to say now.

By the way, the April 18-19 dates look all right from Mennonite House.

I expect to be seeing you somewhere.

Subject: INTERAGENCY COMMITTEE ON ORGANIZATION

Let's leave the date as scheduled: Wednesday, February 6, beginning with lunch. I have discovered that I really have lots to do in Atlanta and can use the extra day chez vous. So, Vincent, we'll plan to return by air from Jackson in time for the luncheon meeting.

Paul, do you want to use this occasion to see whether you can get me into one of the downtown hotels? If you are unsuccessful, ask John Yungblut whether I can stay at Quaker House that evening and confer with him about Mississippi. Thanks.

Vincent, I'll call you from Jackson Wednesday night or Thursday morning. Will you let the SNCC office in Atlanta know of our plans? I tend toward spending the week-end in Greenville-Greenwood-Cleveland-Clarksdale, leaving early Saturday morning and returning in time for the meeting on Monday. In addition to visiting the SNCC representatives I'd like to stop at the vocational school at Itta Bena. If AAron Henry is not planning to attend the meeting Monday, this would be a chance to see him . In addition to getting a first-hand picture of the situation in the Delta, I am particularly interested in finding out whether any of the persons who have been having difficulties recently might come within the scope of AFSC's Rights of Conscience Program which has a little money for legal aid and for sufferings grants. (We might need to apply ourselves!)

I'll be in touch.

Dear Paul:

Your draft of the report of the Committee on Organization is very good. I have only a few comments, mostly editorial.

Page 1, lines 2 and 3. I would omit "essentially" and would prefer, "Since the Southern Interagency Conference is not an organization, this statement....."

Definition, #3. I would use a colon after agencies. Can we find a better phrase than "public information" and is there a reason for omitting the areas of our civil rights activities (school desegregation, equal employment opportunity, etc.) especially when inter-religious activity is mentioned? Or, had you intended for "community relations" to be a catch-all?

Page 2, line 1....."to determine which agencies shall be invited..." We do not want to give the impression that we determine the individual representation.

Das ist alles!

Sincerely,

Jean

Dear Paul:

Art and I have read your draft policy statement for SIC and found it good on the whole. We have suggested a few changes in language on the enclosed, mostly designed to substitute the looser word "consultation" for "cooperation" and to clear up one or two ambiguities that might lead to later difficulty.

Art also feels that there should be no provision for voting except on the 3/4 matters discussed under "Participants," but I see no problem about majority voting on other, purely internal matters.

One or both of us will attend the spring meeting; we'll let you know.

DRAFT

REPORT OF THE ORGANIZATION COMMITTEE, SOUTHERN INTERAGENCY CONFERENCE

Jean Fairfax
Ruby Hurley
Paul Anthony
Vincent Harding
Charles Wittenstein

The following are the Committee's recommendations for the definition and procedures of the Southern Interagency Conference. Essentially, the Southern Interagency Conference is not an organization, but rather a consultative process. Therefore, this represents an attempt to put into writing those minimum necessary policies and rules which any informal gathering of persons and agencies must have.

Definition

1. The ~~cooperative effort~~ consultative process of Southern field staff members of agencies concerned with human relations may most appropriately be referred to by the name that has developed as a matter of convenient usage, the Southern Interagency Conference.

2. ~~The strength of our cooperation lies in the~~ Our purpose is the periodic consultation among staff members with common concerns based in the Southern region. These consultations are informal and off-the-record and involve no organizational commitments or publicity of any kind.

3. We regard the areas of our ~~cooperation~~ consultation as including any of the functions in which we engage on behalf of our respective agencies--public information, fact-finding, community relations, inter-religious activity, consultative services, assistance to victims of pressure or reprisal, etc.

4. Participation by any individuals or representative of an agency does not necessarily commit said individual or agency to the programs of other participants, nor does participation in consultation imply approval or support of any other programs.

5. A list of agencies with participants currently taking part in the conference is attached. These participants reserve the right to to determine who shall be invited to join them. Procedures for such invitations are outlined below. These are agencies who have shown their interest in this process of program consultation. #6. Agencies not represented at three successive meetings shall be considered ~~inactive by~~ non-participating choice and therefore no longer invited by the Secretariat.

7. The group shares a commitment to the establishment of a free and just society achieved through the democratic process.

8. The Southern Interagency Conference as a body has no program, although it does provide a framework within which participating agencies may voluntarily join in cooperative efforts on specific programs.

Participants

Participation shall be limited to national and regional agencies having program concerns in human relations extending to more than one Southern state. Agencies operating in more restricted geographical areas may on occasion be invited [Specify by whom] to participate. Such representatives shall have no voting rights.

To encourage a free exchange of information, regular participants and persons occasionally invited to participate accept the responsibility of keeping confidential the discussions of the meetings.

Agencies not presently participating who wish to participate shall express this in writing to the secretariat who will so inform the full membership. This request shall be acted on by the full body at its earliest convenience. An invitation shall be extended upon an affirmative vote of three-fourths of those present and eligible to vote. ~~at any regularly scheduled~~ stet. meeting. (See below section on "Voting.")

Chairman and Secretariat

The conference year shall begin in September of each year.

An individual as Chairman and an agency to serve as Secretariat shall be chosen by three-fourths vote of those present at the spring meeting, to serve for one year beginning in September.

The Chairman shall preside at each meeting and shall be an ex-officio member of all committees.

The Secretariat shall keep all records of the conference, send notices, arrange for meetings, disseminate materials to the participants, and otherwise assist the group in administrative matters.

Steering Committee

The Steering Committee shall consist of nine persons selected by the Interagency Conference to serve for a period of one year. At least three of these individuals shall be from outside Atlanta.

The Steering Committee shall plan programs and otherwise carry out the instrucitons of the full conference.

Voting

Since the Southern Interagency Conference sponsors no programs of its own, voting is generally not appropriate except on procedural or other internal matters.

Issues shall be decided by majority vote of those present except in the matter of participations and the selection of chairman and secretariat. These shall be decided by three-fourths vote of those present at any regularly scheduled meeting.

EAch participating agency shall have only one vote. Votes may be by secret ballot, one ballot provided by the secretariat to each participating agency.

The Steering Committee may designate a mail ballot on any issue which should, in the opinion of the Committee, be acted on by the Conference between meetings. The Secretariat shall be responsible for conducting such an election, and the Steering Committee shall be responsible for determining the results of said election.

Program

At each meeting the Steering Committee shall be advised by the participants of specific program interests for future meetings. The Steering Committee shall be responsible for planning meetings, inviting speakers and consultants, and suggesting the place and facilities for meetings.

Each participating agency shall have only one vote. Votes may be by secret ballot, one ballot provided by the secretariat to each participating agency.

The Steering Committee may designate a mail ballot on any issue which should, in the opinion of the Committee, be acted on by the Conference between meetings. The Secretariat shall be responsible for conducting such an election, and the Steering Committee shall be responsible for determining the results of said election.

Program

At each meeting the Steering Committee shall be advised by the participants of specific program interests for future meetings. The Steering Committee shall be responsible for planning meetings, inviting speakers and consultants, and suggesting the place and facilities for meetings.

Dear Paul:

I attach a letter addressed to the Inter Agency Group asking that I might be included in the membership if this is possible. I trust that you will present it if it is convenient at the forth coming meeting.

Thank you so much for arranging to have luncheon with me the other day. Arlo Tatum enjoyed it very much too. I shall look forward to working something out with you in connection with Missiasippi.

MINUTES, SOUTHERN INTERAGENCY CONFERENCE
ATLANTA, GEORGIA - APRIL 18, 19, 1963

Administrative.

The Organization Committee presented its recommendations for the definition and procedures of the Conference. Its report was unanimously adopted, with amendments and with the proviso that procedural rules go into effect immediately but the report will not be released until after the approval of a preamble, to be considered at the fall meeting. Amendments are: (1) the phrase "human relations" is to be changed to "intergroup relations" wherever it occurs; (2) item 7 under "Definition" will be deleted, and the Committee on Organization is instructed to prepare for the document a short preamble that will endeavor to state reasons why this group of people has an identity and purpose, to be presented to the next meeting; (3) the first paragraph under "Participants" will be changed to read: "Participation shall be limited to national and regional agencies having program in intergroup relations extending to more than one Southern state"; (4) under the section "Steering Committee," the word "selection" is changed to "election"; (5) under the section "Voting," paragraph 2, sentence 1 will read: "Issues shall be decided by majority vote of those present except in the matters of participation and the election of chairman, steering committee, and secretariat."

Requests to participate in S.I.C. from Quaker House and the Southern Conference Educational Fund were brought before the group. The chair ruled that Quaker House is ineligible to participate on grounds that participation is limited to agencies having program concerns extending to more than one Southern state. Participants, voting in an open ballot, declined to extend an invitation to participate to SCEF.

Mississippi - Jim Forman and Wiley Branton.

Recent so-called "demonstrations" in Greenwood were not a planned thing. Reports coming out of that city have confused the facts, making it appear that Greenwood police officers and officials were only preventing large numbers of people from gathering, not inhibiting access to the registrar's office. The facts were just the opposite.

There was no "agreement," insofar as is known, preceding the Justice Department's withdrawal of its request for a preliminary injunction against Greenwood and Leflore County officials; city and county officials would not formally agree to any change in tactics. Eight Negroes who had been jailed were released. Much of the harassment directed against voter registration efforts appears to have diminished and the city seems to be aware that it will be hurt unless earlier tactics are changed.

Local Negroes remain enthusiastic about the registration effort and this enthusiasm has overflowed into adjoining counties.

Alabama - Norman Jimerson and Paul Anthony.

There are two threats in the Birmingham situation: the possibility that current demonstrations might cause the state legislature to rescind the city's newly chosen form of Mayor-Council government, and the possibility that Governor Wallace might declare martial law in response to the demonstrations. There is some division in the Negro community in regard to supporting demonstrations at this time; however, it is probable that long-term demonstrations will foster coalescence and support.

The possibility of court ordered public school desegregation in any or all of three communities--Mobile, Huntsville, and Birmingham--remains, as does the assumption that in the event of desegregation Governor Wallace will empower himself to personally remove Negro students from desegregated schools, as he has threatened. Save Our Schools groups are active in these three locales.

It is conceivable that the Governor's hand will be called in June, at the level of higher education, and in Huntsville, where two Negroes (both employees at nearby federal installations) have applied for admittance to the Huntsville Center of the University of Alabama. They are asking for a court order for entrance to the Center for the summer quarter.

Merit Employment and Federal Government Participation - George Butler, President's Committee on Equal Employment Opportunity.

Within the next year the President's Committee will probably be able to move into the area of requiring of contract holders affirmative action toward employment of minority group members. Until now, the Committee has deliberately avoided spelling out what constitutes affirmative action. Contract-holders will be turning increasingly to existing public or private agencies to produce qualified recruits. Individuals are urged to send complaints to the Committee in known cases of non-compliance on the part of government contract-holders.

Other.

Nominations for chairman, steering committee, and secretariat for the coming SIC year were approved by the group: Chairman, Charles Wittenstein; Steering Committee, Ruby Hurley, Vincent Harding, Paul Anthony, John Morris, Monroe Schlactus, Rosetta Gardner, Tartt Bell, Henry Cabirac, and Jean Russell; Secretariat, Southern Regional Council.

The CORE representative requested that all SIC participants send him descriptive material on their program and function.

Wednesday and Thursday, September 25 and 26, were selected as the dates of the next meeting, and the Steering Committee was asked to explore several possibilities and determine a suitable location.

Mr. John Yungblut
Quaker House
1384 Fairview Road, N.E.
Atlanta 6, Georgia

Dear John:

As secretariat for the Southern Interagency Conference we have baan asked to inform you of the group's decision on your request. Following a discussion of the good program of Quaker House the chairman ruled Quaker House ineligible for consideration on the basis of the requirement of participation that "agencies must have programs extending to more than one state." This was done with the understanding that you are invited and most welcomed as a visitor and "non-voting" participant.

Should the program of Quaker House be expanded to more than one state--as a part of the official program and budget--I am sure the group would be happy to reconsider your request.

Sincerely,

Paul Anthony

Dear Mr. Dombrowski:

As secretariat for the Southern Interagency Conference, we have been asked to inform you of the action taken by the group at its recent meeting on your request for an invitation to participate.

The group considered the request of the Southern Conference Educational Fund and that of one other agency concerned with race relations in the South. It was the decision in both instances that it would be unwise to expand the size of the conference at this time.

Sincerely,

Paul Anthony

Dear Paul:

Thank you for your letter of April 30. Its contents had of course already been made known to me. I appreciate the courtesy of being allowed to attend as a visitor and "non-voting" participant. I fully understand the position of the Southern Inter-Agency Conference, and therefore accept their decision without regret.

However, I believe that our Trustees will presently decide that my work in Mississippi and elsewhere will be an outreach of the Quaker House program itself. This may change the picture. Perhaps we can talk it over later on.

Dear George:

It could not possibly have been three weeks since we were together in Atlanta, but that is what my calendar says. In any event, please accept my very belated but appreciative thanks for coming down to meet with the Interagency Conference. It was very useful to have you there for the opportunity afforded to some of the newer members of the conference group to get acquainted with your programs and to allow a few of the older heads to take another look at the possibilities of coordination and cooperation on the employment front. It was good that you could be there overnight for some very informal personal discussions with individual members of the group.

Again please accept my apologies for the imposition of interrupting your presentation. I felt that you took this quite gracefully and this helped all of us to feel more at home about it. Thanks again. Warm personal regards.

Dear Henry:

I just returned from Birmingham (what a mess!) and am leaving tomorrow for New York to attend our Annual Meeting and Staff Conference. I won't be back in my office until the 27th of May. Paul Anthony is out of town today. It may well be, however, that we could set up a Steering Committee Meeting in Atlanta late in May or early in June. But I can't give you anything definite to help you in your planning at this time. If you can arrange to be in Atlanta during the last week in May or sometime early in June, I would certainly make every effort to set a date for a Steering Committee Meeting during the period of your visit.

Let Paul Anthony know when you're coming and suggest that he explore the possibilities for scheduling our meeting then.

Dear Paul,

I will plan to attend the Southern Interagency Conference at Nashville, but can only come on the afternoon and evening of September 25th. I will have to fly back early in the morning Thursday in order to be at an important meeting here in our headquarters. In fact, the Wednesday meeting conflicts with another important engagement, but I have decided to give precedence to this one. I appreciate the opportunity. I will write to the Holiday Inn, West End Avenue for an overnight reservation.

I would like to be regarded as a regular participant in the Southern Interagency Conference, and would appreciate it if the application could be acted upon at the national meeting. Mathew Ahmann will be my alternate

Would it be possible for you to include Mathew Ahmann on your mailing list of invitations to the Southern Interagency Conference?

You might also want to consider at our January meeting inviting Matt Ahmann, who is also the Field Director for the National Conference on Religion and Race, to spend about a half a day interpeting and answering questions on the activities of the National Conference on Religion and Race and how the various Southern agencies might want to make use of these services.

See you in Nashville the morning of Wednesday, September 25.

Dear Mr. Cabirac:

I have your letter of September 12 in Paul Anthony's absence (he's on a one-week vacation). Mathew Ahmann is regularly invited to attend the Southern Interagency Conference. His name did not appear on the list of participants we mimeographed and sent out last winter since he had designated you as the representative from the National Catholic Conference; he is, however, invited to each meeting and sent minutes from each meeting. We received a reply card from him today stating that he would not attend the September 25-26 Nashville meeting.

Sedondly, I spoke with Paul this morning about your need for contacts in Huntsville. He suggests Dr. John Cashin, Jr., 1815 Lydia Drive, N.W., telephone: 536-3240 or 534-8331. Dr. Cashin is highly knowledgeable about Huntsville and would be able to put you in touch with other persons knowledgeable in specific areas.

Dear Mrs. Hayden:

Participants in the Southern Interagency Conference (for which SRC serves as secretariat) have asked us to request that they be placed on your mailing list for all SNCC reports such as the recent Special Report on Selma and the report on Americus (which may have been a news release--I'm not sure,,since I didn't get an opportunity to see this one). Could you do this? I believe that you have a "key" list, which I'm told would be the appropriate one. A list of participants in the Interagency Conference is enclosed; probably a number of these agencies already receive your materials. Also, I'm marking a few which seem to be inactive in the Conference and never acknowledge mail I send them. You may or may not want to send your materials to them.

Thank you very much.

Your letter caught us just as we are in a transitional s tage. Sandra Hayden is going to work in Mississippi and I am her replacement. I have decided to revise our mailing list system. Not going into all the gruesome details of my plan, I merely wish to inform you that I am starting a mailing list of people who will get things like our Special Reports, but not all the day-to-day press releases. I a m therefore holding the names of the participants in the Southern Interagency Conference to be added to that list. I am sure you can understand that there will be some delay, and hope that you will inform those concerned. Thank you.

Dear Mr. Anthony:

The Executive Committee of the Southern Student Organizing Committee (SSOC) has requested that SSOC seek membership in the Southern Interagency Conference. Could you please submit our name to the conference at its February meeting in Washington? If there are other steps to be taken in requesting this membership, please let me know.

I appreciate very much your taking time to talk with Gene and me about the future of SSOC. We will certainly take your ideas into consideration as we begin writing our joint proposal to the conference.

Sincerely,

Mr. Burke Marshall
Assistant Attorney General
Civil Rights Division
United States Department of Justice
Washington 25, D. C.

Dear Burke:

On February 27, prior to the meeting scheduled here on the 28th relative to public accommodations, many of the same agencies will meet here to discuss what can be done to step up our programs in support of public education and preparing communities for desegregation. We hope you still plan to be with us, or will have a pepresentative from your office here.

In either event, this is to raise the question of whether or not the Justice Department representative could also be present for the school meeting. We would find such assistance very helpful, especially in covering all or part of the following:

1. A run-down on cases which have considered at various levels in the Federal courts the question of school closings.

2. What the courts have ruled on such matters as:

   a. tuition grants
   b. legality of school closings.

3. What are the various possible rulings that might come out of the Prince Edward case which is scheduled to be heard March 30 and what are the implications for the whole South of each possible ruling?

4. What new legal situation has been created by the partial closing of schools; that is, the closing of just the white schools in Surry County, Macon County, etc.?

5. Is there a possibility that an entire school system may be closed in a state like Mississippi? If so, what will be the legal remedies?

It's asking a lot, and an oral report will be fine, but if a brief memorandum could be prepared relative to the above the group would find it helpful.

At the meeting last week in Washington I did not have an opportunity to thank you for the tremendous help you have been to the state Councils. They have really had you on the circuit, and we are grateful for the amount of time and help you have given them.

Hope to see you at the Potomac Institute on Monday, when any of the above can be discussed.

Sincerely,

Paul Anthony

Dear Paul:

If I remember correctly, you will not be back in Atlanta until Wednesday. I have several matters on my mind concerning our consultation next week on school desegregation developments that may precipitate school closings and plan to call you tomorrow. I am sending you my thoughts now so you may think them over before we confer.

Since we are primarily concerned in this conference on the threat to public education, I think we should ask the National Education Association and the Office of Education to send representatives. Would you be willing to write Richard B. Kennan, executive secretary of NEA (1201 Sixteenth Street, N. W., Washington, 20036) and to Francis Keppel, Commissioner of Education? I would have been glad to approach these persons myself but I am sure Keppel identifies me as the Prince Edward nuisance since I pressed him pretty hard last year. I have not had direct contact with Richard B. Kennan since I went to see him some time ago to try to get NEA involved in the Prince Edward crisis. Your writing in behalf of an interagency concern would be much better.

I should also like to suggest that we request Burke Marshall to send a representative of the Justice Department and that we ask the Department to prepare a brief memorandum on where we are legally on the question of school closings. This memorandum could include:

1. A run-down on cases which have considered at various levels in the Federal courts the question of school closings

2. What the courts have ruled on such matters as:

   a. tuition grants
   b. legality of school closings. (For instance, I dimly recall the Fifth Circuit request for memoranda from the 50 state attorneys general on the subject of school closings and a statement made that "this is no time to experiment with ignorance").

3. What are the various possible rulings that might come out of the Prince Edward case which is scheduled to be heard March 30 and what are the implications for the whole South of each possible ruling?

4. What new legal situation has been created by the partial closing of schools, that is the closing of just the white schools in Surry County, Macon County, etc.?

5. Is there a possibility that an entire school system may be closed in a state like Mississippi? If so, what will be the legal remedies?

Should we also have a representative of the Legal Defense and Education Fund? Is there a southern member of the board of the national PTA body whom we should invite?

Are we interested primarily in agency representation or do we want to have persons from some of the counties affected? If so, is there any money to help defray their travel expenses? My personal feeling is that this should be primarily an agency consultation but I don't feel strongly on the matter.

I hope we can look into the question of strategies for preventing school closings. In addition to your new manual which includes some samples of materials which have been used by save the schools movements, are there other things (articles, reprints, etc.) which we should know about so that we can make them available to interested community groups?

I'll call you tomorrow. Or, if you anticipate a busy day, call me at a time convenient to you.

Sincerely,

Jean

TO: Southern Interagency Conference participants

FROM: Paul Anthony

At the Southern Interagency meeting of February 12-13 two special meetings were scheduled for next week. They are:

February 27. A special meeting for those agencies with programs concerned with public schools and desegregation. Emphasis will be placed on what agencies are doing and can do jointly to prevent widespread closing of schools between now and September.

February 28. A meeting of Southern agencies called following a request by Assistant Attorney General Burke Marshall that private agencies do all possible to prepare the region for the passage of the civil rights bill. This meeting is based on the assumption that a civil rights bill, including a public accommodations section, will become law in early summer. Mr. Marshall will be at this meeting.

Both of these meetings will be held in the SRC conference room. Each will begin at 10:00 A.M. on the scheduled day and will run until the conclusion of business. Please let us know immediately, on the enclosed postal card, whether or not you will be present at either or both of the above meetings.

Dear Paul,

I won't be able to be with you in Atlanta on February 28, 1964, for your conference. I'm sorry.

As I suggested by phone on Monday, most of the answers to your questions in your letter to Burke Marshall, February 18, 1964, can be found in reports of the Civil Rights Commission dealing with education, the Southern School News and Race Relations Law Reporter (especially summaries and articles appearing in the Race Relations Law Reporter.)

I have enclosed some of our briefs in the Prince Edward County case which I felt might be interesting.

Dear Friend:

Representatives of more than twenty agencies with human relations programs in the South met recently in Atlanta to discuss school desegregation developments and to anticipate potential crises which may develop by fall.

During our discussion questions were frequently raised about the progress of desegregation in Federally impacted areas in the South. Although some information was available about a few areas, it was generally agreed that we lack a picture of overall developments which is needed as we plan our work for the next six months. The role of Federal agencies in a community is frequently an important consideration as private agencies assess the forces for constructive change and make their plans for local action programs.

For example, the American Friends Service Committee is launching this spring a Mississippi Community Relations Program which will focus during its first phase on school desegregation. Since Biloxi is one of the three Mississippi communities which have recently been ordered to present plans for the desegregation of public schools, we need to know what the situation is at the military installation there. It will greatly enhance our effort in the community if we know that we can count on affirmative support for desegregation by the commander of the base.

It would be helpful for the southern human relations agencies to have a progress report on what the Department of Defense has been able to accomplish so far as the desegregation of school facilities for children of military personnel in the South is concerned. We would be interested in knowing where participation by military installations in local school segregation has been ended, and how, and what further developments can be anticipated by fall.

I would welcome an opportunity to talk with you about the concerns of the southern human relations agencies. We are dealing with a situation which is in flux and we would appreciate having a channel of communication with those agencies in Washington that are bringing about the kinds of changes to which we are also committed.

Would it be convenient for you to see me on Thursday, March 26? I could get to Washington in time for a 10:00 a.m. appointment and would be glad to see you at your convenience any time after 10:00 a.m. I shall telephone your office on Monday to see whether an appointment can be arranged.

Thank you very much.

DRAFT

M E M O R A N D U M

To: Organizations Participating in Southern Interagency Activities of CCD

From: Harold C. Fleming

Re: PROPOSED COOPERATIVE FACT-FINDING PROJECT ON VIOLENCE, INTIMIDATION, AND REPRISALS

At the last Southern interagency meeting, it was agreed that participating organizations would be invited to contribute to a joint fact-finding effort. The purpose of this memorandum is to give a brief description of the project, the proposed mechanics for carrying it out, and a rough estimate of the total cost. If your agency would like to contribute to the effort, under the terms set forth below, please write me at your earliest convenience -- no later than January 30.

Following is the description of the project as approved by the agency representatives attending the Southern meeting in November:

I. Violence, Intimidation, and Reprisal

1. In view of the creation of the Civil Rights Commission, it is felt that a comprehensive report of incidents of violence, intimidation, and reprisal should be compiled as quickly as possible. It is tentatively agreed that the period to be covered might date from the Supreme Court school decision of May 17, 1954. We recognize that practical considerations arising in the course of the survey might lead to the adoption of a shorter period. In any case, the incidents reported should be limited to those involving violence, intimidation and reprisal growing out of Southern reactions to the Supreme Court's decision.

2. A temporary project person, having appropriate skills and experience, should be employed. This temporary project director would work under the overall supervision of an interagency committee made up of Southern staff members of the Anti-Defamation League, the American Friends Service Committee, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and the Southern Regional Council. These agencies were selected because they have existing files and materials in this field.

3. Each of the organizations participating in the Southern interagency effort will be invited to assume a prorata share of the cost of the project. We estimate roughly that the cost of the project will be between $3,000 and $5,000. It is understood that the four agencies previously mentioned shall have full responsibility for the direction of the project. When the fact-finding has been completed and a report drafted, however, each of the contributing agencies will have an opportunity to review the manuscript and decide whether it wishes to be associated by name with the report.

4. The object will be to document each incident by newspaper reports. We recognize that it may be necessary in some cases to check the facts against other sources - organizational files, first-hand accounts, and so on. In addition to clippings and reports in the files of cooperating organizations, the files of the Southern Education Reporting Service should be utilized. It is hoped that the final report can state that each of the incidents is supported by published news reports.

5. Publication plans will be made when a draft of the report is in hand. The findings may be communicated directly to the Civil Rights Commission, released to the press and other media in printed or mimeographed form or both, depending on the circumstances at the time of completion.

In the proposed report defining SIC, it states the following in paragraph seven:

"The group shares a commitment to the establishment of a free and just society achieved through the democratic process".

The following amendment is proposed:

> "It knows that totalitarianism, whether fascist or communist, is profoundly hostile to this aim and, therefore, it does not cooperate with the advocates of such repressive ideology. It opposes racial and religious bigotry, prejudice and discrimination against any groups in our society."

Dear Sir:

This is to apply for membership in the Southern Inter-Agency Conference.

Other organizations to which I am now or have been a member are:

1. The Baptist Church (Southern Baptist, known occasionally as S.B.)
2. The Masonic Lodge (Liberty, Mississippi # 37)
3. The U S Airforce Reserve (currently assigned to Barry Field, Tenn.)
4. The Lions Club International from which I resigned when the Club to which I belonged served Martinis at meetings. Instead of Mint Julips.

I am not now nor have I ever been a member of a subversive organization. I did ~~an~~ once by mistake in New Orleans attend a Henry Wallace rally. I thought it was a Youth For Christ meeting. Since you will want to be informed fully of my past associations I did once shake hands with Walter Reuther.

My children know all stanzas of the national anthem and have been taught to stand up on those occasions when Dixie is substituted.

My wife does not believe morality can be legislated. She wishes it could.

If admitted into membership I agree not to photograph any fellow member dancing with Abner Barry, especially if said member is not a girl.

The purpose of the organization for which I work is to do good across ethnic lines.

Your PAL*

Will D. Campbell

PAUL ANTHONY,
EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

A Council to attain the ideals and practices of equal opportunity for all peoples in the South

MEMORANDUM

December 16, 1966

TO: Member agencies, Southern Interagency Conference

FROM: Secretariat

SUBJECT: Meeting on January 18 and 19, 1967

The next meeting of the Southern Interagency Conference will be held on January 18 and 19, 1967, in Atlanta. The meeting will begin at 2:00 P.M. on January 18. Please place these dates in your calendar. Details of the meeting will be sent later.

At this point we know that the program will include a presentation by Bayard Rustin of the "Freedom Budget" which has been proposed by the A. Philip Randolph Institute, of which he is Executive Director. Present plans call for comment by three or four experts on various parts of the Freedom Budget. Names of these reactors will be sent along with details as to the place of the meeting.

We plan once again to have dinner together, and part of the program is scheduled for the evening of the 18th.

On the 19th we shall discuss a memorandum, to be presented by Ted Freedman and Oscar McCloud, on the direction and purpose of the Southern Interagency Conference.
